"In considering the proposals the department should bear in mind that there are 80-odd suits by independent exhibitors against the producer-distributors now pending in the courts," he said. "Congress by Section 5 of the Clayton Act intended that persons injured in their property and business by violations of the Sherman Law should have the aid of judgments and decrees in government proceedings as evidence. The burden of proving combination and conspiracy is usually too great for private litigants to sustain. The section, however, does not apply to consent decrees. Thus under the proposal the defendants not only would escape the fundamental objective of the main suit but would also escape the provisions of Section 5.

"This matter is of such grave importance to our members that the board of directors is impelled to ask that the department abide by its frequently announced determination to insist upon divestiture by the producer-distributors of their theatre holdings. As herein indicated, we are willing that such divestiture be accomplished with as little hardship to the defendants as possible. But for the government completely to abandon its stand on this measure would cause demoralization in the independent ranks."

Individual Dismissal Pleas Vital Points

NEW YORK—The application of Joseph M. Schenck, Daniel O. Hastings, and William L. Philips to have the all-industry suit dismissed as it applies against them personally may prove far more important than the immediate fate of these three men. Should 20th-Fox be successful in securing the dismissal of the action on April 30, it may follow through and ask dismissal against other officers and directors not specifically named by the government in the action. Other majors conceivably might follow, leaving only the corporate defendants.

Dismissal is sought pursuant to rule 37 of the federal rules of civil procedure.

Arnold Favors Neely Divorcement Bill

would be approved, although he did not reveal why the conversations in New York, in which representatives of the consent-decree section participated, were permitted to go on as they did.

"The department of justice is always willing to talk about plans, but if the business men do not want to come to the department of justice they can go to the department of commerce," he said, in explaining the activities of the latter.

"The department of commerce simply offers a formula for the presentation of plans and for negotiations, and as yet the department has recommended nothing. The department of commerce has sent over a very elaborate plan which permits continuance of the vertical trust and subjects it to control; I think I am correct in saying that as yet the motion picture companies have not actually submitted that plan as a decree, to the department of justice.

"If they should submit it to the department of justice, I can see only one justification for submitting it to the court, since it is based on the continuance of this vertical combination. The suit which we are prosecuting must not be dismissed and therefore the only reason why we could accept such a plan would be that the industry would feel that only by such a plan could it survive at all. It is a thing that can be justified only as an emergency matter.

"The independents have come to me and said that this thing will not help them, that they do not want it or any part of it."

Although it was decided to take no further testimony at the hearing, Neely permitted Abram S. Myers, general counsel for Allied States, to file a statement which he said would serve as his testimony.

Universal Sets Two Regional Meetings

NEW YORK—Universal will hold two three-day sales regionals this year. The first opens at the Ambassador, Atlantic City, May 11; the second a week later at the Drake, Chicago. Home office executives plan to attend both and that may go for the Canadian group as well.

The first will include Albany, Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, Charlotte, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Memphis, New Haven, New Orleans, New York, Oklahoma City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Washington.

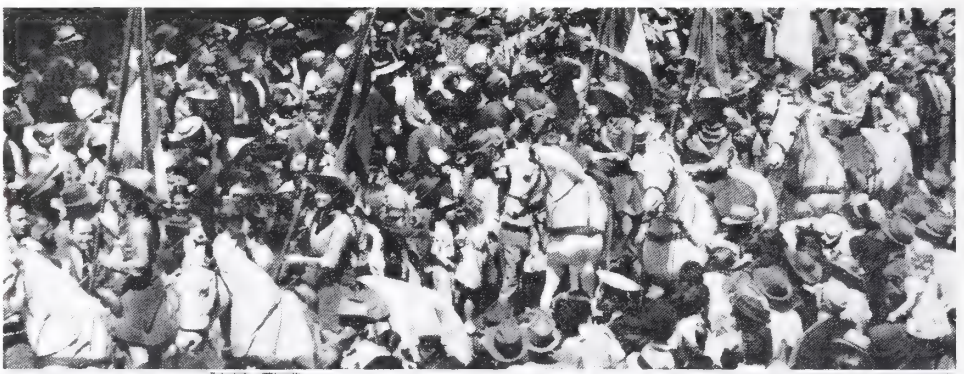
The Chicago sessions will embrace that city, Denver, Des Moines, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Omaha, Portland, St. Louis, Salt Lake, San Francisco and Seattle.

Variety Convention Hits New High Note

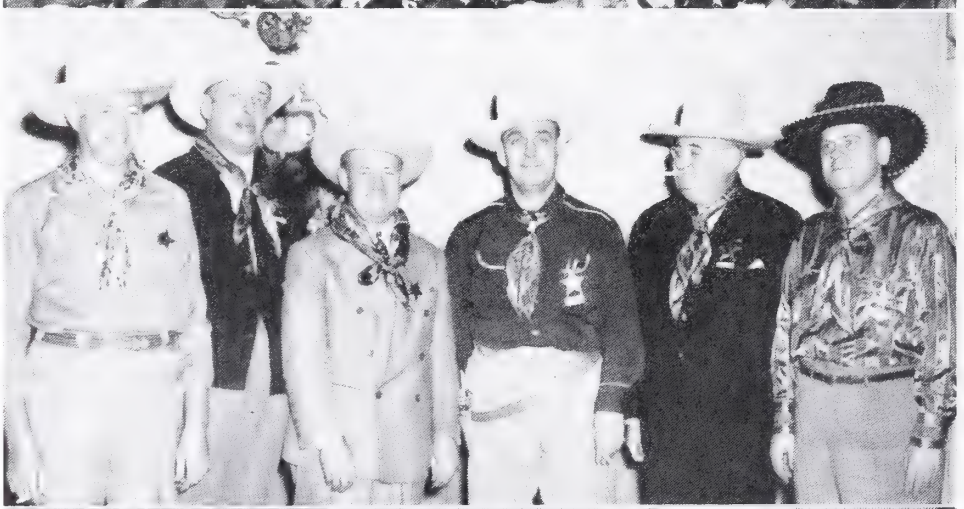
By V. W. CRISP

DALLAS—Stock of the industry, measured in terms of goodwill, soared to new heights for three days here during the sixth annual Variety Club convention.

After sharing with the public, 500,000 of them, the thrills of a five-mile parade, conventioneers repaired to their formal attire and, by nine o'clock, 1,500 dinners were served to guests in every available inch of the huge Crystal Ballroom of the Baker Hotel.



The program began to unreel with Kenny Baker singing "God Bless America," and the audience had to be diverted in their demands for an encore. Jacques Singer, conductor of the Dallas Symphony, took the center of the hall and directed Hyman Charninsky's orchestra in "The Star Spangled Banner." Every showman joined in the singing and the rhythm appeared to come from a well-rehearsed chorus.



About 125 notables in show business were seated at the biggest dais ever constructed in Dallas, or anywhere in this part of the country. For example, five presidents of as many film companies, had places there. They were Barney Balaban, Paramount; George J. Schaefer, RKO; W. Ray Johnston, Monogram; Herman Robbins, National Screen Service, and James R. Grainger, Republic. This array also included Herman Wobber, 20th-Fox; Ned E. Depinet, RKO; Sam Dembow, Paramount; Thos. J. Connors, Metro; Neil F. Agnew, Paramount; Abe Montague, Columbia; Rube Jackter, Columbia; Charles Casanave, National Screen; George Dembow, National Screen; Wm. B. Brenner, National Screen; Cresson E. Smith, RKO; A. W. Smith jr., RKO; Oscar Morgan, Paramount; Paul Terry, Terry-Toons; Harry Gold, UA; James Mulvey, UA; William Kupper, 20th-Fox; Scott R. Dunlap, Monogram; Dave Palfreyman, Hays office; H. J. Yates, Consolidated Film Industries; Chas. E. Kessnich, Metro; Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA, Col. H. A. Cole, Allied; Harry Brandt, ITOA of N. Y., and the following exhibitors and Variety Club officials:

R. J. O'Donnell, Karl Hoblitzelle, John Harris, Paul Short, John Adams, Duke Clark, John Maloney, Frank Drew, Jas. G. Balmer, E. C. Rhoden, C. A. Schultz, H. J. Griffith, L. C. Griffith, M. J. Mullin, Samuel Pinanski, R. E. Martin, R. B. Wilby, Ed Rowley, Harold Robb, R. E. Griffith, Julius Gordon, Johnny Long, Mart Cole, Phil Isley, Wm. K. Jenkins, M. A. Lightman.

Hollywood names included Y. Frank Freeman, Frank Capra, James FitzPatrick, Eddie Moran, Gracie Allen, George Burns, Bruce Cabot, Dick Foran, Pawnee Bill, Tex Ritter, Ray Corrigan, Harry Friedman, Jean Parker, Ed Norris, Mary Healy, Kenny Baker, Joan Davis, and Wayne Morris.

Pittsburgh, Tent No. 1, won the attendance trophy for the largest delegation. Johnny Howard of Detroit is national golf champion among all "tents" after the competition at Brook Hollow Country Club. Duke Evans of Dallas was awarded $25 for the best costume at the Frontier Frolic.

Easterners Go Western, Etc., as Variety Club Takes Over Dallas—

The panel rising on the right: Top view is a puny segment of the huge crowds that thronged downtown Dallas for the five-mile parade, accoutred in frontier-day equipment. Middle view reveals how some of the barkers went in for haberdashery, the group, left to right, including R. J. O'Donnell, "Duke" Clark, John Maloney, John A. Harris, Frank Drew and James G. Balmer; mostly mid-westerners, too. Bottom view illustrates the ceremony attendant upon the presentation of the humanitarian award to Martha Berry. Left to right it's a case of Harris, O'Donnell, Miss Berry and Father Edward Flanagan of Boys Town, Neb. On the left, it's solidly Paramount. Or, Y. Frank Freeman, Karl Hoblitzelle and Barney Balaban.

Each Warner Spot on Its Own In Film Buys, Bernhard Says

NEW YORK—The Warner circuit cannot get better terms for each of its local units by using its over-all buying power and each theatre, therefore, "stands on its own," Joseph Bernhard, general manager, testified in his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's all-industry suit.

"Then it would be ideal for a circuit to own all theatres in a given situation?" Wright asked. "I would rather own one house in a booming town than all houses where industry has moved away," the witness answered. Robert W. Perkins, Warner's chief counsel, interposed with: "There are some situations where 100 per cent operation is disastrous."

Bernhard was asked what benefits the Warner circuit derived from affiliation with the production department. "We are assured one good product," he answered. After a long pause, he said there were no other benefits. However, the distribution department has access to daily gross sheets of 50 theatres showing the business done on all companies pictures. Other exhibition data is available for the distribution department "but they never ask me for it," Bernhard declared.

Law Department in Middle

Wright asked what floor in the Warner Building the witness made his office. It turned out to be the eighth. And the distribution department? he asked. Its offices are on the sixth. "And the law department is on the seventh floor, right in the middle," Perkins added.

Wright wanted to know if there was any "definite policy" in respect to the acquisition and disposition of theatres. "Only to eliminate those where business is punk," Bernhard said. He declared there are, perhaps, a dozen more theatres in the circuit now than when he took charge in 1930. Basic factors in acquiring theatres are growth in neighborhood populations and whether another house can be added to local management without materially increasing the cost of overhead, he said. No moves are made until it is determined what product is available, the witness added. Existing competition enters into the picture, too.

Perkins observed that manpower, the European war and the activities of the department of justice were factors to be considered. His remark drew a round of laughs. Bernhard followed this with: "For that reason we turn down 50 more theatres than we acquire."

Bernhard was asked if he participated in product discussions. "Only when they call for help. I like to buy as cheaply as I can," he said.

"You not only like to, you usually do," shot Wright, with a twinkle in his eye. "I wish you were right," countered Bernhard, smiling. "Let's assume Mr. Wright is right," Perkins joined in, and the examination got serious again.

The witness said, in answer to a direct question, he does not discuss Warner circuit affairs with Gradwell L. Sears, in charge of distribution, except for the circuit's film requirements and Sears does not discuss his business affairs relating to other companies with Bernhard.

This attitude, observed Bernhard, is the outgrowth of a "firm, concise, positive" policy laid down by Harry M. Warner, president, about eight years ago. Bernhard said, in answer to a question, he did not know what caused Warner to issue these instructions. "Why, then, would you think it improper to run the exhibition and distribution departments as a joint business?" Wright asked. "My opinion is that they should be run that way for the best interests of the company." Wright wanted to know what constituted "best interests." The witness answered: "The best evidence I have in the nine years I am with the company, and as a stockholder, is that I have no complaint." His tone was in a light vein.

Deeply Into Pools

Wright delved deeply into what "considerations" might have existed in instances where the circuit pooled its houses and where units were acquired. There were also many questions as to why the circuit dropped certain houses. For instance, did Bernhard ever discuss with B. & K. the possibility of limiting its Chicago operations to the south side? There had never been such discussions, he said. Is the fact that Warner has limited its operations in the Windy City since it dropped the Orpheum "just an accident?" Wright asked. Perkins objected to the question and it went unanswered. Bernhard declared he had "never given it a thought" when Wright asked if he ever considered operating elsewhere in Chicago besides the south side.

To questions why the circuit pooled houses, Bernhard observed it was invariably for "trying to do better business under one management." Expenses are reduced, bookings become more flexible, more pictures are usually available and as a rule "it's a good business deal," he added.

"If it is always good business just for the sake of economy and more flexible booking why not pool all your houses?" Wright wanted to know. "You've given me an idea," came the facetious reply.

Warner units in Charlotte, Milwaukee, Memphis, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Hammond, Ind., Newark, N. J., and other situations that have been dropped were done so because operation turned out to be unprofitable, the witness declared. "Why were they unprofitable?" Wright asked. "They just didn't seem to work out; just didn't. They were mistakes. I make lots of them."

Gen'l Theatres Equipment Quarterly Earnings Up

NEW YORK—Earnings for the first quarter of General Theatres Equipment Corp. are $212,681, equal to 36 cents per share, compared to $145,543 or 24 cents per share for the same period last year.

Directors and officers were re-elected at the annual stockholders' meeting. The officers are: Earle G. Hines, president; W. E. Green, vice-president; R. N. Harder, vice-president and treasurer, and R. B. LaRue, secretary.

Lansdowne Suit Hearing May Come Late in May

PHILADELPHIA—The Lansdowne Theatre's anti-trust suit against Stanley-Warner and the majors is scheduled to come up in U. S. district court "the latter part of May," Attorney Harry N. Ball reports.

Asked if there was any talk of out-of-court settlement, he said, "We're no closer to that than to a government consent decree."

Disney Fans Still Grow

NEW YORK—Walt Disney has a new set of admirers, and it's not even certain if they like his cartoons. They are the Wall Street stock underwriters who handled the producer's public issue of 155,000 shares at $25 each, all of which, with the exception of a few scattered shares, are said to have been disposed of.

Here's the sendoff Disney got from a spokesman at Kidder, Peabody & Co., head of the underwriting group:

"We consider it a remarkably good reception and a tribute to Disney: he must have a lot of loyal followers. The quick sale of his stock is especially significant in the face of an upset market. And the picture business, with its loss of foreign revenue, isn't untouched either."

The spokesman revealed that 5,000 shares of the total offered to Disney employes had been taken up entirely.

Tariff Acts Regarded as Aid For Exports When War Ends

WASHINGTON—Extension of the reciprocal tariff act, approved by President Roosevelt April 12, is seen in Washington as having little immediate effect but as paving the way for quick action by the government to avert discriminations against and handicaps on American exports following the termination of the European war.

In signing the bill, the President secured another three years in which the Administration—maybe under another President, even another party—may negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with individual foreign countries.

There is little hope for any action in the near future to safeguard the overseas markets of the film industry, already depleted by war conditions. One or two agreements may be made with Latin American countries, but even in that area it is not believed many governments are interested in committing themselves now to any hard and fast agreement.

Following the termination of the war, an impoverished Europe will look to overseas trade as a means of improving its economic position. To save as much as possible of the benefits of exports, the various countries, as they did during the depression of the 1920's, will attempt to limit imports; it is in this situation that the Administration sees the reciprocal trade agreements as a highly valuable weapon against high tariffs, quotas and other trade barriers.

Dominion Representatives Will Remit to New York

NEW YORK—Further difficulties with the British government over remittances has caused distributors to instruct representatives in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa to remit funds directly to New York. Heretofore, companies have cleared through London where, as far as the industry is concerned, the pound sterling is fixed at $4.02.

The reason for the latest move is that the British government wants to include all such revenue as part of the money allocated to the companies from England.

More Trouble in Japan For the Distributors

NEW YORK—The Japanese government is cutting up again, much to the distributors' discomfort. At the beginning of the year, the companies were promised 81 import permits. At first, the government allowed 11 and later 8 more. The following day all were withdrawn. Meanwhile, most of the companies have exhausted their stock of releases. Business, it is reported, is better than ever. As it shapes up now, pictures cannot go in and money cannot come out.

Another for Select

NEW YORK—Select Attractions has acquired United States rights to Johann Strauss' "Southern Roses" from Unity Films.

Montague Owns Small Stock Blocks, No Houses

New York—Abe Montague's financial interest in the business beyond whatever stocks he owns in Columbia includes 100 shares of Loew common, 100 share of the defunct Fox Theatres and 100 Warner common in the name of his wife.

He has no interest in theatres since he joined Columbia, but in 1914-1923 operated the Bay Square, Boston, and a theatre in Somerville and North Cambridge, Mass.

Reserves Decision in Goldwyn-UA Tilt

NEW YORK—The most interesting court news of the week was the argument pro and con in Samuel Goldwyn's suit against UA, Alexander Korda and London Films. Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell reserved decision on three applications, which were to examine Korda before trial on the part of Goldwyn, to dismiss the action against Korda and London Films and to make the complaint more specific and for a bill of particulars on the part of UA.

The judge commented only once and that was to inquire why, if Korda was so necessary to the action, the other three owners of UA were not also included. This was explained by a statement that the Delaware judge had declared Korda necessary, even though the plaintiff did not think so and for that reason he had been included in this action.

Norman Wolf and Mannes Fuld, Loew minority stockholders, have appealed to the appellate division of the supreme court from a decision of Judge Louis A. Valente, dismissing their action against Loew's, A. T. and T., Western Electric, Erpi, the Chase Bank, Halsey Stuart, and Clarence Dillon. Suit sought damages of $5,000,000 for alleged excessive license fees for recording charged Loew's by Erpi.

Referee John E. Joyce in federal court has recommended the $667,287 claim of the National Rockland Bank and Harold G. Storke against Paramount Publix Corp. based on bond obligations of G. B. theatres, be expunged.

Peyton Gibson, secretary of Universal, will be examined in the supreme court May 1 in connection with Wilhelm Karol's $60,000 suit against the company. Karol, formerly special representative of Universal, claims to have set a deal in July, 1938, for the distribution of Universal's pictures in Italy through Guiseppe Musso, who paid $400,000 for the rights.

The appellate division of the supreme court has upheld a supreme court decision and dismissed the Caron Corp.'s suit for an injunction against RKO's "Primrose Path." The suit was based on the grounds the film maligns a perfume of Caron's.

Loew Calm in Face of U. K. Ire on 'GWTW'

NEW YORK—M-G-M foreign sales executives profess little or no concern over the threatened boycott of "Gone With the Wind" by British exhibitors because of the 70 per cent playing terms.

The reaction occurred here, it is pointed out, when terms were announced. One executive states "What some people don't realize is that a guarantee of ten per cent of the gross for 'Gone With the Wind' is equal to 30 per cent on another picture. And who ever heard of a distributor guaranteeing an exhibitor a profit on a picture?"

The protest is registered by CEA, representing about 90 per cent of British exhibitors. In arguing that M-G-M can afford to make a little less money while exhibitors cannot afford to lose more, the CEA declared that Sam Eckman, managing director, makes as much money a year as the British cabinet.

Myerberg Sues on Disney Stock Underwriting

NEW YORK—Michael Myerberg has filed a federal court suit seeking $35,000 damages against Edwin S. Webster jr., Chandler Hovey, Albert H. Gordon, G. Hermann Kinnicutt, Orus J. Matthews, Frederick L. Moore and John G. Flint, doing business as Kidder, Peabody and Co., claiming he was instrumental in securing the underwriting of an issue of six per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock of Walt Disney Productions.

Max G. Felder, theatre manager employed by Popular Theatres Inc., and Twin Theatres, has filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy in the federal court listing liabilities of $57,544 and assets of $5,500. Among creditors are National Theatre Supply Co., $2,525, and Harry Shiffman, $2,200 on judgments; Joe Hornstein Inc., $35,746 on promissory notes; Columbia, $1,100 on rentals and percentages due on film and UA, $450 for the same.

Asks FCC to Reopen Television Hearings

NEW YORK—Cath-Ray Electronic Laboratories has requested the FCC to reopen television hearings on the ground the body "was imposed upon" by the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories in the latter's request that the FCC suspend limited commercialization of television programs. The request contends suspension of limited commercialization of television programs does not serve the public interest because it denies the great numbers of people the "benefits" of the medium.

Ross Business Up

NEW YORK—Ross Federal Research business for the first quarter increased 108 per cent over the same period for 1939, according to Harry A. Ross. The company is marking its 10th anniversary.

Sargoy, Legal Head Of Copyright Bureau

NEW YORK—Edward A. Sargoy succeeds the late Gabriel L. Hess as general counsel of the Copyright Protection Bureau. Joseph L. Stein continues in association, while Jack H. Levin stays as general manager in charge of administration.

Sargoy, about whom relatively little is known to industry rank-and-filers, is regarded as an authority on copyright law. Although only 38 years of age, for three years he has been chairman of the committee on copyrights of the American Bar Association. He has prepared the pivotal cases, drafted the briefs and argued the legal questions on copyright infringement, as well as the appeals, arising out of unauthorized film exhibitions during the past ten years.

Also, Sargoy occupied a place alongside Hess at all meetings of the Hays office committee of counsel on copyright and wrote the memoranda submitted on behalf of distributors before congressional committees discussing copyright problems. He is the American collaborator of a projected encyclopedia on copyright to be published in Holland as "World Copyright."

Technicolor Stockholders Get Encouraging Report

NEW YORK—"Were it not for the curtailment of receipts from abroad, the business of your company would no doubt have experienced important growth during 1939 as compared with 1938," the Technicolor stockholders' report states in reflecting 1939 earnings of $912,614, compared with $1,050,536 the previous year.

However, 1940 first quarter shipments are substantially ahead of last year, the report adds, revealing 30,900,000 feet as compared with 21,100,000 feet in 1939. Preliminary figures for this quarter indicate profit of $556,000, compared with $310,468 for the same quarter in 1939.

Paints Roseate Picture for Near Future of Television

ATLANTIC CITY—Television is looming in the near future as a gigantic entertainment industry that will eventually provide employment for hundreds of thousands when the FCC grants commercial rights to transmitting stations, Thomas F. Joyce, vice-president of RCA Manufacturing Co., told 225 members of the SMPE at their semi-annual convention here.

He cited 30 stations in 18 cities as having applied for television licenses. Of these, six have been granted. When the others are granted, Joyce said, 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 families, or about 25 per cent of the population of the U. S., will be able to receive broadcasts in their homes. He predicted the purchase of over 1,000,000 receivers hinging on the FCC decision.

Joyce invited the film industry to partake in the early development of television, pointing out that no one has yet been able to gauge the public's capacity for entertainment. He pointed to new wage and hour legislation which gives more leisure to the public as an aid in the reception of new forms of entertainment.

Additionally, the conventioneers heard five other papers dealing with various phases of television. A new method of synchronizing transmitters and receivers which makes tuning simpler for the home user and a new lightweight portable pick-up system which replaces two truck loads of bulky equipment were among developments described in papers presented by representatives of the Don Lee Broadcasting System, Los Angeles; NBC, RCA, CBS and Allen B. Du Mont Laboratories. The session also heard the story of the televising of the Pasadena Rose Tournament Parade New Year's Day in a paper by H. R. Lubcke of the Don Lee system.

Dr. I. G. Maloof of the RCA research laboratories explained research being conducted to take the "guess work" out of television camera technique and thus seek to assure more perfect reproduction of original scenes over home receiving sets. He said televising had reached the point where the finer points in shading in both studio and outdoor scenes have become the object of intensive effort at improvement.

Delegates also heard Major E. H. Armstrong of Columbia University tell of the development of the "frequency modulation" type of radio broadcasting which is under test in the New York area. Dr. Lloyd A. Jones of Eastman Kodak, in a companion paper, spoke on pictorial tone reproduction from a photographic approach.

The convention which numbered delegates from points as far removed as the coast, heard John A. Maurer of the Berndt-Maurer Corporation on the increasing use of 16mm films in the commercial field. Five other technical papers on the narrow gauge market were also on the agenda.

C. S. Ashcraft of the company bearing his name explained details of a new arc light employing new electrical principles designed to achieve brighter, clearer images in theatres. He called the method the "Cyclex System" which is based on a method of coordinating light impulses and projecting them through a rotating shutter and, thus, onto the screen.

An awareness of the need for proper projection asserted itself in the reading of ten other technical papers on problems and their ultimate solutions.

Describing a method of using optical glass in cameras and projectors, W. C. Miller of the Paramount studio, Hollywood, told of the work of Dr. John Strong of the California Institute of Technology along these lines. The basis of the development revolves around a reduction of light losses caused by reflection and provides for coating lenses with a transparent film one-millionth of an inch thick. Miller said this innovation increases screen brightness by 50 per cent. Producers, he pointed out, have found only 64 per cent of available light reaches the film while shooting with untreated lenses, whereas nearly all of the brightness is caught when the lenses are coated.

Audiences in theatres enjoy themselves to a point that the noise they make poses a problem for the industry, according to W. A. Mueller, Warner studio technician. Audience noise level is a serious restriction to the value range of dialogue from the screen because it averages eight decibels louder than the almost inaudible noise level of the sound reproducing equipment, he said.

Drawing his conclusions on data from 9,000 patients examined in 17 clinics in 12 cities, W. C. Beasley of the National Institute of Health, U. S. Public Health Service, stated only five per cent of all Americans sufficiently deafened to derive benefit through hearing aids actually use them.

A banquet at the Haddon Hall highlighted Wednesday's session. This was followed by two final sessions on Thursday. SMPE will hold its fall convention this year in Hollywood.

Another Silverstone Comes Up, and Shyly

New York—Least publicized of the Silverstone brothers is Sidney, a cancer specialist. He is also different in many respects from film-minded Murray, Arthur and Emanuel, all of whom are with UA. Last weekend, Dr. Silverstone confessed, shyly, that he saw his first motion picture in over two years.

William Fox Creditors May Sue All-Continent Co.

CAMDEN, N. J.—Creditors of William Fox may sue for $9,000,000 which they claim is due them from the All-Continent Company, headed by Mrs. Fox. They assert this corporation was formed by Fox for the express purpose of turning over all of his personal assets.

MPAYBE Dissolved

ALBANY—Motion Pictures' Greatest Year, Inc., has dissolved. Phillips & Nizer, 1501 Broadway, were attorneys in dissolution proceedings.

Feature of Hawaii In Color Planned

NEW YORK—A Technicolor feature about Hawaii will be produced for M-G-M by James A. FitzPatrick, of Traveltalk fame, who left for the coast over the weekend to prepare for shooting.

About 80 per cent of the camera work will be done on the islands. The story, which is being written by Hugo Butler, deals with Captain Cook's exploration of the South seas. According to FitzPatrick, Charles King is working on the musical score.

FitzPatrick, who has been making travelogues for M-G-M for the past 12 years, recently renewed his contract for another five. He states he has 15 releases available for future distribution. He also has a one-reeler featuring Dr. Bertrand Russell and Rabbi Stephen Wise in a debate on morality for which he is arranging a separate distribution deal.

Order Employe Election For Four N. Y. Firms

WASHINGTON — Elections to determine whether the American Federation of Office Employes is to be the collective bargaining representatives of warehouse employes of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corp., Producers Settlement Corp., Circuit Settlement Corp., Globe Export Corp., and Vitagraph, Inc., have been ordered by the national labor relations board.

The several companies maintain a warehouse in New York for the purpose of purchasing, shipping and distributing motion picture stills, lithographs, posters, advertising accessories, office supplies and related products to various branch offices throughout the country. The Producers Settlement Corp. and Circuit Settlement Corp. are disbursing agents for the other four companies.

In its order, the board dismissed the petition insofar as it concerned Music Publishers Holding Corp., also located in the same building.

Widen Welfare Work

NEW YORK—Motion Picture Associates will widen the scope of its welfare work as a result of the change from a social to charitable organization in its structure, according to Moe Streimer, vice-president. Plans are now under way for a widespread industry drive for funds.

M-G-M Theatres Formed; No Tie With Loew's

Albany—M-G-M Theatres, Inc., has been formed here, listing 200 shares with no par value.

Attorneys who formed this company declare the "M-G-M" stands for the individuals involved in the operation of the Bridge Theatre, 17th St. and St. Nicholas Ave. The men, names withheld, are not tied with Loew's. Neither is the company.

Union Situation May Bar RKO-Cocalis Deal

NEW YORK—There is a possibility the union situation may kick out any plan of RKO to take over six Cocalis theatres in the Bronx. The units now employ Empire men, who receive considerably less than the Local 306 scale. Because 306 is in the rest of the RKO circuit, a demand for replacement will be immediately made and also to boost the booth cost to $380, which generally applies to the larger type of house. Local 306 may take in the Empire men, if insisted upon, but will not countenance a low scale.

Hence, before RKO will take over the six theatres, providing the department of justice approves, the operator situation may prove an impossible hurdling block.

Warner Zone Managers Confer With Bernhard

NEW YORK—Warner theatre zone managers attended a home office meeting presided over by Joseph Bernhard, general manager, on Wednesday.

Those present included James Coston, Chicago; Nat Wolf, Cleveland; I. J. Hoffman, New Haven; Don Jacocks, Newark; Moe Silver, Albany; Ted Schlanger, Philadelphia; Harry Kalmine, Pittsburgh; John Payette, Washington, and Herbert Copeland, Atlantic City.

Film Division's Goal Is $100,000 in Fund Drive

NEW YORK—The motion picture division of the Greater New York Fund, whose chairman is J. Robert Rubin, has set $100,000 as its goal for the 1940 charity drive. Last year the industry contributed $70,681.

Sub-chairmen for the drive are Herman Robbins, who heads the allied and accessories group; Ned E. Depinet, producers-distributors; B. S. Moss, exhibitors, and Ralph I. Poucher, laboratories.

Plans were mapped out at a luncheon given by Rubin for Winthrop Rockefeller. Austin C. Keough, Harry D. Buckley, B. S. Moss, Harold Rodner, Ralph I. Poucher, Jack Alicoate and John Kane were among those present. Also present was Leland E. Burrell, divisional director of the utilities and amusement section.

Korda Due Wednesday; To Europe on May 4

NEW YORK—Alexander Korda, who has postponed his flight to Europe until May 4 on the Clipper, is expected here from the coast Wednesday. Fortified with a line of credit amounting to $3,600,000, Korda is prepared to produce two in Hollywood and two in England for UA. With his financing complete, he plans to set up his British production and return to Hollywood in June.

Explains Again Why He Loves Hollywood

New York—From Sidney Skolsky's Hollywood column which appears locally in the "New York Post:"

"Seen in the Metro commissary: Nazi Storm Troopers with swastikas on their shirtsleeves, eating matzohs."

Dismissal for All Fox Officers, Aim

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox, deciding to go whole hog or nothing, has added the balance of names of its executives named as defendants in the all-industry suit to the three names previously submitted in its request for a dismissal. This request, combined with the other, will be heard May 7.

Directors and officers for whom the company will plead are Sidney R. Kent, William C. Michel, Darryl F. Zanuck, William Goetz, Felix A. Jenkins, Sidney Towell, Herman Wobber, H. Donald Campbell, John R. Dillon, Hermann G. Place, Seton Porter, Truman H. Talley, Spyros P. Skouras, H. S. Gambee, H. C. Cox, John P. Edmondson. Those named previously are Joseph M. Schenck, Daniel O. Hastings, and William Philips.

Grounds for the application are that the government has submitted no evidence to show that any of these defendants has committed any wrongful act.

Trade Fair Participation Plan Out; "Too Late"

NEW YORK—Now it can be told. The once seriously mulled idea of major producers to participate in the World's Fair is "definitely out." The authority is Stanton Griffis, chairman of Paramount's executive board. He was considered one of the prime movers due to the arguments said to have been advanced by Harvey D. Gibson, fair board chairman, who also is Griffis' father-in-law.

Gibson was anxious to have the industry at the fair because of the attending "prestige," the story goes. Griffis says "we were just too late," in explaining why the plan has been dropped. He revealed the project had reached the point where blue prints for the building of a theatre had been approved, but that the time was too short.

Northwest Allied Unit Meet Trails National

MINNEAPOLIS—It now is expected Northwest Allied's convention here will not be held until after the national Allied States' June convention in Chicago. President W. A. Steffes is understood to favor such a course.

The convention in Minneapolis will be devoted principally to adoption of a plan for establishing and maintaining district units throughout the territory.

Gov't-Cited, States He Filed No Plaint

NEW YORK—The government is "in error" in its charge that discriminatory clearance practices were applied against him by distributors in 1932 in favor of RKO and Paramount theatres, James C. Forgione, operator of the Forum, Metuchen, N. J., declared during his pre-trial examination by defense attorneys in the all-industry suit.

The witness is the second of two who has placed responsibility of the filing of his complaint with the department of justice with Allied of New Jersey. He denied ever writing to the department. His situation was discussed at the exhibitor organization's meetings "when grievances came up," although he felt Allied "could not do much for me."

As the examination progressed, it developed that the government appears to be without foundation in this specific charge. The supplemental answers to defendants' interrogatories include the allegation Forgione has knowledge exhibition in his territory is completely dominated by the affiliated circuits who have monopolized all major product and who have extended their domination by taking protection on all major product for the benefit of RKO's Rivoli and State in New Brunswick and Paramount theatres in Perth Amboy.

Says Made No Complaint

In answer to a direct question, the witness declared he never registered a complaint in respect to the situation in either of the two towns. "The only complaint I made was Plainfield," he said. Forgione observed the government might have had Plainfield in mind when it singled out New Brunswick and Perth Amboy.

"My main thought in the complaint was about following Plainfield," he declared. At this point he traced events leading up to the assertion he was placed behind the Walter Reade houses in Plainfield, seven miles from Metuchen, which has made it necessary for him to wait eight weeks after New Brunswick and Perth Amboy, both about six miles from his house. The witness produced contracts for all 1939-40 product he has bought and these revealed that he must follow Plainfield. In noting the availability clause of his M-G-M contract for the record, Forgione included: "Fourteen days after New Brunswick and seven days after Plainfield, if, and, or as available."

"What happened to 'but'?" piped an attorney. "It covers a multitude of sins as it is," rejoined the witness.

It was brought out that Paramount operated the Plainfield houses before Reade took them over in 1930. In answer to a question, the witness said that when Paramount "had the houses they didn't bother me . . . I told the government man I'd rather have a producer's chain against me than an independent; they're more lenient . . . A year after Reade took over from Paramount, my protection trouble came up," he declared.

Nick Googan Renovating

ALBANY—Nick Googan has been making alterations to his Town Hall, Cazenovia.

Nods, Rattling Horseplay and Fun

New York—The official stenographer taking shorthand notes while James Binkov testified in his pre-trial examination in the government suit before defense attorneys had a complaint. He registered it. Would the witness, when answering "Yes" and "No" questions kindly reply orally instead of nodding his head?

"It is very difficult to hear you if you nod your head," the stenographer declared. "Sometimes I hear you when you nod, other times I don't."

"How have you been able to hear me the times you say you do?" Binkov inquired.

"Maybe your head rattles," was the rejoinder.

"Maybe it does," Binkov joined in the fun.

No Theatre Showings For Republican Film

NEW YORK—No theatre showings are contemplated for the feature length film, "A New Tomorrow," produced by the United Republican Finance Committee, according to Al Mertz, in charge of distribution.

Mertz informs BOXOFFICE the organization, purely local, has in mind only performances before Republican committees, civic groups and clubs of that character in eight New York counties. At present there are 12 negatives in 16mm and one in 35mm available. In cases where public halls are not large enough to accommodate crowds a local theatre may be rented for an early morning showing, Mertz adds, but there is no thought to offer it to theatres as part of a regular program.

Although Mertz claims he has no knowledge of what studio was used for its production or who produced it, he says the film employs Robert Barrat, Russell Hicks, Fuzzy Knight and Fay Helm as principal characters. It runs about 45 minutes. If the organization decides to step up prints, Republican groups throughout the country may get a chance to show it, Mertz states.

The film's purpose is to "create interest in the party and recruit workers."

Avers Chains Pushed Back His Clearance

NEW YORK—As RKO and Warner circuit units became established in the area around Union City and West New York, N. J. where he previously held a "dominant" first-run position, James Binkov's Temple gradually has been pushed back to third run, the exhibitor declared in his pre-trial examination before defense attorneys in the key government suit.

Binkov is listed among the government witnesses said to have knowledge of facts in support of the department of justice claim that affiliated theatres have been granted unreasonable protection against independent operators.

The witness denied he had ever brought his grievance to the department. The situation was discussed, "but not officially," at Allied of New Jersey headquarters in New York, of which he was a member. Sidney Samuelson was then president, Binkov declared. Asked when he first complained about his situation, he said: "I was kicking all the time. I'm an exhibitor, you know." Pressed on the question, the witness said he first discussed the matter "when my run was taken away from me, before 1932."

This first occurred when Haring & Blumenthal took over operation of the Lincoln, currently operated by Warner, Binkov declared. The house is 14 blocks from the Temple. Subsequently the Summit, which is 44 blocks from his house and is operated by C. Weitzman, "took protection over me," he added. Thereafter, the RKO Capitol's run was given to the Warner houses and the Temple was relegated to third run, the witness related.

In the course of the examination, it was brought out that Binkov has "retired" since 1937; that his son operates the house at present; that he spent $28,000 renovating the Temple six years ago; was the last in his area to install sound equipment and had no knowledge he was included as a government witness until 24 hours before the examination.

Asked if he had any other source of revenue besides his theatre, Binkov replied: "I have some real estate, if you call that a source."

ALBANY—Joe Bertrand has remodeled the Bertrand in Clayton, Jefferson county.

Link With Allied Sought

NEW YORK—Pre-trial examination of three potential government witnesses by defense attorneys in the all-industry suit is aimed at establishing Allied's participation in the events leading up to institution of the action by the department of justice and indicates a line of attack that will be pursued by defendants if and when the trial gets under way. The witnesses so far have been James Binkov, Temple, Union City; James C. Forgione, Forum, Metuchen, and Anthony Bannon, Court, Newark, all in New Jersey.

In the words of an important defense attorney, the linking of Allied with the department of justice as it bears upon its "fronting" for complaining exhibitors is to prove that "Allied has been riding the gravy train too long." Asked to amplify this statement, the source declares "It seems a pity that an organization with so little tangible or monetary interest in this business can come in and disrupt an industry as important as ours. In other words, Allied would appear to be sprouting wings, yet we know of Allied leaders who have set themselves up in closed towns and are not so angelic in their operations."

Sees Cheery Future Despite War Clouds

WELLESLEY, MASS.—Despite the war, the American industry faces improved earnings prospects, concludes Poor's Industry and Investment Surveys.

This survey source places shrinkage of revenue from overseas at ten per cent, a figure which will be viewed as low within the industry, but observes competition from foreign production is expected to diminish to the advantage of domestically-made product in world markets. However, this "will not offset the adverse effects of decreased revenue caused by blackouts and evacuation of European cities or the unfavorable aspects of government regulations, particularly exchange restrictions and censorship."

Poor's foresees a higher level of consumer income effecting a moderate gain in theatre attendance and receipts in this country. "Since production plans and film costs for the 1940-41 season differ little from the current season, a proportionate rise in net domestic results should be registered," it declares. "In fact, gains in the United States market should, in many cases, offset losses from abroad."

It is anticipated a further downward trend in exports will develop because of war conditions, but widespread use of American product in Brazil, Argentina and Mexico is viewed as offsetting some of the constrictions developing in European markets. This source computes rentals from abroad at $135,000,000 annually, as compared with $250,000,000 in the United States where theatre grosses are placed at $1,000,000,000 annually. On this basis, Poor's computes total foreign rentals have contributed 12 per cent of the international gross.

Three reasons are ascribed to an improved domestic market. One is given as a prolonged war abroad; two is maintenance of United States neutrality and three, development of a good volume of industrial export business which would induce an increase in consumer incomes. "This, manifestly, should be reflected in greater theatre attendance and boxoffice receipts," it is calculated.

"The improvement outlined in this country, moreover, is expected to be sufficient to offset losses from abroad. For, even should a 50 per cent decline in foreign film rentals be suffered, a rise of less than seven per cent in total United States boxoffice receipts and rentals would prove fully compensatory.

"However, a combination of political factors is disturbing. In addition to the department of justice's New York anti-trust suit, are (1) the Neely block booking bill, passed by the Senate in July, 1939, but still to be approved by the House of Representatives, and (2) threats of national labor relations board hearing on wages, strikes and union activities," continues the survey.

Relight in Middleburg

ALBANY—The Novelty, Middleburg, closed since Mitchel Conery surrendered the lease and opened a new house in the Schoharie county village, is being relighted.

Estimate 150 Stars Are Under Contract

Hollywood—In the 20 larger studios there are approximately 150 contract stars and about 400 featured players, according to a producers' association estimate. In addition there are 40 or more better known stars and featured players who work on a free-lance basis. There are 246 active directors, 400 assistants, approximately 700 writers and 650 cameramen. In the music field, composers, lyricists and supervisors make up a group of 210. There are from 37 to 40 dance directors.

Treasury Smiling Over Tax Returns

WASHINGTON—The U. S. treasury stands to make a tidy profit out of the several "honeys" recently released by the motion picture producers, it is indicated by the bureau of internal revenue.

First indications of the millions of dollars that poured into the boxoffices of the country are given in a report that federal admission tax collections jumped from $1,852,763.82 in February to $2,390,931.82 in March, where they were more than three-quarter million dollars ahead of the $1,606,996.13 collected in the same month last year.

For the first three months of the year, collections reached $5,730,230.28, nearly 25 per cent above the $4,674,257.72 reported for the corresponding period in 1939.

However, it is said, the March jump is only a foretaste of the increased revenue which the treasury will derive as full returns from "Gone With the Wind" and the other pictures released at the same time reach the coffers of the collectors of internal revenue.

Kutisker Associates to Build One in New York

NEW YORK—Kutisker Associates will alter the building at Tenth Street and 40th Avenue, opposite the Queensbridge housing project, into a 600-seat theatre.

Joseph Namias is the new operator of the Bobby, Brooklyn.

Pitts-Roth Gets Scott's Smithfield Theatre

SMITHFIELD, VA.—The Pitts-Roth Corp. of Fredericksburg and Harrisonburg has acquired the Smithfield from Jesse J. Scott. Plans of the new owners call for the house to be completely remodeled, incuding a modern heating and air conditioning system. Pitts-Roth is building a theatre in Suffolk, where it now operates the Chadwick and Cavalier.

Gets East Side House

NEW YORK—The Public on Second Ave. and Fourth St. has been acquired by the Leroy Seventh Corp. The deal was negotiated by Berk & Krumgold. The 1,850-seat house had been operated by William Rowland.

15 States and Canada On Daylight Time

NEW YORK—Fifteen states, or one less than last year, and Canada are on daylight saving time, generally observed from April 28 to September 29, according to a report compiled by the Merchants' Ass'n. States are Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee and Vermont. Idaho remains on mountain time.

In Massachusetts and New Hampshire observance to "summer time" is required by state law. All of Ohio which is in the standard time zone observes daylight saving by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Chicago metropolitan area is the only section in Illinois on daylight saving. Memphis has set May 12 as its tentative date for daylight saving with no date fixed for the ending.

Daylight saving in Indiana is observed in practically all cities and towns north of a line running generally southeastward from Hammond to Fort Wayne.

Practically all cities and communities in New York observe summer time. Greater New York City metropolitan area which touches New Jersey and Connecticut undoubtedly has influenced those areas in observing daylight saving. There are some exceptions upstate. Binghamton starts May 5, Norwich, May 11 and Ogdensburg, May 26. Summer time is generally observed throughout New Jersey and Connecticut. Pennsylvania, likewise.

Widely Observed in Delaware

In Delaware, all cities, towns and villages in New Castle county observe daylight saving. Albany, Atlanta, Decatur and Griffin are the Georgia cities on daylight saving. Albany, however, starts May 26, and Griffin, June 1.

Standard time is defined as legal for Michigan under a law adopted April 23, 1931. Although the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled that the lower half of the peninsula is included in the standard time zone, only the following towns and cities in the upper peninsula are on daylight saving: Escanaba, Gladstone, Gwinn, Ishpeming, Marquette, Munising (starts May 5), Negaunee and Rapid River. The remainder observe central standard.

With few exceptions, most of the towns, cities and villages in Ontario and Quebec are on daylight saving. Sudbury, Ont., starts as late as June 2. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia generally begin in May and Newfoundland and Labrador are on daylight saving from May 12 to October 6.

John J. Friedl of Minnesota Amusement Co. is in town from Minneapolis . . . Nat Wachsberger, vice-president of Film Alliance, is back from Hollywood . . . Gradwell L. Sears, his coast trip behind him, returned to his office via New Orleans and Sea Island . . . Unavoidably detained by bad flying weather, Mary Pickford's late arrival caused the UA board to meet on Thursday instead of Wednesday, as originally scheduled . . . Herman Wobber carrying home a copy of "How Green Was My Valley" which 20th-Fox will produce . . . Charles Cohen, Bernice Fields and Jeff Livingston, all of M-G-M, luncheon dancing at the Taft Grill to Ben Bernie's music . . . Eugen Sharin, executive vice-president of the newly-formed Fortrade Corp., is in Hollywood where he will remain for about two months.

It was a swell triple feature that Ampa presented at the first luncheon meeting under Leon Bamberger's regime. And no giveaways. The 60-odd that attended and paid for the victuals were proof. First, Bamberger demonstrated by his business-like and showmanship handling that purpose and entertainment can be blended with most satisfying results. Secondly, John Garfield read a passage from "Johnny Get Your Gun" that vibrated with drama, held "a message" for anyone who reads between the newspaper headlines and begged for a studio to film it. Thirdly, Harry Carey reminisced. As only a veteran of 300 feature pictures can. A little of this, a little of that and a lot of his experience in Africa during the filming of "Trader Horn." Bamberger appointed Eli Sugarman and Paul Lazarus jr., to take Ampa's best wishes to Paul Gulick, who is quite ill. Members were asked to cheer up Jimmy Cron, whose disjointed kneecap is expected to keep him confined for a few more weeks. H. M. Richey invited those who have any "kicks" to see him. This goes for menus, service, etc., he said. Bamberger appointed the committees, outlined elsewhere.

Short Gets Short Haul Ballyhooing

By JOE PRIORE

NEW YORK—They take trainloads of scriveners to points varying from 50 to 3,000 miles to see films in settings and cities that contribute in some manner to the production's color, locale or story. They also take them to points within the city where the only connection with the film is the more or less normal display of big American flags.

In this case, it was an excursion promoted by M-G-M's short subjects enthusiasts. They corraled about 30 or 40 Daughters of the American Revolution, Colonial Dames, the American Legion, the coast guard, the army and the trade press, loaded them aboard the cutter Hudson at the Barge Office and transported them to Ellis Island, a trip of 15 minutes. In the main dining room where new arrivals mark time until they can enter the country, the group had lunch. Later it viewed a two-reeler called "The Flag Speaks," a Technicolor offering which pleasantly and without too much embarrassing vigor, told how the present American flag came to be and how it should be properly displayed. It's a well-produced item with much to recommend it. Audiences have already evinced an interest in early American historical dramas that are condensed into short subjects and this one should serve to keep that interest alive.

Later the visitors looked over the reception hall and were gradually eased back to the waiting Hudson. En route down the stairs, Si Seadler, who earlier had been discoursing on his son's education, stated to a white-haired gent who seemed to be in charge, that the place "was so clean you could eat off an immigrant."

One Warner Meeting; Dates June 10-11-12

New York—It is understood Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager of Warner, has determined on one national sales convention this year to be held June 10-12 at a city presently undetermined.

Two UA Sales Meets Planned This Year

NEW YORK—UA this year will go for two sales conventions. The first, to cover the eastern half of the country, is slated for New York, May 13-15 and the second for the west at Chicago, May 16-18. Harry L. Gold, vice-president and eastern sales manager, will preside at the New York sessions and L. Jack Schlaifer, vice-president and western sales manager, at Chicago.

NEW YORK—George Schwartz has resigned his post with Consolidated Amusement Enterprises after five years. Aside from operating the Ascot, he booked the circuit's 15 Bronx houses, handled its advertising and purchased its non-film attractions, such as games and giveaways.

3 New Hearings in Gov't Suit Set Up

NEW YORK—Three hearings have been set in connection with the government's key suit. There will be two on April 29, running simultaneously, but in different places. Defense attorneys will examine Howard Lesser, operator of the Rialto, Paterson, N. J., in the RKO Building in the morning. At about the same time Robert L. Wright, assistant attorney general, will take the deposition of George J. Schaefer, RKO president, at the federal court building in Foley Square.

Herman Wobber, general sales manager of 20th Century-Fox, is scheduled to appear before Wright on May 1. Lesser is the fourth and last witness listed by the government as having knowledge of information in support of its charges of monopoly and conspiracy to be examined by defense counsel in this territory.

"A Cinch for the Top Brackets"

Hollywood—In "The Doctor Takes a Wife," Columbia has a worthy successor to its illustrious "It Happened One Night," of which it is considerably reminiscent. An uproarious romantic comedy, veering toward the farcical, it has a mirthful situation for nearly every turn of the camera—and every one of them is surefire for its quota of laughs. The picture assays as a cinch bet for the top brackets in revenue and audience acclaim. Loretta Young and Ray Milland are co-starred, the latter scoring with an outstanding performance which will give solid impetus to his march toward ranking stardom. The supporting cast is generally good. William Perlberg produced; Alexander Hall directed.—SPEAR.

N. Y. State Factory Payrolls Show Gain

ALBANY—With about 11 per cent more factory workers employed in New York state during the first three months of 1940 than in the similar period of 1939, there was a larger number on the payrolls during the first quarter of this year than in the corresponding period of any year since 1930, according to Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller.

Compared with the last quarter of 1939, which was the peak period of the last decade, there was a net loss during the first quarter of 1940 of only one-half of one per cent in total employment. Syracuse and Buffalo areas topped the list on employment and payrolls, followed by the Albany-Schenectady-Troy district. Syracuse employment and payrolls were up 18.9 and 24.8 per cent, respectively; Buffalo, 17.7 and 21.1. Gains in the local area were 16.1 per cent in employment and 19.3 in payrolls.

Commissioner Miller reported that "all the main industrial groups in both New York City and Albany-Schenectady-Troy contributed to the good gains from February to March that were recorded in these two districts. The industrial picture in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy district was especially bright this month. From the recession low point in July, 1938, steady improvement has occurred to date, so that the March, 1940, factory employment figure is about 40 per cent above this low point and the payroll this month is approximately 75 per cent higher." The only loss for the quarter was in the Binghamton-Endicott-Johnson City area, where both employment and payrolls dropped about two per cent.

For the state as a whole, there were 0.3 per cent more workers employed in March, 1940, than in February. Payrolls rose 2.2 per cent during the same period.

Albany Exchange Offices Nearing Unionization

NEW YORK—Sixty per cent of the front office employes in Albany exchanges have signed to join a union, it was reported following latest meeting. Employes of all the major exchanges with the exception of Metro and Paramount, have applied.

Ponder Course on Order To Open Philly Records

PHILADELPHIA — The Landis, Vineland, case against Stanley-Warner and the major distributors continued at a stalemate last week, as the defendants conferred over what action to take on U. S. District Judge William H. Kirkpatrick's order compelling them to open books dealing with all Philadelphia contracts.

Judge Kirkpatrick so ruled when the matter was referred to him by Examiner David Bachman, who was appointed to supervise examination of the books by attorneys for the Landis.

Whether the defendants appeal his ruling or not, the case will come up for trial before Judge Kirkpatrick May 6. He granted preliminary injunction in behalf of the plaintiffs at a preliminary trial, but was overruled by the U. S. circuit court.

NEW YORK—The annual Technicolor stockholders' meeting takes place here May 20 with "nothing unusual" scheduled, according to a spokesman.

Majors Withdrawing Allocated Monies

NEW YORK—Seven major distributors, excluding Universal, by Wednesday will have withdrawn from London $13,125,000 of the $17,500,000 allocated to them under the agreement concluded last November with the British government.

Under the pact, 50 per cent of the revenue was "frozen" with 75 per cent of the balance to be withdrawn by May 1 and the remaining 25 per cent, or $4,375,000, by October 1 when the agreement expires.

It is understood the companies are bending every effort to remove the balance within a short time. The idea is to get all the money out provided by the pact in case the British are forced to place harsher currency restrictions on the exchange leaving the country.

F. W. Allport, the Hays office representative in London, already is working with the British control committee on an agreement for 1940-41. No definite action, it is believed, will be taken until the last moment.

No Anti-Trust Violation Evidence in Texas

AUSTIN—Attorney General Gerald Mann has given Texas theatre owners a clean bill of health after a six months' investigation. He left the door open, however, for future action in the event he unearths evidence of violations of the state's anti-trust laws.

In a letter to the theatre companies whose books were examined, the attorney general's office stated, in part: "We have not found sufficient evidence of violation of our anti-trust laws to warrant this department filing an anti-trust suit at this time. However, we are going to keep our files open and take such action in the future as the facts may warrant."

Westor Anti-Trust Suit Jurisdiction Challenge

NEW YORK—Distributor attorneys are expected to challenge the jurisdiction of the anti-trust action filed in Newark against majors by Westor Theatres, which operated the Windsor, West Orange, N. J. and Janbert Amusement Corp., current operators. It is said the motion will be on the ground some of the defendants do not transact business in New Jersey within the meaning of certain statutes.

Irene still has her sweet little Alice Blue Gown, but in every other respect she has gone completely modern in this screen version of the perennial favorite. Nor has the vehicle lost anything through the transition. Quite to the contrary, because Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox, starting with a mere nucleus of the successful musical comedy, has built thereon as lavish and scintillating a funfest as has come off the Hollywood assembly lines in many a month. Anna Neagle appears in the title role and, while many fans may consider her a bit old for the part, the feature has so many unquestionable entertainment assets that, as a whole, it must register in the hit class. Musical backgrounds, gorgeous Technicolor sequences, bright dialogue and a superior supporting cast are but a few of the photoplay's finer points.

"Tear Gas Squad," in spite of its dire-sounding title, should register with average audiences as fair exchange for the price of a ticket. Warner again has turned out a service film in its usual style, plus a pleasant veering toward Irish participation in law enforcement done in lighter vein and the usual boy-meets-girl romance, plus singing and drama. The whole is neatly packaged in a good production and will give its spectators a familiar exercise in emotional and humorous reactions. Dennis Morgan, a night club singer, joins the force in order to win Gloria Dickson. He goes through training and emerges on the police glee club. When his brother is murdered later, he acquits himself of a number of rash actions, as a result of which he was suspended, and goes back to active duty, winning the girl. Directed by Terry Morse.

Dennis Morgan, John Payne, Gloria Dickson, Frank Wilcox, George Reeves.

Monogram (——) 70 Minutes Rel. ——

Like the country grocery store, Monogram specializes in placing reliable staples on the shelf. Such is this film. It is unpretentious, well performed, directed with an eye for the family audience and concocted along familiar lines. Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran carry the picture's main thread in a sort of puppy-love romance that blossoms when Miss Jones, coming from Chicago with her ex-baseball player father, Grant Withers, decide to live in a small country town. Young Moran is the man of all work at his uncle's farm, subject to beatings whenever he tries to have a little fun or go to school. In good time, and with a lot of homey sequences, the triumvirate composed of Moran, Miss Jones and Withers makes the old gaffer see the light and the production ends on a touching note.

Marcia Mae Jones, Jackie Moran, Charlotte Wynters, Grant Withers, George Cleveland.

A mirthful and melodic comedy-drama into which sufficient production values and cast have been injected so that a slightly stereotyped story will be overlooked by those who are shopping for a parcel of light, diverting entertainment, which order the feature is amply qualified to fill. Lana Turner and George Murphy debut as a new dancing team with promising effect, while competent Joan Blondell contributes most of the dramatics. Turner and Blondell portray sisters, and Murphy is a vaudeville trouper. He is engaged to Blondell, while Turner begins running around with Kent Taylor, a man-about-town, although she, too, is in love with Murphy. The motivation thereupon turns to self-sacrifice as Blondell, to save her sister from Taylor, gives up Murphy to her. Directed by S. Sylvan Simon.

20th-Fox (——) 84 Minutes Rel. May 3, '40

With but few variations in story, "So This Is London," produced in England, hits many of the familiar notes in the comedy-drama field. It is recommended where past performances of English comedies have had favorable audience reaction. It is well produced, performed, acted. Two business men, English and American, have facetious difficulty getting together on a deal. The American goes to England. Their children fall in love and become engaged during parental squabbles at a country place. For more comedy, there is a lawyer and his wife who is given to sleepwalking and comic silence. With a good deal of droll conversation the plot is set to rights. Business is done, the children plan to marry on the "Queen Mary," and British and American business is ready to make money. Further humor is supplied by an imposter who is trying to put over a fast one.

Modelled after Laurie Yorke Erskine's story, "Renfrew Rides North," James Newill embarks on adventure in the north woods tracing a band of counterfeiters, who have been paying off miners of gold dust with paper unbacked by a national currency. The band, ringleadered by William Royle and Karl Hackett, murder Budd Buster when he threatens by a trip to civilization to spend some of the money, and point the arrow of suspicion back at their operations. Newill, who sings to lace the edges, goes through a series of scraps, a great deal of action, and a half-hearted romance with Polly Ann Young, before the problem is solved. Brought in with small investment, "Murder on the Yukon" is good enough for juvenile appeal and a fair share of the action-inclined adults. Louis Gasnier, the director, keeps the show moving at all times.

James Newill, Polly Ann Young, Dave O'Brien, Al St. John, Wm. Royle, Chief Thundercloud, Karl Hackett.

That debonair modern Robin Hood, the Saint, finally hits his cinematic stride in a breathlessly intriguing comedy-melodrama which will grace the screen of any man's theatre and deliver a brand of entertainment belying its modest production outlay. Of its type, it is as neatly-turned-out a job as Hollywood has been responsible for in many a month—a combination of clever scripting, direction that martials the material into a smooth and convincing whole, and acting that is first-rate in every respect. As the Saint, George Sanders contributes added polish and finesse to the already excellent characterization built up in previous starts. His work is matched all the way by Paul Guilfoyle, in an unusually humorous gangster role, and by Jonathan Hale, as the befuddled police detective. Directed by Jack Hively.

George Sanders, Wendy Barrie, Paul Guilfoyle, Jonathan Hale, Cy Kendall, Pierre Watkin, Morgan Conway.

The Saint Takes Over F — Comedy Melodrama

Republic (954) 59 Minutes Rel. Apr. 12, '40

Starting off with a song, "Young Buffalo Bill," featuring Roy Rogers, goes on to combine everything that the audience could want in the way of western entertainment. It is primarily a tale of the early west when the government was looking into Spanish land grants and surveying New Mexico. Rogers comes to aid the local army outpost. He soon becomes involved with (1)—the daughter of the local grandee; (2)—Comanche Indians with ideas of their own as to how the land should be split up, and (3)—the army commander's son, a victim of temptations put in his way by the unscrupulous element. The whole moves along with nary a dull moment. Comedy, thrills, reliable discharging of blank cartridges and fast riding all have their moments. It's a first-rate western, with historical background not necessarily correct. Directed by Joe Kane.

Roy Rogers, George Hayes, Pauline Moore, Hugh Sothern, Chief Thundercloud.

Young Buffalo Bill F — Western

Dixie National Pictures, Inc. (SR) 65 Mins. Rel. ——

Every tried and true gag situation since the days of Mack Sennett was incorporated into the script of this hilarious hodge-podge, which is billed as the first all-Negro feature comedy ever made. And the fun-making loses nothing through being entrusted to the hands of an effective, all-colored cast, which stars Miller and Moreland. Marse Jed Buell, who was the boss man on both production and direction, made the picture especially for theatres operated for the Negro trade. That it will be a smash hit in such spots was conclusively demonstrated by the uproarious reception it received when previewed in one of them. At the same time, the film possesses sufficient entertainment merit to serve as supporting fare in all but the deluxe houses and should prove to be satisfactorily amusing for white audiences.

F. E. Miller, Manton Moreland, Maceo B. Sheffield, Arthur Ray, Margarette Whitten, Clarence Morehouse.

Mr. Washington Goes to Town F — All-Negro Comedy

SELLING ANGLES: "Tomboy"

There is a national tieup with the Dixie-Vortex paper cup company to aid the showman in putting this one over. Organize a "Tomboy" baseball contest between boy and girl students. Have girls tie bow ties on boys on the stage. Sponsor an election for the most popular tomboy. Miss Jones has a following; clothing stores should be recruited for plugging the styles she wears in the film. The pressbook has a number of rather well prepared stories on baseball which will attract reader attention now that the season is on.

CATCHLINES:

No Kissin', No Huggin' For Me . . . A Regular Fella . . . Rather Fight Than Have a Date.

She's a Rascal . . . She's a Sweetheart . . . She's a Regular Little Miss Fix-It.

SELLING ANGLES: "Murder on the Yukon"

Established knowledge of the Renfrew series indicate best results will come from billing "Renfrew of the Royal Mounted" on the marquee above any personalities, although James Newill and Polly Ann Young may be worked in subordinately. The same is true of the ads. Basically, a kid's picture, see that window cards, or gags, are worked in the dime stories, at cheap candy counters, and anywhere else the youngsters gather.

CATCHLINES:

A Murder, Intended to Stop a Clue to Counterfeiters, Leads to Them.

Queer Money Leads Renfrew of the Mounties on a Queer Adventure in the North Woods.

SELLING ANGLES: "Mr. Washington Goes to Town"

The top names to feature are Miller and Manton Moreland, who are favorites among Negro audiences. In houses not ordinarily booking this type of feature, guarantee it as one of the most novel films of the year. Center exploitation efforts in the local Harlem district and take advertising in Negro newspapers. Distribute posters and heralds in popular Negro gathering spots. In white houses, hold a "blackface" contest with prizes to those appearing in the best makeup.

CATCHLINES:

Side-Splitting Comedy . . . As Only Colored Folks Can Turn It Out.

The First All-Negro Comedy Ever Made . . . A Laugh Riot From Start to Finish.

SELLING ANGLES: "Tear Gas Squad"

Concentrate heavily on the up-and-coming acting and singing talents of Dennis Morgan. This newcomer has possibilities. His personality and the way in which he acquits himself in this item bear that out. The other members of the cast should be exploited in tune with their cast listing. A "must" for putting this one over should be participation with local police. The police school angle should be played up heavily. In any case, offer it as solid entertainment value.

CATCHLINES:

A Girl Put Him on the Force . . . But It Took a Murder to Make a Policeman of Him.

A Police School Provided Him With Singing Lessons. A Singing Cop Taught the Underworld a Lesson.

SELLING ANGLES: "So This Is London"

English comedies are funny, provided the proper audiences view them. By that is meant this one should be played for best results to a clientele that is more informed about English subtlety than the ordinary audience. It is based on a London stage play that was something of a hit. George Sanders and Berton Churchill are the only players familiar here. It is the same comedy that George M. Cohan played in this country. Drayton and Hare are quite the cutups. The pressbook has a few interesting stunts worth trying out.

CATCHLINES:

Blondes That Walk in Their Sleep . . . Peers That Show Off—And Get Shown Up.

Vitamin Kings Supercharged on Their Own Product . . . It's Fun, Fun, Fun!

SELLING ANGLES: "Young Buffalo Bill"

In addition to bringing this film to the attention of adult western fans, the exhibitor would do well to concentrate a heavy barrage of exploitation at juvenile audiences. Tie up with music stills as outlined in the pressbook. The Dixie Cup company also has a Rogers angle. There are fan photos for giveaways. A Roy Rogers toy pistol has contest possibilities. In this category there also is a Roy Rogers holster set, autographed by the actor. Capitalize on Chief Thundercloud's "Lone Ranger" reputation.

CATCHLINES:

America's Greatest Rangeland Scout Playing a Lone Hand Against a Ruthless Crime Syndicate.

A Great Western Star in Another Great Role.

SELLING ANGLES: "Irene"

Starring credits should be awarded Anna Neagle and Ray Milland, with Roland Young listed in support. Plug the songs, including "Alice Blue Gown" and "Irene," with music dealers, radio stations and dance bands. The "Alice Blue Gown" motif—one of the best-known musical comedy songs—suggests a fashion-show tieup with a modiste, staged in your theatre. Award prizes for the best-designed "Alice Blue gowns" turned out by housewives and other non-professional designers.

CATCHLINES:

It's Gay . . . It's Lilting . . . It Will Charm You With Its Music, Its Romance and Its Delightful Star, Anna Neagle.

America's Most Successful Musical Comedy Becomes a Vivacious Piece of Screen Entertainment.

SELLING ANGLES: "Two Girls on Broadway"

Sell Lana Turner and George Murphy as a new romantic co-starring team. Joan Blondell's name also should be given marquee and advertising prominence. The two song numbers contained in the film should be plugged with music stores, local dance bands and radio stations. Tie up with a newspaper on a contest wherein patrons compile lists of film or song titles with the word "Broadway" in them—the longest winning free tickets to the show. Have two girls parade the streets carrying suitcases labeled: "Broadway Bound."

CATCHLINES:

It's Toe-Tingling, Heart-Warming Romance . . . As Big and Gay as Broadway.

All the Glitter and Glamour of the Gay White Way . . . In a Merry Musical Romance.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Saint Takes Over"

Tie in with bookstores and rental libraries on the widely-read "Saint" novels by Leslie Charteris. Arrange for displays of them studded with stills from the picture. Give the marquee credits to George Sanders and Wendy Barrie. Prepare a lobby centerpiece in which the "Saint" is surrounded by other rascals of fiction and film—Bulldog Drummond, Raffles, the Lone Wolf, etc. Prepare mailing pieces as mimeographed "warnings," signed by the "Saint," telling patrons to appear at the theatre when the picture opens.

CATCHLINES:

Fiction's Famous Phantom . . . Who Laughed at the Law and Dealt Out His Own Justice . . . Returns in the Year's Thrill Special.

That Devil-May-Care Desperado . . . The Saint . . . Comes Back in His Most Thrilling Adventure.

Short Subject Reviews

Tomorrow's Stars

Columbia (World of Sports) 10 Mins.

Here is a good baseball short for the exhibitor to exploit. It contains a great deal of informative material about the proper way to play each position and should appeal to the followers of the sport. The action takes place at Joe Stripp's baseball school in Orlando, Fla. Members of the faculty are such diamond notables as Joe Tinker, Eddie Miller, Don Padgett, Jimmy Jordan and Bob Weiland. Stanley Frank's narration has an authoritative ring to it.

Court Favorites

RKO Pathe (Sportscope) 10 Mins.

Here is a reel that will make a definite contribution to the theatre's business if the exhibitor gets behind it with a little exploitation. It concerns tennis technique, and the men who know it appear in the footage. The photography doesn't miss a trick. The cast consists of Vincent Richards, Bill Tilden and Karel Kozeluh, a Czech expert. Thousands of tennis players ought to flock to see it.

Air Army

RKO Pathe (Reelism) 9 Mins.

Condensed into this short reel is some of the finest flying photography yet to come out of cameras. It is tinged with air force propaganda, but thrillingly presented. Highlights are machine gun practice, bombing, combat tactics and the like, in addition to construction material. Fast moving and flag waving, its best points are in the camera work.

Information Please, No. 9

RKO Pathe 11 Mins.

Elmer Davis is the guest in this number. On hand as usual are Kieran, Adams, Levant and Fadiman. The queries range from identifying such games as "London Bridge" to charades. Highlight of the questions is the correct arrangement of juxtaposed countries on a map of southern Europe. It is good stuff.

Practice Makes Perfect

Columbia (Fable Cartoon) 6 Mins.

Nothing new, nothing to get excited about. Just a standard production item. Animated figures go through a series of cartoon situations. Scrappy, attempting to practice at the piano, is annoyed by his young brother. He chases him all over the house and lot and they run the gamut from the piano's interior to the washing machine.

Going Places

Universal (No. 74) 9 Mins.

Barbados, one of the British islands in the Caribbean, is the subject of this reel. It is a quiet and attractive place. The best shots are those dealing with the landscapes.

The Greyhound and the Rabbit

A number of clever twists in the concoction of this cartoon give it quite a bit on the credit side insofar as entertainment goes. The narration, gagged to the hilt, helps out with laughs. Action offers the running of a dogtrack race with hounds caricatured and the rabbit a bit of a wise guy. Running through the animation there is a screwball pup that has his daffy moment at the conclusion.

The Hidden Master

M-G-M (Passing Parade) 10 Mins.

John Nesbitt cites three episodes in the lives of different people to show how luck played an important part, although the odds are against it ever happening again. The famous Clive of India, when a clerk, attempted to kill himself. Twice he pressed the trigger, and each time the gun failed to fire. A friend came with a bit of news which later led him on the road to fame. The discovery of the X-ray was another important happening attributed to chance. Finally, Nesbitt tells how a wrong phone number saved a family of four from asphixiation.

Design for Happiness

FHA-RKO Pathe 11 Mins.

In fine Technicolor, this tells how average man, Bob Martin, earning $25 weekly, starts a comfortable home on the FHA plan. The documentary scenes are well narrated by Lowell Thomas and the how and why of the setup are explained so all interested can understand. The reel may be had without charge upon application at the local FHA office. It is a free item that the exhibitor might well play as a duty to his patrons.

"Medico"

M-G-M (Passing Parade) 10 Mins.

How a new distress signal, "M-E-D-I-C-O," developed is the interesting theme of John Nesbitt's reel. When "M-E-D-I-C-O" is flashed on the wireless, it has precedence over all signals except "S.O.S." Nesbitt dramatizes an actual occurrence of how a captain of a small freighter delivered a premature child, following instructions by wireless.

Columbia (Seeing Hollywood) 10 Mins.

Film folk at their sportive diversions is the keynote of this issue. They run a baseball club, shoot golf, look at monkeys, visit the local amusement park and watch a diving exhibition. Buster Keaton appears at various moments in addition to the large collection of other players. Usual fan fodder.

Stranger Than Fiction

Universal (No. 74) 9 Mins.

More facts of a bizarre nature are collected for the latest issue. Highlight of the reel is a clip on the oldest drug store in the U. S. Others are a man who preserves baby shoes; a woman who makes all kinds of baskets; a mechanic who has built a miniature steam shovel, and an armless artist.

The New Pupil

M-G-M (Our Gang) 11 Mins.

Antics of this talented juvenile group will have little appeal outside of the matinee trade. The story is one of feminine revenge on Spanky and Alfalfa for having jilted Darla for the new pupil, Juanita Quigley, a youngster with a winning personality. May McAvoy, charming as ever, is glimpsed for a too brief moment as the new pupil's mother.

Universal (No. 75) 10 Mins.

On the edge of Death Valley, there is a popular resort. What the subject reveals is that Death Valley, lowest spot in the western hemisphere, is a mecca for sightseers. There, many unusual and wild scenes of natures attract the visitors. There is also a peek at "Death Valley Scotty" and his fabulous desert castle.

Universal (No. 75) 9 Mins.

In this, there is a university professor who collects tribal masks, a Maryland touring place for geese, a graveyard for race horses, a rather clever canary, a man who collects pencils for a hobby and a clip of the salmon climbing the Bonneville Dam. The reel contains average audience interest.

Sitka and Juneau

M-G-M (FitzPatrick Traveltalk) 9 Mins.

Views of Sitka and Juneau, the old and new capital of Alaska, are hardly satisfying as a travelogue. The United States' far-flung territory is a country of magnificent landscapes and rugged terrain. There is only a suggestion of those features, with most of the shots confined to the urban spots.

Calling on Colombia

M-G-M 8 Mins.

James FitzPatrick's visit to Colombia is an undistinguished travelogue. The cities of Barranquilla and Cartagena are the subjects. Both appear to be uninteresting places with little to recommend them.

The public says:

"Thank you for keeping his memory alive. You who take part in this glorious enterprise do honor to a beloved American and win the respect and gratitude of your theatre patrons."

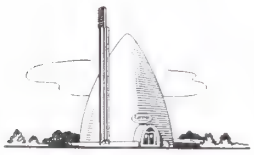
Isn't Air Conditioning a BIG EXPENSE?

"Cost of Operation Considerably Less than Estimate"

MERCURY THEATRE, BUFFALO, N. Y.

That's the CARRIER Answer!...



MERCURY THEATRE, Buffalo, N. Y. All year 'round, Carrier Air Conditioning controls temperature and humidity, shuts out noise and dust, in this modern 300 seat theatre. And the cost? Less than estimated!

• When you buy Carrier Air Conditioning you know in advance what results you can expect, based on experience of theatres in nearly every civilized part of the world. And what's more you know in advance what these results will cost!

• The Mercury Theatre in Buffalo is but one of many examples where air conditioning — Carrier Air Conditioning costs less than estimated. In the Mayfair Theatre of Miami, for example, Carrier comfort costs less than 1¢ per seat. In the Rex Theatre, Park Falls, Wis., the cost of providing cool, clean comfort is but 1/3¢ per patron.

• Why is Carrier the accepted air conditioning for theatres—both for dependability and for economy? For many reasons. As the "inventor" of air conditioning, Carrier's efforts have been devoted continuously and exclusively to its development . . . designing and creating equipment to meet specific needs . . . simplifying methods of installation . . . finding new ways to assure dependability and economy. With a background of 38 years of experience, with installations ranging in size from the tiny Preview Theatre of Buenos Aires, seating 20, to New York's great Radio City Music Hall seating 6,000, Carrier is well qualified to meet your air conditioning requirements. Learn how Carrier can serve you —by mailing the coupon below, or calling your local Carrier representative, listed in your telephone book. Remember, when you call Carrier, you call air conditioning by its first name!

• THIS SUMMER, plan to visit the Carrier Igloo of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair. 1940 is the 50th Anniversary of what is now Carrier Refrigeration, and the 25th Anniversary of the incorporation of Carrier.

Look Out for a Relapse in the Wake of "The Wind"

That devil-may-care attitude toward things in general, which sets showmen apart from their countrymen commercially, can hardly be more accurately expressed than in a letter we received from a Northern Missouri exhibitor last month. Among other things he had to say was this:

> "Business through this section the past three months has been terrible. Exhibitors and salesmen alike state it is the worst in twenty-odd years; but with the profits we are now making with 'Gone With the Wind'—what the hell do we care about business?"

Exhibitors who somehow just manage to make the grade from one good picture to another (and there's often a good sized gap between) are like that. They give not a hoot for House Appeal or anything else as long as they can have good pictures. They admit it frankly.

Currently, the Technicolored epic of the Ol' South is standing the public in line and figuratively on its ear. It has given thousands of our former but now backslidden picture fans their first glimpse of the inside of a movie theatre in many a month.

Will the prodigals return again for anything less than another windfall? Perhaps they will, if they were sufficiently impressed with your hospitality and the appeal of your house.

When "G.W.T.W." has gone the way of all picture attractions and has given up its last precious driblet of profit to the boxoffice, there's liable to be a relapse.

In the famous words of one Carolina Governor to another, "It's a long time between, etc." Until another "big one" comes along, House Appeal alone can help you hurdle the chasm.

Fine THEATRE CARPETING becomes a CROWNING GLORY UNDERFOOT

A PARADOX is used in the preceding headline to present a new angle on the whys and wherefores of fine floor coverings in moving picture theatres. The thought we hope to convey is that floor coverings selected with care and kept in wholesome condition are indeed the crowning glory of a theatre, notwithstanding the fact that they are constantly underfoot.

The early conceivers of our movie theatres must surely have consoled themselves with the idea that theatre patrons "ever look up and never down," else there would have been more attention paid to the provision and maintenance of House Appeal underfoot.

If one were to recall the decorative details of our palais royales of the past—even the recent past—they can be remembered for their unusual spectacularity overhead—and "overhead" is quite the proper word to use. It is not difficult to recall the planetaria effects that used to flit across the huge domes of some of our most effete cinemas. And how we craned our necks to trail the fleecy clouds and count the twinkling stars in these architecturally inspired firmaments. God only knows why or how we patrons endured it. And we didn't very long.

An Important Discovery

Some smart exhibitor put an end to the foolish neck-craning decorative technique, perhaps by the simple discovery that movie patrons do occasionally glance floorward; that being their natural bent. So today we're actually walking on one of the most important decorative motives that a modern theatre can have. The decorative axis in theatres has moved downward, from top to bottom, where it really belongs, and fine carpets have become a crowning glory underfoot.

Finer floor coverings too have extended their influence to other functional furnishings in the lower down areas of our theatres. Time was when colorfully upholstered seats with artistic end standards and aisle lights were given as little thought and attention as the floors themselves. Probably by contrast carpets created this marked reversal.

The sudden need for acoustical correction in picture theatres, of course, forced the floor covering issue and should be credited with having brought the decorative axis down to normal eye levels. But some of the first theatre carpets were horrible examples of the rug stylists' art. They fairly shouted for attention during their short but noisy existence, throughout which they served their purpose well only as sound absorbents. But they also served to impress their owners with the fact that cheap carpets are just about the most unprofitable investment a theatre owner can make.

Today, and most fortunately for the film showing fraternity, there is less fiddling around with the floor covering problem. Carpet mills are designing and weaving patterns especially for theatres and coordinating their creations with the new architectural format and decorative effects of the modern theatre. But beauty and harmony of pattern are not by any means the only consideration. Wearability under severe traffic conditions of the theatre is being determined in advance through exhaustive tests. Colorings similarly are submitted to rigid laboratory inspection along with the raw materials that enter into the warp and woof of the new Crowning Glory.

Adds the Finishing Touch

Fine floor covering has done much to create House Appeal in American theatres. It has provided the initial inspiration in most instances and as well the final touch needed to climax many a delightful decorative job. And withal, it has served to correct a misapprehension among theatre men that "anything is good enough for theatre patrons to walk on."

At the Spring Carpet Openings held early this year, an annual event participated in by the leading carpet producers, an unusually large number of new theatre patterns was presented. Since then theatre carpet buying has been brisk and significantly larger areas of floor space in theatres are being covered than ever before. Carpeting formerly confined to foyers, lounges and aisle spaces is threatening an invasion of the entire theatre.

Lighting recently has begun to play a most important role in the application of theatre carpeting. Whether carpets have aroused new interest in corrective illumination, or conversely, the fact remains that there is now a closer affinity between these two elements of theatre outfitting than ever existed before. Correctly applied lighting is bringing out the beauty of carpets and enhancing this feature attraction underfoot.

The new fluorescent (Mazda) lamps and their facility in effecting color changes in both subdued and directed illumination have given the theatre carpet a chance to exercise its glamour. Aisle lighting in various forms and down lighting directly and indirectly is being done to capitalize the theatre carpet investment.

Fluorescent Floor Covering

Quite recently a method of permanently introducing fluorescence into the fabric of theatre carpets and activating it with ultra-violet or so-called "black light" has been tried out experimentally in a number of theatres and the results are said to have been quite gratifying. One of the leading carpet mills has given marked credence to the fluorescent carpet idea by going into the production of it. A selection of special theatre carpet patterns is now available in which fluorescent dyestuffs are woven into the pattern. Illuminated with "black light" through special equipment designed by lighting engineers, the aisle carpet glows softly in the semi-darkness of the auditorium during the picture performance and thus serves as a new directional device for traffic. While the effect is still somewhat in the nature of a practical novelty, nevertheless it indicates the current trend of thought and development toward smart theatre floor decorations.

This view of the broadly carpeted lobby and staircases of the Palace Theatre in Chicago likewise expresses the extent to which fine carpeting has become the crowning glory underfoot. (Photo courtesy Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc.)

Hardly less indicative of the trend is the care which theatre owners now exercise in the selection of carpets. Where formerly price and pattern were the sole prerequisites of selection, the question of how long the carpet will wear and retain its appearance are matters of acute concern with the purchasers. And carpet customers are now more than ever concerned with the manner of installation, i.e., what goes under the carpet.

Through the school of experience heretofore mentioned, theatre men have learned that good carpet lining, although a concealed factor, has a lot to do with the longevity of service as well as the good looks of a theatre carpet. The lesson applies alike to the most expensive, the medium-priced and the cut-rate carpet. All are dependent to a marked degree upon the quality of material that supports them under the strain of severe usage. Weakness in a carpet lining soon asserts itself on the surface of any carpet as most every theatre owner knows who has tried to effect a saving "where it doesn't show."

Beauty Being Preserved

Another encouraging phase of observation is the manner in which floor coverings are being cared for in most of our theatres. Maintenance of his carpets now claims first attention of the manager of the modern theatre, who insists upon a routine of effective cleaning measures and methods which are not injurious to fabrics. Special vacuum equipment designed expressly for the demands of theatre carpet cleaning have displaced the common household variety of vacuum cleaners in most theatres. Methods are being employed to keep carpet destroying grit and grime outdoors, the most popular of which is the removable rubber link mat for the outer lobby. These colorful mats are a comely floor covering feature in themselves.

Quite truly it may now be said that theatre carpeting has thrown off its once rather dubious claim to recognition as an expensive and quite dispensable luxury and is now asserting its well-established position as a foundation for greater house attraction. In this important respect it is being found most resourceful.

To walk upon beauty is a privilege enjoyed by prince and pauper alike, and a pleasure immensely appreciated by moving picture patrons. Therein lies the magic effect of fine carpeting and nowhere is it more aptly and usefully applied than in the theatre, where people congregate for pleasure and the sole purpose of being entertained. As a feature adornment underfoot, fine carpet sets the mood for enjoyment and does much to stimulate the desire for entertainment . . . The picture here presented through the courtesy of Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company shows how science has stepped-up the glamour of theatre carpet through the introduction of fluorescent dye-stuffs and the application of ultra-violet lighting which brings out the beauty of pattern and serves safely to direct the steps of patrons in the semi-darkness of the theatre while the picture is showing.

Good Carpet Cushion Adds Years of Wear

A good grade of carpet padding is known to prolong the life of carpeting many times beyond the normal expectancy when laid without this added protection. Regardless of whether the carpeting is of highest quality, this springy cushion beneath it will add to the carpet's years of use and will also enhance its beauty and the feeling of luxuriousness underfoot.

Where carpets and rugs are subjected to unusually severe wear conditions, such as when laid on concrete and marble floors or on stairs, the use of rug cushion is especially indicated. In all cases the condition of the floor is important. Rough and uneven floors and those with spaces between boards or with raised parts, such as door sills, are a frequent cause of severe localized wear.

It is recommended that especially with fabrics of light weight or open construction, rug cushions which have a raised design on one side be laid with the design side down and the smooth side up.

Theatre patrons become accustomed to modern seating comfort in fine home furnishings and comfortably upholstered automobiles. They expect no less of theatre seating, and modern theatre chairs will not let them down in this respect.

Another EPIC OF SUCCESS from out in THE SHORT-GRASS COUNTRY

MRS. GEORGIA O. RASLEY
Exhibitor

AN APPROPRIATE and altogether decisive refutation of the oft-heard defeatist complaint that picture show business in small towns is too unprofitable to permit indulgence in House Appeal is to be found in the facts herein about to be related.

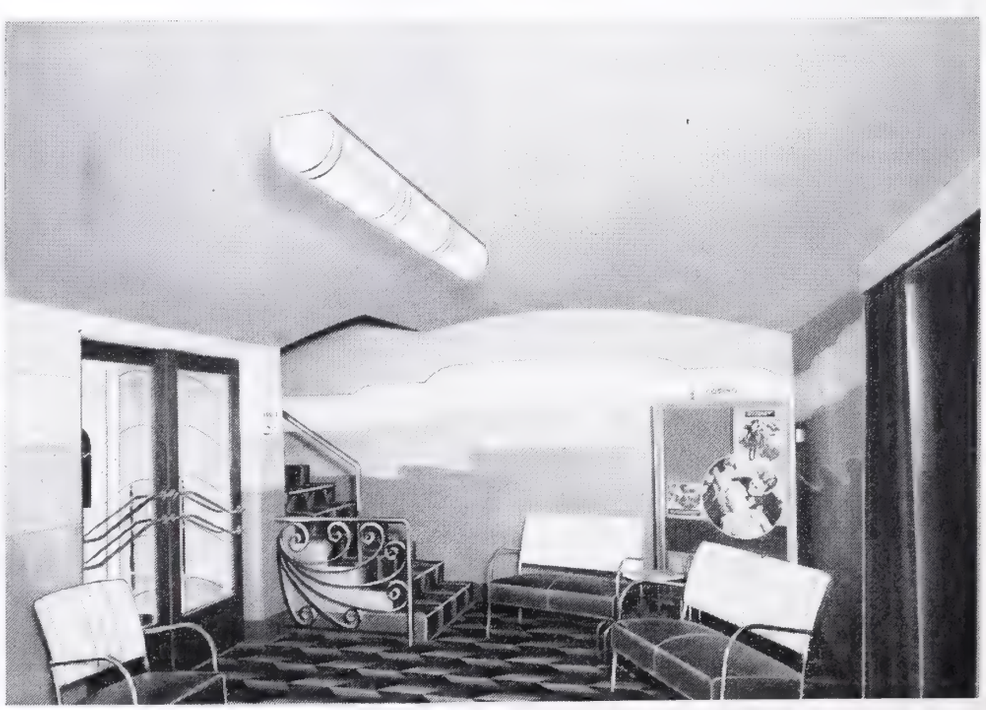
Up near the northern border of Nebraska and a bit too close to the dust bowl area, where drought and agricultural disaster add to the general uncertainties of business all too frequently, there's a town, county seat of Holt County, with an Irish name. O'Neill, Nebraska's new census will probably give it a population of something less than 2,500 inhabitants.

But O'Neill has a modern theatre and it's a beauty. The Royal, recently remodeled in the strictly prevailing manner, should provide an effective antidote to the investment timidities of showmanship in small towns and secondary locations. Yet far more important than the project itself is the power and spark of personality behind it.

The Royal Theatre is owned and operated by a woman—a clever business woman with a charming personality—according to a special write-up in the local press which appeared coincidentally with the reopening of her new theatre and from which we quote the following quite literally.

A LOCAL LAUDATION

Perhaps her English great grandmother, one of the Lloyds of London, is responsible, or perchance her paternal Pennsylvania Dutch ancestors should get credit for the financial genius, business shrewdness and administrative ability that have carried Georgia Rasley, owner of the Royal Theatre, through nineteen years of depression, drought, grasshoppers and other post-war pestilence, but we choose to believe it was optimism.



The smiling courage inherited from her maternal Irish grandmother must have directed her to O'Neill in the first place and certainly optimism must have kept her there valiantly serving the community and proving to the world that despite any depression, any drought, any scourge, a worker, a believer, a show-woman with the will to conquer will succeed.

Success stories are common even in these hard bitten days. Women pretty generally have proved themselves real victors in the battle every midwest community and almost every rural community has had to endure the past several years and it is because Georgia Rasley is a type, a symbol of the successful woman administrator that we salute her at the reopening of the new and up-to-the-minute show house. Her ingenuity, stick-to-itiveness, thrift and firm faith in Nebraska and in the city of O'Neill have made it possible.

The new theatre is just another proof of Mrs. Rasley's method of building success. The cost of the remodeling and the new furnishings totals close to $20,000.00. The new theatre has seating room for 420 persons, modern comfortable rest rooms and lounges, fully carpeted and with fine upholstered seats, a lovely mezzanine and an ultra-modern front with most of the

The Royal's new front is but one of its many impelling attractions, all of which express the personality of management. materials purchased in O'Neill and local labor employed to do the work. Is it any wonder the whole town and countryside acclaims the owner of the Royal a successful business woman who builds her business by keeping not only abreast, but ahead of the times?

A Red Head—Nough Sed!

"Born a red head . . .," well, you know the rest. It just couldn't be otherwise with the Irish and the Dutch and a Lloyds-of-London great grandmother for good measure. Yet the little lady lays no claim to having been born in a log cabin or even a sod house. She was born on a farm among the tall corn fields of Tabor, Iowa.

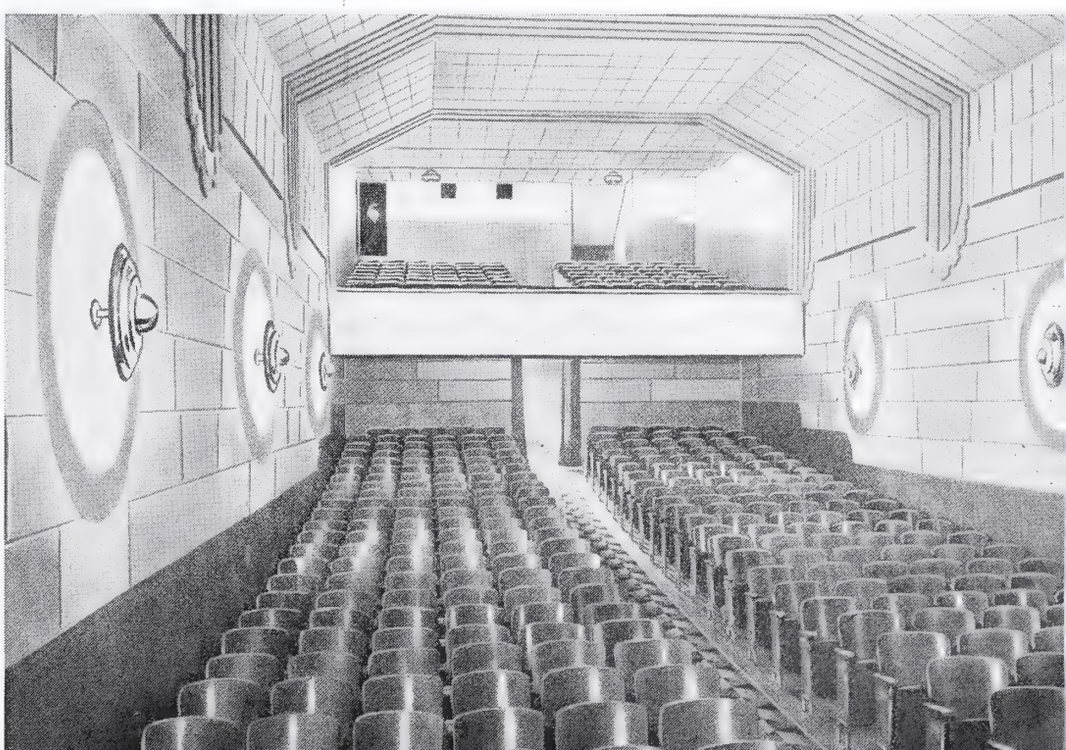
home with her Irish grandmother until she was twelve when she went to live with her father and step-mother; attending a country school, Tabor High School, then Tabor College, working to pay for her education. Unhappy at home, she married quite young in order to secure a home of her own, and her two babies were born just thirteen months apart. When the children were three and four years of age, she placed them in a convent school at Humphrey and took a traveling position with the Goodrich Drug Company of Omaha, at which she was most successful. She kept the children in Catholic schools, giving both excellent educations and while she admits the Big Black Wolf often took up vigil quite close to her door, he never quite managed to get inside.



In 1917, she bought her first theatre, the Lyric at Norfolk, and frankly admits she borrowed the money to put over the deal. She now regards her cancelled note and checks as happy souvenirs of a busy, happy year. Mrs. Rasley admits further that she knew nothing about the moving picture business at the time, but she did know three persons had to eat and live and to do that, she had to make a success of the job at hand.

In these MODERN SHOWPLACES there's AN ANSWER TO A PROBLEM

By Helen Kent

ONE OF the things which built the movie-going habit and raised it to its never-to-be-forgotten peak—way back in the gay nineteen-twenties—was the splendor and magnificence of the many theatres erected at that time. Pictures weren't exactly superior in those days—indeed they'd hardly pass muster today—and yet a movie-going habit was formed that has hardly been equalled since.

It must have been the show places which had such a salutary effect on entertainment-seekers. Many people must have flocked to moving picture theatres for the pleasure they found in the gala environment provided. Here was something more magnificent than anything known before to large masses of humanity for whom the movies were and are still practically the only means of inexpensive entertainment available outside of radio in the home.

It's now fairly obvious that each new picture palace erected in those unprecedented days was assured an immediate following, week after week, by this public which sought a means of escape from a duller everyday world. They liked the lavishness—and the more they liked it the more smart showmen gave it to them. It was a merry circle of events, with the public paying and paying and the theatre industry building more and finer show places—but only for a while.

THE DISILLUSIONMENT

Then suddenly came boredom. The public discovered that their heroes, the showmen, were beginning to lay down on the job. They weren't keeping up with the Joneses. More and more, exhibitors were resting on their laurels and letting pictures do the whole job. That wasn't exactly fair to the supporters of this moving picture industry who still wanted newness and novelty. They could see pictures anywhere; in grind shops and dilapidated penny arcades if they wanted. But they had shown a preference for finer theatres and they still felt justified in favoring the finest.

Nevertheless, here were their dream palaces becoming dingy. This was in the early thirties. And no more palaces were being erected to intrigue their fancy anew. Showmen were relaxing their hold upon public imagination and taking refuge behind depression-born economy propaganda.

Day and night views of the new Alabama Theatre in Houston, Tex., emphasize the jewel-like beauty of a truly modern structure. The combination of showy modern materials, well directed lighting and ample but not overdone advertising display, with a unique accessory in the changeable street sign, provide a magnet that cannot well be avoided by potential patrons.

It was the showmen who were making a luxury of entertainment.

When the theatres became dull, dusty and lifeless, the public learned to get along without entertainment, feeling they were not really being transported beyond their worldly cares by an environment that was hardly less drab than that in which they lived and worked. And so—what had been a habit to millions of people—movie-going regularly—became a much less frequent occasion in the lives of many and a downright luxury to those who eliminated this form of entertainment entirely, turning to radio, bridge parties and sporting events, since they could no longer find desirable food for the imagination in moving pictures alone.

Theatre owners seemed to forget one of the principal points of showmanship—that the environment in which entertainment is presented can enhance or detract from the patrons' enjoyment of that which is presented. In spite of the fact that they had seen their theatre properties as important capital investments in the beginning, investments which had cultivated a movie-going habit in millions of people—a majority of theatre owners were letting their properties deteriorate and the public retaliated by losing that much vaunted habit.

Anent Changing Atmosphere

Instead of keeping their theatre properties in fine condition, redecorating frequently and changing the atmosphere occasionally, providing late and novel developments in the way of equipment and furnishings and generally intriguing patron interest, many supposed-to-be-good showmen placed the whole burden of ticket sales promotion upon the picture product. A highly risky practice and often productive of an unbalanced result at best.

Theatre owners began to talk of the "problems" of entertainment presentation. They were groping for solutions. If one picture wouldn't bring in the shekels, then give them two or three. And it worked for awhile. But then they had to give even more for the money so the premium idea was born and the lottery scheme was practiced. Each was eminently successful for a time—but non-habit-forming insofar as the desire for entertainment was concerned.

Then—Came the Dawn—about 1935, when some showmen evidently remembered what attractive properties had done for the business over a decade before. Or perhaps it was some of the new crop of theatre owners who were first to apply a bit of House Appeal to their properties. At any rate, the cycle was started again in many parts of the country and although awe inspiring "palaces" were not in order, many eye-catching new theatres and remodeling projects again began to intrigue the fancy of the public.

It still works. This wisest of all moves on the part of showmanship seems to be the only answer to the problem of making and holding patrons who will return again and again because the theatre itself is attractive and different from any environment they can find elsewhere. The banishment of dullness and boredom with the ordinary was the only move that could possibly recapture the movie-going habit for millions of people. If they went to the show occasionally for old times' sake, they would go frequently if given a magnetic atmosphere to hold their interest.

The attractive new River Oaks Theatre, also in Houston, illustrates House Appeal in all its phases. Beauty of design and construction for patron comfort and convenience, yet withal representing economy in the final result, make this theatre typical of the many which are now renewing the movie-going habit in millions of patrons.

The Inevitable Answer

The real answer to the problem was House Appeal. Just as in any other business, the products handled needed the assistance of the "house" in order to sell more readily. The strange part about the whole solution was that it had been tried before and found potent; but it was the last to be tried again simply because it was deemed more costly than make-shift remedies.

House attraction is a costly investment initially—but it is the only one which really pays worthwhile dividends and which builds upon itself. Modernization of theatre properties, whether it entails the erection of entirely new houses, the complete remodeling of antiquated ones or the simple renovation of out-moded furnishings, decoration and equipment, has proved to be the most powerful factor in promoting the movie-going habit.

But modern theatres are not costly when compared with their predecessors of the 1920s, wherein luxurious furnishings and equipment often ran into five and six figures. Modern structural materials and efficient theatre equipment now are most economic in scope and their greater simplicity and durability also recommend them more highly for the job at hand.

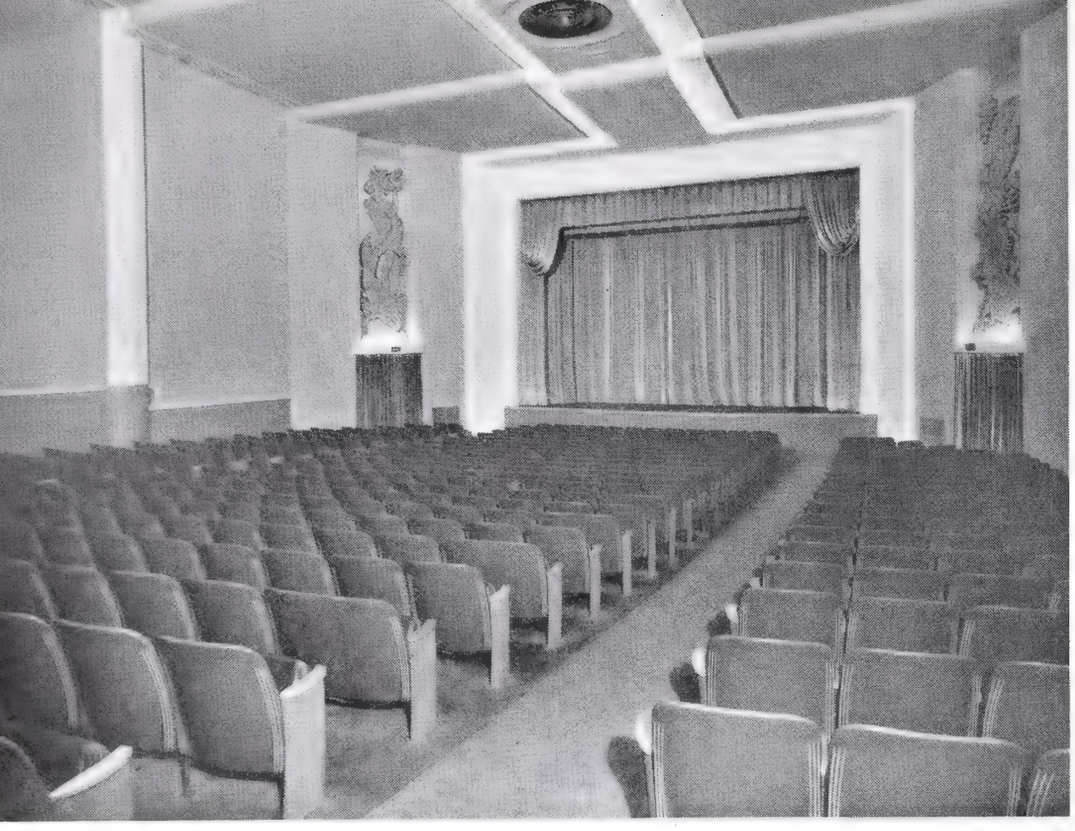
Exemplifying modernity in theatre construction and outfitting of the kind that promotes the movie-going habit among patrons who come once and then return again and again are two new theatres in Houston, Texas, owned and operated by Interstate Circuit, Inc. Both were recently completed by the well-known Texas firm of theatre architects, Pettigrew & Worley of Dallas, who are also members of the Advisory Board of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute.

The Alabama Theatre

The Alabama and River Oaks Theatres, pictured together in this instance since both so well illustrate the points involved, bespeak modernity in its every phase as applied to theatre properties and to today's pattern for structural showmanship. They are composed of the right proportions of modern design, exploitation value, structural beauty, operating economy and comfort and convenience for patrons, each of which holds its own importance in theatre property investment at the present time.

The Alabama Theatre, a 1,133-seat house located at Shepherd and Alabama streets in Houston, stands as a glowing, flood-lighted jewel in its surroundings. The building is set back from the street-line and is constructed almost entirely of white stucco. Its facade is formed of reeded porcelain enamel in graduating tones of rust, and porcelain enamel also forms the boxoffice and walls and ceiling of the entrance-way.

An unattached street sign with changeable attraction panels is an innovation. It is lighted with neon and forms a striking accessory to the marquee of the theatre. This marquee, in modified V-shape, extends the full width of the theatre. It is of porcelain enamel also, face lighted with neon and contains ample space for changeable silhouette letter copy with which to exploit the program presentations.



Within the Alabama Theatre, good taste in decoration and furnishing is instantly evident. Modern materials and furnishings have made effective all the attractions a modern theatre interior can offer to its patrons. Carpeting is lavish within this house and indirect lighting has spread its charm over the entire scheme. Walls of wood veneer within the foyer and lounges and plenty of mirrored surfaces lend interest and simplicity to the decorative plan.

The auditorium is simply treated with a smooth plaster wainscot, fluted reeds of acoustic plaster painted in shades of blue and smooth plaster at the proscenium arch, where modern murals were executed on the splay walls at either side of the focal point of interest. Lighting in the auditorium is indirect from huge circular plaques on the side walls and ceiling in which neon tubes are used. Circular light coves in the standee area augment the illumination of this portion of the house.

Altogether, the Alabama Theatre is a perfect example of the modern community playhouse which may be relied upon to renew the movie-going habit among all its neighborhood patrons. They will make attendance at such a house a regular occurence. What's more, such a house can be expected to draw widely from surrounding areas where motion picture environment may not be so well adopted to modern times.

The River Oaks Project

The River Oaks Theatre, a somewhat smaller house seating 1,000 patrons, likewise offers a striking answer to the aforementioned problem. It too shows the splendid uses to which modern materials have been put and its construction was accomplished quite economically as well.

The front has an all-over treatment in porcelain enamel in tones of rust and cream with an aluminum trimmed ticket booth to match. Poster cases also are formed of the same materials and are lighted by floodlights from above. A porcelain enamel marquee of wedge shape with three-line silhouette letter copy space is lighted with colored neon and its soffit is gleaming white studded with mazda lamps.

Modern bas relief statues illuminated from concealed sources at the base set the style for an interesting but simple decorative scheme in the River Oaks Theatre auditorium.

Inside the house, the foyer is interestingly treated with modern murals on the walls for a striking first impression. Luxurious carpet also covers the interior floor surfaces completely. A stairway to the mezzanine has aluminum trim and aluminum lighted handrails. Light coves around the ceiling of the foyer are equipped with neon.

The River Oaks auditorium offers beauty in the simplicity of its decoration. Smooth plaster wainscot, acoustic plaster walls and ceiling and a smooth plaster proscenium arch are set off merely by indirect lighting emanating from fluted columns in which are concealed troughs for neon tubing. This lighting effect is supplemented by combination air diffusing-illuminating fixtures in the ceiling and round plaster coves in the standee area.

Outstanding points of interest in the auditorium of this house are the large plaster bas relief statues at either side of the proscenium and above the exit doors. They are modern in effect and treatment and are lighted from below by concealed sources. Equally intriguing to patrons of the new house are the comfortable seats with which the house is equipped and which are located 34 inches apart back to back for greater convenience and comfort. Every other row is equipped with a double seat at the aisle, which has proved most popular with patrons as well as serving the functional effect of a staggered seating plan in the interest of better sight-lines.

The House Appeal illustrated by the Alabama and River Oaks Theatres can well be proclaimed the real answer to one of the most pressing problems now facing theatre operators. This answer has always attracted patronage and it always will, regardless of product, booking dates and exploitation. It's a balancing influence—and it is habit-forming in the lives of moving picture theatre patrons.

Comparing Values in Various Carpet Weaves

Woven floor coverings, in order of their price importance, are: Chenille, Wilton, Axminster, Velvet and Tapestry.

It must be remembered, however, that each type of weave has its own degrees of cost levels—that is, there are several grades of each type.

When comparing different grades of the same weave look first at the density or the number of tufts per square inch. This may be obtained by measuring off a square inch on the back and multiplying the number of divisions each way.

After comparing density, the analysis should cover the depth of pile, the size or ply of the yarn. In worsted Wilton fabrics the question of whether two- or three-shot construction has been used must be determined, as well as the number of frames.

Stick TO YOUR GUNS, MEN!...and DON'T BE CHASING RAINBOWS

By Ansel M. Moore

IN THE wordy battle now being waged between the aggressive radio broadcasters and the overwrought movie screencasters, we see a huge and foreboding smoke screen, behind which both contenders are hiding the real issues of the controversy.

The long smouldering rivalry between the two not very distantly related, and until quite recently docile, competitors flared up most ominously last fall when radio broadcasting invaded the domain of the movies and appropriated one of the latter's most prized pretensions—the Cash Giveaway. Since then threats of retaliation and counter-invasion have been coming thick and fast, all the while behind a barrage of irrational reasoning that hardly becomes these gladiators of our great entertainment arena.

Truly a little war is on! Retaliation is becoming rampant. Out in Kansas City the invading "Pot O' Gold" program is said to have evoked a real rival, with a chain of first-run theatres passing out ten automobiles to its "entertainment loving" patrons each week plus $5,000 in cash to make their movie enjoyment more complete. A "gigantic revival" of Bank Night is promised, the statutes permitting, with a group of Pennsylvania independent exhibitors threatening a pooled sweepstake prize plan that will put all previous and present "pots" in the penny ante class. Thousands of exhibitors, collectively and as individuals are disturbed and tearfully distraught by the radio lottery and its Tuesday night raids on their larders.

Tit for Tat

Radio, becoming also a bit retaliative has put a few more "grab bags" on the air and the "audience baiting" gag threatens again to supersede and black out the program as a feature attraction—on the air or in the theatre, the latter only just beginning to recover from the effects of a prolonged giveaway spree that had relaxed somewhat in a brief spell of sober thought and sound judgment among showmen.

Must we endure it again? Probably several million movie fans are asking that question too, as they turn from both the movie turnstiles and the radio tuning dials in search of entertainment that is sane and satisfying; restful and edifying; instead of nerve-wracking and nauseating to thousands of listeners and lookers-on.

But let's give even the devil his due. There is no denying the mob psychology of giveaway sales promotion. Mail order advertisers have been paying people to look and listen for years. Something offered for nothing is a sure shot with which to bag the suckers—and it probably will always be a good come-on for a certain class of potential customers. But what of the other class, for whom lady luck has no particular appeal? Is it good business to alienate their good will in our attempts to strike the fancy of the money-grabbing mob, a fancy which is but fleeting at best?

Art or Artifice?

There is certainly nothing in common between the art of good screen or radio entertainment and this artless method of business promotion that is now a strong bone of contention between the two great and growing branches of the entertainment industry. Why therefore should movies and radio vie with each other to tear down that which together they have built up?

The answer to that question is being obscured by a sham battle, the smoke of which was referred to in our opening paragraph. We'd like to lift this veil for a moment at least and look into the true relationship of one rival to the other and clarify a bit their joint responsibility to the public.

The fact is readily apparent that radio is a real competitor of the movies. It has been so since its inception and has hardly become more so by reason of the "Pot O' Gold" program. It holds certain natural advantages over the movies, the principal being its home circle environment and its commercial sponsorship. But the fact that it provides a free show with program selectivity, right in the home for a flip of the dial, is hardly enough to make up for the deficiencies in its entertainment value wherein it loses in comparison to the cinema. Its convenience and the tonal quality of its output are hardly enough to compensate for the all-important disadvantage that its action can only be heard while at the movies action can be both heard and seen in lifelike approximation.

Up to this point in the comparison the score is decidedly in favor of the movies. But one step further and the balance switches over to radio, and with a bang! The weight of fine musical reproduction puts the air show in the lead by a substantial margin. And right there, Mr. Theatre Man, is the reason why radio has hurt your movie business. Put your thumb on that point for a moment while we prove it.

Music in the Air

Over 40 million persons who can afford to take in movies at any time they wish, have radios in their homes and hundreds of thousands of this same class of potential customers enjoy recorded music regularly. An evening with the Metropolitan Opera, Toscanini and Stokowski and their orchestras, the NBC or CBS Symphonies, Lawrence Tibbett, Richard Crooks, Nelson Eddy, Lily Pons, Benny Goodman, the bandsman. There's plenty of fine music on the air these nights!

As a result of all this high quality home entertainment, the public's appetite for good music has been whetted to a point of exaction. They demand comparable musical reproductions no matter where they go. Consequently, they demand a better quality of sound reception than they are getting in far too many of our movies.

Recent nationwide polls have disclosed a rather surprising fact that 94 per cent of the radio listeners prefer musical programs. Furthermore, musical appreciation in the schools—from kindergarten to college—has created an entirely new and enthusiastic generation of music lovers.

To get the full effect of this argument, just conjure up an imaginary scene of a family circle seated comfortably at home around the radio "taking in" the Metropolitan Opera broadcast or enjoying one of several fine symphony hours. Then try to picture this same family group having to put up with a double-feature program of highly distorted musical sequences badly projected in a stuffy, poorly seated neighborhood movie theatre with perhaps a boresome giveaway game that same night. You said it! It just doesn't make sense.

The appreciation of good music audibly presented is now so prevalent among the masses that it must not be denied the movie audience. Yet it is an astounding statistical fact that over 65 per cent of the theatres in these United States are still using sound equipment that is around 10 years old and that not more than 50 per cent of our theatres subscribe to com-

EMPHASIZING THE ESSENTIAL PHASES OF HOUSE HYGIENE IN THEATRE MAINTENANCE

What is Your Annual Dust Bill?

A Four-Reel Feature Article on the Fine Points of Theatre Cleaning and Carpet Maintenance—and a Trailer.

By R. B. Lord

IT IS A credit to the theatre industry as a whole, that those who guide its destiny are consistently more capable executives than those found in most other industries. Every theatre owner and manager knows his business—knows it well and has to. He is a business man, a psychologist, and engineer, and a prestidigitator all in one, every day. Ask any salesman who calls upon him if you want the proof.

Because of the exacting nature of his varied and intricate duties, time scarcely permits him to devote all the energy he would like to a detailed and searching analysis of modern cleaning methods and equipment. This article is respectfully directed, therefore, to the theatre operator, and its purpose is to offer a brief recapitulation of valuable facts and information as an aid in improving cleaning service and in selecting equipment best suited to the particular needs of his house or circuit.

REEL I

It is estimated that an annual aggregate of over 7,000,000 inbound foot prints alone are pressed into the flooring and carpeting of the medium-sized theatre, each print depositing additional grit and scuffing through any patches left by earlier arrivals. An equal number of outbound prints, though less generous with dust, carry on a ruthless grinding action. The heavier particles brought in on shoes and clothing as well, imbed themselves in the carpeting, while the lighter mill through the air and become attached to walls, cushions, drapes, and other parts of the building, except for those caught up by the air conditioning system before they come to rest. No one need be reminded at length of the harmful effect of this dust, of its increased burden upon the ventilating system, nor of its yearly cost in deterioration of floor covering, and in dulling of decorations in general.

Nevertheless, splendor and lagoon atmosphere must be continually maintained, in spite of the daily importation of dust. To accomplish this feat economically, capture and efficient removal of dust at the earliest possible moment is of major importance, and brings our attention to commercial vacuum cleaners.

REEL II

Just as better light, sound, projection and comfort have been brought to the theatre, so have advanced engineering and design produced noteworthy improvements in commercial cleaning equipment. A wide variety of good vacuum cleaners are presented today, but before any attempt at selection can be made, we must become familiar with the requirements of the machine available and your individual theatre must be studied with regard to its size, number and type of cleaning jobs involved and personnel employed.

For purposes of identification, let us assume that the term "Commercial Vacuum Cleaner" applies to the particular type containing a metal reservoir or tank for trapping and holding refuse, in contrast to the conventional household appliance which passes all matter through a fan chamber and into a bag. With this commercial design, strain on fan, housing and bearings are minimized and sand blasting action is reduced by a structural feature which traps all waste heavier than dust before it reaches the whistling fan blades. Coins, buttons, pins, and other similar objects cannot therefore produce internal damage. So it is thought best, that for daily long runs, heavy work and the encountering of a variety of refuse, a commercial type cleaner be used for the theatre application. It may be supplemented, of course, by conventional cleaners if this is considered desirable.

REEL III

In considering the work to be done, our first concern is usually for the carpeting which bears the brunt of the destructive forces in the main, and should definitely be spared any further wear during the cleaning process. The subject of beaters and revolving brushes for theatre carpets is controversial and if definite advice is desired concerning the use of vacuum cleaners of this type on your carpeting, the carpet manufacturer will probably be the safest source of information.

It is the opinion of some authorities, however, that agitator equipped machines are desirable where carpets receive only periodic cleaning such as in homes and where dust has become deeply imbedded, but, that in theatres, where daily cleaning occurs and soil is near the surface, a straight suction type machine can adequately remove waste and eliminate the possibility of daily nap wear. The majority of commercial type vacuum cleaners are of the straight suction variety without revolving brushes on beaters. Therefore you will need a machine with powerful suction to do the job well, but not so severe as to cause damage to the carpet or other objects in the house which you may wish to clean. It is possible to obtain too much pull for general use as well as too little.

If the carpet area is large, the volume of air the machine will pass and the size of the floor cleaning nozzle supplied should be carefully noted. Complete coverage in a reasonable period of time is very essential.

Your next thought may be of stair carpeting. This can be vacuum cleaned effectively with the type of machine which comes apart by carrying the motor suspended from the operator's shoulder. Here the regular floor nozzle may be used. Another method would be to attach extra lengths of hose and have the complete cleaner on the floor level. Either of these methods will leave stair carpeting as crisp and clean as that on the flat areas, a definite advantage.

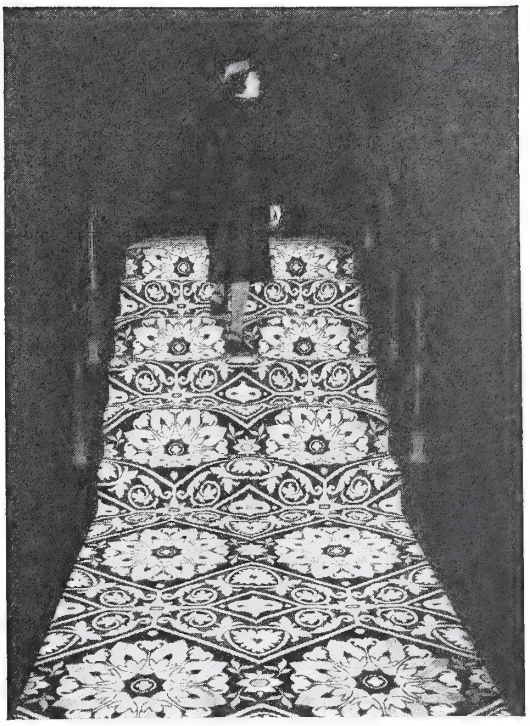
For composition, tile, or concrete floor, you may need a special floor nozzle equipped with hardened felt shoes, if there is any danger of scratching or wear with the ordinary aluminum nozzle.

Shampooing still seems to be a debatable question. While it may be desirable to treat hard surface floors and certain carpets in this manner, some authorities are in doubt as to the ability of aluminum fan chambers to withstand the effects of caustic soap bubbles or of the metal tank to undergo continued subjection to moisture without excessive corrosion or rust. The particular soap, carpet, and cleaner should be considered very carefully before this type of cleaning is employed.

What about bulk paper and peanut shells? Removal of the former does not in general constitute a duty of the vacuum cleaner. Small candy wrappers and scrap paper present no problem and readily disappear into the nozzle, but hand bills and containers such as cough-drop boxes are for the most part too large or stiff to be easily crushed up by the power of vacuum and drawn through the nozzle and hose. Sufficient pull to accomplish such action would prove too strong for safe use generally. It is therefore best to use a vacuum within safe limits and sweep out bulk paper in the good old fashioned way, remembering that it is the harmful effect of grit and dust which concerns us most.

In considering lounges, you will require facilities for cleaning furniture. An upholstery nozzle equipped with a stiff brush and attached to a long flexible hose is indispensable. The cleaning operation is simple, presents no special problems and needs no further explanation here.

For house seats the use of the same tool will be in order, except that you may wish to have the motor unit of the cleaner carried between the rows on a shoulder strap. Changing to a shorter and more flexible hose about 42 inches in length will make handling more convenient in that case.



Draperies, curtains and portieres are next, and it is found that these can be cleaned with the same upholstery nozzle you have been using for lounge furniture and house seats. In most cases, it is advisible to attach the brush to the nozzle to prevent a sealed vacuum and extra pull upon fabrics.

Venetian blinds, delicate candelabra and the screen necessitate a change in nozzles to one having a very soft camel hair brush. Precaution here is uppermost. At this point it is worthwhile to note that the general improvement in appearance and actual freshening in color brought to furniture, house seats and hangings by vacuum cleaning is almost unbelievable.

a scientific achievement of such far-reaching significance it is expected to completely revolutionize the conventional use of carpets in theatre installations. moth control are possible and in many cases desirable. For this work a light combination spray gun and liquid container will be needed, and the vacuum cleaner should have facilities for supplying a satisfactory amount of air pressure through a hose to the spray gun.

Allied in thought with spraying are the other objects in the house that will also require air pressure to accomplish cleaning. Your air conditioning or radiator grills, exit signs, lighting coffers and niches fall in this class, with the probable inclusion of some apparatus in the projection rooms. A blower nozzle and a flat crevice tool are the accessories to be used. The requisite amount of pressure is predetermined in the design of the vacuum cleaner if it is of the type suited to your theatre, and weak or excessive pressure produced by a machine of inadequate design is to be avoided.

In the thought that most of the personnel who will handle the commercial cleaner do not have technical knowledge, it is important that the machine be easy to assemble in all its manually operated parts, and limited in the requirement of operating technique. Weight and size should be thought of in terms of floor pitch, worker fatigue, number of galleries, stair width and distance tank must be carried for emptying. Operating results and their effects upon the operator of the machine are factors which influence economy.

Now that the applications have been considered one by one, let's put them together, summarize and determine the general construction of a machine best suited to your theatre requirements.

REEL IV

By charting the duties and requirements in the previous chapter, we are able to form a fairly accurate picture of the cleaning equipment which will function advantageously for the average theatre. As our sketch takes shape, we see a vacuum cleaner of the commercial, straight suction type having a tank to catch refuse and either an internal cloth strainer or an exhaust bag on the outside. If the strainer is internal, it has at least 1,200 square inches of area in order to avoid rapid clogging or strangulation.

For all around flexibility, the weight is between 50 and 70 pounds so as to be handled easily by one man especially when being carried up stairs. The motor is between ½ and 1 h. p. fitting compactly into the complete unit and produces between 30 and 50 water inch vacuum—overall dimensions are about 17 by 17 inches and permits a tank capacity of not less than 1¾ bu. Bearings are of good quality and are sealed against dust. Carbon motor brushes can be changed from the outside by simply turning a cap screw. Swivel casters assure easy movement in any direction.

Provisions for quickly detaching the motor for use on a shoulder strap may or may not be present, depending upon the wishes of the individual theatre. A switch is conveniently located on the machine and the A-C cord is at least 20 feet long.

The entire unit is so designed as to be able to handle liquids at least occasionally since a pail of water and a vacuum cleaner make a pretty handy combination to take care of an emergency in the middle of the foyer.

Charles S. could pick the smash hits, but he flopped badly on the operating end. He didn't know carpets or linings, for instance, and always bought on price—not on years of service. The result was that he was always recarpeting—lobby floors and aisles were shabby and second-rate. Finally, Charles got mad at his suppliers and insisted on Ozite. It taught him something! Now he's getting House Appeal and saving money.

The best operators, men who know price as well as anyone, insist on genuine Circle Tread Ozite because it's made of REAL HAIR—and because it actually lasts a lifetime. What else that you buy can serve so long?

Our drawing is nearly complete now, and we can see the various attachments, adapters and working tools. These are all scientifically designed to fit together in the combinations required and to efficiently perform all tasks within their scope.

A minimum of essential accessories accompanies this cleaner as a standard kit and a wide assortment of extra tools is offered so that you may order separately any other parts that are definitely needed. This eliminates investment in a larger variety of accessories all of which may not find use in any one theatre. The minimum kit does include a flexible, but heavy duty working hose. Other tools, both standard or extra, are mentioned in an earlier chapter, with the exception of the extension rod. For floor work this has a double offset so that both nozzle and hose are parallel to floor when in operation. A straight extension rod is also available for some types of work, especially those that require reaching up.

The Trailer

By reviewing the general characteristics mentioned above, and altering them to conform to specific requirements it should be possible to select a good commercial vacuum cleaner correctly styled for your theatre. Space does not permit the offering of a complete cleaning manual nor has any attempt been made to discuss each cleaning method or operation in detail. It is hoped however, that this digest will to some extent, have helped theatre operators by supplying data which a hurried day may otherwise keep from them, and that to their long list of accomplishments can be added still better appreciation of the larger audiences and greater profits to be enjoyed as a result of efficient cleaning methods.

Projection improvements are being made constantly and patrons are becoming more aware of the science of projection every day. Keep your theatre abreast of the times in this respect so that patrons may not look elsewhere for good picture presentation.

Colorful Decoration With Insulating Boards

Certain of the modern insulating board products, although most frequently left in their natural state, may be decorated with paint or stain of either the oil, varnish or water types if preferred. An over-all treatment may be employed or stencilled designs used. The decorative treatment may be applied retaining the natural texture of the board or relatively smooth or roughly-textured paint finishes may be provided. However, it is recommended that the specifications of the manufacturer be followed in the application of these materials.

Combination lighting gives theatre front

COLOR, BRIGHTNESS, AND SPARKLE!

THE above sketch suggests how effectively incandescent and fluorescent G-E MAZDA lamps can be combined to give a theatre front added color, brightness, and sparkle. The facade may be of translucent fluted glass and lighted from behind, or of some opaque material and lighted by units (such as G-E MAZDA Projector lamps) concealed in the marquee. Incandescent lamps give sparkle to the name sign letters, and fluorescent lamps give directional effect to the luminous band. Glass panels in the marquee sign and in the soffit may be lighted from behind either with fluorescent or incandescent lamps.

NOW AT NEW LOW PRICES! G-E MAZDA "F" (fluorescent) lamps provide higher levels of lighting and are available in daylight, white, gold, pink, green, blue, and red. They are recommended for use only with equipment providing good power factor. 15 watt daylight type now only $1.15.

PLANNING

CONDUCTED IN COLLABORATION WITH LEADING THEATRE ARCHITECTS AND ENGINEERS

Modern materials correctly applied served to create this new front for Martina's New Empire Theatre, recently remodeled with record-breaking speed.

From Sheer Dilapidation to Complete Redemption in 18 Days

Case history and description of a successful theatre modernizing project in which speed was the essence of the contract . . . Pictures and particulars by Theatre Architect M. J. DeANGELIS of New York City and Rochester.

SPEED, always a consideration and too frequently a specific condition of theatre modernizing contracts, is not an insurmountable provision when properly planned for and controlled. And it can be controlled, effectively and economically through capable planning and careful supervision.

The prospective loss of income from operations during the time required for alterations has kept many a theatre owner from attempting that which good business judgment tells him ought to be done and the procrastination serves only to make matters worse for many of our time-worn theatres.

Ordinarily, the rejuvenation of an old theatre, particularly if there is much structural alteration needed, is a time-consuming task. And time out for alterations means a stoppage of the flow of much needed revenue through the boxoffice. In the case of most old theatres which have been bucking the tide for some time, the shut-down loss is a sizeable factor in the decision to modernize.

However, modern theatre planning has arrived at such a state of perfection in this day and age that the theatre owner can have both speed and proficiency in his remodeling project and there is consequently less need for "putting off 'til tomorrow that which ought to be done today."

Remodeling Time Reduced

Time was when it took an almost interminable amount of time to renovate an old theatre, but in most cases the slow process was attributable to inefficient planning plus the limited availability of materials adapted to speedy building renovation. Specialization in theatre designing and the science of manufacture and application have combined to cut the time and cost of theatre remodeling immensely.

Our case in point is the recent complete rejuvenation of an old theatre building on South Salina Street in Syracuse, New York, henceforth to be known as Martina's New Empire Theatre. The building is owned by Massachusetts Life Insurance Company of Springfield, Mass. The lessee and operator, Charles Martina of Albion, New York.

M. J. DeAngelis

The new theatre, located in the main business section of Syracuse, has a seating capacity of 1,600 and was completely remodeled under the design and architectural supervision of Michael J. DeAngelis, at a cost of approximately $35,000. Mr. DeAngelis, a member of the Advisory Board of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, has many fine theatre projects to his credit in Upstate New York.

Speed was the essence of his commission in this instance and the whole transformation was effected, and most creditably for all concerned, within a period of exactly eighteen days from start to finish—and the finish gives an excellent account of itself in the pictures presented here.

The old house, it will be noted, was one of those once-upon-a-time ornate affairs, still common among our existent so-called "legitimate" theatres. Its successor bears no remaining trace of the senility. It is a modern-to-the-minute moving picture theatre reared in record-breaking time.

Description of the Project

To afford an idea of the extent of accomplishment in this case, we now present

BEFORE and AFTER

These two pictures illustrate the transformation of an old-style theatre lobby into a salon of beauty and functional efficiency—with emphasis on advertising effect. Comparison of these before and after views affords an idea of how House Appeal was restored in what is now one of Syracuse's smartest cinemas. Illuminated poster panels and a changeable "coming event" sign are noteworthy.

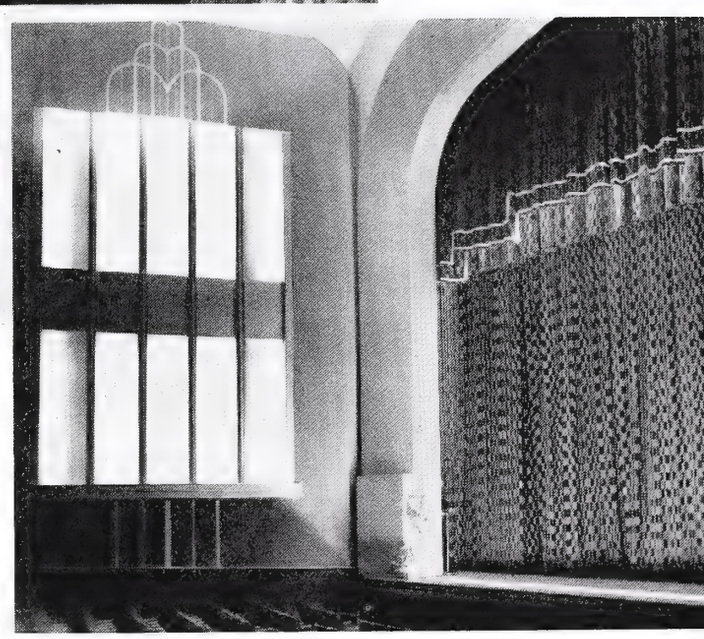
an analysis of the completed project and pictures of various portions of the house as submitted by the architect.



The front of the old theatre was substantially modernized by the addition of a new streamlined ticket booth in rounded formation at the right of the entrance at the street-line, trimmed in bronze. A flashy new main sign and marquee with changeable letter attraction boards was added, with a spectacular element in comet form curving gracefully over the marquee and terminating in a huge star sign atop the canopy. The ceiling of the entrance was lowered and flush ceiling lights were installed with ring lenses. New entrance doors in natural birch and trimmed with aluminum hardware, built-in display frames and colorful rubber mats in the entrance alcove serve to create an entirely new atmosphere in an old location.

The front lobby was completely renovated by lowering the ceiling with building board and a light blue wall covering was installed over this material. Due to the shortness of time and to avoid painting, this process proved most satisfactory since such treatment required no further finishing attention. The scheme was carried out in the inner foyer on the ceiling and side walls also, with a rose-colored base and silver-leaf design for colorful effect.

Side walls in the front lobby are panelled in birch plywood and recessed dis-

BEFORE and AFTER

One could hardly associate the old ginger-breaded proscenium and its attendant side boxes above with the smart new picture setting and modern illuminated decorative panels replacing boxes at both sides of the stage. Yet all this happened in a jig-time renovation of the antiquated building that is now Martina's New Empire Theatre in Syracuse, New York.

National Presents New Projection Planning Book

A new edition of its popular Projection Room Planning Book is announced by National Theatre Supply Company. This 1940 edition contains the general construction recommendations of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers as well as a complete example of a layout that has been used in a number of actual projection rooms.

Because the planning of the theatre projection room calls for complete knowledge of its use and special kind of construction, the supply company offers this unique book to all theatre owners and architects interested in the subject.

Plentifully illustrated with a number of charts, diagrammatic drawings and layout designs on both projection and sound, the National Projection Room Planning Book in its 16 pages offers a most comprehensive manual.

Some of the construction features in the Projection Room Planning Book are: Location and Sizes of Portholes; Electrical Outlets in Floor and Ceiling Ventilation; Method of Locating Projection Port and Porthole Shutters and Controls; Conduit Layouts on Sound Systems; Rectifier Wiring; Wiring Connections for Changeover; Generator Wiring; Dimensional Data on Motor Generators.

THEATRE MODERNIZING GUIDE

Through the co-operation of our affiliated architects, leading manufacturers, their engineers, designers, dealers, contractors and others, a majority of whom are active members of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, we are prepared to assist the theatre-owner in selection and application of all commodities and services needed in remodeling and modernizing by placing him in touch with dependable sources of supply. As sponsor of the Institute, we strive to impartially relay each inquiry only to sources of reliable information. However, we do not guarantee all statements or claims made in connection with products offered.

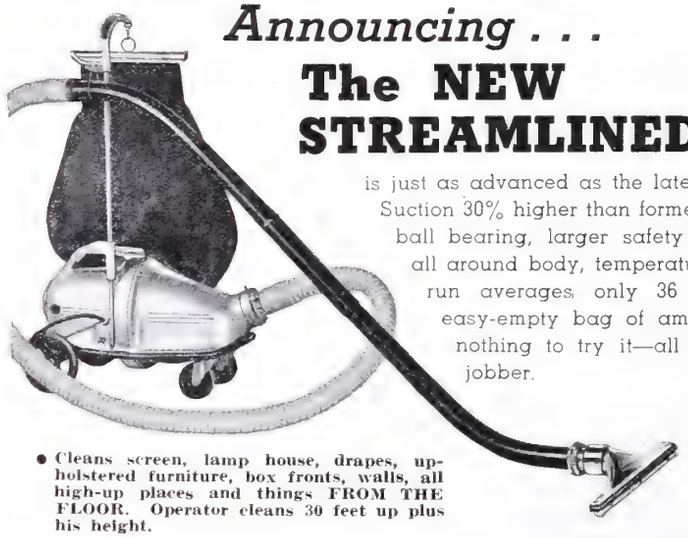
play frames are a combination of birch and walnut, with lighting from fluorescent tubes along the top and bottom. This is the only light source in the lobby and it illuminates the room quite sufficiently. The floor of the lobby is of mastic tile in a pattern of rose field with grey stripes and the wall base is black.

ATTRACTIVELY CARPETED FOYER

The foyer is completely carpeted in a striking pattern which sets off the simplicity of the wall treatment. Metal strips run horizontally about the room and a recessed ceiling dome of indirect lighting as well as two ceiling fixtures containing fluorescent lighting complete the modern effect in the foyer.

Standee space in the Empire Theatre was completely rearranged. A glass standee transom was removed and a new rail panelled in simulated marble sheets with aluminum trim was installed. This treatment is also used on the staircases at either side of this area. Draftless air diffusers were also installed at this part of the house immediately under the balcony for more even distribution of air and they are also used throughout the house for conditioned air outlet.



Ornate side boxes in the auditorium were eliminated and all ornamental plaster was completely removed. The ornamental proscenium area was covered with fabric on a steel frame as a time-saving measure and all antiquated trimming on the front of the balconies was removed. The side walls of the auditorium are now covered with flame-proofed velour and fabric with dividing strips of wood painted in gold.

That space where the antiquated side boxes used to be is now treated with indirect lighting on dimmers. Lumiline lamp troughs, vertical and recessed drum effects for this purpose are backgrounded in silver and gold mixed paint. The stage was completely rigged and made workable again after many years of neglect and dressing room and toilet facilities were also completely remodeled.

The case history of Martina's New Empire Theatre exemplifies what may be accomplished when speed and efficiency are equal requirements in a theatre rebuilding project. But such results can hardly be accomplished except through careful, systematized planning and close supervision of the project.

LITERATURE

The following concerns have recently filed copies of interesting descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau. Readers who may wish copies of such literature may obtain them promptly by addressing The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

American Distributors, Inc., of Toledo, Ohio, presents a folder on the Kelly Method of Carpet Conditioning, covering the reconditioning machine, a revitalizing shampoo, moth preventatives, dyes and other products. Interesting testimonial letters are included in the presentation.

American Seating Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., files a descriptive folder on Foam Rubber Cushions as they are now constructed for the company's new Avion and Bodiform lines of theatre chairs. Advantages of the new comforting agent are outlined and its construction is shown in pictures and descriptive details.

Carrier Corp., of Syracuse, N. Y., submits an attractive, three-color publication announcing seven new Carrier self-contained Weathermakers. The new "packaged" units are pictured and described and the leaflet also contains information and diagrams on proper air conditioning for irregularly-shaped rooms.

W. B. Connor Engineering Corp., Dorex Division, of New York City, offers a piece of informative literature on Dorex odor absorbers, self-contained circulating units. A reprinted article on Ozone in Ventilation, which covers the subject most thoroughly, is also available.

Firestone Rubber & Tire Co., Airtex Division, of Fall River, Mass., presents full information on Firestone Airtex, the new latex seat cushioning material. Descriptive details and graphic illustrations serve to enlighten the reader upon this new development in seating comfort.

Garden City Plating & Mfg. Co., of Chicago, files a bulletin of information on Garcy Fluorescent Lighting Units, for which no installation is required. The units involve the latest developments in fluorescent lighting and they are described and pictured most interestingly.

National Theatre Supply Co., of New York, N. Y., announces the new National Projection Room Planning Book. The 1940 edition contains general construction recommendations of the S.M.P.E. as well as a complete example of a layout used in a number of actual projection rooms.

United States Rubber Co., of Mishawaka, Ind., offers samples and a copy of an interesting porosity test made recently on Ventilated U. S. Naugahyde, a lately developed seat covering material with many outstanding advantages in the way of wearability and good looks.

U. S. Air Conditioning Corp., of Minneapolis, Minn., submits a book on theatre cooling equipment entitled "The Earning Power of Controlled Air Conditioning in the Modern Theatre." The book covers the subject most thoroughly and understandably.

Wood Conversion Co., of St. Paul, Minn., files complete facts on the new Nu-Wood Kolor-Fast insulating interior finish. The information applies to both new construction and remodeling requirements and is of particular interest to theatre owners and builders.

Zouri Store Fronts, of Niles, Mich., presents a free, illustrated booklet on colorful new Zouri Theatre Fronts, which contains full information on complete front construction, including colorful porcelain enamel for facing, sturdy metal entrance doors and other frontal accessories.

RECORDING REALISM

Regarding musical appreciation for what it really means to the moving picture industry, the major film recording studios are matching radio performance with the development and perfection of numerous technical improvements which make it possible to transfer sound to film with a realism never before possible. More and more emphasis is being placed on the perfection of sound recording at the studios and as a result many famous musical artists are entrusting their talents more liberally to the motion picture.

Radio, the real sire of sound transmission and reproduction, may be correctly charged with having created a higher plane of preference and a broader demand for good music in all places of entertainment. In this important respect has it not become a constructive competitor?

But however one may choose to rate radio—as a friend or foe of the movies—it is here to stay. There's little use in squawking about it or attempting to checkmate its established influence by half-baked measures. Certainly there's nothing to be gained by trying to bribe public favor.

As a competitor to the movies, radio is quite vulnerable on a number of points, namely: (1) There's a natural tendency for people to seek entertainment outside the home, where proper environment can be found; (2) to be able to both see and hear good entertainment is a privilege of the movie patron; (3) the radio commercial plug often destroys much of the enjoyment of its program.

To put on a better show than radio and to provide a better environment for entertainment outside the home should be the objective of every theatre owner. Radio seems now to be the most intimate invader of the moving picture domain. It can be successfully coped with by three things: Good Music, Good Showmanship and House Appeal.

Next month, if you're still following us, we'll have more to say about other counter-attractions and ways to counteract them.

Goldman Theatres Get Service on Their Sound

A contract for sound service to the eight theatres of the William Goldman group, located in Eastern Pennsylvania, has been signed, according to W. L. Jones, RCA national service manager. The deal also includes parts and tube replacement. William Goldman negotiated the contract for the theatre chain while RCA was represented by C. H. Taylor, district service manager.

The Goldman houses include the Terminal, Bandbox, 56th Street and News in Philadelphia; the Park, Hanover; the Hi-Way, York, and the Strand and Hippodrome in Pottstown.

Yes—Carpet Problems
IN THEATRES ARE DIFFERENT

That's Why It Pays to Consult Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau

No one knows better than Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau that theatre carpets present many tricky problems.

Take color, for example. Not only do the clear colors of Cochrane Carpets show up especially well under dim lights but, in addition, Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau can tell you which colors look richest under the lighting system you use.

Whether your carpet problem is one of color . . . finding a pattern that harmonizes correctly with a certain style of architecture . . . or creating a luxurious atmosphere on a limited budget, the Bureau can give you valuable advice. This advice is yours for the asking—without charge or obligation.

It is worth knowing, too, that the Cochrane line of theatre carpets is not only exceptionally complete but every one has an all-wool face, is dyed with pure dyes, and woven with exacting precision.

AIR CONDITIONING

DEVOTED TO A CLEARER UNDERSTANDING OF TEMPERATURE CONTROL IN THEATRES

What About Blowers?...and the Way They're Used and Abused!

By Gordon H. Simmons

I AM going to fan you fellows with some more hot air and I hope it will be "cooling" and intelligently satisfying. Recent inquiries have made me realize that a good lecture on blowers is badly needed by some of you boys. I've suddenly become blower conscious, because of the troubles I've seen.

Anybody can build a paddle wheel around a hub, rotate it at high speed and cause it to move some air. But when this air encounters resistance in the shape of ducts or other contrivances used in an air conditioning system, there is frequently not enough force behind the air to push it through the ducts—or what have you.

One theatre owner recently wrote me that he had a 20,000 c.f.m. blower installed but could only get 4,000 c.f.m. into his theatre after he'd installed a conditioning system. I am constantly being requested to suggest proper size blowers for balled-up theatre jobs. But I can't just look in a book and pick out the right one. I have to know what the air will be passed through after it leaves the blower and before it is released into the theatre.

Comment on a Catalog

Picking up a blower catalogue at random, I note the following data in regard to the identical blower having a 25-inch diameter wheel by a 25½-inch width:

Volume in C.F.M.	Outlet Velocity Ft./Min.	⅛ in. Static Pressure R.P.M.	½ in. Static Pressure R.P.M.	¾ in. Static Pressure R.P.M.	Brake Horse Power
5,000	1,000	196	288	350	.75
7,000	1,400	227	306	362	1.25
10,000	2,000	277	344	388	2.25

This identical blower could likewise deliver 20,000 c.f.m. of air at the Lord only knows how much static pressure if it were speeded up sufficiently and provided it didn't blow up! Of course, the noise would be terrific. It might sound like a sawmill in operation, and the required horse power would go up by leaps and bounds.

Now I don't like the velocity of air leaving the outlet of the blower to exceed 1,500 feet per minute. So the maximum air delivery I could expect from this size blower under the conditions I would specify would not be more than 7,000 c.f.m. Naturally, I can speed it up to get whatever static pressure I need (within reason) and then horse-power it accordingly.

This blower could be honestly rated (and actually is) at 11,000 c.f.m. But it would have a 2,200-foot outlet velocity and this is far too high for theatre work. If I needed 11,000 c.f.m. for a theatre air conditioning job, I could use two such blowers on one shaft and drive from a single motor. I could obtain 14,000 c.f.m. from two such blowers at ¾-inch static pressure; but I might want 1-inch pressure—as in fact I very often do.

I think too many of you are purchasing blowers based on "free air delivery" or at ⅛-inch static pressure, which is nearly the same thing, and then when you want to air condition and have to overcome a 1-inch static resistance made necessary by the installation of evaporator coils, filters and so forth, your blower falls down on the job for the reasons explained.

At this point please note from the foregoing table that if you selected a blower for 5,000 c.f.m. at ¾-inch static pressure and speeded it at 350 r.p.m. as the table denotes, you would get 10,000 c.f.m. should the static resistance of your ducts and other doodads actually be ½-inch. And your motor would merely burn up. Therefore, you ought not guess at the static resistance of your system. Blowers should be fitted to a job just like a glove to a hand. Most of you who write me have bought misfits.

Better Find Out Beforehand

It's no trick at all for a blower salesman to give you what you want—if you know what you want. But you can't expect him to quote you on a blower suitable for future air conditioning as well as present ventilating requirements unless you ask him to do so.

Blower salesmen believe in "bigger and better blowers" and they'll sell you one big enough if you don't try to chisel them too much. In a local theatre I've just noticed a 50,000 c.f.m. blower installed in an 800-seat house. (That blower certainly is large enough!) It's air conditioned, too. But when I re-air condition it, I will slow that blower down to deliver only 16,000 c.f.m. of air.

It is always advisable to have variable speed motors on your blowers. Or at least two-speed motors. And if you have in mind air conditioning at some future date, buy a motor large enough for this duty so you wan't have to scrap it later.

Lots of you have written me saying that you have plenty of ventilation and have such-and-such a blower powered by a ½-horse power motor. Now this could be enough motor to give you ventilation but it is not nearly enough to give you good air conditioning even should you have a very small house. In such instances the blower has to be scrapped, too.

The diameter of a blower wheel or rotor is what gives you the static pressure; while the width of the wheel is what gives you air volume—based on equal speeds, of course.

I like a D.W.D.I. blower— which means a "double width" wheel and a "double inlet" blower. And as I've said before, I often use twin blowers on a single shaft and operate them as a single unit, and I always use a "V"-belt drive.

It's a standing joke among ventilating and air conditioning men that hardly a single blower manufacturer actually knows what a blower of his make will actually do under varied circumstances. A blower can "push" air more easily than it can "pull" it. Yet practically all air conditioning systems operate on the "draw-through" method, which means that the blower has to suck harder than it has to blow.

Some "Curves" Are Helpful

Blowers have "performance curves" which are curious things. A well-versed blower engineer will use these curves to select a proper unit for you—one that will produce at the same time both efficiency and capacity. An improperly selected blower might give you the needed capacity all right, but its efficiency can be so low that you would be continually paying more for its operation than you should in electric power bills.

Many times I've seen a 10 h.p. or even

Are You Confused?

The subject of Air Conditioning explained in common, non-technical every-day terms becomes less baffling to the man who wants to buy equipment. If you are confused regarding the application of air conditioning to your theatre, write a letter to Gordon H. Simmons, 926 N. Cass Avenue, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, outlining your conditions, seating capacity, room dimension, present equipment, etc. Give him the facts, ENCLOSE POSTAGE for reply and he'll be glad to analyze your layout and give you unbiased recommendations on your requirements.

*Air Conditioning Engineer, Milwaukee, Wis.

a 15 h.p. motor driving a blower when a 5 h.p. motor connected to a more suitably sized blower would do the work required. I usually use a 5 h.p. motor to deliver 20,000 c.f.m. of air for air conditioning purposes. Yet several of you have at least a 7½ h.p. motor to obtain this volume of air and this means your electric power bill is 50 per cent more than it needs to be.

Very few of you theatre men seem to be even remotely interested in operation costs at the time you buy—but only in initial costs. Yet operation costs are always with you while first costs can be forgotten after awhile.

If you are buying a blower for ventilation purposes only, its capacity should be large enough to deliver 30 c.f.m. per seat; 1,000 seats—30,000 c.f.m. Now if such a blower is bought under the specification that when delivering 30,000 c.f.m. the outlet velocity shall not exceed 1,500 feet per minute, you will have a blower that is adequate and usable for future air conditioning.

Nobody can sell me a blower for any theatre job that has an outlet velocity exceeding 1,500 feet per minute. Blowers having a higher outlet air velocity than this can cause an "air noise" that penetrates to all parts of the house. It's mighty nice practice to place a noise isolation base under a blower and of course a canvass connection between the blower and the duct is always used by the qualified contractor.

Proficiency in a Package

Some blowers (up to 10,000 c.f.m.) come equipped with filters, all installed in a nice cabinet with motor and "V"-belt drive, ready to run. For small theatres, these ready-made units usually can be mounted on a platform above rear exits and on each side of the stage. Two such blowers installed as proposed can provide a total of 20,000 c.f.m. Such quietness can be had if correctly installed that there will be no interference with the sound.

A short fresh-air duct from proscenium through the rear building wall is needed, of course. But I'd also like to see a "return duct" run from under the stage so that some recirculated air can be used in the winter time. (See diagram of my idea under "What's New.")

It's bum business admitting air from one side of the stage only, and it's also a fatal faux pas not to install properly selected air supply grilles. The length, width and ceiling height of your house must be known in order to properly specify the grilles; otherwise efficient air diffusion cannot be had. And it's good business to install louvre dampers in the fresh-air supply duct as well as recirculation air ducts. These should be connected so that when one damper opens, the other closes and vice versa.

If you really want to go "de luxe" on the job, install a damper motor and a five-point switch anywhere convenient so that you can regulate your air without having to run backstage. These dampers and damper motors and five-point switches don't cost very much and they surely are convenient. The dampers cost about $2.00 per square foot, damper motors about $37.50 and the five-point switch around ten bucks.

A 6,000 c.f.m. blower with filters, cabinet and motor large enough for future air conditioning costs something less than $200. One of these assemblies located on each side of the stage would provide a total of 12,000 c.f.m. and this is plenty of air for a 400-seat house.

So many of you write in asking about the cost of this and the cost of the other that I might as well publish some approximate cost figures, thereby saving some of my time at the typewriter. If you need more or less air than what I have mentioned, the cost is about in proportion. But when you need more than 20,000 c.f.m., the cost jumps, because it requires a heavy duty type of blower, separate filters and you can't buy 'em from a factory ready to be shipped in a box.

Nearly But Not Quite Enuff

One theatre owner wrote me stating, "I have been looking through an accumulation of two years of your articles trying to find some information suitable for my particular problem. And while I did get a lot of information that was nearly what I want, I did not find exactly the information I need so I am writing you."

Frankly, I never intended any of these articles to be used as a text book; but only as a general guide. However, realizing that my above-quoted friend actually said sump'n, I am trying to give more specific information when and as I can, without actually being on the job to see what's going on.

Under our sub-department, "What's New in Air Conditioning," I am trying to show some things which I think are new to you though not necessarily new to the air conditioning trade. I don't know how to sell and I ain't no salesman. Otherwise I could palm off lots of gadgets on you boys because I have your confidence and I know it. But I do know how to recommend and specify and I am doing this right along for you. I've been doing a lot of it for postage stamps and that ain't right and proper for a man of my profession.

One exhibitor pal of mine out in Nebraska writes: "I am going to send you a bottle of Scotch but answer these questions first. I just want to be sure you are sober when you answer them."

But do you think I even get as much as a bottle of Scotch out of these air conditioning manufacturers who profit considerably from my recommendations? Nary an empty bottle nor the smell of a cork! They are "scientific takers" of any and all business offered without effort or expenditure on their part, so I've just naturally got to give them the razzberry. (Aside to manufacturers: Come on fellows, loosen up on that reactionary re-

SIMMONS' Q-AND-A CORNER

Problems presented herein are bona fide and are not imaginary concoctions for the purpose of misrepresenting reader interest. Original signed letters are on file for examination, subject to the approval of correspondents.

And here's one from a theatre man down in Oklahoma, who gets right to the root of things in the opening paragraph of his letter:

The Letter: "I would like to have you draw me a set of plans for cooling my theatre, of which I am sending you a rough sketch, as well as it can be cooled with washed air, as I don't think it would be a paying investment to buy refrigeration at present in a town the size of mine, which is about 1,700 population.

"I have a small washed air system, but I know my blower is not large enough, so I want you to tell me what it will take to do the job, and how it should be put in. Of course I want to do the job as reasonably as possible, but at the same time I want to get results from the money I spend. Please let me know what the charges will be for a set of plans.—L.M."

My Reply: "Thanks for your letter of the 24th. I can make you a plan for $25.00, but I will need more information than sent. Where can the equipment be located? Have you sufficient room backstage? If so, send me a floor plan of this part of your house.

"You show an auditorium length of 82 feet for a 325-seat house. Have you an overhead duct system or is there sufficient attic space to install one? It's going to be hard to properly distribute air from the stage end, but if the budget won't stand for overhead ducts I should know it now. You might let me know if your present blower will deliver 10,000 c.f.m. of air as this much will be required. If the blower is too small, I can purchase a suitable one for less than $165.00, and it will require a 3 h.p. motor.

"Let me know if your city has or you can get deep well water. Ascertain temperature at city pumping station. Let me know how far your theatre is from the pumping station and if there are any water cooling systems operating satisfactorily in your city.

"If ..... has a high altitude and a very dry climate in the summer, a washed air system will not be too satisfactory. But if water can be obtained not to exceed 58 degrees Fahrenheit, a good inexpensive cooling job can be done. You see, I have to have something to work with.

"Now I'll not draw you a plan for any amount unless I am sure that you will get a good job if my plan is followed. And I'll need the information asked for before I can be sure that I can properly serve you so that you will be pleased with the final results.

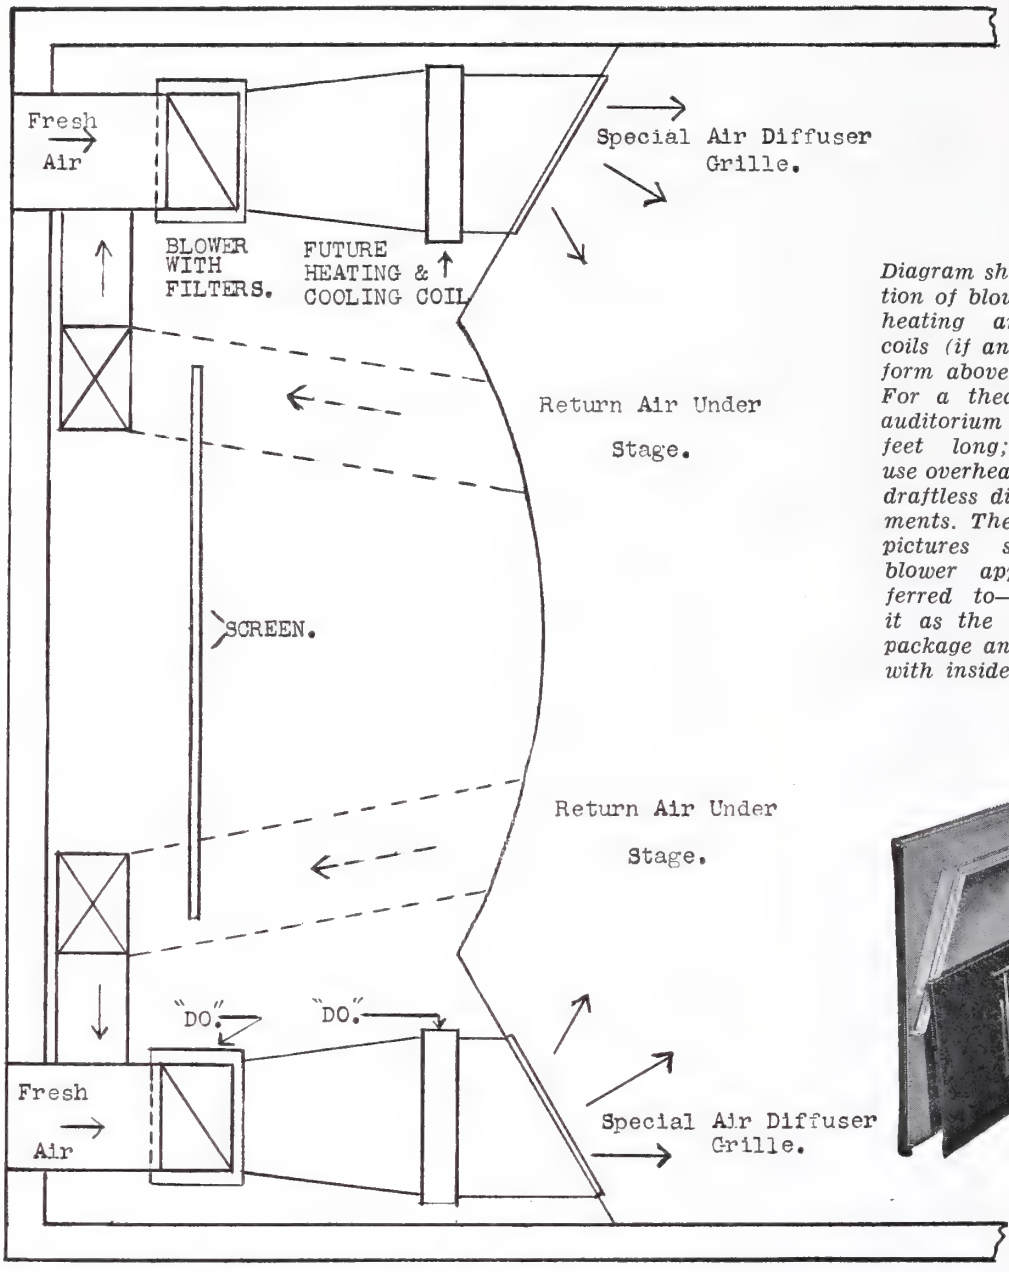
"I can usually arrange terms up to three years with the firms from whom I purchase, while extracting guarantees from them that my requirements as to performance are met. In other words, I make every firm responsible to me for their part of a job while I am in turn responsible to you for the complete and final result. And I do get results not otherwise possible when proper and adequate engineering is overlooked.—G.H.S."

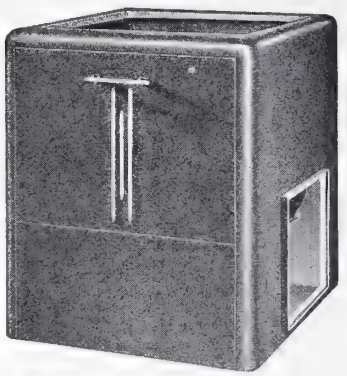
WHAT'S NEW IN AIR CONDITIONING

What's new? Here is an opportunity to get "something for nothin" or nearly so. And knowing human nature and you theatre owners as well as I do, I think you'll like the idea.

The "thing-in-a-box" is not brand new, because many theatre owners already have it hooked up to a warm air furnace even in their homes. I'm sure you recognize the package. But "Big Ones" are now being built for industrial application. One suggested way to use them (or any other good blower layout) is shown by the diagram.

Factories can build "tin boxes" a lot cheaper than you can, but you can build a platform and run some ducts as shown by the diagram and get mighty good ventilation as well as clean air. You can also install heating and cooling coils when, as and if you want to, without having to put a second mortgage on the old homestead. I'll be glad to send you the manufacturer's name upon request and you can get the rest of the dope, such as prices and details from him direct.—G.H.S.





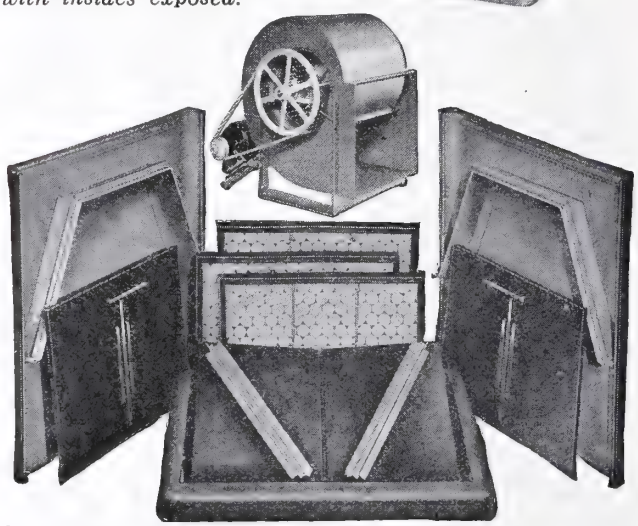


Diagram showing location of blowers, filters, heating and cooling coils (if any) on platform above rear exits. For a theatre having auditorium not over 75 feet long; otherwise use overhead ducts and draftless diffusing elements. The two other pictures show the blower apparatus referred to—one shows it as the wrapped-up package and the other with insides exposed.

serve of yours and become a sustaining sponsor for an activity that is doing you plenty of good and I can prove it!)

The blower business constitutes fifty per cent of the total volume of air conditioning business rated in dollars and cents. I have a salesman friend who sold, all by himself, $164,000 worth of blowers alone last year and not one of them went into theatres. Being a pretty good "blower" myself, I wish he would sell me. I'll take that 164 grand and do a lot of blowing where it would really do some good.

More of Mein Kampf

Can anybody tell me how to convert some of my "hot air" into "cold cash?" You merely get the surplus here. My "outlet velocity" is far greater than just 1,500 feet per minute, which is why I make so much noise. Got enough internal pressure to overcome more than 1-inch static resistance in the minds of you theatre owners, but apparently not enough to overcome your resistance to sending me postage stamps (and other things) when you write for help. I guess you just forget about it many times, but it actually costs me dough to run this department, which seems to be doing everybody some good except me and the editor. Why we keep it up, I dunno. We have "reader interest" aplenty but that does not help much to buy shoes for the babies.

I like babies—from 18 up. And shoes for them in this higher age bracket become expensive. In this modern day and age, babies like bottles, so between buying bottles for them and stamps for you, I'm in one helluva fix financially. Pretty soon I'll have to croon to them "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," and baby will reply, "No spicka da English!" So if you want to stave off my impending pre-

TO STEP UP YOUR PROFITS

...TURN TO

Keep patrons coming back . . . by making them comfortable all year 'round!

Perhaps you've noticed it. Sometimes patrons come out of grand five-star shows yawning and slightly wilted. They seem annoyed—and they are. Is the entertainment always at fault? Of course not!

If patrons begin drooping out of your theatre, and your box-office sags in summer, what you need is a really good air conditioning system. Your theatre should be properly de-humidified—the air should be circulated without drafts—there should be no hot or cold spots.

There is a size and type of General Electric Air Conditioning equipment to meet your needs—to give your patrons the comfort they demand—whether your theatre's seating capacity is small, medium or large.

Install G-E Air Conditioning and watch how patrons relax and enjoy your shows—how they come back more often—bring friends with them.

Send for your copy of "Air Conditioning for Business." It answers many theatre air conditioning problems. Then talk with your local contractor or consulting engineer about a G-E installation.

The New 19000 Series

Simplex HIGH

is a low cost, direct current projection arc of intermediate capacity designed especially for theatres of up to 800 seats and using screens as large as 18 feet in width.

Although the Simplex High projects twice as much light as the low intensity the over-all operating costs are only slightly higher, because this new arc operates at only 27 volts as compared with 55 volts in the low intensity, and each 14-inch 7mm suprex positive carbon burns for at least two hours.

This Simplex High projects the snow white light characteristic of the high intensity arc which is so necessary to the projection of colored pictures.

Do you know of something else that I should write about? Anything else troubling you? You untroubled theatre owners should come through now and then, too, and suggest a topic. I'll be glad to hear from you also.

Here it is officially Springtime and I am sitting alongside my favorite radiator writing to you while it is two degrees above zero outdoors. Maybe it isn't suitable weather in which to talk about blowers and cooling systems, but don't worry, my hearties, hot weather will be along sooner than you think. So if you are going to do sump'n about the weather this year, don't put off doing it until after the first of June and thus get yourself into a jam.

My secretary's name is June. Yes, she's a bottle baby, too, but the bottle is empty and I'm having to write this article all by myself. I hope you like it.

Another Epic of Success From Out in the Short-Grass Country

but the best and Norfolk movie fans still regard her taste in pictures "tops" and recall with joy the really big pictures she brought to the Avenue. After two years' successful operation and because of the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Rasley sold her Norfolk business in 1919 and in 1920 bought the Royal at O'Neill, which at the time was showing only one night a week and had no Sunday show.

In the nineteen and one-half years of her management there, she has had two shows every night, Sunday shows and two matinees a week. When sound was introduced, Mrs. Rasley added that and gave O'Neill the first sound pictures west of Norfolk and has since kept ahead with every improvement offered.

Besides operating a successful business, Mrs. Rasley has always maintained and managed a home, doing all her own housework and her neighbors concede her a first-rate homemaker. Three years ago she built a new home and that and her flower garden are her hobbies and source of relaxation when not at the Royal. The same urge that occasions semi-frequent house cleanings and general rearrangement of furniture causes Mrs. Rasley to remodel and re-do her show house every so often and her love for fine pictures—the best always—keeps her busy studying previews and advance news and selecting for the future bookings the best of the moving picture productions.

"They talk about a woman's sphere as though it had a limit; there isn't life, or death, or a birth that has a feather's weight of worth without a woman in it." That little verse suits Georgia M. Rasley, resourceful showman, to a T.

She Remodels the Royal

And now more about the new Royal. Its new face, as illustrated, is of blue agate structural glass with a broad panel of glass blocks above the V-shaped neonized marquee. A striking parapet in a striped awning effect adds interest and a modern tone to the entire perspective. The canopy is of enameled metal in complimentary colors with ample space for advertising display. The lobby has a faience tile floor and walls with an indirectly lighted ceiling.

The Royal's new foyer has panelled walls and a segmented ceiling with indirect lighting fixtures, chrome stair railings, beautifully carpeted floors and chromesteel lounge settees for the comfort of waiting patrons. An unusually smart decorative scheme is employed in the foyer walls and ceiling.

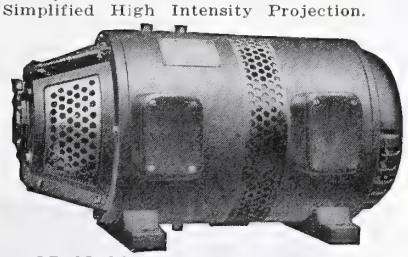
The renewed Royal has modern and most efficiently equipped rest rooms below the foyer. There, too, carpeted floors, functional fixtures and more chromesteel furniture add to the ease and comfort of the customers.

The auditorium has walls of acoustical tile applied with unusual taste for decorative effect. The ceiling is similarly treated in this modern material. A small balcony is located over standee space at the rear, increasing the former seating capacity of the Royal from 300 to 420. Seats in the balcony are of the full-upholstered type, while those on the main floor have body-formed veneer backs and full spring seats.

Indirect lighting is used in the auditorium through the medium of modern sidewall lighting plaques or panels. A complete cooling system of latest development assures the comfort of patrons in any kind of weather. Nothing has been overlooked to increase the livability of this lovely little theatre.

The projection room, equipped with the newest in sound and projection equipment, is isolated with vibratory cork below its concrete floor construction, thus eliminating all mechanical suggestion in the life-like presentation of pictures.

Edward J. Sessinghaus, architect, designed the modernization of the Royal and the project was engineered and equipped by The Ballantyne Company of Omaha, through the courtesy of whom this presentation is made possible.



Orchids to all concerned. The project is an outstanding example of what can be done when there's a will to do—in the modernization of small-town movie theatres.

A Higher Standard of Projection for Our Smaller Houses

SOMETHING had to to be done to step up the quality of screen presentation in about 14,000 theatres wherein seating capacities range from a thousand down to 200 or less, and the equipment industry, accepting the challenge, just went right ahead and "done it."

But the development trend this time, unlike previous attempts to cure the projection ailments of the small capacity and necessarily limited income theatres, was headed in the direction of lower cost and economy of operation. Previous efforts to put little theatre projection on a par with the deluxers have generally been cramped by high installation cost and heavy operating expense.

What was once believed quite impossible has now been accomplished in the development and production of intermediary types of high intensity carbon arcs. These new light sources answer a need that for years has been crying for attention among the owners of smaller theatres. They bring all the advantages of modern high intensity, high efficiency screen illumination to the little theatre at a cost that is well within the reach of all.

Former Attempt Fell Short

While the so-called "Suprex" type lamps, developed a few years ago, broadened the field of high intensity screen illumination to include a substantial number of medium-sized theatres, many owners of small houses felt that the initial cost of such equipment and its operation was still beyond their means and they consequently continued the use of low intensity projection with its yellowish screen light. A careful survey of the screen illumination requirements of the smaller theatres, based on the limits of income, finally led to the development of several new high intensity light sources which now provide a high level and quality of screen illumination comparable and in some cases superior to that found in larger theatres.

These light sources are keyed to the requirements of the modern black and white as well as colored films and are available in both alternating and direct current types. They present unusual features of simplicity and economy of operation.

Coincident with the development of the lamps themselves, National Carbon Company, Inc., has lent full cooperation in the application of its products to fully meet the operating requirements of the new lamps. A new negative carbon, 6mm in diameter, known as the "Orotip" C has been developed especially for use in conjunction with a 7mm positive "Suprex" carbon in the new direct current lamps. The 7mm by 14-inch "Suprex" carbons are used in others. The carbons are all copper coated, of small diameter and have exceptional life and light producing qualities.

A New Brenkert Lamp

The latest lamp development brought to the attention of the theatre operating industry is the Senarc, a new product of Brenkert Light Projection Company. The courtesy of the Clinic is extended to Mr. Karl Brenkert, president of the company, for a descriptive outline of his achievement. We quote him:

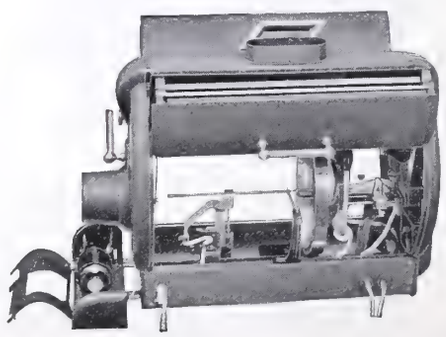
"The definite purpose in presenting the new Senarc projection lamp is to enable the owner of the smaller theatre to avail himself of snow-white light projection with which to properly project colored pictures in their true color tones and with sufficient light intensity to bring out every detail of the picture at a first cost and operating cost commensurate with the size and income of his theatre. This new light source brings a new high standard of projection to the smaller theatre fully comparable to that obtained by the large metropolitan and medium-sized theatres.

"In determining what would constitute the so-called smaller theatre, a measurement of seating capacities up to 800 seats, screen sizes up to 18 feet in width and projection distances up to 100 feet has been chosen.

"It is generally conceded that for the proper presentation of colored pictures, which are rapidly increasing in number, a screen intensity of approximately 10-foot candles with the projector running is required, and the characteristics of the light should be white like that of sunlight, which is the natural white light spectrum.

"Since many theatres have seating capacities, screen sizes and projection distances less than the maximum enumerated above, it is desirable that this new light source be adjustable as to total light output, which is expressed in lumens, so that the chosen standard of 10-foot candles can be closely maintained in these various sized theatres. This is accomplished on the new lamp by a special type of arc control which permits operating two various size carbon trims between 30 and 40 arc amperes. These carbon trims are now available, one being the 6mm positive and 5mm negative operating at 30 to 35 amperes, and the other being the 7mm positive and 6mm negative operating at 40 amperes.

Operating Costs Compared



"The electrical energy consumed at the arc is a minimum of 750 watts at 30 amperes up to a maximum of 1,150 watts at 40 amperes. The light on the screen without the shutter running is 3,300 lumens at 30 amperes up to a maximum of 4,300 lumens at 40 amperes. The screen intensity on a 14-foot screen width with 30 amperes at the arc is approximately 10 foot candles and with an 18-foot screen at 40 amperes is approximately 10 foot candles.

"These screen intensities are based on a single-shutter type projector with the projector operating. Where the more efficient double-shutter type projectors are used, the screen intensities will be higher than these figures; therefore, current at the arc can be reduced with resultant lower operating cost, to maintain the desired 10 foot candles.

"It will be noted from the foregoing figures that this new light source operates at a lower wattage than any arc type of light source that has yet been used for motion picture theatre projection.

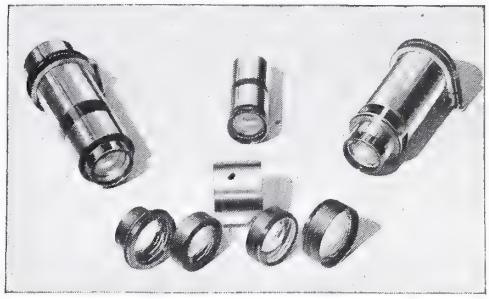
"New power elements have been developed and are now ready for use with the new light source. These power sources are available in Tungar type rectifiers or motor generators. The motor generators are available in either the constant voltage type, which use ballast resistors, or the double generator series type wherein no ballast resistors are required. The efficiency of these new power sources ranges from 60 to 70 per cent and develop an overall power consumption as drawn off the line from 1,300 watts at 30 arc amperes to 1,960 watts at 40 arc amperes.

"Our new Senarc lamp operates on direct current only. The power sources are for operation on two or three phase line. This combination eliminates all flicker in the light on the screen, caused by the light source, at any time either with single shutter type projectors or with double shutter type projectors.

COMPARISON OF EFFICIENCIES

"No doubt the question will be asked: How does the result from this new light source compare with that obtained from a low intensity lamp or from the present 45 to 65 ampere high intensity lamp? The screen intensity as measured by a foot candle meter will show the light from the Senarc lamp to be appreciably greater than with the low intensity type of arc. In addition, the light produced from the new lamp is white as compared to the yellow light produced by the low intensity types.

"The costs of operation for carbons and current in the Senarc lamp will vary from 11 to 16 cents per hour, depending upon the amount of current used at the arc and the cost per kilowatt hour of the current. The cost of the low intensity type of arc is not ever less than this figure, and in most cases higher.



"The 45 to 65 ampere high intensity type of arc, such as that used in most theatres above 800 seats, has a total light output from 5,000 to 6,200 lumens at an operating cost of 22 to 32 cents per hour for carbons and current. The quality of light from the new Senarc is the same as that produced by the present 45 to 65 ampere high intensity arcs."

Mr. Brenkert thus gives a very fair appraisal of his own recent development, which is typical of what is being done to effect a higher standard of projection in our smaller houses.

With high intensity projection thus being made universally and economically available to all theatres, large and small, a great forward step has been taken in providing the means for more comfortable vision, better projection and increased satisfaction to picture theatre audiences.

FOUR REQUIREMENTS FOR THEATRE CARPETS

Two of the new Cochrane theatre patterns which typify a wide range of selection for both decorative and wear requirements. At left—the modernistic Barclay and at right, the more conservative Peerless pattern.

"JUST as managing a theatre is a highly specialized business, so also is the matter of selecting carpets for theatre installation," says C. R. Wright, manager of the Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau of the Charles P. Cochrane Company, a new service recently established by his company for analyses and counsel on theatre carpeting requirements.

The right selection, according to Mr. Wright, should take into consideration four important points. First, the pattern should be appropriate to the theatre's architecture and decorative scheme; next, the design should be bold enough and the colors clear enough to show up advantageously in the dim lights under which patrons normally see carpets. Carpets help to create a quality atmosphere—but they must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Closely connected with this point is the nature of the pile. This should be sufficiently deep to provide a luxurious feeling—further reminding patrons of the carpet's presence. Finally, the weave should be of such character as to keep both the original investment and replacement costs at the lowest possible figure. Mr. Wright's company manufactures theatre carpets in many different grades. He points out, therefore, that what is the best buy for one theatre may be far from the best for another—because traffic conditions vary tremendously.

On the several points referred to, Cochrane's Theatre Carpet Advisory Bureau will undertake to render valuable assistance. Its recommendations, according to Mr. Wright, are based on 40 years of experience in supplying carpets to theatres, stores and so forth, during which time much data has been collected relative to all types of service conditions.

NEW SPRAYER

The DeVilbiss Company, internationally known manufacturers of atomizers and spraying devices, are featuring a new series of small spray painting outfits at an appealing price. The new units in streamlined design and with unusual performance characteristics are said to be quite the thing for use around the theatre.

The new NCB line, just announced, consists of five different spray equipment assemblies all in modern streamline design as illustrated and all built around a radically new type of ¼ h. p. motor driven air compressor. Three are cup gun outfits as shown above and two include a pressure feed paint tank of two-gallon capacity.

A good paint-spraying outfit is unquestionably a most utilitarian piece of equipment around the theatre, not only for advertising display and special scenery creation, but for decorative maintenance in between remodeling seasons. Further information on the equipment may be had from The Modern Theatre Information Bureau.

QUIET

Contributing factors to quiet in our daily surroundings are ever on the increase. It's interesting to note that a concern in Delaware manufactures a flush valve which they call Si-Flo. Because it has only one moving part, concentrated in a compact piston unit, it is far quieter than old fashioned noisy flush valves, according to the manufacturer. With it, the "gush" of water becomes a "hush" of water, and no sound gets outside the room to embarrass and annoy.

The gadget provides the modern function of quiet in plumbing and as such it may find an important place in theatre restrooms. Just as the silent valve hushes the noise of rushing water, so does a good acoustical product correctly applied reduce the ugly sound of extraneous noise generated by bells, voices, footsteps, crowds, machines—thus adding ease to nerves and happiness to dispositions among movie patrons.

DECORATING

DISCUSSION OF ACOUSTI-DECORATIVE EFFECTS FOR MODERN THEATRE INTERIORS

Color in Theatre Design is a Subject for Serious Thought

By Leyland C. Smith

IN CHOOSING colors for any type of building meant for public enjoyment, we must try always to convey hospitality, and most of all, we must choose a pleasing arrangement of color in theatre ornamentation.

The day of grandiose embellishment with its spellbinding array of over-done facades, foyers and prosceniums is past. In the newer houses, large and small, there has been in recent years a marked trend to modernism, a play of mass composition, simple planes, stately refinement.

In theatre design, our modern architects have achieved maximum beauty and convenience with a minimum of gaudy detail. However, we do find in some instances a serious loss of the above quality, hospitality, in the choice of cold and forbidding colors.

To search for the origin of our "color psychology," let us first go back to the beginning of architecture in its utilitarian meaning. French Gothic, for instance, embodied in the many-membered column and capital, leaf and other natural designs. Japanese design (in itself very modern in spirit) had for its motives a natural influence. So why not take a suggestion from these master builders and choose colors upon this basis?

A Practical Motive

To convey the thought of restfulness on the exterior of a building, why not use the color scheme we associate with the out-of-doors, the inviting colors of a wooded glen and greensward? This may be of some greyed tone, keyed to a pastel value, or if we prefer, use the warm tones of summer sunshine, buff, ivory or cream. Many of the adobe buildings in the western part of the United States are possessed of that hospitable quality by the use of clays in a warm buff color. Is this not much more pleasing than an application of some technique in a cold iceberg blue?

Many times we see black used in profusion. While its practicability is unquestioned, such as its use for base trims, are there not other dark tones that possess more life and a spark of warmth, as do maroon and brown?

In picking colors for the foyer and lobby, we must be careful not to overdo our color combinations and have them clash. After all, if we use an analagous scheme (colors possessing a bit of each other, such as yellow, green and blue-green) for large area treatments of wall surfaces, we are playing safe. We may use complements of this scheme in small areas, preferably in borders or on advertising frames, because our main object along with making the interior attractive is to focus the patrons' eyes on the advertising matter displayed therein and not to exhaust him with a riot of rampant color.

Our wainscotings, for serviceability, should be kept rather dark, while the walls above can go a bit lighter, with the ceiling being still lighter if it is rather low. This tends to raise it, while a color darker than the wall tone may be used if the ceiling is high and should in effect be lowered. There are many shades of wallboard that can be used in their own natural colors; those of the dark brown tint being most serviceable for wainscotings.

For auditorium treatment we run into still another factor to be considered in choosing wall tints; that of lighting. If we had a uniform condition of constant intensity and color, we would be able to work from one angle. However, this is not the case, so we will have to choose colors that will be pleasing when the house lights are on and yet stay reasonably within value relation with white lights off and colored lighting taking its place when the image is on the screen and dimness is a necessity.

We find that it is good practice to keep to the scheme employed elsewhere in the theatre, with the use of a dark or light ceiling to raise or lower it as mentioned previously. In finding whether the colors employed will retain their proper values under colored illumination, it is best to secure color charts of paint to be used or a sample of the color itself. Have them brushed on a board (in the case of cold-water paint, let it dry to bring out final value), then set up fixtures with colored bulbs burning and subject the colors to inspection under this condition. If they retain proper values, then they have passed the test; if not, variations of the same colors should be substituted to obtain the desired effect.

In choosing colors in tile, imitation marble or glass for rest rooms, it is best to follow schemes worked out by the distributors of these products. For ladies' rest rooms, colors should run to pastel shades of mauve, green or blue, while in men's rest rooms we can use more masculine choices of leather brown, dark green marble (or imitation), black or maroon, with walls and ceiling harmonizing with such schemes.

In lounges frequented by both sexes, it is best to use a mixture of the two; dark wainscoting, lighter walls of pastel and ceiling rather dark.

Finally, our last surface to be considered, but of major importance, is the proscenium. This is the setting for the gem of illusion every theatre sells to the public. We should concentrate our colors somewhat here, having them a bit darker in value than wall surfaces so as to bring the spectators' vision to a focal point. We need not be afraid of combinations of color here, provided they are kept dark, since this plane receives no illumination and when house lights are dimmed all colors fall into a dark framing of the illuminated screen.

INTRODUCTION

by the Editor

We acknowledge gratefully the author's collaboration in this instance and present him quite informally to our readers with his own very modest account of himself, viz.:

Born long enough ago to remember Pearl White and Wm. S. Hart in their hey-days. When a player-piano and traps were sound-effects. (Nov. 24, 1910).

Trained for academic artist. Contributed to several road exhibits. Portrait painter and draftsman for the government, yet prefer film cement and bill-posting paste to palette and easel.

Connection: Affiliated with three southern theatrical chains since 1930 as decorator.

Pet Aversion: Hate stuffed-shirt theatre formality, as it makes people think they are attending a military dress parade instead of a place of entertainment. Popularity of screw-ball pictures proving my point.

Cork Tile Floors Are Favorable for Theatres

Where flooring must be quiet, comfortable, decorative and dignified, cork is an ideal material. Cork tile floors are quiet under the impact of footsteps. Cork is resilient and restful underfoot, thus preventing fatigue. Its rich coloring wins favor where decorative schemes demand quiet dignity. And because cork provides protection against heat and cold, cork tile floors and walls make the interior in which they are used more comfortable.

THE above tabulation provides a handy reference guide to the selection of pleasing and harmonious color combinations. It may be used in connection with interior decoration, for which it was primarily planned, and also it may prove helpful as a guide to interesting display or theatre front ornamentation.

In the chart "B" means Blend. Under "Good" it indicates a harmonious combination of related colors, and under "Bad" vice versa. "C" means contrast. If under "Good" it indicates a harmonious combination of contrasting colors and if under "Bad" vice versa.

When three colors are used to obtain a contrast, a more pleasing effect will result if two of these are blends and a third is a contrast, than if three contrasting colors are used. Three blends, though, may be combined. In these harmonies, the best effect is obtained if one color dominates, the second less prominent and the third is a subordinate to the other two.

Well Joe!

I'VE PUT IN THAT PAIR OF "ONE KILOWATT" ARCS

● Believe me, they are the real thing. These low wattage High Intensity arcs mean a lot to the small theatre.

You ought to see the difference in my screen light — I wouldn't have believed it possible.

Do my patrons notice it? You bet they do! I defy anyone to put on a better show either in color or black and white.

And you'd be surprised, Joe, how little it costs to install and operate these new arcs. It's the best investment I've made in a long time.

You'd better get on the band wagon!

Aubrey Blair Assists Philbrick in Task

That he will work in close cooperation with the Screen Actors Guild in the proposed reorganization of Central Casting Corp., although officially any comment on the subject from him has been lacking, loomed as a definite element in the plans of Howard R. Philbrick, newly-appointed general manager of the casting bureau, when he appointed Aubrey Blair as his executive assistant and head of the casting division. Blair was, for more than six years, executive secretary to the junior branch of the SAG, assistant to Kenneth Thomson, the Guild's executive secretary and, more recently, regional director for the American Guild of Variety Artists in 11 western states.

It was on the recommendation of the SAG, according to an explanatory statement issued by Joseph M. Schenck, former head of the producers' association, that Philbrick received the appointment, replacing Campbell McCulloch.

Recommended Highly

"As I understand it," Schenck declared in his statement, "Edwin J. Loeb and the Screen Actors Guild recommends Howard R. Philbrick as general manager for the bureau . . . I contacted Governor Olson regarding Mr. Philbrick, and Governor Olson endorsed him very strongly . . . On the recommendation of the Screen Actors Guild and other agencies concerned with the welfare of the screen extras, E. J. Mannix (who had been appointed a committee of one to effect the reorganization) appointed Mr. Philbrick as general manager of the Central Casting bureau."

In line with Philbrick's silence as to his plans, the SAG, through Thomson, also issued a statement in which it declared that while the SAG's executive committee and directorate approved Philbrick's appointment, whom it "believed well qualified," the Guild will "not go any farther than that single recommendation."

"All who inquire at Guild offices in connection with Central Casting positions," the statement said, "have been and will be referred directly to Philbrick."

Producers' action to reorganize the casting agency came shortly after the SAG had filed a lengthy report containing specific information as to favoritism, job-buying and other charges. At about the same time it was disclosed that Southern California authorities had begun an investigation as the result of allegations that hoodlums and other "undesirables" had filtered into extra ranks.

Philbrick has also appointed Gerald I. Farman as his special assistant, and has indicated that as rapidly as possible an "open-door" policy for extras with complaints, requests for interviews and the like will be instituted. One of Philbrick's first moves, he declared, will be to compile detailed data on some 1,200 extras for whom no adequate information is now listed.

Farman was formerly director of the operations division of the Southern California WPA. He will assist in handling interviews, sifting and classifying complaints and settling administrative problems.

Divided Autonomy Project Is Rejected by Guild Council

That the Screen Actors Guild will retain its present organizational structure, with no splitup of the "A" and "B" groups, was indicated with considerable emphasis when the Class "B" council rejected, vehemently and in its entirety, a draft of the proposed plan under which extras would be given autonomy and an independent charter. Further, the council has requested the SAG directorate to immediately reopen negotiations with producers for higher wage scales and a reclassification of working conditions, which parleys were halted several weeks ago in order that the autonomy project might be prepared.

It is considered unlikely, in view of this development, that the independence question will be submitted to the general "B" membership for a vote, as a statement from the "B" council pointed out that that body represented the sentiments of at least 80 per cent of the extras in rejecting the plan. The charter would have given them a separate local under which they would collect their own dues, elect their own officers and conduct their own bargaining negotiations.

The SAG meantime is embroiled in a dispute with the Central Labor Council over the latters request that the Guild pay a per capita tax on its full membership. The SAG contends that it will not do so until other CLC members are required to make the same payment, and an investigation has been ordered to determine the per capita standing of the other crafts enrolled in the CLC. Ralph Morgan, SAG president, heads the Guilds CLC delegation, which comprises Kenneth Thomson, Pat Somerset, Walter Abel, Noel Madison, Larry Steers, Bill Henry, Bob Ellsworth and Charles Grubin.

Writers to Negotiate

A general membership meeting of the Screen Writers Guild has been called for May 8 at which time preparations for reopening bargaining negotiations with the producers will be completed. The producer parleys will probably get underway in June. Preliminary reports expressing the views of SWG members as to what the basic agreement should contain are now being compiled by a committee of 20, which is contacting every Hollywood scrivener. A separate meeting to discuss their individual problems was held by the group of writers in the lower-wage brackets, following which a report was to be presented to the general negotiating committee.

Status of negotiations with various crafts was scheduled for discussion at a meeting of the producers executive committee April 26. Such topics as resumption of parleys with the Conference of Studio Unions, as well as demands filed by film editors, painters and other unions, were on the calendar.

Film editors' board of directors and executive committee met April 25 to discuss terms of the new contract which it will submit to the producers around May 1. The SMPFE favors shorter hours and a five-day week. It has just signed agreements with Monogram and Republic calling for ten per cent wage increases in accordance with the recent similar pay boosts granted by all of the major studios.

The National Labor Relations Board called a conference for April 25 to arrange for a consent election on the bargaining petition filed by the Screen Office Employes Guild, which claims a majority of the white-collar workers in the studios. Sitting in on the parley were representatives of the independent office unions at Metro, Columbia and 20th Century-Fox.

Formation of an association of independent producers, for the primary purpose of combining their strength in labor negotiations, was discussed at a meeting of business representatives of such independent units as Selznick International, Frank Capra, Edward Small, Loew-Lewin, Stephens-Lang and Voco Productions.

Slot Machine Cinemas Stir A Casual Major Interest

Only a casual interest is being taken by the major production companies in the mad rush on the part of five organizations to place in the field automatic dime-in-the-slot projection machines, serviced by 16mm reels of musical and variety subjects. Consensus among the majors is that the amount of Hollywood talent utilized in the production of the reels will be so infinitesimally small that it will in no way affect the market drawn upon in feature film-making.

Their opinion is borne out by official announcements from four of the five slot-machine units declaring they will draw upon dance bands, vaudeville acts, night club singers and other entertainers for their subjects and have no intention, at this time at least, of attempting to purvey films featuring Hollywood personalities with any established reputation. One of the reasons advanced for this is the fear that the cost of doing so would be almost prohibitive.

Although no definite figure can yet be arrived at, a preliminary estimate of the number of subjects to be turned out for use in these projection machines during the next 12 months places it at 700 or more. Whether or not the available supply of musical talent will have been exhausted by that time remains a moot question.

Currently and definitely in the field are the Globe-Mills company, for which James Roosevelt will produce the shorts; the Phonovision Corp., in which Frank Orsatti, Sam Saxe and Solly Freedman are the principals; and the Phonofilm Corp., using equipment manufactured by Bell and Howell and 16mm reels supplied by Neil McGuire. The latter is the first company actually to have machines in operation, a Phonofilm projector having been installed in a Los Angeles cocktail lounge last December, where it has been in continuous use ever since. Shaping plans for an early entry is the Cinematone Corp., while the Wurlitzer company, reportedly, is also designing an automatic projector machine; although no local confirmation of the latter's plans can be secured.

Edgar Bergen Has Plans

Another possible entrant into the production phase is Edgar Bergen, a spokesman for whom declared Bergen is soon to incorporate his own production company and admittedly is toying with the idea of turning out 16mm shorts featuring himself and Charlie McCarthy. No definite announcement as to Bergen's plans have been made, however.

Hovering over the entire field, furthermore, is the spectre of litigation and charges of patent infringement which may momentarily be filed by the Scott Automatic Nite-Site Corp., whose president, A. B. Scott, asserts he has been developing automatic projection machines for the past ten years; has invested more than $125,000 in his experiments; and claims he has been issued patents covering so many integral phases of the mechanism that no machine can be placed on the market without infringing, in some manner, upon the Scott patents. His backers, Scott declared, include Director Henry King, listed as vice-president and treasurer, and Producer-Director Tay Garnett. At present he has adopted a plan of watchful waiting, and says he will take no action until one or more of the other companies begins distributing the machines on a large scale.

For Globe-Mills, Roosevelt will turn out 52 reels, one a week, each reel to contain six subjects with a total running time of 15 minutes. They will be flashed on a screen measuring 18 by 24 inches, will employ name bands and variety acts and will be produced under the general title of "Musical Brevities."

Offer Two Sizes

Phonovision's screen will measure 16 by 20 inches. The 16mm reels, to be produced by Sam Saxe at the Vitagraph studios in Brooklyn, will contain ten subjects each with a total running time of 15 minutes also. In addition to bands and entertainers, the present plan is also to produce a weekly newsreel.

Cinematone's machine is expected to be placed on the market within three months. It was developed by W. P. Falkenberg, then a vice-president of the company, who later resigned to organize the LeRose-Falkenberg company, which will produce 16mm reels for use in the device. According to Fred J. Alberti, Cinematone's factory manager, two models have been constructed—one utilizing a large screen, 8 by 12 feet in size, and another employing an 18 by 24 inch screen.

The Phonofilm device, for which five subjects have already been turned out by McGuire, features a screen measuring 3 by 5 feet. Backers of the company are Howard Christie, son of the owner of the Christie Hotel, and John Rough. McGuire, himself an independent producer and former major studio art director, is now working on another group of ten reels, following which he has contracted to turn out 12 more for the company. Orders were placed recently with Phonofilm for the sale of eight additional machines.

Regardless of how the mad scramble for distribution finishes, exhibitors are apparently in for heavy competition on several new fronts. The fears of showmen in this territory, as expressed to BOXOFFICE when the plans of the Globe-Mills unit were made known several weeks ago, therefore have something even more definite on which to base themselves than at that time. Then it was the general feeling that the placement of dime-in-the-slot projectors in hotel lobbies, restaurants, bars, cocktail lounges and other non-theatrical spots meant that every dime inserted in one of the machines meant one less dime going into the boxoffice.

Most showmen, who refused to be quoted at that time, still do not care to talk for publication, despite the mushroom growth of the automatic projection machine industry. One operator, however, has indicated he plans to combat whatever competition is offered by installing a machine in the lobby of his theatre.

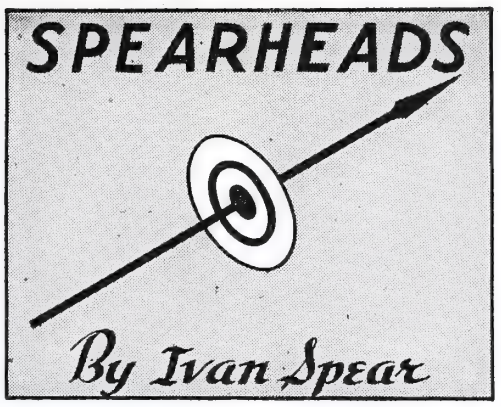
Roosevelt-Bronston Merger Is Sealed

That an early start will be made on the production schedule announced for the new company was made apparent when, at the first meeting of the directorate of Samuel Bronston Productions—with which James Roosevelt's Globe Productions has been merged—the tieup was formally approved and the slate of four features for United Artists release was given an official okay. Roosevelt, who became chairman of the board when the merger was effected, presided at the meeting, which was also attended by Bronston, president of the company; John J. Bergen, one of its financial backers, and Frank Perry, vice-president and a board member.

Bronston has moved his staff over to Roosevelt's Globe headquarters on the Samuel Goldwyn lot, where preparations are now under way for sending "The Bat" before the cameras shortly. Roosevelt will be in charge of production, while Henry Henigson, his associate, will handle Globe's output of 16mm shorts for distribution in automatic slot machines manufactured by the Mills Novelty Co.

Other Independent Activity

In his first trip east since taking over the Grand National studio, Franklyn Warner, president of Fine Arts Pictures, is planning a jaunt to New York to confer with his financial backers anent budget allotments for the 32 FA pictures he will turn out for 1940-41 distribution. FA will have three films in work shortly—"Red Gardenias," "Flying Heels" and an untitled western.



Claims against the old Grand National Films and GN Studios will be heard in a special meeting in federal bankruptcy court May 16. Among the claims filed are those for attorney's fees by Loyd Wright, trustee for the old GN creditors; for office rentals and other legal services in connection with liquidation. Wright lists GN's assets as comprising $43,000 in cash, stock in Grand National Pictures and a claim of $200,000 against Educational, with which GN merged.

Producing on an independent basis for RKO Radio release, Stephens-Lang Productions gunned the third in its "Dr. Christian" series starring Jean Hersholt at General Service Studios April 27. William McGann is directing.

A new series of eight westerns is to be produced for Monogram by George Weeks, former sales manager for the company, under the general title of "The Two Pals." Pictures will co-feature Ray Corrigan and John King. First will get under way within three weeks.

Complete "Scatterbrain"

Olive Cooper and Jack Townley have completed the script of Republic's "Scatterbrain," forthcoming Judy Canova starrer.

A NOTEWORTHY and smart new idea in personal exploitation is incorporated in "The Westerner," official publication of the Smiley Burnette Fan Club, first issue of which has just made its appearance.

The initial edition, published in Hollywood by the Smiley Burnette Enterprises, is edited by Albert Ardmore, Burnette's publicity representative. Its prime ingredient is, of course, fanfare for Burnette and his activities as Gene Autry's running-mate in Republic westerns—coupled with an appeal to members of his fan club to build it into the largest organization of its kind. The publication's function, avowedly, is to bring comprehensive news about Burnette directly to every one of his fans, to whom "The Westerner" will be delivered free of charge. Further, it is liberally besprinkled with news and gossip about other Republic personalities and productions and devotes one page to re-printing letters to Burnette from club members — three-fourths of which, incidentally, are from the feminine contingent.

As far as can be ascertained this is the first publication ever conceived for the sole purpose of serving the members of a motion picture player's fan club and it certainly will do the cowhand comic no harm with his large following.

Arthur Hornblow jr. has selected "The Immortal Secret" as the new title for his next Paramount production, nee "Triumph Over Pain." Mickey Rooney was teamed with Bill Tilden at the recent tennis matches for the British War Relief. Metro blurbists contend that Big Bill selected Mickey for his partner because he considers him one of the finest tennis players for his size Tilden has ever seen. Of course, the publicity value of having Master Rooney on the courts couldn't have entered into the decision. And, if Mickey could manage to keep his eye on the ball while following his normal propensity toward taking bows, his future is assured. He can always qualify as an acrobat.

Mirth, Murder and Monogram

An average preview week saw six features unwound for Hollywood reviewers and other sleep-dodgers, the best of which, from this viewpoint, being Columbia's "The Doctor Takes a Wife."

A romantic comedy of uproarious proportions, this worthy successor to the same studio's historic "It Happened One Night" packs a laugh a minute. Produced on a pretentious scale by William Perlberg, it is a surefire contender for the highest honors in both audience acceptance and revenue. Probably the greatest single ingredient in the film's general appeal is the deftly-concocted screenplay by George Seaton and Ken Englund, based upon an original by Aleen Leslie, which is filled with mirthful situations, many of them veering toward the farcical. Of them, Director Alexander Hall took the fullest advantage, neglecting nothing in his successful efforts to point the vehicle toward the hit class.

Two others, RKO Radio's "Irene" and ""Til We Meet Again" from Warner were next in importance.

The first is a completely modernized version of the perennial musical comedy favorite wherein little else but the famous Alice Blue Gown has been retained—a deft job of streamlining on the part of Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox in which the vehicle has lost none of its entertainment values. It ranks with the most lavish and scintillating of Hollywood's recent funfests and stands as a credit not only for Wilcox but also for Alice Duer Miller, who built a thoroughly diverting screenplay from a mere nucleus of the original musical comedy by James H. Montgomery. There can be little doubt that the vehicle will register as a hit, considering the tuneful musical backgrounds, gorgeous Technicolor sequences, lively dialogue and superior cast with which it has been endowed.

Feminine audiences in particular should acclaim the Warner entry—a more than capable remake of the successful "One Way Passage" which possesses considerable emotional appeal. Its tragic theme was well handled in the screenplay by Warren Duff, from an original by Robert Lord, and in Edmund Goulding's telling direction. Production was under the supervision of David Lewis.

While it slipped into the program without much advance ballyhoo, probably because of its comparative budgetary insignificance, another entry from Gower Street, "The Saint Takes Over," has all the elements necessary to grace the screen of any theatre—from the intriguing script by Lynn Root and Frank Fenton and Jack Hively's smooth, convincing direction to the polished performances of the entire cast. Of its type, the RKO-Radio thriller is as neat a job as has been done in many a month—a telling production credit for Howard Benedict in his second try since stepping over from the studio's publicity-advertising department.

Monogram unfurled a pair of programmers in "Tomboy" and "Rhythm on the Rio Grande." The former should aptly fill the bill for the family trade as an unassuming story portrayed by two adolescent players, Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran, in the initialer of a proposed series. Marion Orth and Dorothy Reid wrote the original story and screenplay, and Robert McGowan directed for Producer William T. Lackey.

Latter is a standardly good Tex Ritter western which blends music, action and hard riding. Al Herman paced his direction well, using a script by Robert Emmett. Ed Finney was the producer.

Technicolor Cut as A Spur to Color

Further impetus to the trend toward color in motion pictures is expected as an immediate result of the announcement by Technicolor that, effective August 1, 1940, a price reduction of one cent per foot has been ordered in printing costs on all 35mm release prints, exclusive of advertising and industrial subjects, for domestic distribution.

Additional evidence of the constantly increasing popularity of color as a film ingredient came shortly after the cost-reduction announcement in the form of Technicolor's annual report, made by Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president of the company, in which he revealed that Technicolor's shipments in 1939 showed a gain of nearly 4,000,000 feet over 1938. The report also disclosed that during the first quarter of 1940 nearly 8,000,000 more feet have been shipped than in the same period of 1939.

Contracts in Hand

Announcement of the price reduction pointed out that the cut was made even though Technicolor has contracts for more than 20 features and a large quantity of short subjects which would normally require between fifty and one hundred million feet of release prints for domestic distribution.

The new price range for three component 35mm nitrate base release prints, delivered in Technicolor's Hollywood plant, is as follows:

For each single order of 250 prints or more—4½ cents per foot; from 200 to 249 prints—5 cents per foot; from 150 to 199 prints—5½ cents per foot; from 50 to 149 prints—6 cents per foot; from 10 to 49 prints—6½ cents per foot; from 1 to 9 prints—7 cents per foot.

For short subjects, the scale will be:

For each single order of 125 prints or more—4½ cents per foot; from 10 to 124 prints—5½ cents per foot; from 1 to 9 prints—7 cents per foot.

Dr. Kalmus' financial report revealed a total 1939 shipment of 70,126,156 feet, with the consolidated balance sheet of Technicolor, Inc., and Technicolor Motion Picture Corp. showing a net 1939 profit of $912,614.38, after all deductions for depreciation, amortization, taxes and other expenses. This was slightly lower than the 1938 profit of $1,050,536.06. Dividends for 1939, at $1 per share, amounted to $845,094.86.

Use Increasing

During the first three months of 1940 approximately 30,900,000 feet were shipped, as compared to about 21,100,000 feet for the corresponding quarter in 1939. Preliminary figures, Dr. Kalmus said, indicate a profit of approximately $556,000 for 1940's first quarter, compared with profit of $310,468.24 for the first three months of 1939. The business increase in 1939 over 1938, Dr. Kalmus pointed out, would undoubtedly have been greater had it not been for the curtailment of receipts from abroad.

That the increased pace shown during 1940's first quarter will very probably continue is seen in the fact that six feature productions, in addition to a number of short subjects, are now being photographed in Technicolor. They include Walt Disney's "Bambi," 20th Century-Fox's "Down Argentine Way," Disney's "Fantasia," 20th Century-Fox's "Maryland," Paramount's "North West Mounted Police" and Alexander Korda's "Thief of Bagdad." Being considered for production in Technicolor during the spring and summer are M-G-M's "The Yearling" and "The Life of Captain Cook," Paramount's "Down to Earth" and "Shepherd of the Hills," RKO Radio's "Photo Finish," Roach's "Nomads of the North," 20th Century-Fox's "The Return of Frank James" and "Song of the Islands," and Korda's "Jungle Boy."

Technicolor's current balance sheet indicates assets of $3,653,622.12 and liabilities of $800,652.44. Cash balance on December 31, 1939, was $2,968,088.50. In the industrial and advertising division, Dr. Kalmus declared, some 2,500,000 feet of 35 and 16mm release prints were shipped in 1939, while during the first two months of 1940 nearly as much footage of 16mm prints was shipped as for the entire preceding year. It was also pointed out that the average wage for direct labor reflected an increase of more than 30 per cent in 1939 over 1937.

A Three-Year Production High; 15 of 52 in Work New Starts

Birthday Party—

Upon the occasion of her 76th birthday and her 25th year in films, May Robson was guest of honor at a party given her at Paramount. Here the photographer catches Miss Robson reminiscing with William LeBaron, managing director of Paramount production, with Dick Powell and Joan Blondell looking on.

Surpassing even the boom days of 1937, production has hit a total of 52 features in work, the mass assault on the record having been aided by 15 new starts.

Columbia held to a five-picture pace by gunning "West of Abilene" and completing "Block K Rides Tonight." Metro shoved off no less than four, including "To Own the World," "Strike Up the Band," "One Came Home" and "Gold Rush Maisie." Monogram currently is idle.

With the start of "Dancing on a Dime" and "Comin' Round the Mountain," Paramount raised its total to eight. Seven are in work at RKO Radio, including two new starts, an untitled "Dr. Christian" and "Money Isn't Everything." Republic is filming three, with "Melody Ranch" as a new start. "Doctors Don't Tell" went into the cutting room.

Twentieth Century-Fox has eight in the works, newest of which is "The Great Profile." For United Artists, Hal Roach gunned "Captain Caution," giving UA a four-picture total. Universal is filming a like amount. Warner has five in production, two of them new starts—"The Sentence" and "They Drive by Night."

War Developments to Be Aired at HLDA Meeting

Both national and international developments are to be given a thorough airing at a general membership meeting called for April 28 by the Hollywood League for Democratic Action. The war abroad, and the state of mind concerning the conflict on the part of Americans, will comprise the chief topics for discussion, during which Frank Tuttle will act as chairman.

Lined up as speakers are Rube Borough, commissioner of public works for Los Angeles county; Rabbi Jed Cohen; Scenarist John Howard Lawson, whose topic will be "Are the Movies Mobilized for War?" and Abbott Simon, legislative director of the World Youth Congress. His subject will be "Youth and the War," while Rabbi Cohen will air the question, "Why the Jew Should Not Support the War."

The "America Declares Peace" mass meeting staged under the general auspices of the Hollywood Peace Forum last April 6 was repeated at a special meeting in Long Beach April 27. Participants in the affair, in addition to the HLDA, were the League of American Writers, the Hollywood Theatre Alliance and the Motion Picture Democratic Committee.

"Biscuit Eater" Sequel Is Paramount Plan

Plans for a sequel to "The Biscuit Eater" are being laid by Paramount with the assignment of James Street, author of the original, to write another story, tentatively titled "Lonnie." Jack Moss, who made his debut as a producer with "The Biscuit Eater," will hold the production reins, and Stuart Heisler, who directed the initialer, also draws a repeat assignment.

Assigned "Nellie Kelly"

Jack McGowan will script Metro's "Little Nellie Kelly," from a play by George M. Cohan.

"Entertainment's" the Word for New Crosby

In Universal's "If I Had My Way" that Crosby fella—he who has been doing right well in films and radio—breezes entertainingly through another picture, which, although it can hardly be termed an original model, is nicely tailored to his distinctive brand of comedy and crooning.

Bing is ably aided and abetted by Gloria Jean, captivating miss of the silver pipes. In fact, the teaming of these two songbirds is a ten-strike in smart casting, and the resultant feature has much to offer customers of all ages and tastes. Oldsters will enjoy a nostalgic thrill through the appearance of Blanche Ring, Eddie Leonard and several other oldtimers whose stars shown brightly during the golden era of the theatre. David Butler produced and directed.—SPEAR.

"Soakings" May Cut Outside Locations

If the present tendency toward soaking the motion picture makers continues, the filming of pictures on locations at some distance from Hollywood, a practice already curtailed in recent years through the necessity for cutting production costs, will probably diminish even further.

Two developments in recent months are indicative of the manner in which location work is being handcuffed:

1. An announcement from Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, disclosed that motion picture units utilizing land in public domain, national parks, Indian reservations and other government-controlled property for location scenes are henceforth to be charged a fee for the use of the land.

2. A short time ago the state of Idaho announced its intention of collecting income taxes from top players and production executives who spent several months there filming M-G-M's "Northwest Passage"—the first time such a move to assess non-residents for earnings during their stay in the state has ever been made by a commonwealth.

The location tax which Ickes is to impose is on a sliding scale arrangement, contingent upon the size of the film unit. Five persons or less will be charged $50 daily; from five to 25 persons will be forced to pay $250 a day; and a unit using 25 persons or more will have to lay it on the line to the tune of $500 every 24 hours. A stringent protest has already been lodged with Ickes by Gov. R. T. Jones of Arizona, whose state has, in the past few years, profited heavily from the number of location companies dispatched there from Hollywood—Paramount's "Beau Geste" and Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner" being among the most recent examples. For the latter unit Governor Jones went so far as to incorporate Goldwyn City, near Tucson, in which area the location scenes were photographed.

The Idaho income tax action, while not costing the studios themselves anything in cold cash, might, in the opinion of dopesters, complicate the tax situation so greatly for stars and production executives who would be forced to file two returns—one for California, the other for whatever state they worked in—that it can conceivably be figured as a discouraging factor in the selection of those states, such as Idaho, for future location work.

Schlesinger Renews With Warner for Two Years

Renewal of an association which already has lasted ten years was disclosed with the announcement that Leon Schlesinger has signed a new two-year contract to produce cartoons for Warner release. He will contribute 42 shorts to the 1940-41 program—26 "Merrie Melodies" in Technicolor and 16 "Looney Tunes" starring Porky Pig.

Schlesinger has but nine more cartoons to produce to complete his 1939-40 program, also of 42, and will probably clean up the slate by the end of June—one month ahead of schedule. At that time the entire plant will shut down for its annual two-week holiday.

For the past two years Schlesinger has produced the greatest number of cartoons annually of any film-maker.

California Legionnaires Honor Louis B. Mayer

His activities in behalf of Americanism have won for Louis B. Mayer a citation presented by executive members of the California department of the American Legion. The citation was given Mayer by William C. Dunn, California commander of the Legion, in a ceremony attended by Dr. John R. Lechner, Los Angeles county executive secretary; Dr. Russell W. Starr, chairman of Legion public relations; John C. Dunn, county council commander, and Louis Greenbaum, general chairman of the L. A. county council.

Presentation was made at the M-G-M studios.

Four Premieres in Week Staged by Publicists

Having set some kind of a record by staging four lavish premieres in as many locales both within and without the boundaries of the United States in the same week, the film colony's exploitation generalissimos have declared an armistice of indefinite duration, during which their coming onslaughts of ballyhoo are being mapped out in detail.

Paramount and RKO Radio each accounted for two of the events. The former claimed a long-distance record when it gave "Typhoon," starring Dorothy Lamour, its world premiere in Honolulu, Hawaii, April 24. Miss Lamour, who sailed for the Islands for a holiday, was pressed into service to make a personal appearance at the Waikiki Theatre, where the showing was conducted with all the traditional pomp and ceremony of a Hollywood first-night. Studio publicists, who arranged for the opening via telephone with Esmond Parker, head of Hawaii's Consolidated Amusement Co., claim it is the first time a Hollywood film company has premiered a picture away from the U. S. mainland. Government, navy and army officials, civic and tribal leaders turned out for the affair, which was followed April 27 by Miss Lamour's appearance on the Mutual program from Honolulu, "Hawaii Calls."

Attended by receptions for Jack Benny and Rochester, Paramount also debuted "Buck Benny Rides Again" in New York City, April 24. Benny, Rochester, Dennis Day, Phil Harris, Don Wilson, Andy Devine, Mary Livingstone and others from the cast of the picture and Benny's radio troupe were on hand for the affair.

RKO Radio stepped into the picture when "Irene" made debuts in Seattle and Portland, April 23 and 24 respectively. Each showing was attended by Producer Herbert Wilcox and the star, Anna Neagle, while May Robson also accompanied them for the p. a.'s.

Next on schedule, to date, is the now-being-considered premiere by Metro of "Edison, the Man," in West Orange, N. J., some time in May. RKO Radio will also put in another bid when it schedules four day-date openings of "My Favorite Wife" in four widely-scattered sections of the country. Date for this enterprise has not been set so far.

New Pact to Ratoff

Gregory Ratoff has been given a new directorial contract at 20th-Fox.

REVIEW FLASHES

GEORGE WASHINGTON CARVER (SR)—Film biography of the Negro scientist, with every indication of potency at the box-office, but within its sphere.

MAYOR'S DILEMMA, THE (Film Alliance)—Another unpretentious, ironic and underexposed French opus that should provide a treat to by now starved patrons of the foreign film. Charpin, Annie Vernay, Saturnin Fabre.

MERCY PLANE (Syndicate)—From the citizens of an air-minded country this cut-and-dried crime story will provoke any number of horse laughs. James Dunn, Frances Gifford, Matty Fain.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Dorothy Yost Speaker on USC-Producers' Series

Third in a series of four lectures sponsored jointly by the Producer's Association and the University of Southern California, under the general title "The Cinema and American Life," is scheduled to be delivered May 6, with Scenarist Dorothy Yost as the speaker. Her subject will be "America Writes Her Own Screen Stories."

First lecture, "The Producer and His Public," was presented by Frank Lloyd, March 4, followed April 1 by Walter Wanger, who discussed "The Film in National Life." The series will conclude June 3 with Herman Lissauer, Warner research director, selecting "Motion Picture Research" as the topic of his address.

The lecture program was arranged under the joint auspices of the Hays office's community service department and the cinematography department at U. S. C., with President Rufus B. von KleinSmid, of the university, as general chairman.

Tone to Paramount for A Role in "Virginia"

Paramount has signed Franchot Tone to co-star with Madeleine Carroll in "Virginia," an Edward H. Griffith production, which hits the cameras June 17. Tone currently is appearing in a Broadway play.

Buy Burnet Story

The Dana Burnet story, "Ladies of the Road," has been purchased by 20th-Fox. Based on government records, the story concerns some 50,000 girls between 16 and 23 years of age who have been forced by economic conditions to take to the road.

Further Realignment of Paramount's Personnel

Several further steps toward the consolidation and realignment of Paramount's executive and technical personnel have been announced by T. Keith Glennan, studio manager, following the recent appointment of Henry Ginsberg as general manager in charge of studio operations.

Shifts were headed by the departure of A. E. Freudemann, head of the set dressing department, which unit will hereafter be a part of the art department under the general supervision of Hans Dreier.

The wardrobe, makeup and transportation departments, headed respectively by Frank C. Richardson, Wally Westmore and Lee Hinson, have been consolidated to the degree where all will report to Albert B. Hilton, office service manager. Norman Lacy has succeeded Fred Harris as location manager, who retired on leave of absence because of ill health. He will work under the supervision of R. L. Johnston, production manager.

The prop handling department, under O. C. Stratton, and the electrical operating department, under Fred Geiger, will report to Joe E. Robbins, construction superintendent.

Sam Marx, former story editor for Columbia, has rejoined Metro after an absence of nearly four years, having left the plant in 1936, where he was story editor for seven years. Marx has been added to the Joe Cohn production unit, where he will function as assistant to Producer Irving Asher on "Witch of the Wilderness."

With the merger of James Roosevelt's Globe Productions and Samuel Bronston Productions, Henri Verstappen, who has been Roosevelt's assistant, and Guy Trosster, Globe's story editor, have left the roster because of a duplication in jobs.

George Arthur Will Leave Paramount on May 31

George M. Arthur, Paramount producer, leaves the studio, effective May 31. Arthur, who has been with Paramount the past 12 years, has served in various supervisory capacities, becoming a full-fledged producer in 1937.

SMPE Hears RCA Executive Urge Use of Television

ATLANTIC CITY—The film industry was urged to cooperate with the infant television industry by Thomas F. Joyce, RCA vice-president, in an address before the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

He said television can boost attendance at theatres by presenting trailers for the home audience.

Joyce pointed out that 30 stations in 18 cities have applied for telecasting licenses, and six have already been granted. If the others are granted, he said, close to 10,000,000 families will be within range of television broadcasting stations.

"If these stations all begin sending out programs," he declared, "at least 1,000,000 receivers will be purchased by the American public in five years."

RCA recently announced price reductions on all models of television receivers.

Views FWC Contempt Suit as Unaffected

LOS ANGELES—Prospect of an out-of-court settlement in one of the large-scale anti-trust suits filed by an independent theatre circuit against Fox West Coast and a number of the major distributors will in no way affect the status of the government's criminal contempt suit in which FWC and nine distributors are the defendants, in the opinion of Albert J. Law, one of the key men for the United States department of justice in the pending action.

The $1,200,000 anti-trust suit brought against FWC, Fox Films, Universal, First National, United Artists, M-G-M, Columbia and Paramount by the Colcata Corp. in 1934, and which was to have been brought to trial April 23, has been continued until November 6 by Federal Judge William P. James, acting on the plea of Colcata's attorney, Burnett Wolfson. The attorney declared that negotiations toward an out-of-court settlement were progressing satisfactorily.

The Colcata suit, Law said, figures importantly in the government's complaint that FWC and the major distributors have violated the 1930 consent decree, and its withdrawal will not affect the case which he and his partner, Harold Collins, have prepared. He was not able to say, however, when further action on the matter will be taken, as the suit was stricken from the district court calendar some months ago and has not yet been replaced.

Colcata, headed by Lou Bard, had claimed in its action that it was impossible to obtain first-run product for its Colorado Theatre in Pasadena and charged that the defendants had conspired to deprive the house of an adequate supply of films.

Seattle After Musicians Convention Next Year

SEATTLE—Seattle representatives to the American Federation of Musicians convention in Indianapolis next June will make a strong bid to bring the 1941 conclave to this city, according to O. R. McClain, president of Local 76.

McClain and Carbon Webber, business agent of the Seattle unit, will be delegates to the convention to be held the week of June 10.

IATSE Delegate

SEATTLE—Theatre employes in B. Locals of Washington, Oregon, Montana and British Columbia have named Phil Haberl of Seattle as delegate to the international IATSE convention in Louisville, June 3.

"Command" Dates

LOS ANGELES—April bookings for Republic's "Dark Command" have been set at the Rialto, Tacoma; Colorado, Pueblo; Orpheum, Portland. Film opens early in May at the Liberty, Yakima, Wash.; Kimo, Albuquerque, N. M., and the Helig, Eugene, Ore.

PORTLAND

PARTICIPATION by merchants, civic organizations and city officials gave Portland's half of the world premiere of RKO's "Irene" more the aspect of a community affair than of a motion picture personal appearance. Business houses tied in their radio and newspaper advertising, show windows, mailing pieces and other promotion with the visit Thursday of Anna Neagle, the star, and Herbert Wilcox, producer-director of the film. A committee headed by Mayor Joe Carson met Miss Neagle Tuesday as she passed through on her way to Seattle for the opening there Wednesday. Returning early Thursday for her Portland appearance, she was guest of honor at a luncheon of the Progressive Business Men's Club attended by 350 members, city officials and civic leaders. Miss Neagle and Wilcox made both afternoon and evening appearances at the Paramount, where the star performed her "Alice Blue Gown" dance in the costume used in the film.

Roy Brown of Hamrick-Evergreen, with Frank Christie of the Seattle office, attended a booking meeting in Los Angeles . . . "Hollywood Starlets of 1940," featuring "baby-stars from the film capital," played a stand at Paul's Music Hall . . . Ford Bashor, former theatre operator of Lewiston, Ida., was a Filmrow visitor. He was en route to Los Angeles.

The age of gallantry has not passed. When three young men from the Paramount audience matched proposals to an usherette over the mike during the Joe Dodge quiz for a five-spot prize, not one asked for a clearance in case the gal said yes. Neither would you . . . Speaking of quizzes, the Orpheum split a $450 jackpot on "Punch 'Em" night . . . Theatre eds of both gazettes accompanied Anna Neagle and Herbert Wilcox to Seattle for the opening of "Irene" there last Wednesday.

A. C. and Howard Gordon of Wieser, Ida., are doing a complete interior overhaul of the Star there. The B. F. Shearer company has the job . . . George Jacobson of the local Shearer office has returned from Great Falls, Mont., where he installed new chairs in the civic auditorium . . . May 6 will bring Alexander Woollcott with the western unit of Sam Harris' "The Man Who Came to Dinner," to the Mayfair . . . The annual routine of selecting Rose Festival princesses from the city's high schools is on again, adding to Ted Gamble's difficulty of stretching 24 hours over his daily duties.

Miss Millicent Smith was absent from her desk at the Shearer office due to the death of her mother . . . Audry Heelan of 20th Century-Fox underwent a major operation successfully . . . Tom Shearer has joined the ranks of home builders. On a site in the wooded hills of the Highlands—rustic, but five minutes from Filmrow. He'll be moving in in about four months.

On the Row booking: G. F. Mosteller, Westport; Jerry Randolph, Cathlamet; E. A. Naehle, Rainier; Mrs. M. L. Odem, Redmond; Avery Combs, Camas; Goldie Racine, Burns; W. A. McKevitt, Newport, and L. E. Bowen, Castle Rock.

Fast Time and Rogers Fund Trade Topics

LOS ANGELES—With the two-fold purpose of mapping plans to combat proposed daylight-savings legislation and to discuss details of the annual Will Rogers Memorial Fund Drive in this territory's theatres, which got under way April 25, several hundred independent exhibitors, exchange representatives and Fox West Coast circuit executives attended a general meeting under the chairmanship of Charles Skouras, FWC president.

Problems involved in fighting the daylight-savings measure, which will be voted upon in California in the November election, were explained by Arch M. Bowles, FWC's Northern California district supervisor, who conducted the successful fight against the bill in 1930; Charles A. Buckley, head of FWC's legal staff; R. H. Poole of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz.; Marco Wolf, Jack Y. Berman and W. H. Lollier. Bowles urged that an early start be made to overcome the ground already gained by the bill's proponents, while Poole informed the gathering he had learned a war chest of $125,000 had already been set up by pro-daylight savings forces. Skouras estimated the cost of fighting it will total $100,000 and said half of that amount will probably come from Hollywood studios.

A committee is to be appointed shortly to crystallize the campaign, with exhibitors at the meeting agreeing generally that daylight savings in this state would work considerable of a hardship on theatres, most of which depend upon early evening patronage for their biggest draw.

Concerning the Will Rogers drive, independent exhibitors have pledged 50 per cent of their collections to the child welfare and rehabilitation fund of the American Legion, in line with the similar agreement already made with the Legion by FWC. C. T. Lynch, Metro branch manager, heads the committee handling the campaign among independent showmen.

Theatre operators were almost unanimously agreed that funds would be best collected directly from their audiences, the sole objectors to this type of campaign being Jim Quinn, head of the local Allied States unit, and Murray Hawkins, general manager of the Swan circuit, who contended they have been forced to cut admission prices because of the shortage of money among their patrons and declared customers in their houses could not afford to contribute. Their objections were overruled by a majority vote, however.

Declining a Transfer, Taylor Leaves NSS

LOS ANGELES—Because, as he explained to BOXOFFICE, he preferred to remain on the coast, Harry Taylor, western district manager for National Screen Service for the past four years, has resigned. National had planned to transfer him to the midwest area.

No successor has been named yet, and Taylor has not indicated what his plans are for the future.

LOS ANGELES

PHIL FISCHER of the Hollywood Amusement Co., Chicago, visited the Warner and Paramount studios as highlights of his current vacation here . . . Sam Gardner, resident manager of Metro's Salt Lake City exchange, passed the time of day with his old friends at the local Metro branch, where he once was a salesman. Gardner is spending two weeks here.

Booking visitors: Ben Mohi, Century and Princess; D. Acosta, in from the Azteca, in San Bernardino; Ben Peskay, Banner and Palms; Boris Posner of the Arlington . . . Republic has booked "Dark Command," starring Claire Trevor and John Wayne, day-date in the Warner Hollywood and Downtown, opening April 25.

Al O'Keefe, Universal's western district manager, has checked in from a short business jaunt to San Francisco . . . Booking visitors included Earl Sinks, Vogue; Bill Knotts, Covina, Covina; Chick Sturdivant, Orpheum, Yuma; Murray Hawkins, general manager of the Swan circuit.

RKO Radio's local staff already is laying plans for attending the company's national sales convention, which will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York May 27-30 . . . The Los Angeles Motion Picture Club, of which Ken McKaig, United Artists salesman, is president, planned a deep-sea fishing trip for this weekend, for which a boat was to be chartered. This will be followed a little later by a dinner-dance and a Filmrow picnic.

Mike Newman, Columbia's western division exploiteer, pulled out for San Francisco to handle campaigns there . . . H. W. Dodge, district manager for Altec Service, planed in from San Francisco, where he spent about ten days on business.

Kathleen Gannon has joined the M-G-M office staff as a clerk. She comes from the Des Moines exchange, where she was secretary to the manager, and replaces Pearl Gogel, who resigned to go to Chicago . . . Bjorn Foss, Majestic salesman, is breathing a bit easier since receiving a cable from his parents in Oslo, Norway, informing him "all is well." He had been on pins and needles since the Nazi invasion.

Majestic has acquired distribution rights to "Laughing at Life," starring Victor McLaglen, for this territory . . . Nat Wachsberger, Film Alliance Production executive, is in from New York conferring with Harry Stern, FA's Pacific Coast franchise holder.

Charles Feldman, Universal's branch manager, will head the local "U" delegation to the company's western district sales convention in Chicago, May 18-20 . . . The Fox West Coast home office has organized a bowling team comprising O. A. Collins, George Simpson, Howard Dudley, Bob Heck and Gale Pressor . . . Sam Clark, Warner district exploiteer, is recuperating at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital from a serious illness.

Peter Sullivan has joined the Universal staff as a booker. He comes from New York . . . Lena Bernider, head film inspectress at Universal, off on her annual vacation . . . Booking visitors: Harvey Perrizo, Dreamland Theatre; Jenne Dodge, Mission, Ventura; Irwin Kanowitz of the Union.

In from Seattle, where he is division operator for the Evergreen circuit, is Frank Newman. He'll stay for a week, studying operating conditions in the Fox West Coast circuit. Newman was accompanied by Frank Christie, chief booker for the northwestern theatres, and Roy Brown, booker in the Portland area . . . Foster Blake and Sam Milner, Universal salesmen, have checked in from selling trips through their respective territories.

ITO Pledges Support To PCCITO Meet

LOS ANGELES—That members of the Independent Theatre Owners of So. Calif. and Ariz. will cooperate 100 per cent in the forthcoming convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners was assured when pledges to that effect were made at the ITO's first general membership meeting to discuss plans for the conclave. The parley was held April 22 with R. H. Poole, ITO secretary, presiding.

George "Daddy" Hines, chairman of the membership committee, promised that every member of his group would personally contact at least 15 exhibitors and urge them to attend the gathering, which is slated to be held at the Ambassador Hotel, May 8-9-10. The convention program was explained in detail by Poole and Jack Y. Berman, PCCITO trustee, while the program lined up for wives of attending exhibitors was outlined by Mrs. Ida Schreiber, secretary to Poole.

Bulletins have been sent to every independent operator in the territory urging attendance.

Added to the entertainment is a demonstration to be given by Jack Dawn, head of the M-G-M studio makeup department, at the convention May 9. Dawn will lead the "personality parade" event, while gowns created by Adrian, Metro designer, will also be on display.

Personnel and Executive Confabs Bring Dembow

LOS ANGELES—To confer with studio and distribution executives, and for huddles with the personnel of the local office, George Dembow, new vice-president in charge of sales for National Screen Service, arrived here from New York. He plans to remain for about a week.

Canadian Theatre Gain In First Half of '39

TORONTO—A preliminary survey of theatres throughout Canada reveals 1,251 were in operation at the close of 1939, comparing with 1,224 at the previous year end or an increase of 27. The increase traces, almost in its entirety, to new theatres in the first half of the year. When war broke out in September, the building push came to an abrupt halt.

Hollywood's New Hawaii Due to Open on May 7

HOLLYWOOD—The new Hawaii, owned by Al Galston and Jay Sutton, opens May 7 as the first class "A" house to be built in this vicinity for a number of years. Many innovations of architecture and construction are contained in the $250,000 house located on Hollywood Blvd.

Opening bill will be the first regular run of RKO Radio's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," heretofore only roadshowed in this area. First-run prices have been set at 40 cents for matinees, 55 cents for evening performances, and 75 cents for loges.

House has an earthquake-and-fire-proof, cantilevered roof; "black-light" illumination for the entire interior; a canopied side entrance for motorists, with a separate interior passage direct to the boxoffice; two acres of paved free parking; a nursery for children and smoking observation lounges.

Start Building Paramount Exchange in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY—Construction of a new exchange here for Paramount is under way. The two-story structure promises to be the most modern of its kind here when completed on or about June 1. The basement will include a recreation room for employes. The first floor will be occupied by advertising and preview rooms, the latter a miniature "theatre" seating 50 persons. Offices will be located on the second floor.

Cost of the building will be approximately $23,000, with an additional expenditure of $22,000 for furnishings and equipment.

Teleprinter Experiment Watched With Interest

LOS ANGELES—A close watch on the teleprinter hookup, installed in the 12 citrus belt theatres under Hall Baetz's supervision, is being maintained by other Fox West Coast district supervisors. The experiment was undertaken by Baetz as a means of expediting procedure for his cash giveaway nights, in which three or more theatres are customarily linked for one prize. Location of the winners in one audience is speedily relayed to other house managers through the teleprinter system, which is now in operation in FWC theatres in Pomona, Ontario, San Bernardino, Riverside and Redlands.

Teleprinters eliminate the necessity for a loudspeaker hookup and long-distance telephone system, cutting the time required in handling giveaways from 35 minutes to around 12, Baetz said. The printers are also used to transmit nightly grosses from the various houses, a chore that was formerly accomplished by telephone.

If the experiment continues to prove successful, other FWC managers indicate they will follow Baetz's lead.

A GREATER amount of construction work in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming was reported for last month than for any March in the past ten years, reveals the Daily Construction Service.

The American Society of Civil Engineers presented a Technicolor film, "Highways of Tomorrow," for four affiliated organizations at the University of Utah.

Recent holdovers here include "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" at the Marlo; "Road to Singapore" and "Shooting High," and "Balalaika" at the Gem.

An ad in the form of a birth announcement, appearing in the personals column, publicized the run of "Brother Rat and a Baby" for the Utah Theatre here.

Three exchanges have previewed recent releases for the trade here. The features have been RKO's "Beyond Tomorrow," Universal's "It's a Date," and Republic's "In Old Missouri."

Among visitors to the Row: Mrs. E. H. Littlejohn of the Bonnie, Helper, Utah; Thomas Karren, partner in the Main at Vernal, and Jens Hansen, Rialto, Deerlodge, Mont.

Al Shepherd, recently with Joe English at Anaconda, Mont., for Serialgrams, has joined RKO as Montana salesman, replacing Art Baron.

William Borrack, booker for Intermountain Theatres, who recently underwent an operation, is back on the job . . . Frank Murphy now is manager of the Mercury exchange here.

George A. Smith, Paramount sales manager in Los Angeles, attended a recent sales meeting here . . . Sam Gardner, M-G-M branch manager, is vacationing in California . . . Rick Ricketson of Fox West Coast Theatres, is on tour in Wyoming, Montana and Idaho.

WPA Achievements Seem Competitive

MADISON, WIS.—Of interest to exhibitors, from a competitive angle, is a physical accomplishment survey showing the extent of WPA construction in Wisconsin during the past four and one-half years.

The survey, made under the direction of P. D. Flanner, state WPA administrator, shows that 652 recreational buildings, 28 gymnasiums, 12 auditoriums and 530 schools have been erected during this period. Many of these buildings have been fitted with stages and facilities for films and other entertainment features.

The WPA's accomplishments, according to the survey, also include the construction of five outdoor theatres and ten bandshells. Much of this construction has taken place in smaller communities where the people now are devising ways and means through home talent shows and similar events to utilize these buildings to the best advantage.

This situation has naturally proved a competitive factor for the exhibitor and has had an adverse affect on boxoffice receipts in various Wisconsin communities.

Arnold Says Citizenship Day Will Be on May 19

CHICAGO—National Citizenship Day has been set aside by congress to be Sunday, May 19, Edward Arnold said during a stopover here en route to the west coast following conferences in Washington. Both houses have approved the date and President Roosevelt was expected to sign the bill this week.

Arnold said that with such short time left before the date, his "I Am an American" movement in connection with Citizenship Day, will not become nation-wide this year. Plans, at present, are for President Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover, to head an array of speakers and film stars on a nation-wide radio hookup May 19, with separate celebrations in Hollywood, Chicago and New York.

Resentment Flares at Charge Affiliated Ways "Deplorable"

By B. O. TELLER

CHICAGO—Circuit operators of affiliated theatres in the midwest answered Jack Kirsch of Allied in his statement that the leadership of the affiliated circuits in the industry "has been deplorable" by hinting that "it is time for the independent exhibitors to go back to the era of showmanship and not worry about what everyone else is doing in the industry."

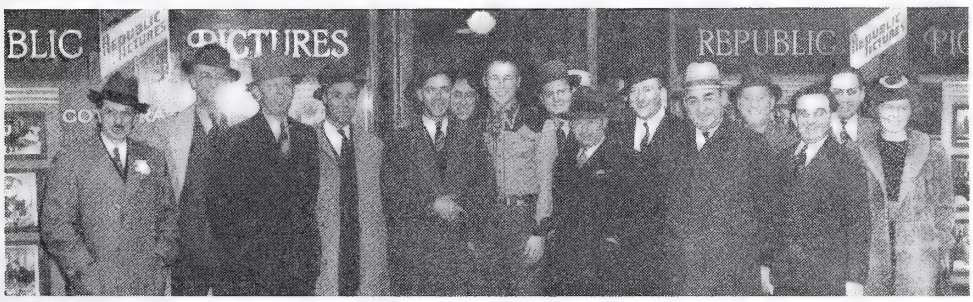
Several of the affiliated circuit leaders were talkative enough but made it clear they did not want to be brought into an open argument by quotation in print. "It would be best all the way round," said one, "if we all did less talking about each other's business in this industry."

Kirsch said that "double features must go. Triple features must go. Premiums must be eliminated. The motion picture business must get back to motion pictures if it is to survive." His comments were prompted by the recent double-billing in the east by affiliated circuits of "The Blue Bird" and "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." He added:

"Situation" in Detroit

"In Detroit the major circuit not only double-featured the two pictures but, . . . gave away 135 prizes ranging from an automobile to packages of food. This industry of ours must be the greatest in the world because no other could stand the abuse that our so-called great showmen operating our major circuits give it—and still survive. Imagine if they were running General Motors and were to give away a Buick and a Chevrolet with every Cadillac—soon they would close down the entire automotive industry.

"In most of the other industries in the country the bigger chains are constructive, but in this industry, with very few exceptions, they are destructive. One reads in financial columns daily such items as General Motors having the greatest quarter in the history of the company; Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck doing greater business than ever, etc., but in our industry we are confronted with the incontrovertible fact that in 1930 we had an average weekly attendance of 110,000,000 people, or approximately 92 per cent of the total population. The present census will undoubtedly reveal that our population has increased to approximately 140,000,000. Taking 92 per cent of this would give us a minimum of 125,000,000 people per week who should be attending motion pictures. In reality, according to the latest government figures, we are playing to 2,000,000 people less each week than last year, i. e., 83,000,000 per week. Subtracting 83,000,000 people from 125,000,000 people gives us 42,000,000 people, which represents more than 50 per cent of the present attendance.



Sees Decline in Grosses

"It should not require a genius to figure out that there is something wrong with the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures. In using the word 'distribution' I do not allude to the distributing companies. The distributor of the motion picture as a commodity, in this instance, is also the large chain exhibitor. In my opinion the gross receipts of the industry will decrease each year unless double-featuring, multiple-featuring and the policy-making ability of the large chains is controlled. From time to time I notice a distributor saying that they require theatres as an outlet for show windows, etc. The record of the industry in the decrease of total attendance since the chains assumed control about 1930 indicates plainly that their stewardship has been deplorable."

Contradicting Kirsch was still another affiliated operator who said that "independent exhibitors seem to forget that we are doing business in a creative industry . . . We cannot get on the phone and order the film studios to make us a quarter dozen 'GWTW's,' or a half dozen 'Fighting 69th's,' every few months . . . We have to take our chance at what comes out of Hollywood, whereas a motor car manufacturer has every one of his units alike and if the initial one is good all will be good."

Said another affiliated exhibitor: "It must be remembered that the affiliated theatres prosper more in better times.

The smaller independent houses are what might be termed 'depression houses,' by which I mean in depression years they do all the business, while we affiliated circuit houses do much less and are ridiculed for not knowing how to sell pictures. Currently the country generally is in better condition and patrons are looking more often than they did a few years ago to the houses where pictures may be seen early. That is not the fault of any one policy, but of the times, and to overcome it all exhibitors—independent and affiliated alike—must go back to the good old days of showmanship."

Suggest Single Hearing in St. Louis Contempt Case

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Attorneys for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch have suggested that the Missouri supreme court dispose of all three phases of the contempt of court cases against the newspaper publisher and two members of its editorial staff in a single hearing.

The suggestion was contained in a reply brief answering the suggestions made to the higher court by Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe jr. of St. Louis, who held in contempt the Pulitzer Publishing Co., Ralph Coghlan, chief editorial writer for the paper, and Daniel J. Fitzpatrick, editorial page cartoonist, for two editorials and a cartoon in the Post-Dispatch commenting on the outcome of the $10,000 extortion case against John P. Nick, former first international vice-president of the IATSE, and State Representative Edward M. Brady.

Franklin Opens Office For Foreign Product

CHICAGO—Irving Franklin, formerly with Amkino, has opened an office here for Continental Pictures. He will distribute Russian, French, Jewish and other foreign product. Franklin just returned from New York where he made arrangements to represent Artkino, new Russian film distributors, for 12 pictures in this territory, first of which will be "Minin and Pojarsky."

Franklin also will release "Ecstasy" and "Grand Illusion" in this territory, he said.

Newsreelers Make Plans For Democratic Meet

CHICAGO—All of the newreels are planning special coverage for the national Democratic convention to be held here July 15 at the Coliseum. All of the local crews will be augmented by additional men from New York and special subjects will be released to theatres from here.

Arrangements for the newsreel rooms and "roosts," were made by Emile Montemurro, Movietone News, and Floyd Traynor, Universal News.

Court Citation Halts Bingo in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE—As the result of a contempt citation issued against Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zrimsek, owners of the Bahn Frei hall here, Bingo has been dropped at the hall. B. J. Miller, counsel for Charles W. Trampe, head of Film Service, Inc., and plaintiff against the couple, obtained a circuit court order a number of months ago holding the game to be a lottery.

Nat'l Screen Names Patz Milwaukee Branch Head

MILWAUKEE—Lou Patz, formerly salesman, has been named branch manager here for National Screen Service and Advertising Accessories. The two companies will open quarters here shortly.

Seated are Sponsor Morton Van Praag, Percy Barr, Clarence Keim and Chris Chinn.

An Unofficial Title Claim Uncontested

CHICAGO—National Screen and Republic may be officially co-champs of the Chicago Filmrow Bowling League, but any National Screen bowler will give you the figures of the post-season match game to prove that his team is the real, if only unofficial, title-holder, by virtue of the two-out-of-three win over Republic.

Two of the games were really close, Republic taking the first by two pins, 827 to 825, and National Screen coming back the same way to win 847 to 845. But in the third game, NSS walked away while Republic blew up, National Screen winning 868 to 822.

Both teams had plenty of rooters and razzers, and Ben Eisenberg of the Republic team even getting a consoling telegram from Chicago Heights the day after the game, reading: "Sorry you lost. You tried hard. Best team won. Your admirer." Ben won't say, but he's got a suspicion that perhaps Percy Barr of National Screen had something to do with the wire.

The losing sponsor, Irving Mandel, is scheduled to fete his team and the winners, soon at a dinner.

SEC Decision Against Educational Pictures

NEW YORK—At a meeting of the SEC, it was virtually decided that the stock of Educational Pictures will be removed from the Chicago board of trade. The common was never listed, and the preferred, although listed, was never issued.

The commission called the hearing because of the bankruptcy. Earle W. Hammons, president, told the commission he would have removed the stock himself, had not the expense of engaging an attorney been too great. Hammons mentioned that so little is left of any assets that the trustee, James A. Davidson, has had to hire his third attorney, the first two having resigned. The commission put the hearing over to May 7, but the head, Adrian C. Humphries, stated he will advise Washington to remove the listing.

Hearing on "Nation" Ban Continued to May 9

CHICAGO — The hearing before Judge Donald McKinley in superior court regarding a possible ban on "Birth of a Nation" has been continued again—this time until May 9. At the hearing Tuesday, the Civil Liberties Committee decided to take a part in the fight to keep the picture from being banned and will state their position at the next hearing.

For Abe Platt's Tenth Anniversary—

Northwest district employes of B&K help celebrate District Manager Abe Platt's tenth anniversary with a testimonial at the Congress. Platt's managers are voluntarily holding a 10-day drive, May 16-25, as a token of esteem.

RACINE

RACINE has always had a soft spot in its heart for barn dance shows, and consequently it is not at all unusual that the Saturday stage productions by the Badger Barn Dance group are proving popular attractions at the Mainstreet, where they are now weekly features.

In cooperation with the Journal-Times, the WB Venetian manager, Eli Arkin, promoted a two-page spread on "Pinocchio," with prizes awarded to children submitting the best colorings for a group of pictures of characters in the film. Added stimulus to the picture's opening was given through the visit of Walt Disney to Racine when he toured the Western Printing and Lithographing Co. plant, where his cartoon books are printed.

Max Krofta, manager of the Capitol bowling with other theatremen in a weekly league, had the season's high game last week, rolling 297.

Harold Perlman, formerly associated with Fox-Midwesco in Milwaukee, has come to Racine to assume the managership of the Granada, north side neighborhood theatre. He is associated with a Minneapolis chain which recently acquired the Granada from Stanley Kohlberg.

Warner's Venetian became the locale for the University of Wisconsin Haresfoot club's 42nd annual production, "Serve It Hot." The players appeared in LaCrosse, Wausau, Green Bay, Appleton, before playing in Racine and Milwaukee.

Bill Anson, WGN star, has been in Racine the past three Saturday evenings, to assist Manager Stanley Lambert of the Rialto in "Musico," which Lambert has introduced to local theatre audiences following its popularity on the air.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's club of Racine, Fredric March day was observed, when members of Mr. March's family, whose home is Racine, were guests of the club and heard a Chicago dramatic reader present "The American Way," the play in which Mr. and Mrs. March scored on Broadway. Pictures of March and his family, as well as posters and other theatre display material, were exhibited through the cooperation of Mr. March.

Miss Dorothy Lawton, theatre editor of the Journal-Times, is in Kansas City this week, attending sessions of the National Federation of Press Women.

Miss Lora Miller, who spent several months in Hollywood and who appeared in Charlie Chase comedies, gave her impressions of movie stars and the movie capital at the spring tea of the Better Films League. Members of the League have been invited to attend a theatre party in May by Stanley Lambert, Warner theatres manager here.

Carpentiers Plan a New House at Silvis, Ill.

EAST MOLINE, ILL. — The Carpentier Brothers, operators, have announced plans for construction of a 500-seat house in Silvis, near here. The project will cost between $30,000 and $35,000, and will be ready for operation early next fall.

Charles and Emil Carpentier, at present, handle the operation of the Strand and Majestic. When the new Silvis house is completed, Joseph Carpentier, who has been assisting his brothers, will be made manager of the theatre.

New 20th-Fox Exchange In Two Central Spots

NEW YORK—New 20th Century-Fox exchanges will be constructed shortly in St. Louis and Indianapolis. The company's real estate and construction department is working on the lease with all plans and specifications already outlined.

RCA Sound for Two

INDIANAPOLIS — Justin Shauer of the Lake, Valparaiso, Ind., and Lewis Cochovety of the Indiana, South Bend, have contracted for new RCA Photophone sound.

Epsteins Collaborate

HOLLYWOOD—Julius and Phil Epstein are collaborating on the script of Warner's "Honeymoon for Three."

Breath of Spring Is A Blow to Grosses

CHICAGO—Business was off considerably this week due to the first real spring weather the Windy City has had this season.

In the loop all houses suffered, though UA's "Rebecca" continued doing well at the United Artists. "Gone With the Wind" also has started to show a distinct drop in boxoffice returns at the Oriental and Woods.

The suburbans suffered most during the first spring weather spell.

Metro's 20-Mule Team Visits Chicago Loop

CHICAGO—M-G-M's 20-mule team, touring the country in advance of "20-Mule Team," which stars Wallace Beery, was here this week, under the charge of Capt. Volney Phifer. The team made a trip through the loop and past Filmrow, before being carted onto trucks for the next stop, South Bend.

Said an exhibitor wit: "Metro is gypping us. They advertise a 20-mule team, and there are 19 mules and a horse."

Said "Curley" Eagles, veteran 20-mule team driver, who handles the reins on this trip: "We've always used 19 mules, while the driver always sits perched on a horse."

FRIENDS

Nothing's quite so effective as word-of-mouth advertising. Today we deal fairly and squarely with a theatre man —tomorrow he tells a friend-in-the-trade about us.

Giving F & Y complete centralized authority is a friendly gesture for which a friendly service is rendered. You soon find that we put our heart in our work—in your work—cutting costs, using the best showmanship and creating original designs to give you a building that both serves your need and fits your ability to pay.

The friendship lives on as you continue to find us present in low maintenance costs, trimmed utility bills and better boxoffice reaction.

Friends tell friends about the buildings we build for them and that builds our business.

MILWAUKEE

A. D. Kvool, general manager for Warner-Saxe Theatres here, was feted by employes last week in observance of his 25th anniversary in the show business.

M-G-M's 20 mule team was greeted here last week by Mayor Carl F. Zeidler and officials of the Downtown Association and the Association of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gran, general manager of Standard Theatres, Inc., journeyed to Kenosha last week for a film ball staged at the Eagles' ballroom. Charles E. Hogan, Chicago, secretary-treasurer of the circuit, also attended the affair, which attracted more than 1,000 persons. A 50-cent ticket admitted the holder to the ball as well as to the circuit's Kenosha, Gateway or Vogue theatres during the week.

Fox Wisconsin Club, comprising employes of the Fox theatres in the state, held its second annual ball at the Wisconsin Roof ballroom here last week.

Nic Johnson, operator of the Van der Vaart in Sheboygan, has reopened his Butterfly and changed the name to the State. The house has been completely remodeled and fitted up with a new front and boxoffice . . . The Cosmo in Merrill offered a free magic kit to the first 100 children attending a Saturday matinee.

Stan Gross, manager of the Rio in Appleton, was host recently to the sixth grade at Roosevelt school. Robert Gross, the manager's son, was chairman of the program . . . Donald Philip and Stanley Morner, former students at Carroll College in Waukesha, will both have a share in the production of Warner Bros. "Flight Angels."

Walt Disney and Ben Sharpsteen were visitors last week at the Western Printing & Lithographing Co. plant in Racine. The firm prints Disney's books . . . The Rivoli in La Crosse was host last week to children of St. Michael's Orphanage at a showing of "Swiss Family Robinson."

Tom Baker Resumes Post With Booking Combine

INDIANAPOLIS—Tom Baker, who resigned his position last fall, with the Affiliated Theatres, Inc., a buying and booking combine composed of some 42 theatres in Indiana and Kentucky, is back with them. Joe Smith, who replaced Baker as general manager, plans to spend the summer at his home in Michigan and will return in the fall.

Between Flights—

Ben Hecht arrives in Chicago en route from New York to the coast to "shanghai" talent for his new film, "Before I Die." Looking skyward is June Harris, TWA hostess.

: Time Table Needed :

CHICAGO—Meeting all the trains and planes isn't an easy task, but a trade paper reporter in the Windy City, where everyone has to change trains or planes if he is going east or west from Chicago, meets quite a number of executives. Just the other day it ran something like this:

10:50 a. m.—Meeting Paramount exploiteers with Jack Benny aboard a TWA plane at Chicago City Airport.

4:00 p. m.—To LaSalle Street Station to get a last-minute story from William F. Rodgers, M-G-M sales chief, and ran into Eddie Saunders, western sales manager, and Jack Flynn, district manager for B&K. Saw Sidney Kent, 20th Century-Fox president, for confirmation of a story.

11:30 p. m.—Last-minute statements on 20th Century-Fox sales convention from Darryl Zanuck, Joseph M. Schenck, William Goetz, and Harry Brand, as they boarded chartered TWA plane at Chicago City Airport en route back to studios, and decided to stay over until—

11:50 p. m.—To meet Paramount's "Rochester" with Exploiteer Carl Krueger, just for good measure.

And from trains and planes, it was back to the good old-fashioned days later in the week to greet Capt. Volney Phifer, chaperoning the cross-country trek of M-G-M's 20-mule team, exploiting the forthcoming Wallace Beery film, "20-Mule Team."

Pharris in Neenah

NEENAH, WIS.—Charles Pharris, formerly manager of the Garrick in Fond du Lac, has been made manager of the Embassy here. Both are Fox-Wisconsin houses.

ST. LOUIS

MIDWEST Drive-In Theatres, Inc., of Boston, Mass., has been authorized to operate in Missouri. Firm is now building a drive-in in Hathaway City, St. Louis county . . . Sam Schucart and Sam Levin, co-owners of the Esquire, Richmond Heights, and the Norside here, are devotees of handball.

Harry Lange's orchestra will again perform at Forest Park Highlands when the big place on the hill opens its 44th season on Sunday, May 5 . . . Ted Lewis and his band opened a week's engagement at the St. Louis, April 26. Kay Kyser is booked for the Fox the week of May 3, while Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker move into the Fox the week of May 16.

Fannie Hurst was a guest speaker when the national committee for music appreciation and the St. Louis Symphony Society initiated Music Appreciation Week here at a formal dinner at the Jefferson Hotel . . . The 20-mule team now touring the country to exploit "Twenty-Mule Team," starring Wallace Beery, passed through here en route to Springfield, Ill.

Jimmy Harris, press agent at Loew's, is recovering following an arm operation . . . Mario Plessner, exploiteer for Fanchon & Marco, is the father of a new girl. It is the second Miss Plessner.

State Auditor Forrest Smith announces a 20 per cent tax cut for 1940. Missouri taxpayers, including theatre operators, stand to save about $1,000,000 in real estate and personal property taxes.

Brief Illness Is Fatal To Steve Bauer, 60

MILWAUKEE—Steve Bauer, 60, widely known in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan theatrical and bowling circles, died at his home here following a three-week illness.

Until ten years ago, Bauer operated theatres in Milwaukee and Plymouth. He also was associated in the operation of Film Service, Inc., and was business manager of the former Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

For the past ten years Bauer has been active in the management of bowling alleys and at the time of his death operated Bauer's Recreation Parlors and Alleys on the city's north side.

Metro Talent Scout Writes Prize Play in Chicago

CHICAGO—Clarence Shapiro, M-G-M talent scout for the midwest, has been awarded first prize in the playwriting contest conducted here by the Chicago Drama League, composed of over 500-member little theatre groups.

Shapiro's play "Echoes," is in three acts with a prologue, and will be given its preview May 10, before members of the League. It is planned to produce it here for fall run.

Signs Lupino for Three

HOLLYWOOD—Ida Lupino has signed a three-picture pact at Warner.

Cash Game Adopts A Theatre

Indianapolis—Something new in Indianapolis was uncovered when it was discovered that two men were using the mezzanine floor of a downtown theatre for a "bookie" shop. An usher noticed that each morning shortly after the theatre opened 15 or 20 women would pay their admission and then, instead of taking a seat in the theatre, would saunter up to the mezzanine floor. This went on for several days until finally the head usher was notified. He went upstairs to investigate, and found two men busily accepting bets and then telephoning them to some undisclosed bookie shop. The men were asked to leave, and the women departed. There has been no attempt to reopen the comfortable retreat.

Warner Circuit Plans More Book Reviews

CHICAGO—The Beverly book reviews season just completed by Manager Ted Turrell, proved so much of a goodwill builder for the Warner circuit house that the circuit plans to institute them next fall in other houses, among them the Jeffrey and the Rhodes, in addition to possibly one or two others on the south side.

The final book review, conducted by Preston Bradley, Chicago speaker and book-reviewer, attracted over 1,000 women to the special matinee. The reviews are held at 1 o'clock, just an hour before the 2 o'clock matinee, and are free to all women patrons purchasing tickets to the matinee.

Chicago Council Listing Is Equally Divided

CHICAGO—Listed in the current ratings of the Chicago Better Films Council as family pictures were:

"The Blue Bird," (20th-Fox); "Courageous Doctor Christian," (RKO; "Pinocchio," RKO), and "Three Cheers for the Irish," (FN).

The mature listings included: "Congo Maisie" and "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President," (M-G-M); "Of Mice and Men," (UA), and "Road to Singapore," (Para't).

Teitel Has "Louise"

CHICAGO—Abe Teitel has acquired the distribution rights of the Mayer-Burstyn release, "Louise," for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin territories. Teitel says that the film will be shown as a roadshow production in this territory. The picture opens in the Pabst, Milwaukee, May 10. It finished a four-week run at the Playhouse here this week.

Open New Troy House

TROY, WIS.—The new Troy, $25,000-house, has been opened here. A. L. Geyer is manager of the house, which is modernistic in design throughout.

CHICAGO

BEN SHLYEN, publisher of BOXOFFICE, stopped off between trains last week, en route from New York to the publication offices in Kansas City, whence he went to Dallas for the Variety convention.

With the public schools having their annual spring vacation the week of April 28, exhibitors should reap additional child admissions . . . We hope you didn't forget to move your clocks and watches up an hour Sunday night now that daylight saving time is here for the summer.

Roy Bruder, manager of the B&K Chicago, leaves the company June 1 to open a bowling alley in the old Orpheum, Great States holding, in East St. Louis. Associated with him will be Johnny Perkins, St. Louis comedian.

Walter Hyland, Universal head booker, in the midst of his 25th anniversary celebration date-drive, doesn't miss a bet to get a plug in for a picture. We planned to get his renewal to BOXOFFICE on a certain day and Walter came back, "It's a Date."

Gertrude Abrams, Universal cashier, is now Mrs. Nat Tucker, the wedding having taken place last Saturday . . . Bill Hollander, B&K publicist, took a few days off from the office to rest over at Martinsville, Ind.

Jerry Winsburg, manager of the B&K Lakeside, feels slighted. He said we forgot to report the birth of his baby daughter, Adrianne. So here 'tis.

Pneumonia appears to be a Warner epidemic, but luckily the three having it are now on the road to recovery . . . Frank Williams, theatre department booker, is still at St. Joseph's Hospital, while Billy Gilliam, son of the Warner exchange manager, Tom Gilliam, is holding his own at Westlake Hospital. On the coast, Sam Clark, Warner exploiteer, formerly in Chicago, is reported much better now.

Clyde Eckhardt, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, is vacationing in Hot Springs, Ark. . . . Dorothy Nessel, Daily News amusement advertising contact with the exhibitors, is back at her desk now after an appendectomy.

Bob Griffith of the Capitol, Whiting, has been transferred to Indiana-Illinois Theatres to the Lex, south Chicago, succeeding Mel Bleiden, who has resigned.

Ben Feldman, United Artists manager, has been away most of this month, as a first-lieutenant at the army spring maneuvers in Fort Benning, Ga. Ben is one of only three "first Louies" from the reserved corps in the Chicago area taken to those regular army maneuvers.

National Screen Service employes will hold a frolic next Friday night, May 3, in the Congress Hotel . . . Charlie Auerbach is due back next week from a vacation on the west coast.

Mrs. Vera Hartman, wife of Bob Hartman of International Enterprises, subbed for her husband in meeting customers at the Variety convention in Dallas, and from reports did as well as any of the men in looking after her firm's interests.

Max Schwartz is the new country salesman at M-G-M, coming here from Milwaukee. He formerly was in this territory some years ago.

Ben Elrod was fourth this week in the western division in the Paramount date drive, which ends June 1. Incidentally the boys have nick-named Ben, "Tonto the Injun" for this drive. Lou Aurelio is right up at the top, too, especially with that nickname of his, "Galloping Joe."

"Ecstasy," grinding away currently this week at the Sonotone, for about its umpteenth loop run, was still doing business.

Eddie Anderson, Jack Benny's "Rochester," came to Chicago, en route to New York for the Harlem premiere of Paramount's "Buck Benny Rides Again," and nearly disrupted daily life in the Negro section of the Windy City. Carl Krueger, Paramount studio exploiteer, had Rochester in tow for two days.

Mannie Stutz played "Ecstasy" this week at the Sonotone, and business was still better than average. Advertising copy stressed the star, of course.

Jack Osserman, RKO branch manager, has been getting requests for dates on the March of Time release for last September, "Battlefleets of England," right and left, now that the two-reeler has been shown in the B&K State-Lake with such success.

It's a New Bear Story

MILWAUKEE—Reaching a conclusion that the man doing funny things was more newsworthy than the funny things themselves, Larry Lawrence, feature writer on the Milwaukee Journal, made Louis Orlove, Metro's exploiteer in the Wisconsin area, the object of quite an article in his paper, that, as it described the workings of an exploiteer, did not neglect its expression in the bears he has to hunt (for the forthcoming "The Yearling") or the 20 mules he has to pamper as they came through Wisconsin on their national ballyhoo chore.

Says writer Lawrence, informing his readers of the exploits of an exploiteer: "Exploiteer is the lovely title awarded a movie man who exploits . . . We have several right here in Milwaukee. Now don't go and call the police. They're not dangerous and the fact is the police like them. At least they endure them, and when the time comes they go out there and pitch for the exploiteers, to see that no Milwaukeeans get legs broken, faces kicked in by mules or stepped on by hippos."

Revealing Orlove's hunt for bears and does needed by Metro for "The Yearling," Lawrence continues: "In smelling out the animals, Louis saw all the zoo directors of the state, the conservation men, the governor and sundry other gentlemen, including game wardens and CCC directors, and was assured that when the CCC boys get into the woods they'll find at least ten cubs, forsaken by their mothers, that Louis can ship to Metro."

Returning to the episode of the mules, Orlove's biographer remembers Orlove's employers with "It's costing M-G-M $75,000 to ship those mules to 20 of the big cities of the country to show 'em off. You can guess the reason they're doing it if you read the movie ads."

And now bear with us. Two Rivers, Wis., which boasts two things above all its other virtues—that of being "the coolest spot in the world in the summer" and the possession of a $150,000 lily pond (the latter through the grace of some government agency) was recently paid a visit by Orlove. Orlove's mind being always on his work and his work being exploitation generally, and a bear hunt specifically, the press agent immediately saw the benefit of a tieup and relayed his vision to Two Rivers' civic powers.

Relayed Orlove: "Gentlemen, what you need is something to get the idea across that this spot is plenty cool, come hot spells elsewhere. What will do that? Bears, gentlemen. Polar bears. Now this lily pond is a setup for putting bears in it, or around it, or something. Find the largest mob of polar bears in any zoo in the country. Then you top 'em. Get three more bears than anybody else on earth has got. Then you advertise—'The polar bears love it in Two Rivers, the coolest summer spot on earth'!"

The net result was that Louis Orlove was commissioned to go on a bear hunt in Canada while Two Rivers went on a hunt for the proper government agency to help finance its entry into the national limelight.

"Thin Ice" Plagiarism Suit Is Dismissed

CHICAGO—The plagiarism suit of Fred Walton, author, charging that 20th Century-Fox infringed on an unpublished story of his in the story used for "Thin Ice," which starred Sonja Henie, was dismissed this week in federal court by Judge Charles Woodward.

Previously Miss Henie had been excused as a defendant in the case. Walton had sought an accounting of the profits.

Dominic Frisina, president of Frisina Amusement Co., has returned from Hot Springs where he sojourned with Harry Hershey, Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois. Hershey is attorney for the Frisina chain.

Max Tschauder, manager of the Roxy, reports the Deanna Durbin contest held in connection with the showing of "It's a Date," proved a real success. More than 29 girls entered the contest to determine the one who sang or looked most like the star.

Several thousand people turned out to see the "Twenty-Mule Team" caravan when it paraded through town. Later, it was exhibited in front of the Orpheum. M. E. Berman, manager, said hundreds came to the theatre to see the caravan.

Metro Premium Office in Chicago Is Readjusted

CHICAGO—Several changes have been made in the local offices of Metro Premium Co. Irving Zussman, head of the concern, is planning to spend more time in Chicago and territory. Jerry Morrison has been brought here from the Cleveland office, while Carl Farber, formerly with Price Premium, has been added to the staff. Hy Zussman remains on the sales staff, while Maurice Miller, formerly in the Kansas City office, is the new office manager.

Drive for Little Theatre

ST. LOUIS—A $40,000 building fund has been launched by the Little Theatre of St. Louis. It is hoped to have the new 500-seat theatre ready for the 1941-42 season. Plans are being prepared by F. Ray Leimkuehler, architect.

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has held Director George Amy for another term.

"Wind" Vigorous After 14-Week Run

Chicago—"Gone With the Wind," in its 14th week at the Oriental and Woods here, is still a loop fixture, with the closing date problematical. The picture is expected to follow into some B&K houses in the suburban runs after it closes in the loop, but the actual houses have not yet been set. Thus far, about 750,000 patrons have paid to see the picture at the Oriental and Woods.

Juvenile Patronage Important Item

Chicago—No theatre manager who is alert can afford to overlook the importance of child patrons at his house, in the opinion of Charles Ryan, Warner assistant zone manager. "They are the one sure way to sell your house to the community," he says and adds two "don'ts" in connection with the child angle:

"Don't kid the kiddies; and don't promise them anything you can't deliver."

Edgar Lloyd Arranges Czech Film Outlet

NEW YORK—Edgar E. Lloyd, who has acquired for distribution 15 Czechoslovakian pictures made before the Nazi invasion, has returned from Chicago where he has arranged for first-run release at the Homan. Among the pictures Lloyd will release is "Merry Wives," a prize winner at the Vienna Film Biennale, and which was banned and confiscated by Nazis.

Kent Traces Para't Growth in Kaycee

NEW YORK—Paramount came into control of its Kansas City theatres in 1920 and lost out in Kansas as a result of competitive bidding, Sidney R. Kent stated during his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's key suit. Kent made the statement in answer to Wright's question seeking to determine if the company, of which he was then branch manager in that territory, adopted set policies relative to the acquisition of theatres.

In denying such a practice existed, the witness cited Paramount's acquisition of theatres.

In denying such a practice existed, the witness cited Paramount's acquisition of the Royal and Newman. As related by Kent, the "best house" in Kansas City in 1918 was the Royal, operated by Frank Newman. He also built the Newman in 1920, and while he bought his principal product for the Royal from Paramount he acquired a franchise from First National for the Newman. Shortly thereafter, Newman approached Kent on the possible sale of the two houses. Kent then relayed the proposition to Adolph Zukor with the recommendation the deal be consummated "so that we should not let it fall into the hands of our competitors." The houses then changed hands, Kent testified.

However, the situation in Kansas worked out in reverse, he declared. Wolff-Shanberg, then owning the better houses in the state, approached Paramount on a sale, according to Kent. The deal looked desirable "to protect our distribution there," so Sam Dembow was dispatched to examine the proposition. Suddenly, Harold B. Franklin, representing William Fox, came on from the coast, made his own survey, made a better offer and walked off with a deal, Kent declared.

This gave Fox a number of subsequent runs, Wright observed. Why, then, didn't Paramount attempt to establish competitive units? "Paramount had protection in its first runs and did not feel the need to build houses," Kent replied.

Paramount Executives Confer With Zigmond

KANSAS CITY—Sam Dembow and Leonard Goldenson of the Paramount theatre department have returned to New York after conferences here with Jerry Zigmond, manager of the Newman. It has been reported that a modernization program is planned for the local first run.

Closes in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY — "Dark Command" has completed successful simultaneous runs at the Uptown and Esquire here, which followed immediately the world premiere of the Republic film in Lawrence, Kas. It is set for first runs at the State, Omaha, and the Dent, Lincoln.

Kaycee Exchange Union Renames Its Officers

KANSAS CITY—Officers of the Film Exchange Employes Local B-23 have been re-elected and will reassume office the first Tuesday in May. Clarence Knipe, manager of the poster department at Universal, is president; Leonard Abrams, Metro, vice-president; Felix Snow, IATSE, business agent; Irene Sharp, 20th-Fox, assistant business agent; Jannetta Lohr, Columbia, secretary; Webster Knight, Universal, financial secretary; Charles Lewis, Republic-Midwest, treasurer; Carl Bane, Columbia, guide; J. Knight, United Artists, sergeant-at-arms.

The executive board consists of Irene Sharp, Lawrence Biechele of National Screen Service, and Mary Womack, RKO.

Omaha Exchange Employes Elect Harris Kuntzleman

OMAHA—Harris Kuntzleman, Fox assistant shipper, is the new president of the film exchange employes union. Milton Swift, Warner shipper, is business agent.

Other officers are: Eldon Rollin, National Screen shipper, and Charlie McCarthy, film delivery, vice-presidents; Peggy Hanson, Metro inspectress, financial secretary; Leo Dupley, Metro assistant shipper, recording secretary; Mickey Cosgrove, Paramount inspectress, treasurer; George "Beard" Bonacci, United Artists shipper, sergeant-at-arms.

Harry Taylor Declines Transfer; Quits NSS

LOS ANGELES—Preferring to remain on the coast, Harry Taylor has resigned as district manager for National Screen Service, a post he has held for the past four years. National had planned to transfer him to another territory.

KANSAS CITY — Harry Taylor, who this week resigned as western district manager of National Screen Service, formerly was Columbia branch manager here. He spent many years in the trade in this city.

Eddie Ruben Variety National Property Man

MINNEAPOLIS—Minneapolis was honored by the election of Eddie Ruben as national property man of Variety at the Dallas convention. He was the first chief barker of the Minneapolis tent and has always taken a prominent part in the organization.

Gehring Negotiating New Deal With Ralph Branton

DES MOINES—William C. Gehring, central division manager of 20th Century-Fox, is here negotiating a new product deal with Ralph Branton of Tri-State theatres.

Danish Film in Des Moines

DES MOINES—The new Danish talking picture, "Livet Paa Hegnsgaard" (Life at Hegns Farm), was to be shown Friday evening at the Avalon. It is sponsored by the Danish Brotherhood of Des Moines.

Premiere to Clinton And Pittsburgh, Pa.

CLINTON, IA.—Twentieth Century-Fox will stage a dual world premiere of "The Life of Lillian Russell" at Clinton, Ia., and Pittsburgh, Pa., May 15.

The date finally was set in Des Moines Monday at a conference of 20th-Fox executives, Clinton business representatives and Central States Theatre Corp. executives.

The Clinton premiere will be staged in two Central States houses: The Capitol, managed by Harold Barnes, and the Rialto, managed by Jerry Greenabaum.

Alice Faye, who portrays Lillian Russell, will appear at the Pittsburgh premiere, but Don Ameche and Lynn Bari are scheduled to take part in activities at Clinton. Leo Carrillo is listed as a possible guest during the premiere, also.

Ameche portrays Edward Solomon, London composer who was Miss Russell's second husband. Miss Bari has the role of Edna McCauley, rival of Miss Russell for the affections of Jesse Lewisohn. Carrillo is cast as Tony Pastor, discoverer of the glamour girl of the gay 90s.

The population of Clinton is expected to be swelled to 100,000 on the day of the premiere. The stars will arrive on the morning of May 15 on a special train from Chicago. A parade and dedication of a tablet at the site of Lillian Russell's birth here are scheduled for the afternoon. The stars will appear on the stages of both theatres at the evening premieres. A movie ball is tentatively planned after the showing of the picture.

The governors of Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois are being invited to Clinton for the day. Newsmen from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Memphis and Des Moines are expected to be guests of 20th Century-Fox.

All seats in both theatres will be reserved for the premiere, and will go at a $1.10 price. The film will be held for a six-day run following May 15.

William C. Gehring, central divisional sales manager, and Earl Wingate of the publicity department, were representatives of the 20th Century-Fox New York offices at the conference in Des Moines, Monday. Harry Warren and Lionel Wasson handled details for Central States, while W. C. Eastland, Frank Haun and Mr. McIlhenny represented the Clinton business men.

The group spent Tuesday in Clinton mapping the premiere-day schedule more definitely. Eddie Solomon of 20th Century-Fox offices in New York is scheduled to be on hand in a few days to take direct charge of staging the show here.

Fox Midwest Takes Over The Cozy in Pittsburg

PITTSBURG, KAS.—The Cozy, owned and operated by Joe Lenski, will be taken over April 28 by Fox Midwest. Lenski, it is understood, will continue with the Cozy at Girard, Kas., which is under the management of Walter Pannock, Lenski's nephew.

Expect Northwest Allied Meet After National June Confab

MINNEAPOLIS—It now is expected that Northwest Allied's convention here will not be held until after the national Allied States' June convention in Chicago. President W. A. Steffes is understood to favor such a course.

The convention in Minneapolis will be devoted principally to adoption of a plan for establishing and maintaining district units throughout the territory. Under the proposal, district meetings will be held from time to time under the supervision of the main office here. The main objective will be to attain closer and greater cooperation among all the independent exhibitors in the fight against alleged trade practice evils.

Also to be considered at the local convention the matter of percentages and lower film rentals is of vital concern to the independent exhibitors presently. Organization heads believe that if theatre owners unite effectively they can put the skids under percentages and force down film costs.

President Steffes is rapidly recovering his health and expects to resume his organizational activities within the next few weeks. He again is in charge and will direct the body's program as hitherto. Since his return from Florida he has been spending much of his time on his country estate, but starting this week will be very much on the job in his office here again.

Claim Allied Drive Not Hurting Buys

MINNEAPOLIS—As usual, local film exchanges claim they're not being hurt by Northwest Allied's appeal to independents to do no buying at least until after an impending convention here so that more effective war may be waged against percentages and to bring down film costs.

Although at a regional meeting at Rochester, Minn., every exhibitor present pledged himself to refrain from making any new-season deals for the present, branch managers insist that their 1940-41 sales are above normal.

By a united front Northwest Allied hopes to eliminate percentage pictures entirely throughout the territory, just as they have done in the Twin Cities, Ben Ashe, secretary, points out.

Despite the present campaign, L. E. Goldhammer, RKO district manager, for example, asserts his branch here enjoyed the biggest week's business covering new-season deals made for the seven days ending last Saturday. The local office is far ahead of the corresponding period a year ago, according to Goldhammer.

Paramount and most of the other companies claim they're about 70 per cent sold outside of the Twin Cities. Mickey Coen, M-G-M salesman in southern Minnesota, already is sold 100 per cent.

Tri-States Radio Program Bids for More Listeners

DES MOINES—Tri-States Theatres' weekly radio program, "Two on the Aisle," will bid for additional listeners starting May 3 when the program is shifted to the higher-priced 9:30 p. m. time on KRNT.

"Two on the Aisle," featuring Rene and Ken Clayton's uncensored comments on current films in Tri-States first-run houses, has been aired at 5:45 p. m. Fridays for the last six weeks.

Brands Producers As "Deficient"

MINNEAPOLIS — Distributors declaring that exhibitors must demonstrate greater showmanship to make the industry prosper properly are barking up the wrong tree, according to Bennie Berger, prominent independent circuit operator here. The fault, he declares, lies with the producers, instead of the theatre owners.

"There is need of greater showmanship in the industry all right," asserts Berger. "But it's the producers who are deficient. Exhibitors, for the most part, are doing their part. They are going the limit on exploitation and selling generally.

"The trouble is that there's not sufficient showmanship being demonstrated in the producing of pictures. Too few boxoffice films are being delivered. All too often there's the right story with the wrong stars or vice versa, or the release is lacking in universal appeal."

While a comparatively few outstanding pictures are being turned out, the general quality average of product is low, in Berger's opinion. That is why exhibitors generally must resort to cash or other gifts as added inducements to get the public into their theatres, he asserts.

Berger does not feel that one boxoffice picture in a dozen—about the present average in his opinion—is sufficient to keep the industry at a profitable level.

To Post on West Coast

DES MOINES—Steve Cebuhar, music instructor at the American Institute of Business in Des Moines for the last two years, will go to Hollywood in June to join National Program Service.

New Sound for Lowe

STERLING, KAS.—F. L. Lowe is installing RCA Photophone sound in his Lowe Theatre here. Lowe also operates in several other Kansas towns.

OMAHA

A BIG bouquet to Orville Rennie, manager of the Rivoli at Hastings, Neb. Orville directed and produced an elaborate home talent show at Hastings with a cast of 87 persons. Orville took housewives, painters, mailmen and youngsters and turned them into skilled dancers and singers. As a just reward the exhibitor got a lot of congrats and pictures in the papers.

Sam and Meyer Stern of Capitol Pictures announce they have acquired the Nebraska and Iowa franchise for Fine Arts Pictures . . . Eddie Shafton, bachelor attorney, came back from Dallas wearing high heeled boots. All the boys had a big time at the Variety Club convention. Jack Riggs, exhibitor at Central City, Neb., had a temperature when he left, was under a doctor's care all the time he was in Dallas, but still had a good time, he says.

Harold Dunn, Jewel, Valentine, Neb., on Davenport St. and said he could grow a beard for Golden Spike Days in two weeks, if he wanted to. Harold tried a set of whiskers last year but his face wouldn't stand for it, so he had to shave them off . . . R. V. Fletcher, Hartington, Neb., was on the Row.

J. Erle Kirk, North Star, Omaha, has felt the urge of spring and has started challenging people for a golf game . . . Why doesn't someone on Filmrow promote a spring golf tournament? . . . M. Marino has reopened the new Berkley here in Omaha. Bob Ballantyne installed air conditioning, Frank Van Husan the lighting fixtures, and Carl White the projection, splitting the "credit lines" three ways.

Fred Miller of 20th-Fox dented the front of his new car a little, but it's fixed now. Fred can have no secrets, since he lives across the street from BOXOFFICE . . . Mike Roth, National Screen manager, is planning to install a crying room for exhibitors in his new layout in the film exchange building. Boy, is that place busy! Wendell Overturf and Eldon Rollin are working until midnight nightly!

Max Greenberger, clothier at Grand Island, Neb., who sold clothing to most of the salesmen out of the Omaha exchanges, died recently . . . George Bonacci, United Artists shipper, has a fancy black beard. Bewhiskered George he was known as in those days . . . A. E. Thacker, Soo, South Sioux City, Neb., was on Filmrow.

A lot of exhibitors in town this week, despite heavy rains. Among 'em: Bert Beams, Auditorium, Red Cloud, Neb.; Odes A. B. Hilton, Park, Sioux City, Ia.; Bowman twins, McClelland, Ia.; H. H. Thomas, Kingsley, Ia.; Dick Lysinger, Ravenna, Neb.

Now that Joe Jacobs, Columbia boss, is married he can't afford an overcoat. Several exhibitors saw Joe walking down Davenport St. with his hands in his pockets, his hat pulled down, his teeth chattering . . . Ted Mendenhall, Paramount boss, hopes for warm weather "to bake my shoulder and arm."

KAYCEE

ON THE ROW: E. A. Peterson, Plaza, Greenfield, Mo.; Shirley Booth, Booth, Rich Hill, Mo.; John Travils, Avalon, Sarcoxie, Mo.; Jack Johnston, former exhibitor of McPherson, Kas.; Harry Till, Courter, Hamilton, Mo.; Ferd Ledoux, Arcada, Holton, Kas.; Tom Edwards, Ozark, Eldon, Mo.; Glen Newbold, Temple, Yates Center, Kas.; H. C. Musgrave, Minneapolis and Wamego, Kas.; Bob Gorham, Liberty, Horton, Kas.; J. D. Rankin, Tarkio, Tarkio, Mo.; Earl Kerr, Albany and Bethany, Mo.; C. E. Doc Cook, Tivoli, Maryville, Mo.; Si Meek, Anne, Maysville, Mo.; G. W. Summers, Royal, Unionville, Mo.

Charley Gregory, NSS manager, has filed a $20,000 damage suit against Braniff Airways, Inc. Gregory charges he bought a round-trip ticket April 5 to go to Chicago where he was called by the death of his father. After taking the seat he had reserved, he charges, two employes put him off the plane.

Oh, boy, did they have a good time at the Variety convention in Dallas! The lads from here were unanimous in saying it was the finest of its sort they'd ever attended. Dallas opened its arms; everything went off perfectly . . . The Kansas City tent provided food and refreshments on the train going down, which made the trip an especially memorable one—with about 75 from here and Minneapolis.

Add Visitors: Dewey Gates, Isis, Waterville, Kas.; Frank Weary, Farris and Vogue, Richmond, Mo.; M. S. Heath, Plaza, Liberty, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cook, Ideal, Halstead, Kas. . . . Sam Keller, auditor, is at the Warner exchange here for a while.

Bob Giles has moved up as head shipper at RKO. He replaces Hugh Asmus, who died April 16. George Hertzog moves up to Giles' place . . . Monroe Rubinger, Warner exploiteer, left Thursday for New York, where he'll be ten days.

Everyone is looking forward to the "milk bucket" contest among barbershop quartets next Monday at Variety Club. It ought to be a killer-diller.

Howard Kinser and Joe Woodward brought Charley Crawford of the ad sales department at 20th-Fox a giant Ropp Cherrywood pipe when he returned from the 20th-Fox convention in Chicago recently. Charley could use it to bop rabbits, if he were that fast.

Lead Mining Film Study Premiered in Joplin

JOPLIN, Mo.—"Men and Dust," a short depicting life in the silicosis and tuberculosis stricken zinc and lead mining area of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma was premiered here April 23, under the auspices of a tri-state conference initiated by the U. S. department of labor.

The conference was attended by federal and state officials and technicians. The film was shown at a public meeting in Picher, Okla. Garrison Film Distributors are handling the short.

Minneapolis Price Hikes Unlikely

MINNEAPOLIS—Theatre admissions have been tilted a nickel by some of the local independent neighborhood houses, but outside of this there's little likelihood of any boost, according to a survey just made. Conditions in the territory are not sufficiently good to warrant any general raise, in the opinion of exhibitor leaders.

As a trial horse, there have been price boosts for several individual pictures. Outside of "Gone With the Wind," the results have not been favorable, the trade asserts.

In some spots throughout the country theatres have yanked up their scale for "Rebecca," but at the State here last week the regular 40-cent admission prevailed. Business was good.

For stage attractions the Orpheum has gone back to the 55-cent top which was in effect before the Minnesota reopened. While that house was in operation the Orpheum dropped to 40 cents. Now that the big de luxe theatre is shuttered again, however, the old scale is in vogue again. However, the Orpheum has no stage shows booked for the immediate future.

LINCOLN

THIS WEEK'S big laugh was on Ed Vaughan. He subbed for M. E. Lofgren as house manager at the Nebraska the other evening, and happened to glance at the lobby display on the "Invisible Man." Vaughan let out a blood curdling yell, and rushed for safety and the police. He told the gendarmes he thought it was a bandit, swore up and down it wasn't a publicity stunt.

George Monroe and frau slipped out to Kearney to watch their new Empress go up. The old one burned down a couple of months ago.

Joe Kinsky, Davenport, Ia.; Art Stolte, Des Moines, and Evert R. Cummings, Omaha, met in Hastings to be special guests at a local stage production. All are district managers for Tri-States.

Frequent visitors to Ben Fogelson's bowling alleys are Art Shires, Bob Huffman and Messrs. Lofgren and Vaughan . . . Howard Federer gave the go ahead signal, and remodeling of Liberty started Thursday.

Beatrice moguls reported okay biz for their first Sunday shows in the town's history . . . Gracie Allen polled 45 votes for president in the Douglas county state primary election.

Seen on a quick trip to Detroit for the American Bowling Congress tournament: Andy Varipapa, the movie short star, swapping yarns at the Coliseum . . . Folks fighting to get into Chicago's Chicago, where Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker were staging it . . . Detroit houses getting boost from out of town bowlers . . . Glen Mills, local film truck driver, taking in "Gone With the Wind."

This Town, Hollywood—

By BOXOFFICE JR.

Where there is an abundance of heels, the regular kind, and the kind that walks like a man. Every Earl Carroll girl has known at least a dozen of the latter . . . Where movie producers once went to ten-cent stores to get faces from which to make stars, but now go to the Los Angeles railway station to get picture titles: One already made was "Union Pacific," another about to be made is "Santa Fe," and that leaves one to go, "Southern Pacific" . . . Where the first man, Richard "Dick" Rowland, to retire a millionaire from money made in films, in 1910, is still trying to scratch out a new start, demanded by a terrific soaking in the 1929 Wall Street deluge of minus-signed ticker tape.

Where there's a constant campaign on to find new faces, and forget the old ones . . . Where a fairly definite "maybe" is enough to get credit for groceries . . . Where wolf powder is not powder at all—but canned goods such as corn, beans, tomatoes, and such other tinned stomach fodder as will keep the woofer from the door . . . Where Sam Clark, Warner Bros. p. a. has been so sick with pneumonia, he's going to buy a bloodhound when he gets out of the Cedars of Lebannon just to prove he's not anemic . . . Where money has to come in at the rate of $2,500, or more, a week, to be rated as "important" . . . Where 100 agents make good money, where 250 get along, and 400 can rustle coffee in the a. m. but hunt a brother agent to share the cost of the doughnuts.

Where well-nigh two tons of publicity matter is mailed daily to all parts of the world, which nets about 20 pounds of newspaper clippings in return . . . Where a star would rather get a good notice in the L. A. papers, and a bad one all over the country, than to get good ones all over the country, and a bad one in L. A. . . . Where Maureen O'Hara, in a hula skirt, gives her uncensored opinion of censors who crack down on films, and allow ballroom gymnastics of the jitterbug type to flourish unmolested . . . Where only half the people whose names appear in the papers as having been to some night spot, actually appeared . . . Where books are bought for their catchy titles, then have the title changed to one that isn't catchy before they're released: Exhibit A: "Tree of Liberty," now working under the title, "Howards of Virginia."

Where Jack Mulhall sr. was once one of the dazzling marquee names of the industry, and Jack Mulhall jr. is a rubber-neck guide for Paramount . . . Where no picture has yet been made which presents Dick Powell as the swell personality he really is . . . Where the two broadest beamed leading men, also have the broadest grins—Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy . . . Where Gene Autry's radio show is still making a lot of wise-guys struggle to cover up for the things they said it wouldn't be able to do . . . Where Palm Springs and Lake Arrowhead are the places to go for a rest, and Victorville, for a place to work. Victorville, by the way, has its own idea of what constitutes a well-done steak, one singed only enough to coagulate the blood.

Where Hedy Lamarr goes weekly to M-G-M's gownery to have seams taken in, Oliver Hardy has 'em taken out, and Aimee Semple McPherson orders a collection taken up . . . Where the oldest street in Los Angeles, Olvera St., reminds of a Coney Island without a roller-coaster . . . Where a man by the name of Dave Selznick, sneaked up on a Georgia lady, Margaret Mitchell, with $55,000 for the greatest all-time money maker in film history . . . Where Tom Mix and Buck Jones wear the same clothes off the screen they wear on it—only neither have been on it lately.

Where Bob Taplinger does NOT have nightmares, in spite of all the publicity stunts he's credited with . . . Where Harvard was an ivy college until Ann Sheridan gave it a more descriptive going-over than it had ever been subjected to in all its ancient stand. Now, the student body doesn't know for sure who was lampooned, and who was lambasted . . . Where horse racing is a business, and picture making is a pastime . . . Where Georgie Sherman has made as many as 76 scenes in a day at Republic, and Charlie Chaplin makes one scene in 76 days, if they rush him, and they don't . . . Where Jack Oakie will tell you he's a ham, and many others are so shy they pantomime the idea . . . Where a premiere of a picture is made with or without a whingding and eats after it is over. A good picture rates no eats, and it's only the questionable ones which bring out the menu. Aside to Ed: Most of the Hollywood reviewers appear sleekly fed this season.

Where an independent producer can be one who makes pictures for release by a major company, or can be out of work . . . Where the mis-informed are readers of Louella Parsons . . . Where W. S. Van Dyke is a director of pictures, and a Major in the Marines . . . Where Johnny Farrow is married to Maureen O'Sullivan and has a career cut out for him, yet is allowing patriotism to throw him and is patrolling waters off Halifax in the Canadian navy . . . Where the Hollywood bowl is not for eating purposes . . . Where M-G-M has chicken noodle soup on the daily commissary menu because Louis B. Mayer had it so seldom as a kid, and said if he ever got to a financial plane that would bear it, he'd have chicken noodle soup every day.

Where names used to be painted on doors, which gave one man a job in each studio, painting on and scratching off. Now the turn-over is so fast, there are only slots on each door, in which can be inserted a calling card . . . Where exists an intense rivalry among gag-men who try to peddle massacred English credited to either Sam Goldwyn, Michael Curtiz, or Gregory Ratoff . . . Where everybody has an inside story on the Lana Turner-Artie Shaw marriage, except Lana Turner and Artie Shaw.

Where Cecil B. DeMille will admit his first three associations with the great were God, Grover Cleveland, and May Robson. Now, he would add one other . . . Where Gary Cooper and Fred MacMurray are tied on being split farthest up from the ground . . . Where Deanna Durbin started in the gangly stage, and Shirley Temple is being killed off at the boxoffice by it . . . Where Loretta Young lives in one of six mansions she owns and has to keep her dog tied up, because people mistake the driveway for a street, park in it, and walk over her lawn thinking it's a city park . . . Where Rufus Blair at Paramount struggles for an hour over a personalized letter, then mimeographs it and sends a copy to each of 500 motion picture editors.

Where Mae West has a manager to do everything for her but handle her money, and she attends to that . . . Where the prettiest corsets are worn in plain sight—on the stage at Earl Carroll's theatre-restaurant . . . Where more touts, thugs, mobsters, saloon keepers, and corner loafers are named Barney in pictures than there are Barneys in real life . . . Where everybody laughs at the fool Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom makes of himself as manager of his cafe, and he laughs right back at them from his office at night when the profit is checked up . . . Where Elsa Maxwell got laryngitis and had to be muzzled by the doctor.

Exhibitors Fear a Dearth of Shorts

MINNEAPOLIS—Threatened curtailment of short subjects production in Hollywood is worrying some of the independent leaders here who fear that if a shortage of such subjects develop it may be necessary for exhibitors to resort to double features. Up to this time the territory has been relatively free of them.

Hollywood statistics show that in the past few years there has been a steady decrease in quantity of shorts produced. Because of the fact that double featuring is so general throughout the country and features of greater length are being turned out leading producers now are said to be planning to cut down still further.

Some of the independent circuit heads here, however, do not believe there is any imminent danger. Most exhibitors, they say, have so many shorts bought up and unplayed that their supply is assured for a protracted period.

New Contest Stimulant Acquired by Miller

KANSAS CITY—Beverly Miller has concluded a deal with Lester Martin of Theatre Attendance Builders, Inc., Chicago, for distribution in the Kansas City and St. Louis areas of "Guess-For-Gold-Night," a theatre business-building contest.

Combining district and local prizes, the contest provides cards for popularity ballots on film stars, proper names and other words, the results to be lined up in order across the cards for comparison with the composite voting results. The firm supplies a line of advertising accessories.

Commonwealth Plans Program in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—An all-day session was held Thursday at the Ambassador Hotel by Commonwealth Theatres to outline plans and ideas for the group's eighth annual "King of the Sun" contest. The contest, covering the warm months, runs 15 weeks from May 5 to August 17.

The campaign this year will be an especially intensive one, according to C. A. Schultz, head of the circuit, who, with O. K. Mason, was in charge of the gathering. Others here from the home office were Leland Allen and W. H. Kirkham, bookers, and L. D. Parrett and Dick Orear.

Managers and associates who attended: Lee Miller, Ashland, and James W. Chapman, Benton, Kansas City; Bill Headstream, Melba, Batesville, Ark.; Paul Stonum, Uptown, Carrollton, Mo.; Mrs. E. Nolen, Ozark, Cassville, Mo.; L. J. Lenhart, Lee, Clinton, Mo.; Rex Barrett of the Uptown and R. H. Spencer of the Boone, Columbia, Mo.; M. N. Hillyer of the Strand and Emory Scott, Uptown, Creston, Ia.; Frank Dodson, Golden Bell and Kansan, Ellsworth, Kas.; M. B. Smith, State, and Rex Beach, Ritz, Garden City, Kas.; John Tarr jr., Sherman, Goodland, Kas.; L. W. Morris, Plaza, and Elton Kuhlman, Kansan, Great Bend, Kas.; Doyle Branscum, Lyric and Plaza, Harrison, Ark. (D. E. Fitton was unable to attend); Raymond McKittrick, Perkins, Harrisonville, Mo.; Glen Deeter, Dreamland and Kansan, Herington, Kas.; Jack Kempton, Royal, Hoisington, Kas.

And Huston Sterrett, Palace, Kinsley, Kas.; Stanley Schwahn, city manager in Lawrence, Kas.; Martin Flesher, Dickinson, and Ray Holmes, Granada, Lawrence; Jack Stephenson, Gillioz, Monett, Mo.; Hugh Gardner and Ed Harris, Orpheum, Neosho, Mo.; J. J. McClure, Cozy, Norton, Kas.; R. C. Jones and John C. Stapel, Paramount, Rock Port, Mo.; K. K. King, Rialto and Plaza, Searcy, Ark.; W. O. Lenhart, Plaza and Royal, Trenton, Mo.; R. M. Shelton, Star, Warrensburg, Mo.; R. V. Marchbank, Calvin and Garden, Washington, Mo., and Lee L. Jones.

Schultz announced at the convention the appointment of M. B. Smith, Garden City, Kas., as district manager for the western Kansas units of the circuit, effective immediately.

Managers and executives, plus a few outside guests, attended the luncheon, which represented the only "festivities" of the convention. Among the guests introduced by Schultz were E. C. Rhoden, Harry McClure and some of the others from Fox Midwest; Byron Spencer, attorney; Finton Jones, Ben Shlyen of BOXOFFICE. KMBC, through its artists' bureau, provided the entertainment, although there was one interpolation by Commonwealth talent. This consisted of a very virtuoso performance by O. K. Mason (mandolin), K. K. King of Searcy, Ark. (voice), and Bob Shelton of Warrensburg, Mo. (fiddle). It was good enough to earn an encore . . . Rex Barrett, the other mayor, was there from Columbia, Mo. (Bob Shelton also is hizzoner in his town.) . . . Stanley Schwahn's was an "inspirational" speech.

MINNEAPOLIS

"HY" CHAPMAN of Columbia is banking on "21 Days Together," a special release, because of the presence of Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier in the cast . . . Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goldberg, formerly of Seattle, will make their home here henceforth. This is of interest to film circles because Mrs. Goldberg is the former Lois Abrams, daughter of Morrie, M-G-M exploiteer . . . Clarence K. Olson, Warner branch manager, recovering from an appendectomy.

Out-of-town exhibitors seen on Film-row included: Andy Anderson, Detroit Lakes, Minn., just back from a seven-week California trip; Lyle Webster, Rice Lake and Chippewa Falls, Wis.; Al Inman, Fairfax, Minn.; Allen Mueller, Arlington, Minn., and Lowell Smoots, Little Falls, Minn. . . . Charlie Weiner's auto got a well-earned rest while the Monogram manager attended his company's sales convention and the Variety convention at Dallas. The car gets a real workout when Charlie, a dare-devil driver, is on the job.

Fifteenth week of the Sears drive finds the Warner branch here second place in its district . . . Lynn Farnol, United Artists homeoffice publicity representative, here in the interest of "One Million B. C." . . . On May 1, Republic will move into the present Monogram quarters on Currie Ave. while Monogram takes over the former National Screen offices on the corner of Glenwood Ave. and 11th St., North . . . Idele Fisher, daughter of Sol and sister of Nate, local independent exhibitors, to wed Irving Vinokour, assistant manager of the Campus, a Fisher house, on May 26.

"Lillian Russell" runs two hours and 22 minutes, but it's terrific all the way, they're telling Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager. A $3,000 prize contest, with ads running in 15 leading fan publications, will help to sell this one to the public . . . The Film Bowling League party has been set back to the night of April 29. There'll be awards of prizes and a lunch. RKO still leads the league.

Universal is making a great finish in the Bill Scully sales drive and expects to be in the money at the end . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, already has started to make plans for his campaign as S. R. Kent drive leader for the second consecutive year. He begins his tours of the exchanges in June . . . LeRoy Miller, recently named Universal branch manager here, is moving his family up from Kansas City.

J. D. Goldhar, United Artists district manager, a brief visitor . . . "His Girl Friday" did a big week's business at the State, but was not held over because of congestion of unplayed pictures . . . Gene Meredith, Warner cashier, commuting from his Lake Minnetonka summer home . . . Monogram here in second place in its division in the "Spirit of Independence" drive . . . RKO's "Irene" goes into the Orpheum here May 10.

DES MOINES

WHAT'S THE ROW to talk about now that we've got Jere Spandau and Esther married (April 18) and off for Albany in a cloud of dust and a flurry of rice? The paper said it was a private ceremony in the study of Rabbi Monroe Levens, but Jere only wished it had been, we understand. Everybody Jere met the day of the wedding would ask him whathell, so he'd break down and tell 'em to drop around for the big event. Ended up with an SRO performance. Our best to both of you!

Lou Levy, Jere's jolly successor at Universal here, and the office gang had a party for him at the Savery, April 17. Two pieces of very handsome luggage made it both easier and harder for Jere to say adios to the old force. Esther, very fetchin' in a red chapeau, lunched at Michael's with Mrs. Mel Evidon, Wednesday. Mrs. Mel, recently returned from a Minneapolis visit, was getting the razz from other Film-row diners about Mr. Mel's being lost when she arrived home (better be on tap next time when a handsome gal like that gets back, Mel) . . . There's a current rumor that Al Blair, former Grand National booker, is to be Columbia's new booker.

The famous Iles & McKinney were out Sunday cavortin' in the sunshine on their motorcycles . . . Chuck Plows was showing his new infant the ropes Sunday, and getting expert opinion here'n there on just whom the kid resembled . . . Harry Rawlins, Iowa Film driver, has been off over a month now with a streptococcic (spelling? s'not in our dictionary) throat infection . . . Jerry Banta, who has been getting rotund in Metro's service, lost 30 pounds walking to and from work, but was heard inquiring over the back fence of his neighbor lady about a very large, very rich, very fattening fudge recipe because he likes to keep the stuff around the house for munching purposes.

Plenty of big-shots shooting in and out of town lately . . . W. J. Heineman, Universal's western division manager, was here from NY, April 10 . . . Pete Dana was here from Kaycee . . . Eddie Saunders, Metro's western division manager, was here from NY too . . . Jimmy Winn, Warner's district manager from Kaycee, and Sid Rose of Omaha, were visitors at Art Anderson's knotty pine habitat . . . Evert Cummings of Omaha and Joe Kinsky of Davenport were at Tri-States, Wednesday . . . Phil Dunas and Abe Montague from Columbia's home office in NY were in DM Wednesday . . . So was Lynn Farnol, UA publicity director, but he came on Tuesday . . . Harris Wolfberg and Harry Shumow of Metro's Kaycee and Omaha offices were here Wednesday.

We didn't know 'til this week that Raymond and Myron Blank went with G. Ralph Branton to the Variety Club shindig in Dallas . . . The Sil Vogl's of Tri-States gave Madge Ward a lift to Omaha for the weekend. Madge visited Mary and Don Allen, and reports that Omaha must agree with A. Don because he's getting fat'n sassy . . . Bud Shumow was another Vogl passenger. Bud attended the M-G-M Club party in Omaha at the Blackstone . . . Joe Deatch was in Omaha, April 18.

If having thick, black curly hair, being considered a swell dancer, and owning an A-1 personality would sell film, then RKO's Danny Matin would be tops in the biz, it's said (by an enamoured female, though, so you can take it with a grain of salt) . . . Do you all remember Harry Krinklow, formerly with Tri-States? He's in business for himself in Minneapolis now . . . Jack Seigel, the guy with the sweet business himself, reports that Dave Dewey, also formerly with Tri-States, is now responsible for an-Interstate-bus-an-hour production in Indiana.

DD at Tri-States wears a very artistic wooden pin consisting simply of the letters "DGW" . . . and it's all very confusing considering that she's Dorothy Day to almost everybody; is known privately as Dorothy Gottlieb (Hershey-Bar's frau), and is now springing a "W" on us! DD explains, though, that the pin was a mistake and the "G" should have been large to indicate that it's the surname initial . . . the "W" is tossed in for DD's maiden name.

When Bernie Evans, UA man in for "Rebecca," hears that the pic seems to be doing all right at the Des Moines here, he'll think spending the night in a Drake fraternity house was not all in vain . . . Bernie couldn't get in a DM hotel when he was here because of the G.O.P.ers here for the Republican convention . . . Is Lou Elman still raising sheep out in his "Dustbowl" near Greenfield? . . . Elmer Tilton's daughter, Shirley Jean, had her head sculped in Mexico.

If you ever get curious about theatre ushers the way we did and wonder what they talk about, here's the dope (at least, it's true of Emil Franke's Orpheum ushers): They discuss the funnies and go about calling each other "Superman." (Aside to Franke: Those five-feet Pinocchios sure put the damps on a Paramount bally man who visited the BOXOFFICE & Co. hangout the other eve . . . and you'd understand why if you could see how one of them looks down on those two Gulliver lamps in Mitzi's room).

RKO's Clint Bolton wrote that it took a bus, plane and dog team to get him in to Joe Floyd's Hollywood Theatre at Sioux Falls, S. Dak. And it looks as if it's going to take the same to get him out . . . if so, Bolton milad, BOXOFFICE & Co. are willing to furnish the dog team (but when you get

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

BILL MACK of Nate Sandler's Northwood Theatre at Northwood was in town to put the endings on the stories he started to tell Madge Ward last summer . . . and to broadcast the news that you're all wekkum at his cottage up there this summer. Bill stopped in at Dave Fidler's Club 100 to hear a little music that doesn't come out of the film cans.

Boss Nate Sandler, of the Northwood and Missouri Valley Sandlers, took the tip from Employe Bill and visited the Club 100 himself Saturday night. He got a few hints on the subject of Standing Room Only, but wound up with a ringside table at which he dozed through the midnight floor show.

Dale McFarland's doing as well as can be expected after the going over his Capitol at Davenport received from the clergy during the "Strange Cargo" run.

Michael's restaurant looked like old home week with Jess Day of the Rialto in Fort Dodge and Irving Heller of the Strand in Des Moines hi-ing and 'lo-ing to pals all over the place.

Speed Lambert whistled through town early in the week on his way to see that the "GWTW" opening was all set for Mrs. C. S. Hoffman at Knoxville. Leon and Chariton were on his route before swinging back to Marshalltown to talk ballyhoo on the new Odeon's opening with Earl Kerr and Boss Wolfberg. We hear it's set to go in the middle of May with "20-Mule Team" giving it the initial shove. (What about that Friday junket, Speed? We looked for you, but saw Tyrone Power in "Johnny Apollo.")

Mike R....., Earl Kerr's partner in that new Marshalltown venture, is unluckily losing (or luckily avoiding) a lot of publicity because nobody can spell his last name. Everybody says "You know, Mike R—er . . . just call him Mike." Figuring Mike's gonna figure in the news plenty with the new Odeon getting under way, we want that name down here for reference. It's Roskopf, according to our records. Right, Mike?

M. L. Dickson of Mt. Pleasant is the film biz proof that every cloud has a silver lining. Everybody on the Row says he's a swell guy, even if he won't smile.

Report from Sioux City: Warren Butler, manager of the Princess, isn't tall, isn't short and has something in common with a penguin.

Hey, Toby Stewart: The Des Moines goodwill tour hits the vicinity of your Shenandoah Mayfair house, May 22.

Leo Wolcott's early teen-ager says he knows a lotta good stories, but pappy won't let him tell 'em. Mebbe Leo should soundproof his offices in Eldora when film salesmen arrive.

M. C. McClain, Central States district manager in Fremont, Neb., was chatting with old friends in this territory last week. We suppose he now has his youngest, who created such a furor in the Iowa area, safely past the safety-pin stage.

Looks as if G. Ralph Branton meant what he said about its being time to exploit when he returned from Hollywood . . . at least there's been more activity in that direction in local Tri-States houses than we've seen for many a moon . . . that big crowd at the Paramount around the place to have a look-see at a little bitty girl, were ogling pretty Jerry Nelson, former Paramount cashier who was putting it on for "Dr. Cyclops."

Saturday was another big night for Filmrowers at Dave Fidler's Club 100 . . . Jack Seigel stopped at our table and gave us the inside dope on candy machines and said he had a box of candy for us . . . We're suspicious of it though, Jack, since you said it dated way back to Christmas . . . Lou Elman and Sid Rose were showing off their fancy hoofing on the crowded dance floor . . . Jack Kennedy shakes a mean one himself . . . Nate Sandler was agog at To-Go's spool balancing, and Bill Lansburg, Paramount p. a., couldn't see why BOXOFFICE & Co. laughed so hard when he remarked about To-Go's activities, "What a funny way to make a living!" (Can you?)

This same Bill Lansburg has a new blue Buick sport model with red leather upholstering and black sport top which goes up or down pssst like that when you press a button . . . Bill says he's going to have a preview showing of the job when he gets back to Hollywood and charge admission. Already people are saying (Bill claims) that Bill's all right, and oh boy does that horn work swell . . . Bill stopped over at the Paramount exchange to see Ray Copeland. We asked if Ray had the new car he's been going to buy for the last three models. Bill said Ray is now the proud owner of a two-tone green Buick. When we inquired as to what Ray had to say when he saw Bill's sport job, Clayton suggested that Ray turned green (not a bad crack, eh McKechneay?)

Where is that place, Harry Holdsberg, which serves steaks this thick and is located some 14 miles out on Highway 6 east? We can't figure it out . . . The Herbert Kline picture, "Lights Out in Europe," was booked at the Ingersoll here until a rush call from Barrett King, NY head of Look-Ampix, stymied the booking for the time being for an unrevealed reason . . . Says the postcard to Clayton from DM's Bobby Stone in Hollywood, "I got a swell part in "South of Pango-Pango"—and I die in it." Attention, Bobby: It's spelled "Pago-Pago."

George Tonkin, regional director of the United States biological survey, was scheduled to present two films on bird life at the meeting of the Des Moines chapter of the Audubon society Tuesday night in the Drake University lounge . . . The YMCA Fly Tying Club here will see four reels from the South Bend Bait Co. here, April 29. Two demonstrate the art of muskie fishing, one is devoted to trout and one shows the Superior National Forest areas.

Two Adapt "Road Show"

Chapel-State Theatre Co. Redeems $600,000 Bonds

COLUMBUS, OHIO—The Chapel-State Theatre Co., which owns Loew's Ohio, redeemed $600,000 of first mortgage leasehold bonds at $102.50, and accrued interest to that date, it has been announced by the Huntington National bank, trustee for the bondholders.

The bonds had to be presented with June 1940, and subsequent coupons attached, it was announced. The payment involved distribution of about $624,000 with the premium and accrued interest. The bonds were issued at the time the theatre was erected about 1926.

Still outstanding against the property will be the Chapel-State land trust certificates. The company is a wholly owned subsidiary of Loew's, Inc.

Film Attorney and Censor Roles Blend in Detroit

DETROIT—Frank Eaman is the police commissioner of the Auto City and as such is the chief censor, who passes on all pictures, after Police Censor Charles Snyder sees them.

Similarly, Frank Eaman also is a member of the local law firm of Butzel, Eaman, Long, Gust & Bills, and as such is attorney for RKO, and other of the majors for the Detroit area in the New York government suit.

But, Eaman, who has long been a film industry attorney, doesn't let the two mix, as witness, his recent nixing with finality as police commissioner RKO's "Primrose Path."

Lenient to Sponsored Bingo in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—Eliot Ness, safety director, and Mayor Harold Burton responded to objections to Bingo games for profit with the statement that there would be no interference with Bingo when played at a private club or sponsored by church or school. Unsponsored Bingo games open to the general public will be stopped, according to the city officials.

Local theatre owners have long objected to the growing use of Bingo in churches and schools, claiming that it is unfair competition, inasmuch as the institutions pay no taxes. Church Bingos in some instances pay out as much as $4,000 a week, it is stated.

Detroit Exhibitors Move Against Tent-Show Plan

DETROIT—Exhibitors here are united in their opposition to the proposed 18-week dramatic stock tent show for which the Veterans of Foreign Wars are seeking a permit.

Consultation among the city's exhibitors led to the appointing of spokesmen who are pointing out to the mayor and city council the injustice of permitting a tax-free or nominally taxed tent show, with low overhead, to compete with the tax-paying, property-maintaining theatres, particularly during the months when theatre business is slowest.

See Pekras Retiring Upon Theatre Sale

ELYRIA, OHIO—John Pekras, veteran exhibitor, is said to be retiring from business with the sale of his Elyria houses to Max Greenwald, Paramount salesman, and associates.

The theatres involved are the Capitol, Lincoln, Rialto and Rivoli. Greenwald, who has resigned from Paramount, becomes general manager of the circuit on May 1 when the deal goes into effect. He has been with the Paramount sales force for 18 years.

Single Bill Test Proves Satisfactory for Krim

DETROIT—Following the policy of using outstanding pictures on single bills, as disclosed in a BOXOFFICE interview about a year ago, Sol Krim single-billed "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at the Lasky.

The response was very favorable, he said, the audience evidently feeling they were getting their money's worth with one good feature plus a well-selected program of shorts. Krim plans to continue the single bill policy with all other films considered capable of such billing.

All Present—

Wide Revival for Vaude Is Seen in Mich. and Ohio

DETROIT — Vaudeville, long nearly defunct in this territory, may have a fairly widespread revival in southern Michigan, and northern Ohio and Indiana, reports coming in through Detroit booking offices indicate. Final stimulus was the decision of the Michigan to put in stage shows May 3, and the probability is that numerous small town theatres may follow suit, using stage shows as a direct answer to double bill booking problems.

Report from the United Booking Ass'n anticipates several theatres to be on the books by the end of May, although, since November, this office has had only one theatre, the Court, at Auburn, Ind.

Single Bill and Flesh Programs for Harper

DETROIT—A radical departure in theatre booking policies in this territory is foreshadowed by the Harper, new house of the Wisper & Wetsman circuit, which is turning to a single bill and stage show policy. Program will play a full week. A strong picture, "Grapes of Wrath," has been selected for the experiment.

The Harper, Tuxedo and Oriole are now definitely set for stage shows. Two other W&W houses, the Eastown and Tower, tentatively slated for stage attractions, will probably not add them till fall, because of the late season start.

Flood Waters Impede Film Shipments in Ohio Towns

CINCINNATI—Flood waters shut off many towns in the Cincinnati area, impeding film shipments. Maysville, Ky., and all river towns as far east as Huntington, W. Va., including towns in the Scioto valley were inconvenienced. Express offices were compelled to move quarters. Film salesmen were unable to drive into headquarters and stayed in the territory to aid in distributing films to theatres shut off by high water.

It was reported last weekend that the theatres in Maysville were in water, and Athens, Ohio, was cut off from shipments.

Daylight Saving Proposal Before Cleveland Council

CLEVELAND—The annual move to establish daylight saving time has been started this year by Councilman John M. Lewandowski. He introduced in city council an emergency ordinance proposing to set the clocks an hour ahead between April 28 and September 29.

Last year the council legislative committee rejected a proposed daylight saving ordinance 9 to 0.

Elect IATSE Delegates

COLUMBUS—Delegates of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and Indianapolis units of the film employes union met here last week and elected Ben Bein of Cincinnati and Harry Stevens of Indianapolis as representatives of the eighth district to the IATSE convention in Canton to be held next month.

PITTSBURGH

NAMES of AMPTO members who will attend the Allied convention in Chicago, June 19-21, are being posted on a large blackboard at exhibitor headquarters. Full convention details for all theatre owners and managers are available from Fred J. Herrington, secretary . . . A fall wedding is planned by Rose Moidel of the Vitagraph exchange and Zachary Caplan . . . Walter Kessler remains as assistant manager at Loew's Penn under the new boss, Martin Burnett . . . Tony Vincent is getting store uppers and lowers . . . Harris Newsreel Palace, Diamond street, had added a feature picture to its program of "war news-sports" show.

Vitagraph's district manager, Bob Smeltzer, visited at the local branch the other day with Harry Seed . . . Morris Finkel was due home this week after several months in California and Florida . . . The Joseph (20th-Fox) Davidsons vacationed in New York over the weekend . . . Now-it-can-be-told-department: A theatre in the local area was once a bootleg distillery. Operating under new management, the house was recently remodeled, and when the stage was torn out a complete still with all the trimmings was discovered!

John Panopoulos, Belington, W. Va., theatre owner, is remodeling his apartment on the second floor of the Seneca . . . "Dooley" is the nickname of Julian Tonkay of the Alvin Seiler office . . . George Nelson, veteran Fairmont, W. Va., theatre owner, who retired a year ago, has returned from a vacation in Florida and was a Filmrow visitor in the interest of the new Lee at Fairmont, which he will book . . . Tom Connors jr., M-G-M student, and Charles Aaron, auditor, are local visitors at Loew's exchange.

Sid Sugarman's demonstration of his new car for Boyd G. Neyland at Erie the other day proved a laughable Filmrow story this week. The Columbia salesman turned the key in the ignition and exploded one of those under-the-hood bombs . . . Primary election Tuesday didn't excite many in the local industry . . . Gabe Rubin has been shopping in the New York markets for new foreign films for his local Art Cinema.

Congratulations are in order for Milton J. Engel, local manager for Quality Premium Distributors, who will join the ranks of the benedicts this fall. Bride-elect is Miss Sylvia Neufeld of Philadelphia. The premium man is managing the branch office here for the same company that his brother, the late Louis J. Engel, formerly represented . . . Alice Cunningham, Vitagraph biller, was back at work this week after being hospitalized with torn ligaments . . . Ken Hoel is issuing a great sheet in the Tri-State Sport News, which exploits the various Harris enterprises . . . AGVA's new AFL local will elect officers April 29 . . . Anast N. Notopoulos, Altoona circuit exhibitor, was slightly injured last week in an auto accident near Harrisburg.

M. E. Sperling, Moundsville, W. Va., exhibitor, has returned from Florida . . . Ray Robison of the Jam Handy outfit has been on duty at the Monogram office, local distributor of the advertising films . . . Beulah Marena, M-G-M, has recovered at Magee Hospital following an operation . . . Tony Latella, Roscoe exhibitor, is planning to bring his three-year-old singing and dancing daughter Josephine Rita to Filmrow for inspection of the experts. Tony believes she has film possibilities.

Mrs. George Brinkman of Grafton, W. Va., is packing up for a vacation in Atlantic City . . . Son of Tony DeMichelis, Dunbar exhibitor, is ailing . . . George Capps of South Wheeling is back on the job after a month's vacation in South Carolina.

That some of Gene Autry's best fans are the exhibitors who play his pictures was demonstrated again this week when the screen's No. 1 Cowboy arrived here for the rodeo at The Gardens. A number of showmen wore sombreros in honor of the occasion. Jim Alexander decorated the Republic window with "Welcome Gene Autry" signs and placed a special display in the illuminated sign board on the side of the building. Fred J. Herrington declared a holiday and planned a special reception for the star. Autry's appearances at the rodeo continues daily until May 3.

Upwards of 50 of the Exhibitors' Service Company bowlers enjoyed their annual banquet at a recent shindig at the Mayfair . . . Max Shulgold's Crown Pictures exchange is releasing "Are We Civilized?" . . . Most tuneful theme song in a long time is "Little Curly Hair in a High Chair," from Eddie Cantor's "40 Little Mothers" . . . Bob Clark, formerly ad sales manager here for Paramount, is traveling the territory with the company salesmen . . . A wind storm carried off the roof of one of the Manos theatres in Indiana, Pa., several weeks ago, this being the second time this has occurred. A reinforced roof wall will be constructed . . . Art Morrone didn't go to Hot Springs from the Dallas convention but went to another mineral springs in Texas for a week.

Local Variety Club tent No. 1 brought home the attendance trophy from the Dallas convention in addition to four special honors: John H. Harris was re-elected national chief barker; Harry Kalmine was named second assistant chief barker; C. J. Latta was named national district canvassman to represent Pittsburgh at the next national convention in Atlantic City, and James G. Balmer was re-elected national "dough guy" (treasurer). Two special planes arrived here late Sunday evening bringing back 20-odd delegates and the party included Joan Davis, knockabout film stooge. Others returned by train Tuesday.

Ira H. Cohn, local 20th-Fox manager, copped the short subjects and newsreel award at his company convention . . . J. D. Kendis, producer of Jay Dee Kay productions, was a visitor here the other day . . . Frank Panoplos had his pomeranian "Mitzi" with him on a Filmrow tour Monday . . . Bart Dattola remembered us with a post card from Dallas, and we received an extra edition of the Dallas Star which headlined the fact that your BOXOFFICE correspondent was "missed by friends" at the Variety Club convention there (we believe this to have been the work of one Andy Battiston) . . . Vince Josack's new car is a honey, but Fred Solomon still won't trade . . . Advertising Accessories, Inc., have moved its local office from the Paramount exchange to the old quarters of Independent Display Company which AA has absorbed. Perry Nathan is managing for both NSS and AA . . . Elizabeth borough has placed a tax of $25 on each pinball machine.

Filmrow bowlers are all set for their annual banquet in the Roosevelt Hotel, Saturday evening, May 4 . . . Nelson Eddy's concert in the Syria Mosque last Friday was a 'SRO' affair but he took a panning from the music critics . . . Gertrude Ball, Republic's telephone operator, could have voted on her age at Tuesday's election, having celebrated her 21st birthday on Monday . . . Charlie Baron of M-G-M is all steamed up about the "20 Mule Team" which makes an appearance here May 2 . . . Women's Theatrical Club, auxiliary to the Variety Club, launched its latest project, helping the Passavant Hospital, at a luncheon Saturday in the William Penn Hotel, with more than 500 women, members and friends of the welfare organization, present.

Governor James Prepares For Special Session

HARRISBURG—With the primary election out of the way, Gov. Arthur H. James is now conferring with legislative and fiscal officials preparatory to the convoking of a special session of the general assembly. He will ask this session for an appropriation of between 60 and 70 million dollars to finance direct relief in Pennsylvania from June 1 until next January. Republican leaders this week stated the session would open May 6 and would be adjourned within two or three weeks. The regular session of the legislature will be called in January, 1941, when a new tax program will be considered.

Gibbs Building New House At Albion for Blatts

ALBION, PA.—A. W. Gibbs, veteran exhibitor, will have construction of a new theatre underway here within the next week or so. The theatre will be operated by the Blatt Bros. circuit, and will seat 400.

Gibbs will dismantle his old theatre and plans to retire. William Gould, now managing the Arcadia, New Bethlehem, will be manager of the new Albion house.

The circuit's State at Youngsville, operated under a lease for five years is being purchased by the Blatts. The Youngsville house also was erected by Gibbs.

Constructs Buckhannon Pool

BUCKHANNON, W. VA.—Garland West, local exhibitor, is busy with construction of an outdoor swimming pool in the heart of this community.

"Crowded Hours" to Reid

HOLLYWOOD — RKO has assigned Cliff Reid to produce "Crowded Hours," based on an original by Ben Holmes.

Universal One-Week Drive A Success in Cleveland

CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND — The Universal salesmen's one-week drive proved a tremendous success. Joe Kauffman, Universal branch manager, reports that during the drive the office rolled up the biggest billings in the past eight years.

Salesmen Joe Krenitz, George Rosenbaum and Jimmy Frew want to thank the exhibitors who cooperated to make this record possible.

"Lillian Russell" Pitt Premiere on May 15

PITTSBURGH—"The Story of Lillian Russell," 20th-Fox's dramatization of the "Glamour Gal of the Gay Nineties," will be given its premiere at the Alvin, May 15, the event being a double world premiere as the picture will be exhibited the same evening at a theatre in Clinton, Iowa, birthplace of the famous stage beauty.

Celebrate Peter Rosian's Promotion at Luncheon

CLEVELAND—Film friends of Peter Rosian tendered him a testimonial luncheon at the Tavern to celebrate his appointment as Universal branch manager in Cincinnati. They presented him with an onyx desk set. Rosian had been a roving field representative for Universal prior to his appointment to the Cincinnati post.

Record to 'Virginia City'

CANTON, OHIO—"Virginia City," originally set for the Warner Ohio here for a week, was twice extended and ran two weeks, establishing a new house record, William Harwell, manager reveals.

Four Buy Premiums

CLEVELAND—Metro Premium deals have been set by Charles Winet in the Norval, New York, the Stork, Cleveland, and the Park at Canton.

HARRY BARLOW opened his new Saint Clairsville, at St. Clairsville on Thursday, April 18. This is the former Old Trail which has been entirely rebuilt. Associated with Barlow is H. C. Waggoner of Amsterdam . . . Ernest Lefton has sold his lease on the Paramount, Akron, to Frank Reinecke jr. The property is owned by Frank Reinecke sr. . . . Fred Holzworth last week celebrated the 13th anniversary of the Hilliard Square. This is an Associated Circuit house which Holzworth has managed for the past 11 years.

George Kendis and John Himmelein, who have the Ohio and Kentucky rights to "Polygamy," have recently purchased the West Virginia distribution rights. They also are distributing "Adventures in the Jungle," a 3-reeler, in the Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia territory . . . Leonard Mishkind, Republic booker, is taking a three-week vacation—if you call it a vacation to spend the time plugging for his final law exams . . . Paul Gusdanovic is using "Wahoo" in his LaSalle.

Frank Belles, Republic field sales representative, went to the Variety Club convention in Dallas—almost. On Wednesday evening, bag and baggage, he boarded a transport plane bound for the convention city, but the flight was canceled on account of the weather, so Frank changed his mind and decided to stay home . . . Charles Winet, local Metro Premium sales manager, has closed half a dozen premium deals locally within the past week, including dishes and enamel kitchenware.

Eddie Grainger and Jack Shea of the Shea circuit were in town last week and confirmed the rumor that the circuit has taken over the four Caldwell Brown houses in Zanesville . . . Milton A. Mooney of Co-operative Theatres of Ohio has signed a contract with Bill Tallman to service his Ceramic at East Liverpool.

George Stevens, who has managed the East Side Drive-In for the past three years, has been named general manager in charge of both the East Side and West Side Drive-Ins . . . Filmrow was rather quiet during the past week. Some of the out-of-town visitors included Ernest Walters of Sylvania and North Baltimore; Eddie Grainger and Jack Shea of the Shea circuit; J. O. Guthrie, New London; Leo Jones, Upper Sandusky.

Frank Greenwald has been named manager of the Clark Theatre where he succeeds Ben Elkins . . . Tommy Baird of National Theatre Supply was best man last week at the wedding of his brother, J. Russell Baird, of the National Carbon Co., to Miss Katherine McCann of Marion. The ceremony was performed in Marion . . . L. P. Langford of Oliver Theatre Supply has a new projection machine on display.

Bert Stearn, UA district manager, got in at the tail end of the Variety convention. He didn't leave here until Thursday afternoon, by plane . . . The Temple Theatre, Cleveland, is closed.

Dorsey Brown, Metro head booker, and Miss Lucille Spencer of this city have selected July 20 as the day on which they will pledge their troth. Ralph W. Langsnaes, also of the booking department, will lead Miss Sally Brooks to the altar on June 8.

COLUMBUS

LOCAL exhibitors met Thursday to discuss ways and means of getting the six-mill levy past the voters at the special June 18 election. With Columbus in the red one million dollars, it's either the levy or else—the else being immediate application of a nuisance tax, which would nick the admissions at the boxoffice for plenty.

Bob Clark (son of Duke Clark, Cleveland) has replaced Charlie Powers in Paramount sales out of Cincy. He was formerly in advertising in Pittsburgh branch. Charlie moves on to the Cleveland territory.

Harry Schreiber received a royal welcome at the Union Station upon his return from Dallas, the RKO gang turning out en masse . . . Pressing business prevented Pete Wood and Max Stearn from attending the Variety Club convention . . . Jack Needham, Fox salesman, is back from Chicago.

Ted Lindenberg sr. is back on the job at the Bexley after an illness . . . RKO's Dave Carter has been in town . . . As has Col. Tommy Thompson, advance man for Blackstone. He's of the Tennessee Thompsons, suh, if you please! . . . "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" duo pulled surprisingly good biz at the Palace, being held for a second week at the Grand.

Floods last week really hit many of the exhibitors hard, including Bremen, Crooksville, Roseville, Middleport, Pomeroy and Marietta. Film carriers in this territory were fortunate, being tied up only south of Beverly. However, territory served out of Cincy and Huntington was almost isolated for four days.

Nothing's quite so effective as word-of-mouth advertising. Today we deal fairly and squarely with a theatre man—tomorrow he tells a friend-in-the-trade about us.

Giving F & Y complete centralized authority is a friendly gesture for which a friendly service is rendered. You soon find that we put our heart in our work—in your work—cutting costs, using the best showmanship and creating original designs to give you a building that both serves your need and fits your ability to pay.

The friendship lives on as you continue to find us present in low maintenance costs, trimmed utility bills and better boxoffice reaction.

Friends tell friends about the buildings we build for them and that builds our business.

CINCINNATI

THE opening of the baseball season brought an influx of exhibitors to the Queen City, among them being Manny and Louis Shore, of Williamson and War, W. Va. Following the game and the usual exchange of cordialities at the Variety Club, Louis departed for Christ Hospital here for a tonsillotomy. John Rapphold was here from Columbus, as was Jack Shea who has just taken over the Brown Theatrical Co., at Zanesville, which includes the Liberty, Imperial and Quimby theatres. John Revelis came in from Washington C. H. to see the game and Woodrow Thomas from Oak Hill and Mt. Hope, W. Va.

Bud Ackerman is hoping to have his new Price Hill Theatre ready in 60 days . . . Lou Padolf has acquired the Virginia at Parkersburg, W. Va., from W. D. Ward . . . Frank Weitzel was also in for his first call since assuming booking for the Alpine circuit; and Tony Cassinelli called after the ball game.

About ten men from the Row went to the hospital to submit to blood tests in the event that their type might be needed for Max Margolis, manager of Republic, who entered the hospital this week. He is coming on nicely.

Harris Dudelson, UA manager, canceled his trip to Dallas to the Variety Club convention, owing to the stress of business . . . The local Monogram office is sending out invitations to their grand opening, set for Monday, April 29, in their new quarters.

Twenty-four Cincinnatians are back from Dallas and the Variety Club convention. Ten attended from Dayton, headed by Eveland Bennet, chief barker. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Welles, Dayton, drove through, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Al Shoupe.

Homer Guy has closed the Mayfair at Dayton . . . Milt Jacobs of Metro has left the hospital and is on the road to complete recovery . . . On the sick list is Dorothy Bien, daughter of Ben Bien of National Accessories, who is connected with the Warner personnel . . . Stanley Jacques of RKO is being congratulated on his 23rd year with RKO.

Kalman Erdeky Considers Theatre for Rockwood

PITTSBURGH—Kalman Erdeky of this city has plans for a theatre at Rockwood, Somerset county. Site of the house is the old Ridenour property, unused as a theatre for more than a dozen years. H. Wilt jr. of Ligonier recently discontinued his plan for opening a theatre at Rockwood.

FOR SALE—Country home, three acres; 12 miles from Fountain Square. Strictly modern, built 1½ years ago, four bedrooms, three baths, recreation room and every modern convenience.

William Davis Suffers A Health Breakdown

PITTSBURGH—William D. Davis, manager of the Triangle, East Liberty, who was recently named as one of the first witnesses in the government's all-industry suit, was taken to the Hillsview Sanitarium, Washington, Pa., last Friday. Ill for a month, and in poor health for several years, the former president of the local Allied exhibitor organization, has suffered a nervous breakdown coupled with a heart condition.

Although subpoenaed, it is altogether unlikely that he will be able to make the trip to New York to testify in the government's anti-trust suit. His family remains here in Pittsburgh.

Robinson Ready to Open Lumberport Theatre

LUMBERPORT, W. VA.—Dorwin L. Robinson, former operator of the Port here, was scheduled this week to reopen the old Opera House as the Ritz. Floor has been raised and exterior and interior have been newly painted. Danny Davis, who is involved with Robinson in litigation regarding the Port, now is operating this house.

Local Movie Co. Resumes After a Winter Lapse

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—After a three-month lapse during the late winter season, William W. Birchfield is resuming Local Movie Co. The firm specializes in producing films of a local nature for theatres.

20th-Fox to Build New Cincinnati Exchange

CINCINNATI—A new 20th Century-Fox exchange building will be constructed here shortly. The company's real estate and construction department is working on the lease with all plans and specifications already outlined.

Order Photophone

LOUISVILLE—W. R. Shafer will install RCA Photophone sound at the Trail, Morehead, Ky., and the Strand, Irvine, Ky. L. B. Solether is outfitting his Falls, Chagrin Falls, Ohio, with the same type equipment.

Set for Shubert

CINCINNATI—The Shubert, local first run, has booked Republic's "Dark Command" for an April showing. The Alvin, Pittsburgh, and the Colonial, Dayton, first-run the film early in May.

Canton Drive-In Opens

CANTON, OHIO—Boyer's Auto Theatre, only drive-in in the immediate Canton district, has reopened.

BOWLING

PITTSBURGH—It may be all over now—but the shouting—in the Filmrow Bowling League where a first-place tie was broken last Friday evening when Republic emerged a one-game leader over Universal. The Republicans took three games from 20th-Fox and Universal dropped one of three games with Loew's.

Final games of the season were scheduled for April 26 when Republic was to have met Columbia, third team in the race, and Universal was to vie with Monarch.

Joe Pemberton of Universal rolled a 211 score for one game, copping the weekly $1 award for high individual honors, thus being the only three-time winner in this department for the season.

Annual banquet will be held Saturday, May 4, at 6:30 o'clock in the East Room of the Roosevelt Hotel.

Standings of the teams to April 26:

	Won	Lost
Republic	53	25
Universal	52	26
Columbia	49	26
Monarch	39	39
Loew's	34	44
20th-Fox	24	51

DETROIT—The Film Bowling League rolled along toward the close of the season, with Republic clearly the winner. Standings are:

	Won	Lost
Republic	77	35
Film Drug	67	45
United Artists	62	50
Film Truck	59	53
20th Century-Fox	52	60
Cooperative	50	62
Amusement Supply	44	68
Monogram	36	76

High games were rolled by: Stanley Malinowski, 222 and 200; Eddie Regina, 205; Clark S. Baker, 203; Irwin Pollard, 200.

DETROIT—McArthur won the cup in the Nightingale Club bowling season, in one of the closest finishes this league has ever seen. Final standings are:

	Won	Lost
McArthur Theatre Equipment	65	47
National Theatre Supply	64	48
Oliver Theatre Supply	63	49
Amusement Supply Co.	61	51
Motiograph	60	52
National Carbon Co.	46	66
Brenkert Projector	45	67
Lorenzen Flower Shop	45	67

"For What It's Worth"

PITTSBURGH—AMPTO, in a bulletin issued last week, offered this little poem "for what it's worth":

"I hate to be a kicker—I always long for peace;
But the wheel that does the squeaking is the one that gets the grease.
It's nice to be a peaceful soul; not too hard to please,
But the dog that's always scratching is the one that has the fleas.
Let's not put any notions that are harmful in your head,
But the baby that keeps yelling is the baby that gets fed."

Loew recently filed a group of anti-trust suits, covering indoor and outdoor theatre interests from Massachusetts to Florida.

Adorno Legal Victory May Cost Middletown

MIDDLETOWN, CONN. — This town, the Middlesex Theatre, Inc., and the Middletown Enterprises, Inc., are in legal difficulties as a result of litigation won by Mrs. Maria Adorno in superior court.

Suit for damages on the part of Adorno theatre interests, for over 25 years associated as theatre owners in Middletown, appeared likely following the decision of Judge William H. Comley.

This publication has learned that attorneys for Mrs. Adorno, city court judge Joseph A. Adorno and former city court judge, Leonard O. Ryan, were considering the possibility of a damage suit, charging conspiracy to prevent Mrs. Adorno from competing in the Middletown theatre business.

Judge Comley's decision last week upheld Cannon's decision to allow theatre construction, and also caused cancellation of the building permit suspension, all of which allows the Adornos to open for business, after allegedly having been prevented from doing so for a year.

Fined $10 and Costs for Overcrowding Theatre

HATRFORD—Hillmer Robinson, assistant manager at E. M. Loew's, was fined $10 and costs by Judge John M. Bailey in police court after being found guilty of overcrowding the theatre.

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Kenyon has joined Warner's scripting staff.

Conspiracy Is Basic Charge, Contends M&R Summation

BOSTON—"May it please the Court, in these actions, except for the one action against the Maine and New Hampshire Theatres Co., the charge made is conspiracy," George S. Ryan, attorney for the plaintiffs in the Morse & Rothenberg anti-trust suits, said last week in beginning his summation of the litigation.

"It is, of course, elemental that a charge of that kind suggests concealment. It suggests underhanded work and, of course, it is based upon concert of action among the people who are named as conspirators."

The anti-trust suits, which also include a Providence, R. I., action involving the Metropolitan there, went before Philip Hendrick, Master, in December of 1938. The three calendar years of hearing, totaling close to 200 court days, have come close to setting a new Massachusetts record. Nearly 5,000 exhibits have been entered in the film case.

"Where evidence has been introduced which would have a tendency unexplained to show concert of action among the defendants, it would seem that an honest defendant with a good case would have no difficulty whatever in rebutting the presumption or inferences that would arise from the simultaneous or the joint action," Ryan continued. "It would be very easy to do that by coming into court and telling the truth. If there was no conspiracy, all the defendants needed to do from the beginning was to come in and tell the truth.

"And what have they done? Your Honor has noticed the branch managers who came here, and you have observed their method of testifying. Have those men testified as if they were men with nothing to conceal, as if they were coming up here to give you the benefit of all the information they had, and as if they were ready to explain the reasons for doing what they did? Or did the branch managers and the other employes of the defendant who testified show a reluctance to give information, a hesitation to answer questions, a desire to evade the point?

"Through the testimony you will notice how difficult it was to get them to answer a question categorically. It was impossible to get them to answer a question truthfully because you will observe that while in one place they may say a thing a little later they will admit that was not so and there will be a change.

"We may say that as Mr. Spry said, 'their jobs were on the table.' You remember that Mr. Spry in the course of his examination said, 'I am not like these other fellows you have had up here. My job is not on the table.' These men's jobs were on the table. But what about the big men from New York, the general sales managers, or the assistant general sales managers? How did they testify? With all the benefit they had, not only from their home office counsel but from counsel in this case, and the knowledge that this case was being prosecuted with some degree of vigor, what did they do? Did they tell the truth? Well, now, let's start with Paramount."

Refers to Testimony

Ryan then brought up testimony of Neil Agnew, William Erbb, Mort Shea, Edward Grainger, Edward X. Callahan, Tom Bailey, William F. Rodgers, William Kelly, John Dervin, Maurice Wolf, and others.

"After keeping after the witnesses, trying to get reasons from them, seeing how the reasons compared with the documents or contracts that were produced," Ryan said, "we come to the end when the facts have been so well developed.

"Then we get certain reasons claimed to be both in law and fact, and I expect to show to Your Honor that both in law and in fact these reasons amount to nothing, that there has been this joint action, that there has been an unlawful and important departure from all preceding practice, and that it is due to a conspiracy. I think that this evidence here will show that the action of these defendants in all situations cannot be explained by any theory that is inconsistent with conspiracy.

"There have been a great many statements in regard to the law that have been made by counsel. There have been certain cases picked out and there have been certain quotations made from the cases. And an attempt has been made to show Your Honor that what has been done in these cases is something that the defendants had a perfect right to do. They have spoken a great deal about their copyright, as if that lent them any additional protection. They have spoken about the right to sell and things of that kind.

"From the point of view of the plaintiff, it would seem to me that the most helpful thing to do at this time in regard to the law would be to speak first in regard to the purpose of this law, to show

Deluxer in Hamden, Conn., In an Auspicious Debut

HAMDEN, CONN.—Whitney Theatre Corp. opened its new de luxe 916-seat Whitney last Thursday with a film and stage show, a direct telephone broadcast greeting from Rudy Vallee and John Barrymore to the audience, a 24-page souvenir program, and all the appropriate ballyhoo. Maurice Bailey, one of the principals of the corporation, Franklin E. Ferguson, manager, and a staff of six ushers were on hand to greet the patrons and well-wishers.

Many new features have been employed in the construction of this house to make it one of the outstanding ones in the state. Ben Schlanger and Jack Weinstein were the architects, Jack A. Halprin, the general contractor, and National Theatre Supply supplied the booth equipment.

An all-Neon marquee is set off by a blue glass tower, which adds height and distinction to the building. Doors are satin chrome and stainless steel, and carpeting in the lobbies is a deep rose. The rose beige and blue lounge leads off the inner lobby and, in turn, leads to the ladies' powder and restrooms. The color scheme, modern pictures, furnishings and wall papers of these rooms were designed by Marion Bailey, wife of Samuel Bailey, of the theatre company.

Illumination in the outer lobby is by indirect fluorescent lights. Year-round air-conditioning and hard-of-hearing devices are other features.

The service staff includes: H. A. Hugerth, doorman, and these ushers, J. Herbert Fryer, James Grassie, Charles Fulton, Clifford Gilmond and Charles Patrick Smith.

Rules Milford Drive-In Must Vacate Premises

MILFORD, CONN. — Removal of the Milford Drive-In Theatre Corp. from its premises here was granted by Justice of Peace Harold L. Pickett after a hearing on the petition of the owner of the site, Thomas C. DiMaura, Inc., of Boston. Justice Pickett granted the eviction petition after the DiMaura firm claimed the theatre company had neglected to pay rent and insurance premiums in accordance with terms of the lease.

Operating Project in Milford Contested

BOSTON—Thomas DiMaura and James Guarino have a project under way to take over and operate the drive-in theatre at Milford, Conn. Opposition is being raised by Marcel Mekelberg and others who have a financial interest in the theatre, constructed on DiMaura land.

Tallies Corporations

BOSTON—Henry F. Long, Massachusetts commissioner of corporations, filed in supreme judicial court last week a petition to dissolve some 1500 Massachusetts corporations which have not filed returns for two consecutive years or which have been otherwise inactive. The dissolution would include a number of motion picture outfits.

Charge of Conspiracy Keys M&R Summary

generally how it has been applied, particularly how it has been applied in similar situations, in situations like this or in situations affecting the motion picture industry. Then we would have no difficulty in seeing that these isolated cases that are cited by the defendants really mean nothing, even when they are cited correctly."

Ryan went into a lengthy discussion of the Sherman Act, citing the law itself and numerous applications of the act.

"It is, of course, obvious from the authorities," Ryan said as his summation progressed, "that a conspiracy may result either from the illegality of conspiracy or agreement itself, or from the illegality of the methods employed. If the purpose is unlawful, all acts done with the intention of accomplishing it are also tainted with illegality.

"Now, that applies generally to the defendant's claims as to their rights to sell and to refuse to sell. Each distributor, acting independently, may, of course, choose his customers for reasons that are satisfactory to him, but that does not mean that they have a right to combine or conspire to refuse to sell, and once you get anything in the nature of joint action then that taints the act, which otherwise would be lawful, with its illegality. And while a man has a right to refuse to sell, he has no right to conspire to refuse to sell."

Consent Decree Dispute

Edward F. McClennen, head of the battery of defense lawyers, interrupted when Ryan said he intended to submit to the Master a copy of a consent decree in the United States vs. West Coast Theatres and Major Distributors.

"It has been manifest for some little time now," McClennen interrupted, "that there are being called to Your Honor's attention certain decisions not involving any question of law that is in controversy in this case in any way, for the manifest purpose, I respectfully submit, of endeavoring to bring before you conduct not in evidence before you on the part of persons in this industry.

"Your attention has just been called in some preliminary injunction case to the fact that some man involved in it was someone who had testified in this case. That had no bearing upon the legal significance of the case in any way, and I respectfully submit should not have been stated.

"Now, the thing is being carried to the extent of seeking to lay before you a consent decree which cannot possibly be of any value for precedent purposes, and can only be done for the purpose of putting before you some facts not in this case, and whether that is pursued to the point of handing it to Your Honor or not, I urge upon Your Honor that it should not be inspected by you."

Philip Hendrick said, "I don't so interpret the argument. I interpret these things as being matters which are in a case and which are the background for the decision. I would entirely disregard, as far as I was concerned, what has been in evidence of acts by other people. I simply interpret that to mean that this was the background upon which this decision was rendered."

"That is my request, too, but when it comes to laying before you a consent decree, I submit that it shouldn't be looked at, at all, by Your Honor," said McClennen.

"Well," said the Master, "we will pass on that when that time comes."

"A consent decree, Your Honor," Ryan said, "has been held to be of value as a precedent, as a legal precedent, particularly as showing the interpretation placed upon the law by the parties. That is, a consent decree has to be allowed by the court. It is an action of the court, but prior to that it is agreed upon by the parties."

Desire Not Without Curbs, Points Out McClennen

BOSTON—The effect of subsequent-runs on first run revenue was discussed by Edward F. McClennen, chief attorney for major interests in the Morse & Rothenberg anti-trust suit.

"Questions have been asked to develop the idea that to get the best revenue for any distributor out of any picture it is important to increase the prospects of attendance at the theatre playing those pictures, and that prospect," said Edward McClennen, "is increased by anything that kills off the prospect of those possible patrons going to another theatre and, therefore, that there is an incentive to get all other distributors to refuse pictures to the other theatre so that the other theatre will go out of business.

"That seems to be the thesis worked on. That applied, of course, would mean that it would be to the advantage of those of us here in this court room to go out and kill off the rest of the Bar. That would greatly increase the prospect of clientage for us. Nevertheless, it is not enough on which to ground a finding that we have conspired to go out and kill all the rest of the Bar.

"A theatre's prosperity is helped by a good many things. It is hurt by a good many things. It is very much hurt, I take it, by a thriving Methodist Sunday School that teaches that you should not patronize the theatre, that it is a wicked thing to do, and the more the Sunday School thrives the more likelihood there is of the theatre's not doing so well. That does not indicate any probability that the theatre operator will try to burn up the Sunday School."

Drive Against Billboards

BOSTON—The Massachusetts Civic League is continuing to push a drive against billboards in this state. Members of the organization, given the axiom that tourists visit New England for scenery, not signery, are pledging themselves to investigate and report on infringements of billboard legislation to John W. Beal, commissioner of public works.

Trade Among First Affected by War

HARTFORD—"One of the first American industries in England to suffer from the declaration of war was the production c moving pictures," stated the Hartford Courant editorially.

Going specific on the problems confronting Hollywood as a result of the war, the Courant continued, "By government order, all theatres were closed immediately as a part of the general program of air raid precautions, but gradually the restrictions were relaxed. However, the producers were faced with the serious problem of currency regulation. The remittances which would have been made in the ordinary course of business were stopped by law.

"By September 28, negotiations with the British government had made possible remittances of 10 per cent of the annual gross business in England, but the amount was still insufficient. Negotiations in London were continued, however, with the assistance of the American embassy and the department of state, so that by November it was possible for the producers to transfer 50 per cent of the normally remittable funds and to use the rest for operations in England.

"In France, the intensive mobilization carried on by the government took from the theatres many of their trained personnel, but an effort was made to keep them open, and in certain instances the closing hours have been extended.

"But the troubles of Hollywood are not yet over. In developing its economic warfare, the British government has decided to campaign for fewer purchases of American products and it is concentrating its efforts particularly on motion pictures. Whatever the outcome of this new move may be, it demonstrates that even a neutral country like America must help pay the costs of war."

Two Short Subjects Draw Cuts Before Sunday Run

BOSTON—Two short subjects drew cuts in the latest list of motion pictures, numbering 42, to go before the Massachusetts department of public safety for Sunday eliminations.

"All scenes showing Mae West character" were scissored from Vitaphone's "Double or Nothing."

Shots of "They Satisfy, Girls" in Universal News No. 865 were clipped.

Okayed by the bureau of Sunday censorship were Popular's "North Sea Patrol," French Motion Picture Corp.'s "That's Life, Claudine," M-G-M's "Two Girls on Broadway," and First National's "Saturday's Children."

Many Attend Benefit Ball

NEW HAVEN—Several hundred guests attended the annual Local No. 74 IATSE sick benefit ball at the Hotel Taft. Dancing and seven headline vaudeville acts were features of the program.

Tells How 20th-Fox Splits Boston Fare

NEW YORK — Twentieth Century-Fox's first run deal in Boston provides for a split of two-thirds to M&P's Metropolitan, Paramount and Fenway, and one-third to RKO's Memorial and Boston, William Sussman, the distributor's eastern sales manager, declared in his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General John L. Wright in the government's all-industry suit.

This arrangement, in effect six years, has a "definite advantage" to 20th Century-Fox, the witness stated, because of the revenue received from playing "the two biggest houses" and the early dating of pictures in M&P's other units. Terms of the split provide that each quarter season's product is first submitted to RKO for its choice, and then to M&P, and then alternates. Fred Meyers, film buyer for RKO, acts for his circuit, while Phil Seletsky does likewise for M&P, Sussman added.

The distributor's New Haven first run is Loew's, for the Poli and College, the witness stated. There have been infrequent negotiations with M&P's Roger-Sherman in this situation, Sussman said, due to "carry-overs," but deals seldom consummated.

Beano Prize Tilt Favored By Boston City Council

BOSTON—The Boston city council last week urged Mayor Maurice Tobin to allow Beano promoters to lift their stakes as high as one hundred dollars cash. Under Tobin's present regulations, Beano prizes may not exceed five dollars in value, cash awards are illegal, all profits must go to charity, and only religious, fraternal, and patriotic organizations may promote Beano games.

The council turned down a petition that the Boston finance commission launch an investigation of Beano games in Boston. Allegations were made that racketeers are the real promoters behind some local Beano parties.

New Haven Area Will Fete Barney Pitkin

By GERTRUDE PEARSON

NEW HAVEN—In celebration of his 20th anniversary in the film business here, a large representation of friends in and out of the industry will tender Barney Pitkin, RKO exchange manager, a testimonial dinner at Racebrook Country Club, May 7.

The guest list grows hourly and will include men from New York, Boston, and the entire Connecticut exchange territory, according to Thomas Donaldson, Metro manager here, who is chairman of the event. Talented Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, will assume the role of emcee, for which he has become well known in this territory.

Barney Pitkin's career, from Postal Telegraph messenger boy at 13 to RKO exchange manager at 25, represents the good old American way of rising from the ranks. His first taste of motion pictures was as usher at the Poli Theatre. But it was the distribution end of the game which caught his fancy 20 years ago and which has kept him on Meadow Street ever since in various capacities.

His first job was as poster manager and assistant shipper at the old Gordon & Mayer exchange. He was salesman for Federated Film Co. as long as that company existed here, and held jobs with Metro and Rosen's Film Delivery before entering the RKO organization as booker. In 1928 he had risen to manager of the company and when RKO and Pathe merged in 1931, Barney was made manager of the merged company.

A Leader in Depinet Drive

Aside from plugging at his job and managing to keep among the leaders in the country in the annual RKO drives (he stands about third in the current Ned Depinet campaign), Barney has been known for his special talent as Meadow Street's social lion. Without his guidance scarcely a dinner, dance or industry picnic has been planned, and the committee is being hard put to it to out-Pitkin Pitkin for the present event.

"I am deeply moved," Barney remarks, "by this expression of friendship and good wishes on the part of these many people who are planning to gather and celebrate with me a memorable milestone in my career."

Morris Joseph, secretary, and Hugh Maguire, treasurer, report the following reservations have already been made: Ben Simon, Lou Wechsler, Edward Ruff, Roger Mahan, Tim O'Toole, Nat Furst, Samuel Seletsky, I. Levine, John Pavone, Irving C. Jacocks jr., Adolph Johnson, J. B. Fishman, Abe Fishman, William Canelli, George Wilkinson, B. E. Hoffman, Maxwell Hoffman, Harold Eskin, Arthur Lockwood, Pete Perakos, Samuel Weiss, Edward Peskay, Lou Gordon, Maurice Bailey, Herb MacIntyre, Samuel Haddelman, Donald Jacocks, Martin Keleher, A. M. Schuman, Maurice Shulman, Irwin Wheeler, Leo Ricci, Robert Russell, John Hesse, Ben Lourie, Milton Hyams, Samuel Rosen, Samuel Weber, Earl Wright and Morris Nunes.

His 20th Trade Year—

Barney Pitkin, New Haven branch manager for RKO, who will be given a testimonial dinner May 7 at the Racebrook Country Club in New Haven to celebrate his 20th anniversary in the industry. Thomas Donaldson, Metro manager, is chairman of the event.

New Eng. Documentary Into Posterity's File

BOSTON—A print of "New England—Yesterday and Today," an advertising film sponsored by the New Haven Railroad, was shipped last week to Oglethorpe University, Georgia, for screening some 60 centuries hence.

The two-reel, 16mm sound-track film, shot as a representative document of New England from 1620 to the present, will be preserved for posterity in the Georgia university's "Crypt of Civilization" to be opened in 8113 A. D.

The huge crypt, planned by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, will preserve chemical products, microfilmed books containing some 400,000 pages of material, scale models and various other objects to present a "complete cross-sectional picture of the entire life of our world today for people of the future."

Regular Luncheon Apr. 30 By Connecticut Allied

NEW HAVEN—Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut will hold a regular luncheon-meeting at 12:30 p. m., Tuesday, April 30, at the Hofbrau Haus. A. M. Schuman will preside.

Holdovers Prevail

BOSTON—Harry McDonald, RKO divisional manager, held Deanna Durbin's "It's a Date" and "Viva Cisco Kid" for a second week at Keith's Memorial. "Strange Cargo" and "And One Was Beautiful" stayed for a second week at Loew's State and Loew's Orpheum.

PROVIDENCE

NARRAGANSETT PARK race track opened its 16-day spring meet April 17 and, despite cool weather, attracted 20,000 patrons the opening day. A decline in matinee business is anticipated by theatres during the meet unless weather continues cold and rainy, as it has been for the past week . . . Another new theatre in Pawtucket looms, with the city zoning board meeting Wednesday to consider granting of construction permit for neighborhood house in the Fairlawn section of the city. Certificates of business incorporation were granted by the secretary of state's office to Currie & Harmon, Inc., to carry on theatrical business in the state. Incorporators are Earl H. Mason and Alfred J. Joslin of Pawtucket and Cecelia A. Gilgannon of Lonsdale, R. I.

E. M. Loew circuit took over operation of the Paramount, Newport, with Manager Gerald G. Wagner and his entire staff at the Colonial moving to the Paramount. Colonial, occupied by Loew for the past two years, has been sold to Miss Ruth L. Weiss of Boston and is scheduled to be torn down and replaced with a new $45,000 store for J. J. Newberry Co. According to Wagner, the same policy maintained at Colonial will be continued at the Paramount; dual subsequent run features with added vaudeville on Sundays.

Cheerful news to theatre operators is contained in statistics given out by Russell E. Singer, general manager of American Automobile Ass'n, who predicted European situation will result in added vacation business for all New England, with tourist influx bringing an estimated $500,000,000 into the area. Rhode Island's share of this tourist business he placed at $28,000,000, of which $3,850,000 represents expenditures for amusements, including theatres.

Hugh F. Duffee, for six years a ticket taker at the old Albee before RKO took over that house, died at his home here . . . E. M. Loew's Drive-In here opened its fourth season, April 18, in a cold rain . . . John E. Nowlan's "Sunday Star Parade" stage shows at Metropolitan, is continuing to do big business with radio names headlining one-day bills.

Charles Kurtzman, new district manager for the Loew circuit, paid his first official visit to Providence, conferring with Resident Manager Ed McBride of the State . . . Assistant Manager Vaughn O'Neill of the State motored to Shamokin, Pa., to attend the funeral of his grandfather . . . Fire in the booth of the Playhouse resulted in the loss of only two reels of film.

Manager McBride of Loew's is planning a big campaign on "40 Little Mothers," opening May 3 . . . Manager George French and his publicist, Bill Morton, worked out a unique school contact on "Abe Lincoln," which follows "Primrose Path" into that house . . . Al Clarke of Carlton had a "traffic stopper" window in Postal Telegraph in connection with his holdover of "Young Tom Edison" . . . Shrine Circus, probably biggest competitor of year to local theatres, will again use Narragansett Park this season, with show scheduled for June 17 week.

HARTFORD

: NEW HAMPSHIRE :

THE Scenic in Rochester has been featuring hillbilly bands . . The stage of the State in Manchester, New Hampshire's largest theatre, was used each morning during the week of April 15 for the annual "Pageant of Foods" cooking school held by the Manchester Electric Appliance League and Manchester newspapers.

When "Rebecca" was shown at the State in Manchester, the management gave the picture its personal endorsement —the first time such approval has been announced in many a day. It was called "one of the finest pictures we have ever seen." Later, a holdover was announced.

Dr. Louis L. Gilman, president of the N. H. State Fair Association and the Rochester Fair Association, is dead in Rochester at the age of 76.

RKO Boston Cuts Stage Shows to Three Days

BOSTON—Ben Domingo cut stage shows at the RKO Boston to three-day weekly stands, beginning April 26. Flesh and films at the house, Boston's only de luxe theatre using footlights, have proved profitable during the past few years. Regular RKO policy is to go into straight films during the summer months.

Adapts Next for Ayers

HOLLYWOOD—Lew Ayres' next starring vehicle for Metro, "Night Operator," will be adapted by Ted Paramore for Producer Edgar Selwyn.

BRIDGEPORT

MANAGER MORRIS ROSENTHAL of the Majestic and his wife, Molly, are back from a week in Atlantic City . . . Matt L. Saunders and "Otto" Esposito of the Loew-Poli, and Fred H. Russell of the Bridgeport Post made the trip to Hartford to catch Eddie Cantor and prepare some publicity for his picture "40 Little Mothers," due here soon.

The switch from burlesque to legit at the Lyric was ill-starred and the house went dark a half-hour before the first attraction was scheduled to go on. Manager Lester Al Smith has gone to New York as press agent for the Lyceum . . . Manny Kugell of the Warner has been in New Haven lining up new pictures.

Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey is slated to play here June 29. The date is much later than usual for this stand . . . "Rebecca," held over for a week at the Majestic, was shifted to the Lyric for four additional days. This marks the first time in recent memory that a holdover has played its extra days in two houses.

Gene Jacobson, son of Morris Jacobson, general manager of the Strand Amusement Co., has been released from the hospital after an operation for appendicitis . . . Wesley Ruggles, Hollywood director, was a weekend visitor. He used to be married to Bridgeport's Arlene Judge.

Gilbert Miller, the producer, is house hunting in Westport . . . Samuel Haddelman, manager of the Capitol, is an ardent boxing fan . . . Alice Fox, secretary to Matt L. Saunders at the Loew-Poli, was a weekend visitor in Philadelphia.

Michael Carrol entertained the children of St. John's School at his American Theatre . . . Sheldon, son of Globe Manager Harry Rose, had the lead in his school play . . . William McDermitt is the new doorman at the Loew-Poli . . . The cross-country 20-mule team is scheduled to reach this city, May 15, and then go direct to New York.

Samuel Kuperstein, assistant manager at the Warner, is back from Boston where he attended the wedding of his sister . . . Dominick Dellarrocco has installed an inter-office telephone system connecting every department of his Strand Theatre . . . Jack Schwartz has launched a True Blue Ovenware deal at his West End.

The majority of boxoffices at the neighborhood theatres now have signs specifying that all children must have tickets . . . "Pinocchio" did the second best business in the history of the Warner. "Fighting 69th" is still tops.

Western Massachusetts Net for 1939 in Drop

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., Paramount affiliate operated by the Goldstein Bros., reports a net profit for 1939 of $11,139 in a financial statement filed with the state department of public utilities. This represents a sharp drop from the 1938 net of $59,915.

SPRINGFIELD

A NEW serial at the Broadway is "Terry and the Pirates" which is shown over weekends . . . Manager Al Anders' Bijou has changed opening dates to Friday for news films . . . Filmrow visitors were Harry F. Shaw, Lou Brown and Elliott Kronish, of Loew-Poli, New Haven.

Jack Foxe, Loew-Poli, is looking forward to the golf season, and Melvin Aronson, head usher at the Paramount, is all set for the baseball season.

Barbara Stone is the new candy girl at the Art . . . Lou Cohen, Loew-Poli, had a man-in-the-street ballyhoo for "My Son, My Son" . . . Robert McQuillen, Art usher, is sporting a new car.

Ill for a week was Mrs. Andy Sette, wife of the Capitol manager . . . The Forest Park Phillips has adopted a new policy, with doors opening for matinees at 1:30, with shows continuous on Saturdays and Sundays.

Raymond Cronin is now assistant manager at the Paramount, succeeding Gerald Germaine, who has been assigned the managership of the Calvin, Northampton . . . The recently-married Juanita Bocasch, Loew-Poli cashier, is now Mrs. F. W. Greene. She is continuing in the boxoffice at the Loew house.

Mother of Eleanor Coppage, cashier at the Warner, Worcester, is dead . . . Springfield exhibitors are glad to see George E. Freeman, Loew-Poli, back in town after an illness which kept him in a hospital bed in Manhattan . . . Louise Mace, motion picture reviewer for the Springfield Daily Republican, is now writing a daily column about theatres.

Nestor Auth Shifted to A New Post in Akron

NEW HAVEN—Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, announces the transfer of Nestor Auth, assistant at the Bijou, to the Loew's, Akron, Ohio.

Sal Demano, who was formerly at the Bijou and has been at the Loew's State, Boston, since last April, returns to the New Haven house as assistant.

Warner Globe in Clinton Opens After Remodeling

CLINTON, MASS.—Warner has opened the Globe, which has been dark since its acquisition by the circuit in 1930, after extensive modernization. The subsequent run will be on a full week operation schedule. L. Nordgren, former assistant at the Capitol, Everett, has been placed in charge.

Doorman to Trooper

CONCORD, N. H.—Bill McBain, the six foot four doorman at the Capitol here, has been succeeded by E. S. Roberts, former chief of staff. McBain has been named a trooper on the New Hampshire state police force.

PORTLAND

THE SALE of the Portland Playhouse on Elm Street by Harry M. Verrill, conservator of the Casco Mercantile Trust Co., recently, will occasion no change in its operations, according to Roscoe Phillips, the new owner.

Fred Eugley, operator of the Star, Westbrook, and Mrs. Eugley, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary April 17.

The Old Orchard Pier dance hall, operated by Howard Duffy, was to have opened April 20. The New Theatre, operated also by Duffy, in connection with the hall, will not be opened for a few weeks.

Filmrow visitors: Carl Divizia, RKO; Mike Kavanaugh, Paramount exploiteer out of Boston, here working on the "Cyclops" campaign put on by the State.

Report has it that Leon P. Gorham, operator of two local theatres and one in Lewiston, is constructing a 1,000-seater at Brewer, Me. . . . The Saco open-air theatre, the only one in Maine, is to be opening within a few weeks.

Unsettled conditions abroad is expected to swell the annual influx of tourists this year in Maine, Harrie B. Coe, "Maine ambassador of goodwill" who has been making a personal tour of the south, believes. He bases his opinion on the fact that the south has done a tremendous recreational business this winter, which is expected to mean, "a good summer's business in Maine."

Two Independents File Against Interstate

DALLAS—Two additional damage suits against Interstate Circuit, Inc., have been filed in federal court here by independent exhibitors, the action arising out of the minimum 25 cent admission and double bill restrictions in force about three years ago and with the U. S. supreme court upholding the trial court in an injunction against Interstate.

One suit was by H. N. Jorgensen, owner of the East Grand neighborhood theatre here, who asks damages and attorney fees totaling $77,000. He claims his patronage diminished because of the restrictions then in effect.

The second suit was filed against Interstate in Judge W. H. Atwell's federal court by Louis Richker and Mrs. Katie Richker, operators of the Gayety in Fort Worth. They claim damages of $27,000 because of the restrictions pointed out.

Pat S. Russell, Dallas attorney, and schooled in film and theatre matters, is retained in both cases. He indicated other suits in a series to follow, will be filed soon.

Columbia's Southern Sales Meet Switched to Dallas

DALLAS—Because of the Variety convention here, Abe Montague, general sales manager, switched Columbia's southern division sales convention from Atlanta to Dallas with the meetings being held Monday in the Baker Hotel. Product and plans for the year were discussed.

The meeting had no bearing on Columbia's national sales convention which will be held later as per schedule. Abe Montague and Rube Jackter, assistant general sales manager, conducted the conclave. Sam Moscow, southern division manager, was ill at his Atlanta home and unable to attend. Others present were the following branch managers: Walter Anderson, of Atlanta; H. Duvall, of New Orleans; J. J. Rogers, Memphis; C. A. Gibbs, Oklahoma City; R. J. Ingram, Charlotte, and J. B. Underwood, Dallas.

All but Montague were here throughout the Variety convention and all returned Monday night to their respective headquarters.

Talk Montague Drive In Atlanta Meeting

ATLANTA—Plans for the final weeks in the "Montague Fifteenth Anniversary Campaign" were discussed here in a meeting of Sam Moscow's Columbia district managers at the Ansley Hotel. Heading the conference were A. Montague, general sales manager, and Rube Jackter, his assistant.

Managers present with Moscow were W. W. Anderson, Atlanta; R. J. Ingram, Charlotte; J. B. Underwood, Dallas; J. J. Rogers, Memphis; C. A. Gibbs, Oklahoma City, and H. Duvall, New Orleans.

Optimistic, But There Were Lots of People

Dallas—The Chamber of Commerce, perhaps a trifle optimistic, but understandably so, estimated that more than 700,000 people witnessed the parade at the annual Variety Club convention here.

A Full Roster for Monogram Meet

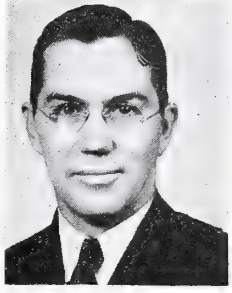
DALLAS—Home office officials, coast executives and franchise holders gathered here for the Monogram convention which followed immediately the national Variety Club convention.

Present from New York were W. Ray Johnston, president; Edward A. Golden, general sales manager; John S. Harrington, exchange operations manager; T. P. Loach, treasurer; Edward Schieber, assistant treasurer; Harry Thomas, eastern sales manager; George West, franchise holder for Cincinnati, St. Louis and Kansas City, and Harold Flavin, advertising production department.



From Hollywood: Scott R. Dunlap, production chief; George W. Weeks, producer; Edward Finney, producer; Tex Ritter, Max Terhune and Ray Corrigan, stars.

From the field: Ben Welansky and Steve Broidy, Boston; William Hurlbut, Detroit; John W. Mangham, Atlanta; John L. Franconi and Ed Blumenthal, Dallas; Lon T. Fidler, Denver; Nate Schultz, Cleveland; Nat Marcus, guest of Schultz; William Onie, Cincinnati; Sol J. Francis, Omaha; Harry Berkson, Buffalo; Forrest E. Judd, Des Moines; Charles Trampe, Oliver Trampe and Ray Smith, Milwaukee; Charles Weiner, Minneapolis; Carr Scott, Oklahoma City.

Present from the Dallas branch were W. J. Cammer, office manager; Connie Dreher, J. H. Gruben and Ed Blumenthal jr., salesmen, and Jean Finley, publicity.

Tyler C. of C. Elects S. G. Fry to Office

TYLER, TEX.—S. G. Fry, theatre owner and one of the city's fathers here, has been elected a vice-president of the Tyler chamber of commerce in charge of the trade extension department. He is a bank director, operates two theatres here and five within a radius of 40 miles. He has been active in civic affairs as an exhibitor, and upon assumption of his new office says he will increase this activity. His specific duty will be to bring new business to Tyler and help formulate ways and means of increasing the city's trading area.

Emphasize Variety Charity Angle

DALLAS—Special emphasis was placed on the humanitarian aspects of the Variety Clubs of America at the annual convention here last week, which was climaxed by a banquet in the Crystal Room of the Adolphus Hotel.

A motion picture showed the charity objectives of 22 Variety "tents" with the climax an announcement that the club will donate $400,000 this year to charity and humanitarian work.

The solemn moment of the banquet evening was the presentation of Variety's second annual humanitarian award to Martha Berry, 72-year-old founder of the Berry Schools in Georgia. Hers was the principal address of the evening and it succeeded in moving her audience to tears and laughter.

R. J. O'Donnell then took the microphone and began introducing a long list of visitors and notables. First was Barker Al Taylor of Columbus, Ohio, whom he called the oldest Barker in Variety. Then came Paul Short, vice-chairman of the entire convention, who was lauded for his work in making the affair as great a show as it turned out to be. Frank Capra was introduced by O'Donnell as the producer-director whose pictures have made the most money for theatres, the audience agreeing with rising and loud applause. He expressed his gratitude, and brought down the house when he addressed fellow men as "fellow thieves" and told them when they start chiseling on next year's contracts to remember what Martha Berry of Georgia told them.

Ezell Takes a Bow

Claude C. Ezell took a bow, O'Donnell saying Ezell was responsible for the establishing of Tent No. 17 in Dallas. The list continued for about 30 minutes when Lieutenant Governor Coke Stevenson formally welcomed all Variety members to Dallas on behalf of the state. Mayor Woodall Rogers gave the official welcome to Dallas. Both speakers warmly praised Karl Hoblitzelle and O'Donnell as citizens.

Lieutenant Governor Albert Anderson brought greetings from his state, Minnesota. Former Attorney General William McGraw of Texas made his best after-dinner talk, which included political pot shots and a quip or two about the industry and the Neely bill. He said Capra was cited as the producer of money-making pictures and that he made one "which almost put the rest of you boys out of business." The speaker continually had the entire audience in roars of laughter.

He introduced his candidate, Gracie Allen, who made her much-publicized opening address for the presidential nomination. She didn't know what John L. Lewis said about John Garner but wished he had said it about her. She complimented Texas on its 265,000 square miles and said she would work out a set of figures to show that theatres make money when they lose it. This went on and on until George Burns stepped up and joined her in a typical radio skit.

Seek a Writ Against City Tax Collection

MORRILTON, ARK. — The Malco circuit, operator of the Rialto here, has filed suit in chancery court asking that the city be restrained from enforcing ordinances which provide for a city theatre tax and also an ordinance which would limit the number of theatres one firm may operate in the city.

The city council passed an ordinance last October providing for an annual tax of 40 cents per seat on all chairs in excess of 300. The complaint charged that such an ordinance is void because the fee is unreasonable, discriminatory and based on income.

Another ordinance in March provides that no license shall be granted to any person, firm, corporation or association of persons to operate more than one film house in the city of Morrilton.

The complaint, it is said, charges that the ordinance is unconstitutional.

Character in McCarthy Film Results in Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY—Showing of Charlie McCarthy's latest picture, "Charlie McCarthy, Detective" at two local houses in January has resulted in the filing of a $50,000 suit in district court here by Fozie Rahal, editor and publisher of the magazine, Tomorrow, published here. However, it was another character in the picture who caused all the trouble, according to the petition.

Rahal charges that a character in the picture known as Arthur Aldridge, who is editor and publisher of a magazine called Tomorrow, was portrayed as a "despicable character who associated with gangsters and racketeers."

Rahal claims Universal was on the mailing list of his magazine and had received several copies. He alleged that use of the magazine name was unprivileged and that the picture showed "vicious characterization of the editor."

Named as defendants are the Universal Film Exchange, Inc.; Standard Theatres Corp.; Walter B. Shutte, manager of Standard; Jack Swiger, manager of the Midwest, and Robert Busch, manager of the Plaza.

New Oklahoma City House To Be Ready in 30 Days

OKLAHOMA CITY—Work on the newest local suburban theatre, on North Pennsylvania Ave., will be completed within 30 days, W. H. Schumacher, architect, announces.

The $25,000 theatre will have a floor plan new to the southwest—one that slants downward from the back and rises slightly at the front of the theatre.

Built on property owned by Oscar Fisher, the new theatre has been leased to Nelson N. Clabaugh and James Boyle for ten years. It will have a seating capacity of approximately 450.

: VARIETY VAGARIES :

By A. JULES BENEDIC

VISCOSITY at Variety was high. Some vagrant vascillations: Duke Evans of the Dallas poster company of that name was high man on western dress. Runners up were Harold Robb, local circuit exhibitor, and Eph Charninsky, ditto from San Antonio. Duke and Eph affected Mexican habiliment; Harold was an out-and-out Indian. Buddy Harris, exhibitor from Celina and Midlothian, in the Lone Star State, and a rare specimen of the genus homo pondorosa, was another startling Pancho Villa, but Buddy has won so many prizes with his gauche gaucho get-up that he virtually stepped down in favor of his confreres.

Dallas newspapers played up attending big shots. They apparently forgot unassuming Roy Martin, Columbus, Ga., showman, who ran a shoestring into a 90*-theatre operation . . . The roster is too long to mention all . . . Outstanding in this reviewer's mental notes, however, is the hard work put in by Lloyd Rust and B. C. (Hoot) Gibson, indefatigables, and this doesn't detract from the prodigious effort put forth by Big Boss Bob O'Donnell and his many cohorts . . . Dallas affair biggest to date, barkers and lesser satellites agreed.*

Homer Mulkey, Clarendon, Tex., showman, on hand early for the big doin's . . . Shoemaker, et al., missed the usual weekly hearts session; too much doing at Tent 17 headquarters . . . Speaking of pasteboards that were invented for a crazy monarch, one exhibitor lost a cool 5 c's at a poker session the first night of the confab . . . After 25 years, this reviewer renewed friendship with Charley Casanave of National Screen. Much water over the dam in that quarter century . . . Pistols popped in hotel lobbies, on the streets or what have you? All good, clean fun that some 300,000 Dallasites enjoyed thoroughly . . . Ben Shlyen shaking hands with Gideon Howell. They hadn't met for years . . . Weather was perfect for the confab.

Even the poster clerks were pressed into service on convention details. Thousands of photos were snapped. Movie stars mobbed by autograph-seeking public . . . John Rosenfield, Dallas News critic, moved to superlatives for one of the few times in his hard-boiled career. John opined that the Dallas set-up made it too hard for any other one city to seek the 1941 meeting. (As it now stands, however, Atlantic City will be the setting, with Pittsburgh and a few other cities as joint hosts) . . . Texans gathered from far and near. From the lower Valley to Dalhart, they were here in droves.

Western garb affected by 90 per cent of attendants. Those who didn't bring boots and spurs, sombreros or flaming 'kerchiefs, purchased the needed articles at The Adolphus, headquarters. One New York bigwig spent 40 clams on a pair of boots alone . . . Leslie Wilkes and the Missus, with Bill Finch partnering, did a lively business in belts, guns, holsters and the like . . . George Dembow, reminded, says: "Won't they ever forget that Atlanta fracas?" . . . Ed Kuykendall and Col. H. A. Cole, presidents, respectively, of the rival MPTOA-Allied camps, exchanging friendly greetings . . . H. A. (Windy) Daniels and his charming wife, from down Crystal City way, beaming about too many friends . . . Literally thousands of dollars were poured into the Variety coin machines, but it was all in the name of sweet, sweet charity.

Duke Evans and aides collected 15 grand or more for Variety in that elaborate program . . . BOXOFFICE'S extra on postponement of the government suit attracted wide attention . . . Bob Smith, big shot Valley independent, and Bill Chesher, Littlefield movie mogul, on hand early and late. Their spots are 'way over 1,000 miles apart, but both operate in Texas. Yes, it's a rather large state . . . An enterprising conventioneer promoted a private elevator for that trick mule, who hoofed it directly into Tent 17 headquarters. (A gag missed fire. The burro was to have been introduced to Kuykendall as an Allied director, and to Cole as an MPTOA ditto) . . . Drugstores had a run on headache tablets. There was plenty of sarsaparilla and ginger beer on hand, from all reports.

Johnny Long, south Texas circuit operator, breezed in from Bay City . . . Mart Cole, a ditto, also very much in evidence . . . Sidney Lust from Washington-way shaking hands a-plenty . . . Ditto for George and Sam Dembow . . . Ted Lewis, sprightly independent exhibitor from Texarkana, another glad-hander . . . And the fun's not over. As this is written, men of Monogram are meeting at The White-Plaza; another convention for Dallas, favored city of the southwest!

Oklahoma Variety Club Gets Charter June 3

OKLAHOMA CITY—Tent No. 22 here, of Variety Clubs of America, will be formally presented with its charter June 3 in ritual ceremonies performed by national chief barker, John Harris. L. C. Griffith is chief barker of No. 22 which is the newest club to organize.

Many from the Oklahoma club were down in Dallas for the three days of conventioneering.

The Guests Were Recorded in Gold

Dallas—A real feature in connection with the Variety banquet, was the voluminous souvenir program executed by Duke Evans and Ray Beall and produced by Evans Printing & Poster Co., with Rupard Evans supervising the mechanics.

It contained several thousand dollars worth of advertising. Contents were in color and the volume was bound in a leather cover on which the name of each guest was printed in gold.

JOE SCHMIDT, managing Roy Martin's Ritz at Valdosta, Ga., is to be married in the near future to Clara Hodnette of Atmore, Ala., where Joe was stationed before he was transferred to Valdosta. Best wishes, Joe.

Spent a pleasant, if short, visit with R. A. Wooley, who acts as supervisor of McLendon's three houses in southwest Alabama. He looks after the Rex at Bay Minette, the Fairhope at Fairhope, which is managed by Eddie Tomblin, and the Foley at Foley, managed by Gene Gohlson. The Fairhope is being redecorated, and the Foley is being given a face lifting.

Visited Ricardo Montiel at the Saenger in Mobile and listened to him tell about the new granddaughter. Walked around to the Crown to say hello to an old friend in the person of Irvin Ward Stienman, who came to Mobile from Baton Rouge.

Clayton Hauschild, who manages the Anderson at Gulfport, Miss., for Saenger, is doing a column for a weekly paper, the Dixie Guide, known as "Theatre Chatter."

W. J. Ray, owner of the Ritz at Greenville, Ala., celebrated the closing of the hunting season by knocking off a 21-pound wild turkey. That's what I call putting meat on the table.

Hayward Hanna of the Pix at Evergreen, Ala., was busy preparing for his annual anniversary week during which he has special entertainment and prizes for his patrons. Got a bid from him to a Rotary luncheon, but couldn't accept. Was grateful nonetheless, Hanna.

Ernest Outlaw of the Ritz at Brewton, Ala., is a pretty busy guy these days. He is president of the local Lions and has a finger in most of the enterprises that affect the well being of his town. He is really a hardworking fellow.

Howard Shedd of the Strand at Atmore, Ala., has in his employ the only non-professional girl football player in existence in the person of Miss Luverne Wise.

Sammie Jackson, who owns and operates the Jackson at Flomaton, Ala., is remodeling and repainting his theatre. He also reports that business is picking up in his section.

T. M. Baggett and son Max, in addition to operating the Camden at Camden, Ala., run the town's power plant. So if they don't come to the show, he is in a position to cut off their radios.

A. L. Morgan of Georgiana, Ala., is another busy fellow. In addition to managing the Ga-Ana there, he helms the Ritz at Brantley, Ala. Had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Morgan and the young son.

Bought some gas from an old friend at Selma, Ala., in the person of Claude Jacks, who formerly managed the Wilby for Alabama Theatres.

Took a peek at J. E. Williams' new theatre at Linden, Ala., which he recently constructed. It seats 300 down and 150 in the balcony. The house is called the Dianne and is named for his 21-month-old daughter. Her picture is carried on the front of his programs. He is also the local agent for the railroad.

D. R. Reagan, who operates Selma's colored theatre, after operating three days a week for the past few months, will go to full time operation.

J. A. Hooks, the younger of the Hooks brothers who operate several theatres in east Alabama, reports new equipment has been installed at their Sumter, York, Ala.

Roger Butler, who manages the Wilby at Selma, Ala., informs that Jimmy Pepper of the State, Kingsport, Tenn., and Julian Welsh, Bonnie Kate, Elizabethton, Tenn., will visit their folks at Selma.

Seen around were Archie Dainwood of the Marengo at Demopolis, Ala., and W. C. McCurdy, who owns the Santa Rosa at Jay, Fla.

Drove up to see Bill Hendrix at Monroeville, Ala., the other night but found he had gone to Atlanta to buy an automobile. Was entertained by his sister, Dot, who told me they were installing a new screen and had just completed a new modernistic front and marquee.

A Censor Board Bill Up in Mississippi

JACKSON, MISS.—A bill has been introduced in the Mississippi legislature to establish a state board of film censors.

The board, appointed by the governor, would pass on all pictures to be shown in the state, or accept the rating of the Congress of Censor Boards. It would have authority to license or ban pictures. Violations of the board's rulings would be punishable by fines of $25 to $300 for first offenses and $300 to $500 for each additional offense.

Also on the calendar was a bill to levy a special $100 per day tax on picture shows on cash awards or similar occasions when prizes were offered—whether anybody won the prize or not.

Atlanta Paramount Cuts Night Price 10 Cents

ATLANTA—Lucas & Jenkins has effected a slight revision in the Paramount admission scale and is contemplating realignment of the opening days for the Capitol's stage shows. The Atlanta scale has been dropped from a top of 40 cents to 30 cents at night. The house, at third run, had been charging the same as Loew's Grand, but had been experiencing difficulty in respect to availability of product.

If it is possible to reach an agreement with booking agencies over the routing of shows, the Capitol will open new stage shows Fridays for three days. The arrangement is viewed as being more desirable than the present three-day booking that begins Sundays.

G. A. Cole Sells Out in Fort Stockton to OK

DALLAS—G. A. Cole, former operator of the Cole at Fort Stockton and who has been on the Row for the past few days, reports he has sold the Cole Building to OK Theatres (Oskar Korn circuit) and that he will move the equipment to an as yet unknown location. OK operates the Grant in Fort Stockton.

Cole's wife died recently following a long illness.

Texas Aggies Up Film Demands

College Station, Tex.—The some 6,000 students of Texas A&M College here who three weeks ago began an active campaign to obtain films day-and-date with Bryan, five miles away, are now demanding film product "without availability restrictions whatever."

Meanwhile, Aggie spokesmen insist the entire student body will continue to boycott Bryan theatres until their demands are met by distributors. Considerable sentiment for the students is reported crystallizing in Bryan, particularly among the merchants who profit from them.

M. S. White Captures Burglar at His Home

FORT WORTH—M. S. White, owner of the new White Theatre here, captured a burgler who was making away with several of his suits. Arriving at home late from the show, White saw a man entering a window and gave him time to get well in the house. He borrowed a neighbor's shotgun and went in after the intruder, who was marched down under a corner arc light. The wagon was called and police took a gun off the prowler.

R&R Chain Buys a Site For Unit in Crockett

DALLAS—Don C. Douglas of the R&R circuit says the company has purchased from the city of Crockett the lot on which the Auditorium stood, and that a theatre would soon be constructed on the property. The Auditorium burned to the ground a few days ago. The Crockett theatres are owned jointly by Mrs. E. J. Callahan and R&R.

GENE LACY, manager of the Drive-In Theatre near Corpus Christi, was in town negotiating for product there and for Houston where his company has a second such project under construction.

A. Jules Benedic, speed merchant, who in the teens wrote a trade paper column under the moniker, "A Jay Bee," one time film salesman and formerly connected with BOXOFFICE, is now making a wide territory scouring for news and offering exhibitors a direct opportunity to pass in their subscription renewals. For the moment Benedic is around and about the Houston territory.

Attention Don Douglas and all others interested. When in and around the Adolphus Hotel you can now purchase your favorite brand of cigar, sayeth "Florine," former Filmrowite who dispenses smokes at the cigar stand in that guest house. Florine used to handle the money in Filmrow's one time leading restaurant, now she greets film people on their way to the Variety Club.

Frank Benson, partner in and manager of the theatres at Bowie, was along the Row with J. B. Stout, house manager of two shows in Nocona. Both are connected with the Lutzer Bros. circuit. Incidentally, Frank did buy that monkey we spoke about recently. The animal works the Bowie lobbies every now and then.

H. Ford Taylor, Ritz, at Ballinger, was here Tuesday shaking hands with many friends. He said the grain crop out his way is good, that other conditions are good, which put him in line to buy and book pictures. Over a period of a few years Taylor operated theatres in many Texas situations, but when he went in Ballinger about three years ago he said that was his last move.

W. A. (Andy) Mauldin, who still lives at Lubbock although he forsook show business for his first love, furniture, was along the Row Tuesday . . . Two busy people were Sam Hyman and Al Johnson, of the Jackson at Jacksonville, lining up product through May. Hyman built the fine Jackson building and Johnson is the manager.

R. A. Gill, Cartex at Carthage, was here checking up on dates and looking over a few items of equipment . . . C. J. Otts, who owns the Palace at Royse City, set in a month's booking Monday.

R. W. Simpson, partner in the Palace at Paducah and other theatres, and an ardent fisherman, will soon try out the lakes in Minnesota, on a double bill trip. First he gets a physical checkup at Mayo's and then goes after exclusive brands of fish.

The new building for Herber Bros., next to Paramount, is completed and the big job of moving is within a few days.

Col. H. A. Cole, national Allied prexy, returned to Dallas Wednesday after a quick trip to Washington.

During the convention, Gracie Allen, while escorted though the lobby of the Adolphus, walked up to a poster which screamed Garner for president. She tarried long enough to say to the poster, "One of us has got to move on."

O. C. Easter, former owner of the Peak here which he sold a few years ago to P. G. Cameron, visited the Row the other day. He hails from Corpus now and is engaged in real estate on his own. He renewed his BOXOFFICE for a year just to keep in touch.

R. I. (Rip) Condron, who recently sold his theatre at Forney, went down into the Valley this week where he hopes to open a new theatre situation soon.

Clinton Bailey, who reopened the Cona at Nacona recently, dropped by Monday to start his subscription to BOXOFFICE.

Leniency on Juvenile Admissions Grows

MONTREAL—The motion picture industry in the province of Quebec is rejoicing over the gradual fulfilment of its expectations in regard to a more lenient attitude towards the admission of children to theatres. For over ten years, youngsters under sixteen have been banned from the theatres. The measure was passed following the fire in the Laurier Palace here in which 76 children lost their lives. The measure was supposed to be for the protection of their lives and limbs, but under the late Union-Nationale government headed by Premier Maurice Duplessis, the physical side was subordinated to the moral, and children were excluded from all theatres on the ground that the pictures shown would injure their morals. The Roman Catholic clergy fought strongly for the retention of the ban which is still in existence, although being modified.

Under the regime of Premier Duplessis children who were able to attend the Palace in Montreal were permitted to see "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," but when other theatres concluded that they also were permitted to admit children to see "Snow White" they found that the concession applied only to the one house, and that smaller theatres who admitted children were promptly prosecuted and heavily fined.

Advent of the Liberal government headed by Premier Adelard Godbout witnessed a more tolerant attitude on the part of provincial officialdom. Although the juvenile exclusion law still is on the statute books, children have been permitted to attend showings of "Gulliver's Travels," "Pinocchio" and "Young Tom Edison," the last-named now running at Loew's. Still more beneficial to the industry is the fact that not only the first-run Montreal theatre, but all theatres in the province have been permitted to show these pictures to children if they could obtain them, always provided that suitable secondary or supporting films were used.

Trend of Employment Is Watched by Theatremen

OTTAWA—Theatre operators are watching with interest the trend of employment and manufacturing operations in the Dominion because of the effect that industrial developments will have upon patronage. War conditions and munition contracts are having a direct bearing upon the situation, of course.

According to government figures, marked improvement in employment was recorded in the first two months of 1940, the number of direct relief recipients throughout the country showing a decline of 264,528 or 27.1 per cent as compared with the previous year. The number of unemployed wage-earners at the end of February was 387,000, a decline of 104,000 from the total of 491,000 on the corresponding date of 1939. Manufacturing plants showed acceleration in operations for the 1940 period, the index rising 30 per cent to 140.5.

Dominion Gains 27 Theatres in 1939

TORONTO—A preliminary report on theatres in the Dominion shows the number of houses in operation at the end of 1939 was 1,251, as compared with 1,224 at the close of 1938, this being a net increase of 27.

Practically the entire increase was the result of openings of new theatres, a relatively large number of which were constructed during the first six months of 1939. With the declaration of war in September, the building race came to an abrupt close with rival interests calling a halt to construction enthusiasm although various theatres continue to open in smaller centers, particularly in Ontario.

Famous Players recently completed the Palace at Guelph, Ont., and the chain is engaged in the erection of the new Seneca at Niagara Falls, but construction plans by the circuit are largely restricted to the modernization of older units. Incidentally, the operation of the Palace at Guelph has been disrupted by a disagreement with the operators' union.

The Century, a suburban house of the B&F circuit in Toronto, a subsidiary of Famous Players, has been reopened after extensive alterations and improvements including a new front and remodeled lobby. The College, a Famous Players unit in Toronto, was also reopened recently after remodeling and the installation of new seats.

Tax Extensions May Cover Wider Commodity Range

TORONTO—An extension of the eight per cent sales tax and the special excise tax of three per cent to cover a greater range of Canadian-made commodities and imports is anticipated at the session of the new Canadian Parliament which opens May 16.

There is a belief the special levies will be applied to films imported from the United Kingdom which now enjoys exemption and also on various advertising accessories and supplies. This move, among others, is expected to be taken by the government in order to secure additional revenue for war purposes.

Two Meetings for F-P Canadian Managers

TORONTO—Announcement has been made by Famous Players Canadian Corp. that two annual managers' conferences will be held this summer in place of the national convention such as was held last July at Niagara Falls, Ont.

The conference for western Canada is scheduled to be held during the three days commencing Tuesday, July 30, at Jasper, Alberta, which is in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. This meeting will be attended by the managers in the districts supervised by E. A. Zorn of Winnipeg and Calgary and by L. I. Bearg of Vancouver.

Head office officials who are to attend the western conference include President N. L. Nathanson, Vice-President J. J. Fitzgibbons, Comptroller R. W. Bolstad and B. Geldsaler, supervisor of the booking department.

The eastern convention is scheduled to open two weeks later for three days, August 12-14, with a full turnout of theatre representatives from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. The locale of the eastern meeting has not been announced but there are suggestions that the gathering be held in Toronto or in the Muskoka Lake district.

A reorganization has taken place in the territory allotted to district managers in the Province of Ontario. The northern cities of Sudbury, North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie have been transferred to the area supervised by Jack Arthur, former manager of the Toronto Uptown, who was promoted to supervisor of western Ontario theatres some months ago. Dan Krendal, who was recently transferred from the Toronto Tivoli to the Capitol at Hamilton, Ont., has been made city manager for Hamilton and has been placed in charge of theatres in the Niagara Peninsular, including the cities of St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and Welland.

Remodels Star in Unity

UNITY, SASK.—S. Stone is extensively remodeling his Star here. House is being refloored and redecorated and a new air-conditioning system will be installed.

TORONTO

TOP OF THE column honors this week go to Ralph Dale of Famous Players headoffice who had a birthday. Various associates and friends cooked up a grand day for him with repeated telephone calls during which greetings in the form of "Happy Birthday to You" were sung by alleged telegraph company employes who utilized every tone from basso-profundo to falsetto. For revenge Dale has challenged all and sundry to a round of golf at the Glen Mawr Club for unlimited stakes and is already hard at practice between lingering snowdrifts.

Speaking of summer activities, Frank Fisher, Ontario manager of Empire Films, and Mrs. Fisher, who is one of the top-ranking players of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, had their first go on the courts on April 20 in preparation for a heavy campaign in both singles and doubles. Mrs. Fisher captured all titles in eastern Canada last year with the exception of the Canadian open in which she was unable to compete.

Back from the winter resorts: T. J. Bragg, secretary-treasurer of Famous Players, and Mrs. Bragg have returned from Daytona Beach while Ben Geldsaeler, supervisor of booking, and Mrs. Geldsaeler have come back from Miami. Sam Ulster, proprietor of the Embassy, Toronto, has sent word that he will return from Florida on May 5 but Jake Smith, owner of the Revue and Cum-C theatres, is once more in local circulation. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fitzgibbons and daughter are still holidaying at Hot Springs, Ark.

After getting the College all modernized and refitted, Manager M. Margolius staged a birthday party for himself on April 25 and also in collaboration with Manager Jack Purves of the Village, in Forest Hill Village, who observed his natal day this month. H. C. Merritt, manager of the Palace, Windsor, also saw the passing of another year a few days ago.

Wedding Bells: Gordon Ball of the Famous Players' audit department has married Miss Lenore Peck of Toronto and the new home has a handsome radio which was presented by R. W. Bolstad in behalf of the headoffice staff . . . Wedding warnings: Miss Peggy Sparling of Famous Players has announced her engagement to Louis Christie who hails from the Atlantic Seaboard. Dave Goodman, manager of the Oriole, has announced his betrothal to Miss S. Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mort Levy of Toronto. There is no connection, but the Oriole was robbed for a second time in recent months and two arrested youths have confessed to these and other crimes.

Casualties on the home front: Manager Sid Scott of the Capitol, Sudbury, has been seriously ill in St. Joseph's Hospital in the northern Ontario mining city . . . General Manager Leo M. Devaney of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada is reported out of danger following his operation for appendicitis . . . A. E. Sanderson, chief accountant of Associated Theatres, is taking a continued rest to recuperate from his operation for the same complaint . . . Manager Al Perley has returned to the Kenwood fully recovered from an operation in General Hospital.

Trade movements: John Grierson, Dominion Film Commissioner, is reported to be on his way back from Australia, which means that Col. John A. Cooper will be able to relinquish his temporary duties with the Canadian government and call a halt to the weekly trips to Ottawa . . . Harry Paynter, assistant general sales manager of Empire Films, has been spending ten days in Montreal; James Foy is on a trip as far as Vancouver for Sovereign Films; Haskell Masters, general manager of United Artists, has returned to Toronto from a flying trip to the Pacific Coast; Jack Hunter, Ontario manager of Paramount Film Service, recently made a trip to the Ottawa Valley; Sam Brint of Universal spent a couple of days in western Ontario; Jim Davidson, now with Colonial Pictures, Ltd., has made extensive trips to several different sections of Ontario.

Visitors on Filmrow: Don Stapleton of the Centre, Ottawa, has made two trips to Toronto in quick succession; Mr. and Mrs. A. d'Honde of the Imperial, Delhi, consulted with a number of bookers and exchange managers, and Warner Payne dropped in from the Capitol at Listowell, Ont. . . . Troops are in training at Listowell and business has become stimulated with the result that Payne now is changing programs three times weekly instead of twice. Stapleton's Ottawa Baseball Club, the Senators, is operating again this season despite the use of Lansdowne Park for military purposes.

Jack Arthur, Famous Players' district manager, used all his spare time for the producing of a show for the troops stationed in the Toronto barracks. The whole program was aired over the network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Manager Lloyd Mills of the Elgin, Ottawa, is all aglow over the playing of "Rebecca" for four weeks. Manager Fred Trebilcock also reports big business for three weeks with the same picture at the Uptown while Manager Bob Eves scored another achievement with a run of three weeks at the Eglinton with "Four Just Men."

Changes in personnel: William Smith, formerly with the Ontario office of Universal, has been appointed to the sales staff of Warner Bros. here . . . Ben Borlak, former manager of the Paradise, has taken over the management of the College at Brantford, Ont., which he has leased . . . A. Edinson, formerly manager of the Avenue, has been appointed manager of the Century in Grand Rapids, Mich., a Butterfield unit.

Exploitation: Manager W. K. Trudell of the Capitol, London, Ont., organized a tie up with local merchants in newspaper advertisements for "The Sidewalks of London" which fitted in nicely with the Canadian city of the same name. Trudell also sponsored a contest for the naming of nine features identified with streets of the Empire capital.

Voice Opposition to Slot-Machine Films

TORONTO—Formal opposition to the introduction of slot-machine films in Canada as new opposition to licensed theatres has been voiced by a committee of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario consisting of Ben Ulster and Harold Kay. Intimation has been made that the independents would seek organized means to restrict the coin projectors in places other than theatres through application for legislation providing for a substantial tax on a yearly basis.

It was pointed out that Toronto by-laws include provision for an annual license fee of $5 on a slot machine, but this enactment is a dead letter because of a legal technicality. The committee has brought the operation of motion picture machines in restaurants and arcades under the jurisdiction of the theatres inspection branch of the provincial government which controls all theatres and places of amusement.

James Foy Inspecting Sovereign Exchanges

TORONTO—James I. Foy, general manager of Sovereign Film Distributors, Ltd., is making a tour of inspection of the company's recently established chain of branch offices in western Canada as far as Vancouver where Joseph Archer, for many years with Canadian Universal, is in charge. J. DeVree is the manager at Winnipeg and also has supervision of the branch at Calgary.

Theatre in Terminal

MONTREAL—Plans for a contemplated $500,000 motor bus terminal in Quebec City, which are under consideration by transport companies, include a six-story building containing a theatre, offices and stores

EDMONTON

AS a former president of the famous Regina Pats hockey team, L. C. Straw, manager of the Empress, entertained the members of the Regina Abbotts team which recently visited Edmonton during the junior hockey playoffs.

Theatre bowling clubs here are nearing the end of the season, which according to Manager L. C. Straw, has been one of the most successful. As the competitions draw to a close, the Roxy and Entwistle Paint shop teams are in the lead.

A theatrical visitor recently in Edmonton was Rupert Lucas, well known on London and New York stages. He visited the city during a tour of western Canadian cities on promotion work for the CBC dramatic programs. "Talkies have done away with professional drama except in the few very large cities," declared Mr. Lucas, "and radio is replacing this absence."

Annual Rose Show Exhibitor's Hobby

EDMONTON—July 29 and 30 are the dates set for the Capitol's eighth annual rose show held under the management of Walter Wilson.

Increasing in popularity every year and a show in which over 2,000 of the city and district's finest blooms are on display, this feature is one of the highlights during the summer season in the city.

Himself an enthusiastic rose grower, Walter Wilson started the show eight years ago and with each passing year more blooms are entered for competition while the steady improvement of the class of flowers entered reveals that it has aided not a little in the development of rose growing among Edmonton gardeners.

In addition to the distribution of free booklets on the cultivation of roses, as well as special arrangements for securing rose bushes, Manager Wilson gives each spring regular radio addresses on the care of roses.

No entry fee is charged contestants in the show while over $100 is offered in prizes. Dozens of varieties which are divided into classes are to be seen at the show each year. Judges include leading horticulturists.

Thrift Books Going Over, Famous Players Reports

TORONTO—The sale of thrift tickets, in the form of coupon booklets with admissions at quantity prices, has enjoyed substantial success at theatres of the Famous Players chain, according to general reports. Sixteen houses here are offering the admissions which figure out at 11 tickets for the price of ten and include books of ten-cent tickets for juveniles at the rate of 11 for $1. A special newspaper advertising campaign and theatre posters have helped to put it across while a number of managers have installed ticket selling booths in the lobby.

Don Gauld Honor Guest At Farewell Function

TORONTO—Don Gauld of the Metropolitan, Winnipeg, who has been named supervisor of Toronto suburban theatres of the Famous Players Canadian Corp., was guest of honor at a farewell function by associates and friends in Winnipeg.

There has been some consideration of redistribution of the zones of circuit district managers, it is intimated, but a final decision has not been made. One angle to the situation has been the illness of Clarence M. Robson, eastern supervisor of theatres and one of the originals of the company.

Nuptials Near

WINDSOR—Ralph Bartlett, assistant manager of the Tivoli, is said to have won a June 8 wedding date with a girl named Betty.

MONTREAL

B E. NORRISH, managing director of Associated Screen News, has appointed H. H. Donnelly purchasing agent for the company. Donnelly has been associated with ASN for a number of years, and until his new appointment was connected with the commercial photography department.

Following completion of the return visit of "Gone With the Wind" which enabled a large number of Montrealers who missed the film at Loew's to make good the omission, His Majesty's Theatre will revert April 30 to stage shows with the presentation by Katharine Cornell and the Playwrights' Company of Behrman's "No Time for Comedy."

Joe Lightstone, proprietor, and W. Proulx, manager of the Orpheum, are congratulating themselves on the choice of "Rebecca" as a spring feature. The film now is in its fifth week at the Orpheum.

Roger Lachapelle will temporarily replace B. H. Lovell as manager of the Maska, St. Hyacinth. Lovell left the Maska to take over management of the Granada, United Amusement Corp. theatre at Sherbrooke.

According to a survey made by Canadian Legion War Services, the motion picture is the most popular form of entertainment with the boys of the Canadian Active Service Force. The Legion is sponsoring nightly shows for the men at headquarters and in their various billets.

Word has been received here that two more British film studios, Beaconsfield and Sound City, closed since the outbreak of war, will reopen . . . Sir John Reith, British minister of information, former head of the BBC, previewed "Squadron 992," produced by the Ministry of Information, in which an air raid over the Forth Bridge is pictured. It is described by Seton Margrave, noted film critic, as "one of the best examples of filmcraft since the war began."

Newsreel crews of ASN are kept busy supplying the avid demand for shots of Canada's war activities. Roy Tash, at St. Thomas, and Arnold Hague at Vancouver, both pictured air force operations. Frank O'Byrne, manager of Associated Screen News, Toronto, visited the head office in Montreal.

West-end residents attending Loew's recognized many familiar faces when the newsreel, "Canada Votes," showed scenes in local polling stations where votes were cast under the supervision of Mrs. Muriel Clark, Montreal West; Henry Robertson, Hampstead, and Jack Holdship, Notre Dame de Grace.

Belmont Park, outdoor amusement center, which includes a film theatre, will open for the summer May 18. Advance bookings of picnic dates for this riverside park, are said to be the heaviest in its history.

Eugene Maynard, manager of the Savoy and Outremont theatres, is feeling justifiably proud these days. He is being complimented all around on a reference made to the Savoy by President Tabah of the Confederation Amusements, Ltd., who in his annual address to shareholders, attributed the company's very successful year in large part to the income received from the company's half share in the Savoy which has turned out to be one of the biggest money makers in the Montreal district.

Dominion Theatre, of which S. Vezina is manager, was the scene of the annual midnight show given by the Confederation and United Amusement Theatres bowling league to wind up the season. The program presented by such eminent French-Canadian radio stars as Henri Letendal, Arthur Lefebvre, Alain Gravel and Mademoiselle Pierrette Alarie, attracted a full house.

Weather Concern May Be Cause of Slump

REGINA—With spring late in arriving despite one of the most open winters this province has enjoyed, theatres are undergoing a business slump for which no one can find a substantial reason.

With everything practically depending on the climate, it is likely that the slump is due to uncertainty about the crop season. There was no fall moisture and consequently no frost in the ground this spring. The result is that many farmers are already seeding as soon as the snow goes from the soil, hoping the crop will find enough surface moisture to germinate. Heavy spring rains are needed to ensure growth and a win over the grasshopper hordes which thrive on dry weather. Should the rains come, then the theatres, in common with everything else, will boom, as farmers visualize a big price for their wheat owing to war conditions.

Two New Theatres Are Planned for Edmonton

EDMONTON—Estimates for theatre activity in the city this year have reached a total of $60,000, according to reports released by Edmonton architects. A further $3,000 will be spent in renovating the Jasper Park.

Following closely on the heels of an announcement that a $25,000 theatre would be built on Edmonton's south side comes the release of plans for a second house, also to be erected on the south side at an estimated cost of $35,000. It will be constructed by the city syndicate now owning and operating the Avenue on the north side. Excavation has commenced on both theatres.

Architect in charge of the former is W. G. Blakely, while the firm of Rule, Wynn & Rule, also Edmonton architects, is in charge of the Avenue as well as the alterations to the Jasper Park.

Adapting "River's End"

HOLLYWOOD—Patterson McNutt is adapting "River's End" for Warner.

SASK'WAN

AFTER BEING banned across Canada through requests of the French minister to Canada some months ago, the picture "Beau Geste" has been approved for showings in Saskatchewan by the provincial cabinet. Dave Brickman, manager of Paramount's Winnipeg office, and Bill Novak, manager of the Capitol, Regina, where the picture first plays, conducted the negotiations leading to release of the picture.

Harry Phillett has been named manager of the Regal Films office at Calgary, succeeding J. Meyers, who has left the company. Phillett was previously a salesman at the Winnipeg office.

The Lyric, Swift Current, got a plug in the Swift Current Sun when Jack Lunholm spotted Chick Chandler in "Missing Evidence" and recalled he was a nephew of a local citizen; that Chick's father founded and became first superintendent of the New York state police, and his mother had visited Swift Current.

Manager Harry Brooks of the Auditorium, Indian Head, tied in with the Citizens' Band's efforts to raise funds to carry on in spite of the war by turning over part of the proceeds from a two-day picture show and band concert.

When the "Blue Bird" was shown at the Strand, Prince Albert, a neat tie-in was made by Manager W. P. Mahon with Eilers' Ltd., jewelers, to give away a Blue Bird Diamond in a draw from tickets purchased during the six-day showing . . . The Lyric and Eagle theatres, Swift Current, will be hidden behind sandbags and other warlike paraphernalia in July when the Kinetic Club stage their annual celebration. "Home Front Frolics" is the title chosen this year. Annually, for several years, this frolic has drawn some 25,000 people to Swift Current, July 1 and 2.

Canadian troops are learning the modern arts of war by films. At every camp across the country, 16mm projectors are being used to show military operations, methods of fighting, and such like. There are some 75 subjects available from the department of national defense in from one to 12 reels. Many are of the animated cartoon type.

The Capitol, Saskatoon, was scene of the annual spring cooking school sponsored by the Star-Phoenix newspaper . . . A member of the Sudeten German colony, established last fall north of Saskatoon, Maxim Adler-Ahrendt, former European operatic tenor, sang at the Tivoli Sunday night.

The Nokomis has reopened for the summer at Nokomis with A. Cogger as manager . . . H. Cohen, salesman for Columbia Pictures, Winnipeg, made a Saskatchewan tour . . . Miss Margaret Hughes, for many years secretary to the manager at the Metropolitan, Regina, is off to Winnipeg as secretary to Vic Armand, in charge of construction for Famous Players Canadian Corp.

Two Chains in Oshawa Introduce Giveaways

TORONTO—Giveaways have been introduced at the two circuit theatres in Oshawa, Ont., practically simultaneously with the opening of the new independent house, the Biltmore, by Barnett Laxer and Henry Falk. The chain units are the Regent, operated by Famous Players, and the Marks of Associated Theatres, the latter also having a weekly Foto-Nite.

The Biltmore, managed by George Law, is a 750-seat theatre, while the Regent seats 1,055 and the Marks 701. Oshawa is an industrial city, featuring the production of automobiles and automobile parts.

Edmonton Exhibitor in Vancouver Venture

EDMONTON—William J. Long, well-known Edmonton theatre man and former manager of the Rialto, has gone to Vancouver, where he reports he is receiving financial backing for the opening of a new theatre in the downtown district. His brother, Walter Long, who was formerly associated with him in the operation of the Rialto, has been a resident of Vancouver for some time.

VANCOUVER

TOM SHIELDS jr. has leased, with a purchase option, the theatre at White Rock, B. C., to Norman O. Carpenter, who is having it decorated inside and out . . . Quagliotti Romano—"Quag" to Filmrow—is now making daily visits to his theatre, the Colonial, with an occasional call on his many friends on the Row. It has been some time since the accident which laid him up, and his reappearance among the film fraternity is the cause of much elation . . . Jack Muir is another convalescent to begin regular visits to his Strand.

Guy Graham, formerly business agent for the Projectionists' Union, is going to branch out as an exhibitor. He has, according to accounts, contracted to lease and operate a theatre which is to be built at White Rock, and for which he has already ordered seats and equipment . . . Air-conditioning of the Capitol here is going forward without interfering with the operation of the house.

The Filmrow Table Tennis Club has been practicing for coming matches. First outside competition was to be the Imperial Oil team on Friday. The Filmrow club was to be represented by Owen Bird of the Paramount staff, and Fred Stone, Don Findlay and Ray Tarling, all of Empire-Universal . . . Charley Lambly, member of Screenadz staff, died suddenly after a heart attack.

Joe Archer, ex-Vancouver manager for Empire-Universal, has opened an office here for Sovereign Film Distributors, Ltd. . . . Ben Plottel and his Empire-Universal staff are eagerly awaiting the latest word from headquarters giving their position in the company drive. The office has been fluctuating between first and second and has high hopes of finishing on top.

WINNIPEG

DON GAULD and Sylvester Gunn are carrying out an idea at the Metropolitan which seems certain to be a successful drawing card. Working in cooperation with station CJRC, they have arranged a new stage attraction for Monday nights which they are calling "Public Opinion." The new feature takes the form of audience participation in a questionnaire determining whether individual opinions coincide with public opinion on a number of controversial questions. Patrons are given cards with the questions each week and are asked to state their opinions. Then contestants on the stage are asked for their opinions on these same subjects and if their viewpoints are in accordance with the majority expression they receive money prizes. Prizes also are given to the patrons filling out these cards.

For his showing of "Rebecca," Harold Bishop arranged to have his bookings changed so that his opening date would coincide with the conclusion of the serialization of the book in the Winnipeg Free Press. A series of advance ads at the end of each day's installment kept the public aware of the coming screening of the film at his house. Bookmarks in local bookshops, 24 sheet bill boards, a heavy newspaper campaign, a lobby display of reviews from such papers and magazines as the Daily News, Life, etc., gave splendid covering of the literary merit of the film. Playing a spring fashion short subject on the same program, Bishop tied this in with the major department stores.

Henry (Hot Lips) Busse, playing to 3,500 dance patrons at the Auditorium, took a healthy chunk of potential boxoffice takes during the week. Further onslaught on the show business came in the shape of the Kenora-Oshawa junior hockey championship finals which have been held here during the week. Showmen will be tickled to see the end of hocky. In compensation, the first really warm spell of the year brought large crowds out nightly along the avenue.

At the Lyceum, Eddie Newman dressed his staff in medical uniforms publicizing his showing of "The Secret of Dr. Kildare." A stunt which proved very successful until the police department stepped in, was the rigging up af a P. A. system over which a member of the staff kept calling the name of Dr. Kildare.

The Times is playing a Yiddish film, "Overture to Glory" . . . Playing "Young Tom Edison" next week, Harold Bishop garnered tremendous free publicity with a telegram from Mickey Rooney in the Winnipeg Tribune and cuts of a parade of the School Boy Safety Patrols whom he had invited to a preview of the film.

I. H. Allan of Grand National's Winnipeg office lost his father at Akron, Ohio . . . E. A. Zorn, district supervisor of Famous Players, is on an inspection tour to the head of the lakes.

Dewey Bloom, Canadian promotion representative for M-G-M, flew into the city in connection with exploitation for the small town showings of "Gone With the Wind" . . . Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire-Universal, is in the city.

Blondie on a Budget
Pure entertainment with no burdens attached. Husbands and wives especially will go for this. At our showing they put their heads together and whispered and laughed aplenty. Bedroom scene where Blondie rushes in on Dagwood believing other woman is in her bed, I thought, was very raw. It didn't produce any audience reaction or add anything to picture, so why was it included? Looks like a sign of Hollywood decay. Boxoffice: Above average. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Coast Guard
This one failed to draw at B. O. A good picture, but it just didn't click. Good story. Had a big storm here which was the cause of no business. Wed., Thurs. Admission: 15-10. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

Five Little Peppers at Home
Kid stuff. The kids liked it, but it's pretty weak material for adults. Not very well liked. Fri., Sat. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

First National

Three Cheers for the Irish
We got rained out on this. One of the best audience pictures we have run for years. Audience reaction swell from all ages and all classes of people. A few more like this and everybody would go to the show. Sun., Mon., Tues. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

At the Circus
The only good comment on this one was of the Marx Brothers musical ability. Did not even make film rental. Mon., Tues. Weather: Rain. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 900. Capacity: 250.—R. W. Graff, Graff, Onaga, Kas.

At the Circus
People like these "nuts" although I can't see why. But after all, a lot of people do come just for a laugh. Mon., Tues. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Babes in Arms
One of the best musicals that we have had here in some time. The plot was a little slow, but the music pulled it through. Sat., Sun. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 900. Capacity: 250.—R. W. Graff, Graff, Onaga, Kas.

Broadway Melody of 1940
Step on it as it's the first big musical in years and is entertainment supreme. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris & Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Ghost Comes Home, The
Another entertaining program pix that is perhaps stretched a little too far in spots, but nevertheless a lot of fun to watch. Frank Morgan generally liked by our audience. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

I Take This Woman
Smash boxoffice and my patrons liked it. Whenever they give a picture four stars, I flop. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 6,000. Capacity: 800.—H. B. Ram, Patricia, Aiken, S. C.

Man From Dakota, The
Just fair. Certainly not up to Beery's calibre but passable. Tuesday. Weather: Cloudy. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris & Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Northwest Passage
Another hit from Leo and what a hit! Too bad it poured down rain both days, but even then we did OK and you can safely bet as near 100 per cent pleasing as a picture can be. Wed., Thurs. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris & Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Three Loves Has Nancy
Business no good. Too old. Our farm lads are poor lovers. Mon., Tues. Weather: Fair. Admission: 30-15. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 500.—Harland Rankin, Plaza, Tilbury, Ont.

Thunder Afloat
Wallace Beery played good role. Met with fair satisfaction. Drew about average crowd. Tues., Wed. Weather: Snow, rain. Admission: 30-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,307. Capacity: 264.—F. Kenyon Reed, Shinglehouse, Shinglehouse, Pa.

Paramount

Great Victor Herbert, The
Played mid-week to better than average business. Pleased the ladies exceptionally well. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Light That Failed, The
Good picture but no go at boxoffice. Tues., Wed. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Country and town patronage. Population: 4,500. Capacity: 450.—Sam Bogo, Carolina, Batesburg, S. C.

$1,000 a Touchdown
Not so hot, but Joe Brown's past performance got them in. Had good attendance. Also ran "Vacation From Love," also a nice picture. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Range War
Billed with "Little Accident" and the western drew them in. Little Baby Sandy was what they talked about on the way out. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

RKO Radio

Hunchback of Notre Dame
Good business and that's all I'm interested in. Let others have the "art." Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 6,000. Capacity: 800.—H. B. Ram, Patricia, Aiken, S. C.

Hunchback of Notre Dame
This is not my idea of entertainment, so I am not qualified to express much of an opinion. I'd say the acting was above average but the continuity is not smooth, too much of an obvious effort apparently having been made to remake almost exactly the Lon Chaney version of this pix. RKO's tendency to copy seems to show through here as in much of their other product. Audience seemed to like it, so just skip my personal observations. Boxoffice: Slightly above average. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Republic

Jeepers, Creepers
Pleased our patrons 100 per cent. The first we have played of Roy Rogers, but had several good comments on his singing. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 900. Capacity: 250.—R. W. Graff, Graff, Onaga, Kas.

South of the Border
This town does not use westerns, but this one did smash business for one day. Thursday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 6,000. Capacity: 800.—H. B. Ram, Patricia, Aiken, S. C.

South of the Border
Personally, I didn't like it. Lots of other people did, however, as the B. O. showed considerable above average. Why should I pan it? I can use plenty more like this one. Fri., Sat. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

20th Century-Fox

Blue Bird, The
A remarkably good picture with a good hidden lesson in its story. Some very good acting and some superb photographic effects. Build this one up for adults as well as children's appeal. Audience: Applauded the picture at its conclusion, something that very rarely happens. Boxoffice: Above average. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Blue Bird, The
This should have been filmed in blackout so the fairy story would have put the children to sleep by narration. Worthless at the boxoffice and almost unbearable to watch. Another one like this and Miss Temple will be a has been. Sun., Mon. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Population: 1,800.—Burris & Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Little Old New York
Merely fair business. No "Swanee River" business. Tues., Wed. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 6,000. Capacity: 800.—H. B. Ram, Patricia, Aiken, S. C.

Second Fiddle
A fair picture which did not do much at the B. O. Below average. Had no complaints or comments. Will get by on a Sunday showing. Tues., Wed. Weather: Good. Admission: 15-10. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

United Artists

House Across the Bay
Another programmer of the gangster type that isn't worth the price we had to pay for it Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800.—Burris & Henly Smith, Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark.

Raffles
Fairly good, but as I remember the previous versions of this same story, they were better. This screening is a little jerky in its continuity and the end is very abrupt. Audience: No comments much as they went out. Boxoffice: Not good. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Universal

Charlie McCarthy, Detective
Just another picture as far as pictures go, but this one has Charlie McCarthy in it. Result, business very good. Audience reaction fair to good. The kids thought it was swell. Sun., Mon., Tues. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Green Hell
Good Saturday picture where westerns do not draw. Wednesday. Weather: Good. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 6,000. Capacity: 800.—H. B. Ram, Patricia, Aiken, S. C.

Missing Evidence
A better than ordinary picture dealing with the Irish Sweepstakes lottery. Personally, I think the title hurt this as it means practically nothing. Business below average. Audience reaction good. Sun., Mon. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

My Little Chickadee
The women sniffed, but as long as they buy tickets they can sniff. Good at boxoffice. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 6,000. Capacity: 800.—H. B. Ram, Patricia, Aiken, S. C.

Oh Johnny, How You Can Love
A big surprise to smash business and how! Holy Week at that. Wednesday. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-10. Country and town patronage. Population: 4,500. Capacity: 450.—Sam Bogo, Carolina, Batesburg, S. C.

Warner Bros.

Angels Wash Their Faces
Did not get them out for some reason, although generally speaking this crowd draws well. Admission: 25-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,800. Capacity: 600.—W. H. Hibbert, Hi-Way, Sheridan, Ore.

Angels Wash Their Faces
Here is a show that was a natural B. O. Well received by the audience. Dead End Kids are still B. O. Didn't pass this one up. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 15-10. General patronage. Population: 18,000. Capacity: 378.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer, Hibbing, Minn.

Calling Philo Vance
Too complicated. No star value. Audience reaction poor. So was business. Wed., Thurs. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Granny Get Your Gun
May Robson walks off with the honors in this. A dandy programmer that moves at a rapid pace with never a letdown. Audience reaction excellent. Business good. Fri., Sat. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

Invisible Stripes
An exceptionally well made crime picture, with Bogart and Raft turning in exceptional performances. However, business was way off. A little too much rough stuff for the ladies. Sun., Mon. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 325.—Allan Banks, Vogue, Remsen, Ia.

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Prehistoric Print Designs Help Sell UA Fantasy

NEW YORK—In a merchandising promotion to tie in with "One Million, B. C.," UA has arranged with a textile corporation to design "Cave Girl Prints" fabric for use in the manufacture of children and women's garments. The fabric is cotton pique which is sanforized and the hieroglyphics seen in the film were adapted to designs. As accessories, a jewelry company has designed costume jewelry, necklaces and pins based on prehistoric symbols and animals.

How George Kemble Sold "Barber" and "Frog"

PHILADELPHIA—"We're not trying to scare you!" read a herald handed out by a man dressed in a papier-mache skeleton head and long black coat.

Inside the herald was a small candle. The text was:

"We're not trying to scare you—but when you see what's inside, you'll need this candle because you'll be afraid to go home in the dark!"

It was a stunt by George Kemble, Orient, for the double feature horror show, "Barber" and "Frog."

Paramount Artist Tie On "Ghost Breakers"

HOLLYWOOD—Bombarding a total circulation of 35,000,000 in 60 key papers, the Paramount publicity department, under Cliff Lewis, has effected a tieup with Jefferson Machamer and the McNaught syndicate whereby Machamer's daily and Sunday cartoon strips will carry three weeks of continuity based on Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard and "The Ghost Breakers."

"Season Pass" Stunt

NEW YORK—A form of throwaway resembling a pass apparently caught the attention of extra customers when the Rogers played "Intermezzo." The printing played down the words: "Don't Let the" but used bold type for the words: "Season Pass," again reverting to smaller type for: "Without Seeing Leslie Howard," etc.

Managers Have Chance To Win an Auto

New York—Theatre managers have a chance to win a 1940 Buick for the exploitation campaign on "One Million B. C." in a contest sponsored by UA. Entry blanks for the contest, which closes July 1, should be filled out and mailed in advance to UA's home office. The judges are Spyros Skouras, Joseph R. Vogel, Sam Dembow, Fred Meyer, Hal Roach and Murray Silverstone.

NUGGETS

A "PERFECT HUSBANDS" contest planted with the Philadelphia Record earned Manager Maurice Gabel, Boyd, considerable attention on his campaign for "Too Many Husbands."

Warner is launching an extensive national advertising campaign for "All This and Heaven, Too" in the June issues of 15 important publications. It is estimated ads will reach 27,000,000 readers.

Highlight of the "Gone With the Wind" campaign put over by William A. Haynes, Stanley, Utica, N. Y., was the erection of a miniature Tara, featuring tiny trees, grass and Spanish moss in the lobby with figures of the chief characters.

With the cooperation of the local Journal, manager of the Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn., arranged for a staff photographer to tour the city and make pictures of smiling pedestrians. All those whose photos were published were admitted free to a showing of "Ninotchka."

A contest for women patrons over the question of preference for Richard Greene or Fred MacMurray highlighted Manager Irving Lipnick's campaign for "Little Old New York" at the Symphony, Chicago, Ill. Passes went to senders of the wittiest and most original letters.

Display and Contest for 'Adventure in Diamonds'

PHILADELPHIA—Elmer Hollander, Stanton, put a little adventure in the buildup for Paramount's "Adventure in Diamonds." Also some diamonds.

He arranged with a jewelry house for a lobby display of precious stones—and a diamond ring to be given away to the winner of a contest staged by the Daily News. The News contest consisted of guessing the name of the precious stone hidden in the picture and caption, taken from the film, printed each day in the paper.

A National Biscuit Tieup For "40 Little Mothers"

NEW HAVEN—Nat Rubin, assistant at the Loew-Poli, has negotiated a National Biscuit Co. tieup in which the company will give away 5,000 sample boxes of cereal in the Poli lobby Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday before the opening of "40 Little Mothers." The idea is that Baby Chum in the picture was brought up on cereal. Jack Brassil, of the theatre staff, secured a large Kresge $1 store window display on the picture.

One for "Raffles"

MILWAUKEE—Gene Arnstein, manager of Warner-Saxe's Garfield, recently offered $5 to any "amateur" who could successfully open the safe in the theatre by manipulating the combination. The stunt was for "Raffles."

For the "Spring Hit Parade"—

To celebrate the "Spring Parade of Hit Pictures" at the Warner Earle in Washington, Frank La Falce, head of advertising and publicity for the theatre, created this huge lobby display.

PREVIEW!

Inglewood, California—"WATERLOO BRIDGE" stampeded a cheering Preview audience into ecstatic raves as another M-G-M hit was unreeled here at the Academy Theatre. Vivien Leigh's first production since her acclaim in "Gone With The Wind" and Robert Taylor's most powerfully romantic role combined to elicit "ohs" and "ahs" from the femme fans. Eyes of the motion picture colony are on the M-G-M Studio. Last week it was the sensational Preview of Spencer Tracy's "Edison, The Man." This week it's "Waterloo Bridge." Next week it will be the Preview of Wallace Beery's "20 Mule Team" and more triumphs to come in Leo the Lion's parade of successes!

MIRACLES ARE NOT RELIABLE

PART of a significant news story which appeared last week in BOXOFFICE:

"New York—Seven major distributors, excluding Universal, by Wednesday will have withdrawn from London $13,125,000 of the $17,500,000 allocated to them under the agreement concluded last November with the British government.

"Under the pact, 50 per cent of the revenue was 'frozen' with 75 per cent of the balance to be withdrawn by May 1 and the remaining 25 per cent, or $4,375,000, by October 1 when the agreement expires.

"It is understood the companies are bending every effort to remove the balance within a short time. The idea is to get all the money out provided by the pact in case the British are forced to place harsher currency restrictions on the exchange leaving the country."

While this generally applied manouevre was being worked out in the industry's most vital overseas market, in New York Sidney R. Kent was discussing the situation at large. An occasional highlight from an exclusive and hard-hitting statement of his becomes decidedly worthwhile the repeating:

"If the war continues, we will face problems as we never have before. But we have no alternative. We must fight to the last ditch. You cannot solve the problem by inferior product. No one in the industry, except a few on the executive end, wants to cut the size of his pictures . . . By the fall of this year, we will probably be getting from 25 to 30 per cent less in terms of dollars from abroad. For one thing, we cannot cut quality; this would affect us in the domestic market. It is possible we may have to operate in the red for two years and then hope the foreign business is there again."

On self-sufficiency in the home market, this:

"But it cannot be done. It is easy to say, 'Do this and do that,' but all your talking won't get it out of the United States. It is up to the heads of the companies to show the way; take cuts before the others. I've done it and so have others down the line. There must be cuts in proportion to the loss of revenue if the industry is to survive. Otherwise, we can look for a mess."

Thus, once again and on increasing fronts, warning signals written in simple and understandable language flap omniously in the breeze.

Dangerous as it stands now, the British situation is loaded with further devastating potentialities. It goes beyond the United Kingdom, too, for the plain reason that, as London decides, so will its principal dominions—Canada and Australia, both invaluable outlets for American films.

In fact, the industry here is confronted with a total, ultimate shrinkage of perhaps $50,000,000 in its international income. For a business which, in combination of principal producing and distributing organizations, shows annual net earnings of less than half of that figure, it requires no certified accountancy expert to calculate the final answer unless conversation dealing with a solution is translated into terms of action.

It is becoming increasingly apparent, and almost daily so, that the issue cannot to ducked. Talking won't solve it. Neither will hopes the situation, by some vague and comforting wishful thinking, will muddle through.

The answer is not in inferior product, as Kent and others have pointed out, for this would damage pehaps beyond repair the home market which is the pivot around which the entire structure revolves. Certainly it ought to be painfully clear the answer likewise is not in reliance upon foreign markets.

The solution, fortunately, is within the grasp of the men who run the industry in the United States. They have the figures. They know what they are paying out. They know what they are taking in. If they want to be optimistic, but not in terms of a "Gone With the Wind," they might add a conservative increase in domestic income. But they ought not delude themselves too thoroughly on that score. Not with 11,000,000 people out of work.

They will find they can make million dollar negatives. They will find they can get that money back, plus a profit, if their studios do a job. They will find, too, that any ideas along these lines will not be easy. In fact, it will be tough on some of the boys and girls in Hollywood. Those checks sent west weekly by New York have been reaching their destination with a regularity that indicates a future riot if they turn up in smaller digits.

Yet this is exactly what may happen unless a miracle rides to the rescue.

DECREE PROPOSAL SEEN IN WASHINGTON'S LAP; ISSUE IS QUIESCENT, NOT NECESSARILY DEAD

New York Proponents Say Have Gone as Far as They Can

NEW YORK—There are those who say it's all over and that a consent decree is out.

There are those who hope not, by that meaning they continue to favor such a method of settling the all-industry suit.

In the main, however, both agree that what happens from this point on depends on Washington, its manouevres, its political footwork, the forthcoming national elections. And pressure groups.

Activists in the extended negotiations dealing with consent decree deliberations feel there is nothing further to be done at this end. They assert they have gone as far as they can which is why they conclude the affirmative or the negative on the outcome must emanate from Washington.

Point to "Good Faith"

Furthermore, they point to the record of their deliberations and are inclined to rest upon their performance as an earnest of good faith displayed in the desire to effect a decree suitable to the government and, of course, at the same time acceptable to their companies.

"We tried to work it out and we are still willing" explains one negotiator. "It can hardly be laid at our doorstep when you understand that, insofar as the department of commerce is concerned, Secretary Hopkins found the decree formula acceptable aside from some brushing up which would have been necessary before the final form had been worked out. However, if the department of justice, or perhaps I should say Thurman Arnold, changed his mind and refused to go along, I would say that the responsibility for a breakdown in negotiations ends on the doorstep of the department of justice."

Arnold Puzzles

Those on the inside profess a lack of clear understanding over Arnold's current insistence that theatre divorcement must be effectuated. This attitude is described as "new" and came to light in detail when the assistant to the attorney general appeared before the subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee recently in Washington.

In fact, it is reported reliably that, not only had the commerce department approved the decree formula, but that the justice department had also done so at one point in the negotiations. It is claimed justice quite definitely had not insisted that exhibitor-producers separate themselves from their theatres. Since Arnold's blast, which continues to be appraised as an effort to size up the strategy which the theatre-owning producers and distributors would use at the trial by defending themselves at the forthcoming hearings on the Neely divorcement bill proposal, all of this would appear to have been altered.

A number of high executives here privately are burning over Allied's role in the current phase of the situation. More or less openly, they accuse Allied, principally through general counsel Abram F. Myers, of additionally "steaming up" the justice department to kick over any consent decree and to proceed with the all-inclusive suit on its merits.

The political aspects centering in Washington bear on the possible intervention of the administration through White House influence. In a national election year, it is assumed to be perfunctory and customary procedure to disturb large industries as little as possible. It is argued that, if some, or enough, major companies in this industry favor adjudication of their most important suit by out-of-court settlement, perhaps high places in Washington may come to the conclusion this is the formula to pursue. Presumably, too, the relative strengths of the commerce and justice department secretaries with the White House might bear on the outcome.

Trial Preparation Ahead

In the meantime and on all fronts, it would appear as if a consent decree had never been heard of. Preparations for the trial, now set for June 3, are continuing in both defense and prosecuting quarters.

Indicating that 11 Philadelphia exhibitors will be among the first group of its witnesses, the government has asked all major companies for documents covering 67 Quaker City houses and 22 theatres in the surrounding areas. Of the total number of theatres involved, 54 are controlled by Warner and one by Loew, the others being operated by independents.

Federal Judge Goddard will hear the application for the documents Tuesday. The data sought includes contracts, deal

B & K, Paramount to Fight Chicago Citation on Contempt

NEW YORK—Decision by Special Master Edgar Eldredge who recommended to the federal court in Chicago that B&K be cited as violators of a consent decree of eight years standing will be fought by the circuit and Paramount. The latter was held to be jointly liable, although not guilty. All other distributors were absolved.

Paramount and B&K have until May 21 to file exceptions to the special master's recommendation. Attorneys for the two companies are now working on these and they will probably be filed on the final date. After the exceptions are filed, Judge Woodward will set a date for arguments.

Meanwhile, Paramount is making no comment on the special master's recommendation. Eldredge found in his report a violation of section 10, which, in essence, resolves itself to the opinion that existing contracts have an accumulated effect of restraining first run exhibition in Chicago.

While no penalty is provided by law, if the recommendation is upheld by the courts, Judge Woodward has the power to fix a fine or warn the defendants not to repeat the act without imposing a monetary requisite. While it does not necessarily hold true in this case, the usual consequences where companies are found to have violated consent decrees result in small fines.

However, it is indicated Paramount and B&K will make every attempt to clear themselves at the coming oral arguments on exceptions.

May Be Blow to Majors' New York Suit Defense

CHICAGO—Expected to be a blow to the major companies' defense of the New York equity suit, is the finding of Judge Edgar Eldredge, special master in chancery in federal court, who recommended that Balaban & Katz, Paramount Pictures and Barney Balaban, be found guilty of contempt

"If Uncle Sam Catches Us..."

New York—Mounting losses in foreign markets are reaching such proportions that they may mean the difference between life and death for some companies, depending upon their financial resources, in the opinion of Sidney R. Kent.

He sums up the situation like this: "The war in Scandinavia might cost each company up to $400,000. We can't stand many blows like that; some companies need that money very badly.

"If the war continues, England may not give us free sterling next year. Life and limbs to England take precedence over everything else.

"The neutral countries affect us, too. If they can't trade, they can't give us money for films.

"The trouble is that no one company can solve this thing alone. And if Uncle Sam catches two of us talking together, we're facing indictment."

SALES MANAGERS, SUBPOENAED IN BIG CASE, AIM TO CLEAR CONVENTIONS BEFORE JUNE 3

All on Witness Lists; Rush as Indication Trial Start Seen

NEW YORK—As another indication that the current drift is all in the direction of a June 3 opening date for the trial of the all-industry suit, the general sales managers of the majority of major companies are moving forward their conventions in order to be clear of them by the time the proceedings before Judge Henry W. Goddard get under way. Warner and Columbia are the lone hands, since the former company has not set its meeting dates, while the latter so far is undetermined beyond an indication June will be the month.

All sales managers have been subpoenaed as witnesses. It does not follow their actual presence in the courtroom may be required on the opening date, but it does follow they must keep themselves in readiness for a call. Under the procedure governing appearances of witnesses, three days from the time of scheduled appearance are granted provided the prospective witness is within 100 miles from New York. A week is allowed if he is beyond that distance limit. The general feeling is it would be desirable to have conventions cleared rather than face the possibility of interruption.

Conventions Set

The lineup on conclaves, some of the information new and some of it already reported, follows:

Abe Montague, general sales manager of Columbia, is yet to determine his plans. He now figures the date will fall about mid-June, although this is not definite. He may hold one national meeting or split the deliberations into two regionals. The tendency at Columbia appears to be against any rush in view of the recent district managers' meeting in New York.

Four Metro Regionals

Abandoning its long-established custom, M-G-M this year will hold four regional meetings. The first is slated for the St. Francis, San Francisco, May 6-7; the second for the Drake, Chicago, May 13-14; the third at the Astor, New York, May 17-18, and the fourth at the Shoreham, Washington, May 20-21. William F. Rodgers, general sales manager; Howard Dietz, director of advertising and publicity, and Edward Aaron, Rodgers' assistant, are now in Hollywood in connection with production and convention detail. The company will release a list of properties from which 44 to 52 films will be made next season.

Those who will attend the first meeting are:

Los Angeles: Clayton T. Lynch, manager; William A. Calihan, Sam S. Davis, Reuben L. Harris and Jack Jacobs, salesmen.

Portland: Louis Amacher, manager; Joseph T. Warren, salesman.

Salt Lake City: Samuel J. Gardner, manager; Clarence W. Boulet, Carl E. Lind and David T. McElhinney, salesmen.

San Francisco: Langdon C. Wingham, manager; Leland S. Hulling, Edward C. Mix and Sidney Schuster, salesmen.

Seattle: Maurice Saffle, manager; Mac Rubenfeld and B. Wallace Rucker, salesmen.

Once more, Paramount will return to Los Angeles for its convention, again to be national in scope. The hotel will be the Ambassador and the dates May 24-26. District and branch managers, "One Hundred Per Cent Club" salesmen, home office and, of course, studio executives will be on hand.

Republic Dates Soon

Oscillating between the last week of this month and the first week of next are final dates for Republic's contemplated regionals. Herbert J. Yates and James R. Grainger leave for Hollywood about May 15 to finalize production plans. Thereafter, regionals will be held in San Francisco, Chicago and New York with Memphis as a probability for the fourth and final session.

RKO's plans remain unchanged. It will hold one meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, May 27-30.

UA in Two Cities

UA men from the eastern half of the country will foregather at New York, May 13-15 at the Waldorf-Astoria. The western contingent will meet at Chicago, May 16-18, at the Congress Hotel.

With Universal, it's a case of two three-day regionals. The first, as noted, will be held at the Ambassador, Atlantic City, May 11-13, and the second at the Drake, Chicago, May 18-20.

Metro Sales Policy Holds Despite War Conditions

CHICAGO—Despite the uncertainty of conditions, including the status of the government suit and the Neely Bills in Washington, M-G-M will continue its same sales policy for the 1940-41 season, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, said this week en route to San Francisco for the first of the company's four regional conventions.

"These will not be actual conventions, but more or less general discussions with our men," Rodgers said.

Launching First M-G-M Meeting—

Notes to You from Red Kann

SLANTS on consent decrees vary in accordance with the individual spoken to, his own interests and how he figures they might be affected. With that as an introduction, here is how a prominent lawyer, identified with the defense, strides up to a situation once hotter than it is now, but by no means atrophied:

"The trouble with any form of consent decree is that it does not touch anyone not a party to the suit. For instance, and only hypothetically, let's say all the distributor defendants agreed to a consent decree. This document would leave Monogram, Republic or any other company free to indulge in any sort of practice which is barred from the eight majors. Don't minimize the inherent danger to the majors, as big as they are, from such an eventuality.

"There also is a condition, described maybe loosely as 'public taste.' Let us say there are two theatres in a competitive zone. One theatre represents an investment of $25,000; the other, $300,000. The first exhibitor obviously has not gone to the same lengths as the more costly one to attract patrons. Yet he might feel he is justly entitled to the same privileges. Litigation will never clear up a situation like this; it is full of discriminatory tactics.

"Frankly, the lesser of two such evils is legislation. At least, all parties are treated equally."

A Visible Link

In reversing the government's procedure by submitting potential witnesses to pre-trial examination, attorneys identified with the defense declare the tactic seeks to establish when, where and how much Allied has been participating in the events leading up to the all-inclusive suit. Thus far, James Binkov of the Temple, Union City; James C. Forgione of the Forum, Metuchen, and Anthony Bannon of the Court, Newark—New Jersey theatremen all—declare they filed complaints with Allied of New Jersey, not with the department of justice which listed them as probable witnesses.

Apparently, defense attorneys regard all this as significant. Potentially anyway and maybe actually, in establishing the link that binds. Recommended for their attention as a probable means of saving time is a wire jointly signed by Harry A. Cole and Abram F. Myers. Published a couple of weeks ago, it clarified whatever remained to be clarified with this:

"Major companies having ignored Allied's suggestion regarding arbitration last winter and having chosen to treat only with the government, we are relegated to the same procedure and hence do not think a statement would be appropriate."

The statement refers to a request for comment on negotiations looking toward a consent decree. For this purpose, that phase of the telegram is unimportant. The rest of it illustrates the point now milling around in this space.

It's an old and an obvious point anyway. Allied always has been for theatre divorcement. The all-inclusive suit strikes for that. Therefore, the tieup is apparent and in strictest conformity with Allied's well-known platform.

"Advisedly"

In the event it might have been glossed over which it should not have been, what pops up now is a carbon copy of a neat, little box originally published in BOXOFFICE last issue, page four, column two:

"New York—Although Thurman Arnold makes it clear apparently that a consent decree is out, it is being pointed out here—cautiously and advisedly—that the assistant attorney general presumably is talking for the department of justice only.

"Remarked one highly placed executive, 'Even Mr. Arnold has superiors in Washington.'"

From this point on, you do your own speculating. A word of suggestion:

Don't be a piker.

RIDIN', SHOOTIN', TWO-FISTED ACTION MARKS A TREND FOR 1940-41; ALREADY ON THE WAY

More Than Ten Per Cent Of Films to Stress More Movement

By IVAN SPEAR

HOLLYWOOD—Action, the use of which has grown apace in the current season's output, will attain a new high on 1940-41 schedules. That seems a certainty when an analysis of the film now in production, as well as of the new year's plans already announced or being prepared by most of the majors, is considered.

Invasion of the ridin', shootin', two-fisted tactics, whether by sea, air or in the reliable western, has grown to the point where a preliminary estimate places the portion of action pictures for 1940-41 at close to ten per cent, with every likelihood this proportion will increase before the season gets fully under way. Of an approximate 500 pictures to be turned out by the majors, at least 90 will fulfill the demand for less talk and more movement.

Influence Already Felt

A glance at current production charts indicates the manner in which the trend already has made its influence felt. For Columbia, Wesley Ruggles is producing a western saga yclept "Arizona." Metro is filming "Boom Town," in which Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy portray hard-boiled oil-field workers whose principal assets are rough and ready fists. The same studio recently completed "Twenty-Mule Team," a story of Death Valley's borax mines, starring Wallace Beery and due for release shortly. At Paramount, Cecil B. DeMille is well under way with "North West Mounted Police." Harry Sherman is shooting "Three Men From Texas," Sam Wood is directing Fred MacMurray in "Rangers of Fortune," and still another in production is "The Texas Rangers Ride Again." At Republic, where boots-and-saddles can almost be considered formal attire, the big-budgeted "Wagons Westward" now is rolling, as well as Gene Autry's "Melody Ranch" and "Rocky Mountain Rangers," featuring the Three Mesquiteers.

Three Are Action

Three of the four United Artists productions now in work fall into the action category. The tropics supply the locale for Edward Small's "South of Pago Pago," while maritime adventure is the keynote of both Argosy's "The Long Voyage Home" and "Captain Caution." Over at 20th Century-Fox two-fisted sequences are liberally injected in "Brigham Young." In production at Universal as one of the Richard Arlen-Andy Devine series of melodramas is "Hot Steel." Truck drivers—than whom they don't come much tougher—are the principal characters in Warner's "They Drive by Night," while melodrama on a lavish marine scale is the chief ingredient of the current Errol Flynn starrer, "The Sea Hawk."

The foregoing, however, is as nothing to what is coming. The principal sources of action stuff will, of course, be Republic and Monogram, each heavily emphasizing the sagebrush atmosphere. Monogram will have three western series of eight each, featuring Ray Corrigan and John King as a team; Tex Ritter and Fred Scott. Additionally, Jack London's stories of the Yukon country will supply three others—"Under Northern Skies," "Land of the Long Shadows" and "Queen of the Yukon." Listed as a special is James Fenimore Cooper's classic of Indian fighting, "The Pioneers."

Republic will supply about 26 westerns, including the Autrys, Roy Rogers, Three Mesquiteers and Don Barry. On the immediate schedule is "Carson City Kid," starring Rogers. To come is "Colorado," a big-scaled western to star John Wayne.

Columbia will have two series of cowboy sagas, one starring Charles Starrett, the other featuring Bill Elliott. Plans also are under way to film a sequel to "Only Angels Have Wings," an aviation melodrama.

On the adventure side for M-G-M will be a new "Tarzan" feature; two Wallace Beery starrers, "Bonanza," a story of silver-mining, and "Combat Car," dealing with the U. S. army's new mechanized units; a submarine story, "Port of Hope," to star Robert Taylor, and two aviation spectacles, "Wings Over the Desert" and "Flight Command."

In the forefront on Universal's schedule is "When the Daltons Rode," a story of the notorious frontier bandits of the 19th century. The studio also lists a group of westerns starring Johnny Mack Brown as well as the melodrama series co-starring Arlen and Devine.

Plenty From Warner

Warner's 1940-41 leader will be "Santa Fe Trail," designed as a follow up to the 1938-39 entry, "Dodge City," and the 1939-40 number, "Virginia City." It will star Errol Flynn. Also on tap are "Trail's End," a mounted police yarn; "Flowing Gold," story of the oil fields; "Burning Daylight," by Jack London; "River's End;" two westerns, "Pony Express" and "Tombstone," and "Menace of the Sea," in which the coast guard will feature. The action ingredient also will be an important factor in Jesse L. Lasky's production of "The Amazing Sergeant York."

Action at RKO

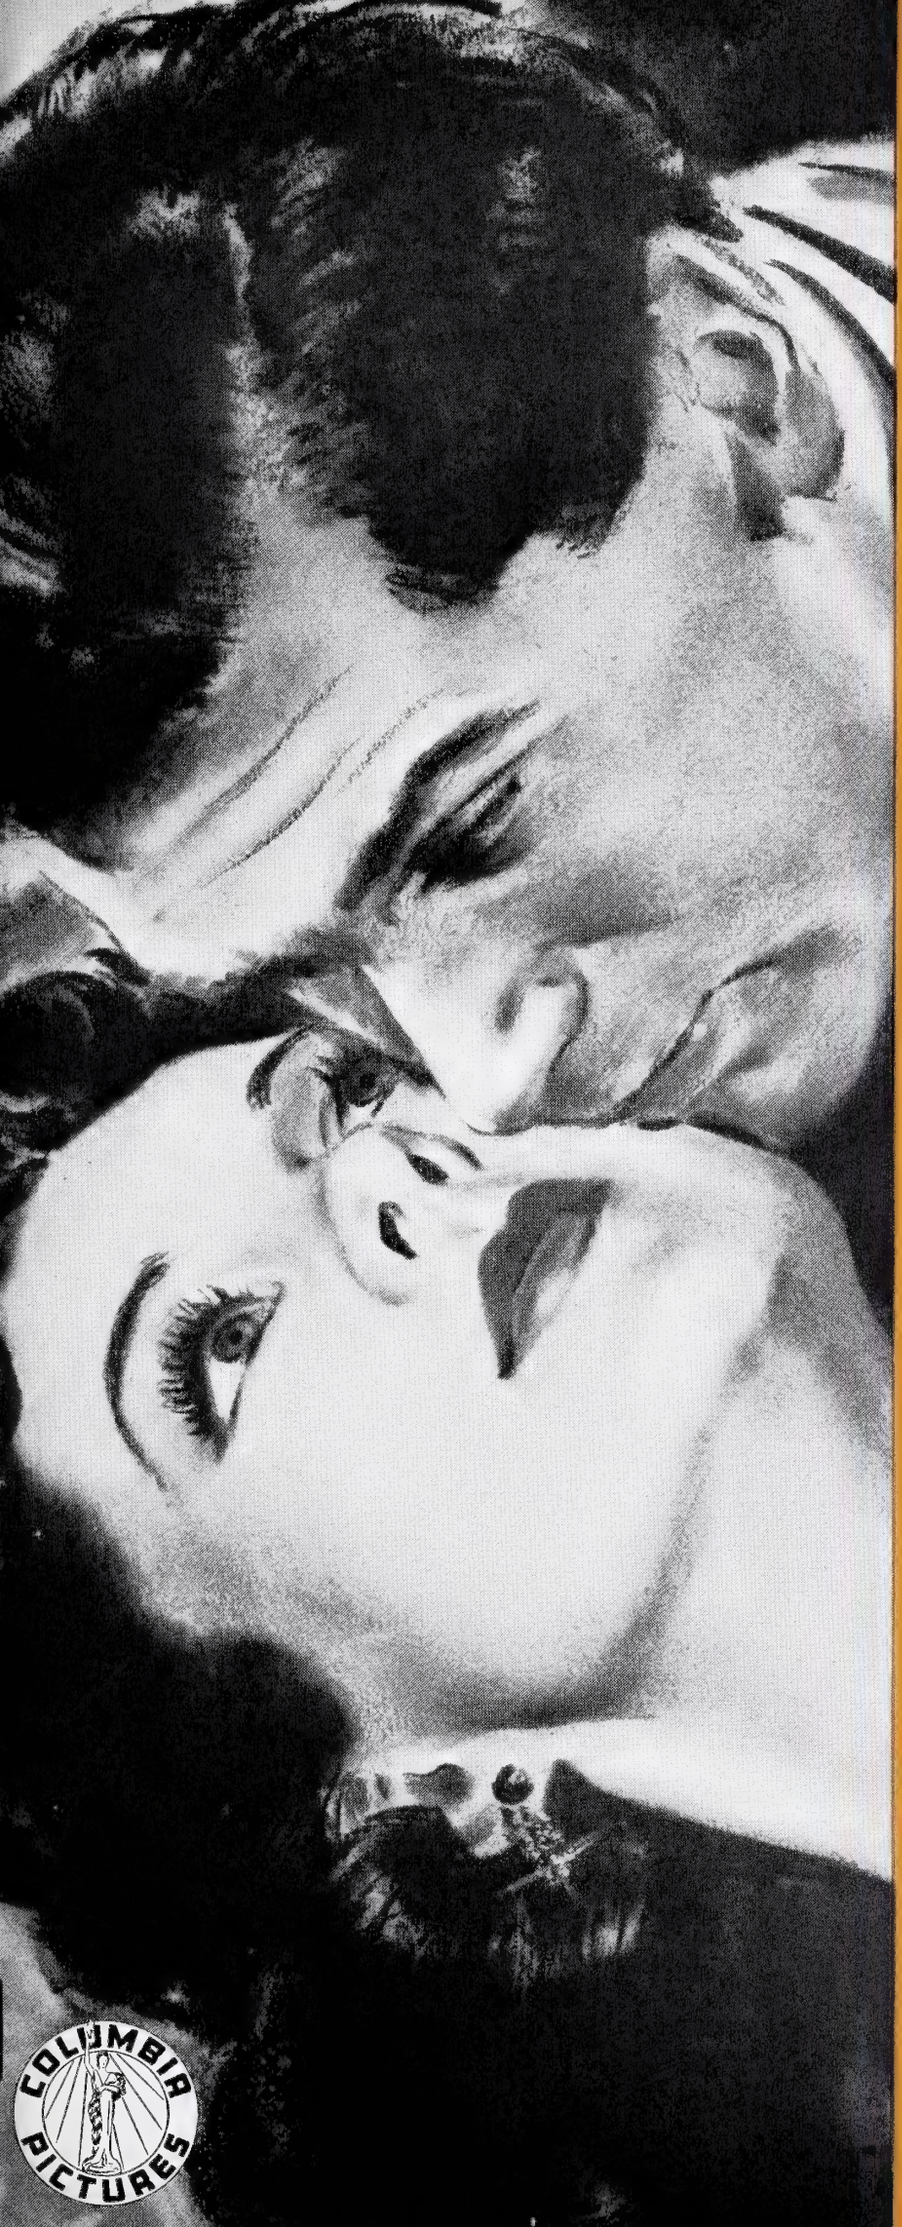
For RKO Radio, Gene Towne and Graham Baker will turn out "The Deerslayer," based on James Fenimore Cooper's novel. The studio also plans "Men Against the Sky" as an aviation story starring Richard Dix; "Inside Track"—a midget automobile racing yarn—and from six to eight George O'Brien westerns.

Paramount's schedule includes eight "Hopalong Cassidy" westerns, to be made by Harry Sherman, the first of which is titled "Doomed Caravan;" several "specials," including "The Ne'er-Do-Well," "The Round-Up" and "The Parson of Panamint," also for production by Sherman; an aviation story, "I Wanted Wings," and "The Sun of Glory," tracing the growth of the southwestern United States, which Cecil B. DeMille will produce.

Other vehicles in the action vein include Edward Small's "Kit Carson, Avenger" and Samuel Goldwyn's "Black Gold," an oil-fields story to star Gary Cooper.

Technicolor Ends Options on Stock

NEW YORK—Options to producers to purchase its stock as low as $15 a share as an inducement to stimulate a greater use of color have been abandoned by Technicolor. A maximum block of 307,000 shares was designated for this purpose, the company points out in its annual statement. Of this total, options on 18,000 shares lapsed last year but, reads the report, "included in this maximum are options on 83,000 shares conditional upon future photography of feature productions, a number of which may not be produced or may be delayed so as to make it unlikely they will carry options." Of the remaining 244,000 shares, 24,000 shares have lapsed while 35,000 were exercised last year. However, 1939 saw no options picked up by producers or others in the industry, the report reveals.



William F. Rodgers Will Address PCCITO in L. A.

LOS ANGELES — William F. Rodgers, M-G-M general sales manager, who arrived from the east with Howard Dietz and Edward Aaron the latter part of the week, will be one of the principal speakers at the PCCITO three-day convention at the Ambassador starting May 8. The PCCITO, which includes exhibitor units as far east as Salt Lake City, has a total membership of 1,800 and is one of the most powerful unaffiliated groups in the country.

Rodgers is expected to discuss the Neely bill and recent efforts by distributors to effect a settlement of the government suit.

Later, Rodgers will head for Washington where he is slated to appear during the week of May 19 as one of the opponents of the Neely bill. Proponents will be heard beginning May 13 and will be followed by distributors and others.

World's Fair Approach Again Finds N. Y. Showmen Worried

NEW YORK—Majority of independent exhibitor opinion in the local area on the probable effect of the World's Fair on theatre business for the next few months boils down to belief the open air fiesta hurt plenty last year and a repeat performance is in prospect after May 11 when the Fair opens at Flushing Meadows.

There are a few exceptions, these being theatre owners who see rainy weekends as a boxoffice boon regardless of the Fair, or those who have theatres in winter resorts and do a quiet business in the summer and those who believe that many New Yorkers will not make as many trips to Flushing as they did last year because the idea is no longer new.

One exhibitor, Edmund Mantell, who operates two Bronx theatres, envisions the giving away of automobiles at the Fair as a lure against which the smaller houses cannot compete. "The Fair was bad for us last year and we expect to suffer again," he states. He also points out his neighborhood last year saw a lot of out-of-town visitors inviting relatives and friends to the Fair. This definitely hurt his trade.

Too Many "Guests"

Jack Fields, Jersey City operator, hopes he will not experience what took place last year when local political clubs, churches and the boy scout organization took hundreds of children to the Fair grounds as their guests.

Ben Brodie, who has a number of small theatres, asserts the 50 cent admission at the Fair will hurt theatre business. "Last year was bad enough, but the fact the price has been cut from 75 cents to half a dollar will hurt more. It will be worse this year," he concludes.

Joseph Rosenzweig of the Empress, Bronx, states "It didn't do any good last year. Why should it be different this year?"

On the optimistic side are Louis Frisch of the Randforce circuit which operates about 55 Brooklyn theatres and Charles Moses, operating four in Staten Island.

Rain the "Friend"

Says Frisch, "There is nothing rainy weather will not cure for the summer. If we have rainy weekends we will not know there is a Fair. Sunshine will do more harm than the Fair to our business." To prove his latter contention, the exhibitor pointed out that April 28, which was an ideal spring day, found his theatres virtually empty.

Moses, on the other hand, believes that "there has not been much blasting in the newspapers by the Fair and those who went two, three and four times last year may go once this year and call it quits." Not unless something startling happens to give the Fair a press buildup will theatres be hurt, he contends.

Another independent circuit executive, while admitting the Fair did considerable harm last year, sees nothing to bring out the crowds in droves again this year. Billy Rose's outdoor show may do the business, but other than that exhibits and attractions scheduled are not expected to draw in the same proportion as the previous year.

There are some theatre men who hold the fact many countries have dropped out will have a considerable bearing on the intake, particularly in view of the 50-cent admission designed to reach the pocket book of the middle and lower classes, many of whom visited last year for homeland reasons.

Metro World Fair Booth Opening on Broadway

NEW YORK—With the usual assortment of fanfare, the Loew-M-G-M World's Fair Information Center, located on the traffic island between Broadway and Seventh Ave. at 46th St., reopens Monday, or six days before the official launching of the Fair itself for a second year.

Following last year's formula, the center will provide free maps and guide pamphlets, plus an assortment of information furnished by leading stores and civic organizations. A staff of three will be in attendance, in the aggregate the threesome reputedly being the masters of 11 languages "spoken fluently," according to Loew's.

A supplementary service, which was inaugurated last year, will be a registry of visitors and an index filing system through which all arrivals may list their New York addresses and telephone numbers so that friends may locate them without difficulty. The center will be open 12 hours a day every day in the week, opening at 9:30 a. m.

Affiliated Theatre Values Vary, Wobber

NEW YORK—There are "advantages and disadvantages" to theatres affiliated with distributors, and vice versa, in the opinion of Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox general sales manager. He gave this view during his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Wright in the all-industry suit.

The two advantages a distributor gains through operation of its own theatres is a dependable outlet for its product and the proper exploitation of these pictures, Wobber declared. The disadvantage he cited is: "Theatres occasionally lose money. Any time a theatre loses money, a distributor does not profit."

Wright's interrogation was centered almost entirely around six western cities in the territory where Wobber was in charge as Pacific coast sales manager for Paramount just prior to 1932. The questions had to do with the time distributors first acquired first run theatres in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Seattle, Portland and Denver.

Graetz Firm Makes Trio Yearly for Columbia

NEW YORK — Transcontinental Films, headed by Paul Graetz, will produce about three pictures a year in Hollywood for Columbia under negotiations nearing completion. Julien Duvivier and Rene Clair, prominent French directors, will handle the pictures. They are due from abroad sometime in September. Duvivier has just completed "Cavalcade of France," in Paris for Columbia. The French company of the same name is a sister unit of the Hollywood-formed unit.

Schaefer Frowns on Lengthy Franchises

NEW YORK—There is a "great disadvantage" to distributors in long-term franchises, George J. Schaefer, RKO president, declared during his pre-trial examination before Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Wright in the government's key suit. The witness related a variety of circumstances covering his executive positions with three majors—Paramount, UA and RKO. In respect to the latter association, which began in October, 1938, Schaefer denied the company maintains a number of theatres at a loss merely to accommodate RKO product.

He described the making of long-term deals as a "one way street." In other words, he said, franchises are satisfactory when economic conditions and other factors are in the exhibitor's favor; then pictures are played as the terms dictate. But when the situation is in reverse and exhibitors refuse to play pictures as they become available until the franchise is "adjusted," he observed this form of selling rarely brings the net returns on which the original terms were predicated. Asked what were other factors that make franchise deals unsatisfactory in his opinion, Schaefer replied the advent of sound, increase in production costs and "we don't know where television will lead to."

Denies Exchange of Data

The witness steadfastly denied that during his Paramount or present association has distribution exchanged with the theatre department any information other than which transpires during negotiations for product. Wright approached this from many angles. His persistency drew from Schaefer the observation he has found it a "good rule" to see each department is run independently of each other if only for "their selfish ambition to make good showings for themselves."

Wright asked what happens when the RKO distribution and theatre departments disagree on a deal. "I take them and knock their heads together and tell them to get together and make a deal," the witness replied. "They always do make a deal, don't they?" shot Wright. "Yes, sir," said Schaefer.

The "Benefits"

The "benefits" derived by the distribution department from affiliation with the exhibition arm of the company include an "assured outlet" for product, particularly in New York where there is "keen competition" from Loew's, the witness declared. Advantages in publicizing and exploiting pictures are also present, he said. However, he laid stress on the fact such an arrangement is desirable because "it is a comfort to know that after investing from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in production there is a springboard or jumping off place for our pictures. Also, we don't know how we are going to be treated by our independent accounts," he asserted.

Wright asked the witness how the affiliation worked in reverse—benefits to theatres from the company's distribution affiliation. Schaefer observed RKO theatres in certain situations "would have to close" if it were not for the assurance of RKO pictures. He cited Boston, Washington, Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Providence as points where RKO theatres either are entirely, or almost wholly, dependent upon RKO product.

He was asked if RKO houses in these situations are being "steadily operated at a loss." Schaefer replied that profit and loss fluctuates over periods—"it's not easy sledding." It was at this point Schaefer denied RKO houses are being operated at a loss to accommodate the parent company's product. He also denied there exists any policy in respect to continuing to operate houses at a loss. Pressed on the point, Schaefer declared his first consideration when informed first runs are losing money is not to drop them but to determine what factors are responsible for the loss and from then out attempt to correct this, either through a revision of policy or reduction in expenses, or both.

Urged Theatre Decentralization

Just prior to, and shortly after, being appointed general manager of Paramount at the time the company went into receivership he advocated to Adolph Zukor that the company's theatre operations from New York be decentralized, the witness asserted. Asked why he advocated such a move, Schaefer replied, in effect, that the industry was facing the peak of the depression; that the company was losing "considerable money;" that manpower in New York was "inadequate" to handle operations. He recommended local managers be hired because of their "better knowledge" of local problems.

Schaefer defended Paramount's acquisition of theatres during the 1930-1933 period as necessary to compete with Loew's, Warner and Fox, whom he described as being active in taking over houses that "jeopardized" the distribution of Paramount product. It was while he was eastern division manager that he recommended acquisition of theatres in many New England towns, as well as houses in Philadelphia and Ohio.

It was while the witness was New England district manager in 1923 that the company adopted a change of selling pictures from blocks to separate deals. He said the reason for this was mainly on persistence of Jesse L. Lasky, "who believed he was being hampered in production and said he could make better pictures and get us better rentals if we changed our system of distribution."

Para't's Theatre Income $96,182,938

NEW YORK—Paramount's income in theatre receipts, film rentals and film accessories totaled $96,182,938 in 1939. Dividends from affiliated companies ran to $2,405,058 and other income, not designated, to $1,022,953 making a grand total of $99,610,950. This compares with $104,360,381 in 1938 and $109,033,470 in 1937.

Theatre operation and general expenses which embrace rentals, film rentals, real estate and other taxes were $45,472,768 last year. It cost Paramount $15,812,209 to run its film distribution, including the cost of accessories and producers' and others' share of film rentals. Amortization of negatives and prints last year totaled $29,686,201.

At $3,874,944, Paramount's '39 Net Is Mildly Under '38

NEW YORK—Paramount showed a slight drop in its combined consolidated profit last year when the company earned $3,874,944 as compared with $4,105,676 in 1938.

The 1939 report shows a net of $2,757,944, including $20,411 profit on debenture purchases and after allowance for theatre operating and general expenses, distribution cost, amortization, income taxes and the like. However, these earnings do not include approximately $1,117,000 which represents the company's net interest as a stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings of partially-owned companies. This makes the combined consolidated earnings and share of undistributed earnings $3,874,944.

In 1938, net profit was $2,865,676, including $332,397 profit on debenture purchases. When Paramount's share of undistributed earnings of partially-owned subsidiaries were added that year, the combined consolidated earnings rose to $4,105,676.

The direct net of $2,754,944 for 1939 is equal to 63 cents a share on the 2,465,927 shares of common outstanding but after allowing for $1,201,072 in dividends on first and second preferred issues. The consolidated profit of $3,874,944 is equal to earnings of $1.08 per share of common when calculated on the above basis.

The 1938 direct net of $2,865,676 was equal to earnings of 68 cents per share on the 2,465,929 shares of common then outstanding. The consolidated profit of $4,105,676 for that year was equal to $1.18 per common share.

In its consolidated balance sheet at the turn of the year, Paramount shows cash and marketable securities on hand of $10,747,860 of which $1,983,275 represented balances in Canada, $452,787 in Great Britain and other British dominions and $73,115 in other foreign countries, chiefly South America. Total investments in foreign subsidiaries, other than Canada, aggregated $7,100,000 of which $5,000,000 is invested in England.

At the end of the year, total inventory was $19,887,903; total current assets, $34,651,714 and current liabilities, $8,816,135. This left a working capital of $25,835,579. Total assets are $109,575,264.

In his message to stockholders, Barney Balaban emphasized the interest-bearing indebtedness of the company and consolidated subsidiaries was reduced by about $5,000,000. The entire six per cent debenture issue totaling $9,689,576 was retired during the year.

UA's "Turnabout" Is "Season's Funniest"

Hollywood—A hilarious sally into the field of droll fantasy, in which the famed Thorne Smith novel has been—to some extent, at least—expunged of its risque motivations, this stands as one of the season's funniest and most unusual comedies. It's definitely not for the kiddies, but audiences seeking novel entertainment are sure to acknowledge complete satisfaction with the ludicrous results ensuing when John Hubbard and Carole Landis, as a scrappy husband and wife, find they have exchanged bodies. Hal Roach, who both produced and directed, paced it for laughs all the way and lined up a sterling cast into the bargain.—SPEAR.

Query Joseph Schenck on Loan to William Bioff

NEW YORK—Joseph M. Schenck, during the past several weeks, has been interrogated by a federal grand jury in connection with a $100,000 loan made by him to William Bioff, union leader, in conjunction with other film executives. While the office of John T. Cahill, U. S. attorney for the southern district of New York, refuses comment, it has been learned Schenck was questioned as to what disposition he made of the money in his tax returns. Both as a gift or a loan, the money is subject to tax.

Avoids Direct Word On Settlement Step

NEW YORK—"When something becomes a surety I might say something;" otherwise Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox president, declines to discuss reports of a settlement of the government's key suit.

"There are so many things facing us," he said upon his return from the company's sales convention in Chicago, "that it is hard to pick the worst. As matters stand, no two producers can talk to the same exhibitor who wants to know his source of supply without the fear of the government looking over our shoulder. It means individual effort by each company, and this is not so easy."

Asked if this was meant to imply that 20th Century-Fox would seek higher rentals for the 1940-41 program than for the current season, he replied: "Our selling program will be a matter of individual negotiation. We are going to do the best we can. But no one can make as good a picture today for the same money that the same, or similar, picture would have cost a year ago. The labor problem is acute."

Asked if the company might alter its plans for the new season if conditions in Europe were such as to cause a curtailment in either the number of pictures or budgets, he said: "There is no difference whether we set our plans now or three months from now. We would not upset our plans, either, on the theory of what is going to happen."

Kent has postponed his routine visit to the coast from late April to the middle of May.

"Wind" Questionnaire May Reveal Patron Fields

NEW YORK—Selznick-International hopes to secure valuable information relating to the potentialities of attracting new patrons through a questionnaire being distributed at all Loew's theatres where "Gone With the Wind" is played. The theory behind the move is that "Wind" is said to be drawing persons who admit they rarely, if ever, go to picture theatres.

There is also a tangible value in the poll. This bears on the possibilities, pointed up by the questions, of repeat engagements. Printed cards, requiring no return postage, carry the following queries: (1) "How many times have you seen 'Gone With the Wind?' (2) Will you see it again? (3) Have you read the book? (4) Is person answering a man or woman?"

stage is presumed to have brought this comment, allegedly attributable to Grad Sears:

"It's fine. I don't mind. But when the lines begin to interfere with customers trying to get into the Warner exchange, that's unfair competition."

Reverse Twist

Bob Hussey, Paramount's director of radio activities, remarks:

"Bob Hope says there are so many movie columnists taking out stage shows featuring film stars that he intends being different. He is going to take out a stage show himself, featuring movie columnists."

St. Joseph, Mo., Exhibitor Sues Chain, Exchanges

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Charging violation of the Clayton and Sherman acts, Frank H. Cassil of the Rialto has filed an anti-trust suit in the local federal court against major distributors and Dubinsky Bros. circuit. The plaintiff seeks $452,775 damages, alleging "unlawful combinations and conspiracies" in the violation of the anti-trust laws by which the defendants damaged the Rialto's business to the extent of almost $500,000. Monsky-Grodinsky-Mayer & Cohen of Omaha instituted the action for Cassil.

Specifically, the plaintiff charges his investment is substantially destroyed.

of court under section 10 of the 1932 consent decree here in Chicago.

Master Eldredge's 50-page report went to the judge in the case, Judge Charles Woodward, who sat in the original consent case in 1932.

Section 10, as explained in the government's information filed on November 9, 1938, when the criminal contempt proceedings were first instituted:

" . . . enjoined the defendant exhibitors (B&K Management and Balaban & Katz Corporation) and their officers from entering into or performing any contracts, agreements, franchises or licenses, with any one or more of the defendant distributors for the exhibition of motion pictures in the Chicago area, the individual or collective effect of which would unreasonably lessen competition in interstate trade and commerce between the defendants or any two or more of them, or effect a combination in unreasonable restraint of interstate trade and commerce in motion pictures in said territory (referring to Chicago exchange area)."

Meanwhile, Eldredge recommended that the other defendants—Loew's, Inc., RKO Radio, Universal, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists, and Warner Bros. Pictures—be dismissed from the suit. On all other counts, also, the other three defendants were found not guilty.

Kenneth Young V. P. and Treasurer of Pathe Labs

NEW YORK—Kenneth M. Young, president of Pathe Film Corp., has assumed the office of vice-president and treasurer of the subsidiary company, Pathe Laboratories, replacing Tom P. Loach, now vice-president and treasurer of Monogram. George J. Bannick succeeds Loach as vice-president and treasurer of Pathe Film.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of Pathe Film the following members of the board were re-elected: T. C. Davis, Henry J. Guild, Allan P. Kirby, Robert M. McKinney, Louis Phillips, Charles A. Stone, Kenneth M. Young and Robert R. Young.

Pathe Film, which holds 3,500 shares or 35 per cent of the common stock of DuPont Film and 11,620 shares of Pathe Laboratories, is likely to declare a dividend at the end of the year, Young declared. He said it was the intention of the management to keep Pathe Film a holding company.

The meeting was punctuated with criticism at the larger stockholders for their failure to dissolve Pathe Film Corp. and divide the assets. Disapproval of Pathe Film's investment in the now defunct Grand National was also voiced. There were 434,273 proxies and 324 actual votes represented.

Univ. Loan Extended

NEW YORK—Loan of $2,000,000 evidenced by notes made to Universal Pictures by Universal Corp. is extended another year. The notes, dated February 26, 1938, were due February 26, 1941.

As One Lawyer Sees It

NEW YORK—It may be anywhere from 14 to 24 months before trial in the government's key suit is completed, yet defense attorneys already know what they are going to ask of the presiding judge before he renders a verdict, assuming, of course, the trial goes that far.

The lawyers, of course, will seek a dismissal. On what grounds? Here's one lawyer's version:

"Even should the government prove every one of its allegations, even should it establish beyond a reasonable doubt all it seeks, that does not say the outcome is illegal. We will contend there has been no violation of the law."

Asked how he thought the issue would be finally adjudicated, the attorney observed the case will finally go to the U. S. supreme court, regardless of which side loses the first move. Since the action is not criminal, the department of justice can ask the high court to review a lower court decision.

FIRST QUARTER CONSTRUCTION CHECK SHOWS GAIN; 81 PLANNED, 65 IN WORK, 69 OPEN

Projects Planned Exceed Last Quarter; Number Of Openings Down

NEW YORK—The first quarterly theatre survey, conducted by BOXOFFICE, for the new year shows an increase of seven theatres planned as against the last quarter of 1939. In sharp contrast, however, is the number of theatres opened in the two periods. The current number shows a decrease of 74. Also, there is a decrease of six in projects under construction.

Total figures show 81 theatres were planned, 65 were in various stages of construction and 69 were opened during the first three months of the current year. This compares with 71 in work, 74 planned and 143 opened during October through December of last year.

In the latest survey California is out front with six new houses opened. Florida takes second place with five, while Louisiana, Michigan, Texas and Canada each had four. Georgia, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania chalked up three new ventures from January to March.

The most active states during the first three months are California with six projects in work and six houses opened, Ohio with six in work, five planned and three opened, Texas with four in work and as many planned and opened. Canada and its dominions were fairly active with reports tallying three in work, as many planned and four opened.

In detail, enterprises in the various states since the first of the year follow:

Alabama

Arab—Bob Word is building a new house to replace his present one.

Bessemer—Bessemer Theatres, Inc. will build a 1,200-seater to cost approximately $40,000 on Fourth Ave., between 18th and 19th Sts.

Birmingham — Birmingham Theatre Operating Co., owned by the Wilby interests, has purchased a lot at Five Points on which R. M. Kennedy, district manager, says the finest suburban theatre in this district will be erected in the near future.

Boaz—A new theatre of modernistic design to replace the present Boaz is now under construction by Col. Thomas Orr who operates several theatres in northeast Alabama.

Huntsville—Aaron Broadway is operating the new 250 seater catering to colored patronage.

Selznick's "Rebecca" Wins April Blue Ribbon for UA

"Rebecca," adapted from Daphne du Maurier's best selling mystery novel, a Selznick-International production distributed by United Artists, has been voted by the National Screen Council as the outstanding picture among April releases, and winner of the BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

David O. Selznick produced the winning film while Alfred Hitchcock directed. The former has won previous BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award distinctions for "Viva, Villa!" (May, 1934), "David Copperfield" (Jan. 1935), and "A Tale of Two Cities" (Jan. 1936). The co-stars of "Rebecca," Joan Fontaine and Laurence Olivier, also have each won a previous BOXOFFICE Award, the former for her performance in "Gunga Din," which won the Feb. 1939 Award, and the latter for his role in "Wuthering Heights" (Apr. 1939). The stars head an imposing supporting cast, consisting of Judith Anderson, C. Aubrey Smith, George Sanders, Nigel Bruce, Florence Bates and Gladys Cooper.

The story of "Rebecca" is about a prominent society man who brings his second wife, a shy, unsophisticated girl, to his estate called Manderley. The forceful personality and beauty of his dead, first wife, dominates the castle and the lives of the people in it. The slightly demented housekeeper deliberately aids in keeping alive the memory of her former mistress whom she had loved and raised from childhood.

This Award is given each month to the film receiving the highest number of votes by the members of the National Screen Council, whose selection is governed by outstanding merit and suitability of the film to whole-family entertainment. Members of the Council include over 200 motion picture editors of leading newspapers throughout the country, motion picture reviewing committee of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, and state motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

U. S. Film Service Drops Out June 30

WASHINGTON—Failing prompt action by Congress to establish them on a legal basis, the United States film service and the radio service of the office of education will pass out of existence on June 30.

The last chance of the two services to secure funds—$106,400 for the former and $40,000 for the latter—failed in the Senate when, by a vote of 24 to 36, an effort to include those appropriations in the federal security agency appropriation bill was defeated.

The House already had refused to appropriate the money for motion picture and radio service on the same ground that the Senate took in rejecting an amendment offered by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma—that the services had been set up in the national emergency council and last year transferred to the federal security agency by the President without any action by Congress.

Long in Debate

Considerable time was spent by the Senate in debating the issue, one of the most controversial in the whole appropriation bill, with Senator Thomas warning that there would be a nationwide protest if the film service was eliminated.

The service, he said, is the clearing house for the other more than 25 agencies which produce films and, he contended, there was ample authorization for its operation in the law setting up the office of education.

Opposing the appropriation, Senator McKellar of Tennessee said, in response to a question by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, that the service had been financed from relief funds.

Charges Transfer

"It struck me as monstrous to be transferring appropriations from one agency to another when there is a prohibition in the WPA law against using the money except for work relief," he declared. "Admittedly this money is not used for work relief."

Reminded by Senator Thomas that the government has been making pictures for many years, Senator McKellar charged that "insidiously, apparently secretly, not asking for funds for film service, but asking for funds under other pretexts, various agencies have been using appropriations for film purposes to the extent perhaps of half a million dollars a year, and I imagine a great deal more than half a million dollars, for film services."

The Oklahoma senator admitted that some of the appropriations are "concealed," and Senator McKellar disclosed that the appropriations committee has given the matter much thought and is writing to each department asking for information as to the money which is being spent for films. Some 27 agencies are engaged in this work, the total cost, he estimated, being about $3,000,000 a year.

"If the amendment is not agreed to, if the film service is discontinued, there will be 26 other agencies engaged in this work, but there will be no central office to distribute the films," he warned. However, he admitted, the individual agencies can take care of their own distribution. "Personally, I think perhaps we have too many agencies in the film business, but the action taken by the committee is not the way to attack this problem," he added.

"If some member of congress should see fit to prepare and introduce a bill on the subject, proposing to consolidate all film agencies in one federal agency, hearings could be held, and all agencies having film services could be brought in to testify. The hearing would disclose the necessity for film agencies, and the kind of agencies needed; and from that hearing the congress could develop the facts upon which it could act."

Says Over Expanded

Joining in the attack on the appropriation, Senator Taft of Ohio said that the film service is not only a distributing agency but a producer of motion pictures. "I believe the whole business has been greatly expanded beyond any real value in relation to the functions of the federal government," he commented.

And, he added, "I do not care who is controlling the government, if it is to produce films and put them out, they are bound to become propaganda for the particular department and the particular work of the department that happens to be covered by the films.

"In other words, a United States documentary film is a United States propaganda film. I do not care how good the purpose of that kind of a film may be, I do not believe it is an undertaking in which the federal government should engage.

"This whole business of film service and radio service for the government not only has been used for purposes of propaganda, but it is bound to be so used. I believe that when we have a chance to vote on it—and this is the first chance we have had to vote on this kind of thing—we ought to say to the bureaus of the government that the time has come when they should attend to their particular business, and they should not be out spreading propaganda."

Despite the support of Senator Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader, who declared himself a motion picture fan and said he had derived "considerable information and inspiration" from the educational pictures he has seen, the Senate refused to accept the Thomas amendment.

Opie Has a Squawk; In Skouras' Lap

New York—Business at theatres, a BOXOFFICE correspondent thought, had pretty well run the gamut of maybe to obnoxious. But it remained for J. Opie Hagans, colored man-Friday to George Skouras, who answers to the cognomen "vice-president," to hit a new tack on oppressive tactics.

Opie has a sideline, already exclusively reported. He owns a couple of theatres in Florida. He was asked how was "gasheft?"

"It's terrible," he bellowed. "They're trying to give me clearance behind the Gulf of Mexico."

Ashurst Beats Ickes On Nat'l Park Fees

WASHINGTON—Charging the secretary of the interior with pique because he was not given "credit lines" in motion pictures taken on the public domain, Senator Ashurst of Arizona has induced the Senate to adopt a prohibition upon the imposition of fees for the taking of motion pictures on the public lands other than the national parks and Indian lands.

The Senator, who had previously introduced a resolution for an investigation of a fee schedule issued by the interior department, seized the opportunity afforded by the discussion of motion pictures in the federal security agency appropriation bill to offer an amendment barring fees, which was adopted without a formal vote.

In one of the highly humorous speeches for which he is noted, Senator Ashurst told of a rivalry between the secretaries of interior and agriculture—an "opera bouffe" which he compared with Gilbert and Sullivan's light operas.

"I am informed that the honorable secretary of interior saw a picture that had been filmed on lands under the jurisdiction of the secretary of the interior, but the courtesy line of which gave credit to the secretary of agriculture," he said. "Forthwith the secretary of interior set to work to see what he could do toward having the proper courtesy titles placed on such pictures as are taken on lands under his jurisdiction."

Cites Credit Rule

In support of this, he pointed to a provision of the department's order, requiring that credit shall be given it "if any of the scenes photographed are used in travelogs or motion pictures taken for educational purposes."

The schedule which Senator Ashurst attacked was issued by the department April 20. It provided for a flat fee of $100 for the privilege of making of feature pictures on lands under the department's control, other than the national parks, involving a cast of more than 25 persons, and a daily charge in the national parks of $50 per day if a cast of not more than five persons is engaged, $250 for casts of five to 25 and $500 for larger casts.

He charged that the department was without authority to announce such fee schedules and that control of the public lands, other than the Indian and national park lands, was vested solely in Congress.

Yates Drew $75,180

NEW YORK—As president of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., Herbert J. Yates, president, drew $75,180 in salary in 1939. M. J. Siegel, vice-president, drew $39,000 and M. H. Lavenstein, general counsel, the same figure.

Pathe Earns $29,632

NEW YORK—Pathe Film Corp. reports a quarterly profit of $29,632 for the period ending March 31 which accrued from its 35 per cent holding of common stock of DuPont Film.

Columbia Wins as Judge Hurls Out Six Stockholders' Suits

NEW YORK—The most important story of the week in the courts was a reserved decision by Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook on an application of Columbia, its officers and directors, to dismiss six consolidated stockholders' actions against them. Columbia claims a large part of the suit is barred by the statute of limitations and that the balance fails to state a cause of action. Suit is being brought by minority stockholders who seek an accounting for alleged waste and mismanagement.

Dorothy West and Madge Christie have filed a federal court action against Universal Pictures and others charging the infringement of their story, "This Modern Instance" in "My Man Godfrey." An injunction, accounting of profits and damages is sought.

Application has been made to the supreme court by Sherman S. Krellberg to dissolve the Paradise Pictures Corp. which was formed in August, 1936, to operate the Belmont Theatre. The lease has expired and the corporation has not functioned since 1938.

Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell has reserved decision on the plea of Gustav Delemos, unsuccessful bidder for the Grand National property, to re-open the bids. Delemos bid $37,500 against Mohawk Pictures $17,500, plus percentages of the gross, which were more acceptable to the creditors' committee.

Federal Judge Bondy has postponed from May 14 to May 28 the hearing on applications for allowances in the RKO reorganization and Irving Trust's, the trustee's, petition for discharge. Irving Trust, which requested the postponement, recently hired counsel to prepare its case and states it will need the additional two weeks to complete its presentation.

Olga Linek Scholl Russ has filed a $250,000 suit against RKO in the federal court, claiming the plagiarism of her scenario, "Long Live Love," in "I Dream Too Much."

Deanna Is Universal's, Not Metropolitan Opera's

NEW YORK—Deanna Durbin proposes continuing her work in films, and has not been approached or consulted by any representatives of the Metropolitan Opera, according to Universal. "Miss Durbin is under exclusive contract to Universal studios and we are authorized to state for her, as well as ourselves, that she has never considered a proposition from the Metropolitan or any other opera company," adds the company.

Carter Barron Returns After Miami Vacation

MIAMI—Carter Barron, Loew district manager operating out of Washington, has returned to his headquarters after a two-week vacation spent fishing here with his brother and son, Carter Tate jr. En route north, Barron stopped off at Monroe, Ga., where his brother, David Irenus, lives and is president of the local prep school.

Not So Anxious Next Time, Perhaps

New York—Arthur Treacher related this experience to the Motion Picture Associates: "I was under contract to 20th-Fox for three years before I met Zanuck. I finally got to meet him. Afterwards, they didn't take up my option."

Heywood-Wakefield Profit For March Quarter $4,880

BOSTON—Heywood-Wakefield Co., theatre seat manufacturers, report a net of $4,880 for the March quarter as against a loss last year of $105,252. The report, embracing subsidiaries, is calculated after provision for conversion of Canadian profits at the then current rate of exchange and the net is equal to earnings of three cents a share on the 139,480 preferred shares outstanding.

$105,135 for American Seating

NEW YORK—American Seating Co. earned $105,135 in its March quarter, comparing with a loss of $33,688 last year. The net is equivalent to earnings of 47 cents a share on 221,062 shares of no par common. The company reports net sales totaled $1,875,996 as against $1,338,702.

Geo. Walsh Leaves Helm Of Netco Theatres Corp.

NEW YORK—George Walsh has resigned as president and general manager of Netco Theatres Corp., and will not be replaced. The company, a subsidiary of Paramount, operates theatres in Rochester, Syracuse, Newburgh, Glens Falls, Middletown and Staten Island as parts of pools with other interests.

Walsh declares he has withdrawn because of the fact the various pools have reduced the number of theatres actively operated by Paramount under the Netco banner. He plans a vacation, then will talk about future plans.

RCA Checks on Sound in Its Equipped Theatres

CAMDEN, N. J.—W. L. Jones, national service manager for RCA Photophone, declares the company has been checking sound in its equipped theatres since the first of the year to adjust them to present-day standards. "Thus, exhibitors playing such pictures as 'Gone With the Wind' and 'Pinocchio' are assured of peak performances in their sound equipment," he observes.

Rename WB Hollywood

NEW YORK—Warner's Hollywood which last housed the extended run of "The Blue Bird" has been renamed the 51st Street Theatre for the stage engagement of "Romeo and Juliet."

Court Nod to Fox Theatres' Report

NEW YORK—Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy has approved the inventory and statement of account of Milton C. Weisman and Kenneth P. Steinrich, trustees of Fox Theatres Corp., from March 17 to December 31, 1939. He discharged the trustees and approved their plan of operation of a budget of estimated receipts, expenditures and disbursements for 1940.

The court also approved the extension of a managerial agreement between the William Fox Isis Investment Co. and Fox Intermountain. Each of the trustees is to be paid $2,500 for his services and dividend of 8 per cent paid on claims. There is $87,528 in cash in the estate while the total book value of tangible property, excluding the cash, is $302,281. Present unpaid balance of allowed claims is $7,451,763, not including the $7,000,000 claim of Fox against the company.

Estimated gross receipts at the end of 1940 were $132,846 and estimated net receipts, $121,259. The report disclosed that liquidation of the estate will pay off more than 8 per cent to creditors. When the estate was ordered liquidated over a year ago, it was over $35,000,000 in the red.

K-A-O Net of $961,893 Reflects a Mild Drop

NEW YORK—Reflecting a mild drop, K-A-O reports a net of $961,893 for the 52 weeks ending March 30, 1940 as compared with $987,587 for the previous comparable period. Current earnings allow for all charges including a $400,000 settlement of a lease obligation and are equal to $14.96 a share on the 64,304 shares of seven per cent cumulative convertible preferred issued. After allowance for the preferred, the net is equal to 42 cents a share on the common, comparing with 44 cents a share in the last fiscal year.

For the 13 weeks to March 30, the company earned $312,452, comparing with $327,186 in the same period of the last year.

B. F. Keith Corp. and subsidiaries show a net of $566,362 for the 52 weeks ended March 30 of this year after all charges including a $400,000 settlement of a lease obligation. For the 13 weeks, likewise ending March 30, the company shows a profit of $209,455 as against $218,364 in the previous comparable period.

Summer's Approach Drives Vaude From RKO Houses

NEW YORK—With the approach of summer, RKO's Golden Gate, San Francisco, is the only circuit unit continuing stage attractions with the regular film policy. The RKO Boston and the Strand, Syracuse, are booking stage attractions weekends only in place of full-time vaudeville. The Shubert, Cincinnati, Colonial, Dayton, and Palace, Cleveland, have dropped vaudeville until the fall.

Australia Limiting Remittances to 50%

NEW YORK—Australia, following in England's footsteps, flatly informs major distributors all they can expect in remittances during the following year is 50 per cent, or about $4,520,000. The figure is based on the approximate total of $9,100,000 grossed by the companies for the year ending June 30, 1939.

Distributors have been negotiating strenuously to achieve better terms from the Australian government. Anzac officials, it is reported, ruled out all objections in face of the necessity to preserve sterling exchange.

A quasi-ban on remittances has been in effect for some weeks. Distributors will be notified shortly on what date the ban on remittances goes into effect. The terms follow the same stipulations as in England's "embassy contract:" The companies can withdraw 75 per cent of the allocated revenue the first six months and 25 per cent the remaining.

Hoffberg Acquires Three Films Starring Donat

NEW YORK—Jack H. Hoffberg states he has acquired three pictures starring Robert Donat released originally through UA for the New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco territories. They are "Men of Tomorrow," "Cash" and "Over Night."

Paramount Music Corp. Duties Are Holman's

NEW YORK—His election to the presidency of Famous Music Company and Paramount Music Corporation to succeed the late Lou Diamond gives Russell Holman added duties. He is, of course, Paramount's eastern production head.

S. O. S. Stock Buy

NEW YORK—Carbon Products Co., former distributor of projection arc and photographic carbons imported from England and France, has sold its entire stock to S.O.S. Cinema Supply Corp. of New York.

These carbons were formerly sold under the trade name of Sun-Arc and will be continued by S.O.S. under that brand as well as their own International label.

Hopes for Re-opened Italy on Washington-Rome Diplomacy

NEW YORK—Distributors are placing hopes for the re-opening of the Italian market on the current diplomatic exchanges taking place between Washington and Rome. Conjecture places strong belief in either a new commercial treaty or reciprocal trade agreement crystallizing as a direct result of Sumner Welles' visit to Rome.

The state department long has been aware of the problem of the companies. Ambassador Phillips in Rome has attempted on numerous occasions to have the Italian government modify its attitude toward American distributors.

Despite two breaks in the ranks, distributors are maintaining their position that their rights to sell their own pictures must be respected. From time to time, independent Italian representatives have made all kinds of cash offers for product.

It is understood the Italian government, at one time, suggested a flat price of $750,000 for the majors' product. Pressure on the smaller companies has been even stronger. Columbia and RKO have turned down many lucrative offers because officials of these two companies feel the cause of the distributors can be advanced only if they act in unison.

Some interest is placed on the scheduled visit of F. W. Allport, Hays office representative in London, to Rome. It is known the new administration of the Italian monopoly has signified its willingness to renew discussions.

Korda's Coast Unit Formed; Two Yearly

NEW YORK—Details for Alexander Korda to produce two a year for the next two years in Hollywood have been completed with the formation of Alexander Korda Films, Inc. A like number of pictures will be continued to be produced in England at the Denham studios.

Within the past few months, Korda has brought over from England his brother, Zoltan, director; Basil Bleck, legal aide; Jack Okey, production manager, and William Hornbeck, film editor. In addition, Sabu, June Duprez and John Justin, players, are now on the coast awaiting assignments.

Headquarters will be maintained at the UA studios in Hollywood. Financial arrangements for Hollywood production were recently completed with New York and coast banks participating.

UA-Goldwyn Briefs Due For Filing Tuesday

NEW YORK—Briefs will be filed by UA counsel Tuesday before Federal Judge Vincent Leibell on motions by the distributing company to strike out certain portions of Samuel Goldwyn's complaint to sever his contract and also for a bill of particulars. At the same time, attorneys representing Alexander Korda will submit briefs to substantiate the producer's argument the complaint should be dismissed as it applies against him.

Schaefer and Depinet Back to the Coast

LOUISVILLE, KY.—George J. Schaefer, RKO president, and Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of sales, here for the world premiere of "My Favorite Wife," accompanied the studio delegation back to the coast Saturday night. They will get the new season's lineup set for the company's sales convention. They plan to return to New York at the end of the week.

Edmund Mantell Decides To Settle in Florida

NEW YORK—After six weeks looking over the territory and entertaining propositions, Edmund Mantell, who operates the Art and Tiffany in the Bronx, states he is definitely going to settle in business in Florida. He plans to sell his two theatres in the near future and probably operate open air or drive-in projects in and around Orlando, Fla.

The Bronx exhibitor intends to leave for Orlando again in July to continue negotiations on projected plans for his new enterprise, following which he may return to New York to dispose of his business interests here.

Date: Friday, May 3

W. G. Van Schmus was strolling beside the Rockefeller-planted sycamores that line the curb of the street that bounds the Music Hall on the south. It was mid-morning and the Music Hall's managing director was headed for the executive entrance. From his gait, any one might see he wasn't preoccupied with the state of the Hall.

We cut across his path, brought him to a firm, but polite halt and inquired: "Mr. Van, what policy do you plan for the Center Theatre?" Mr. Van eyed us cautiously and said: "You tell me. If it's good, I'll put it in. I told them not to expect an answer for a year. Try me then."

To Use RCA Sound

NEW YORK—Ritz Enterprises, operators of the Ritz and Earle, Baltimore, have contracted for RCA Photophone for both theatres. The company is building a new house at St. Helena, Md.

Samuel and Joseph Varbalow of Victoria Amusement will install Photophone at the Broadway, Palmyra, N. J.

H. J. Thompson, who took over the former Lyceum at Watsontown, Pa. from Warren N. Johnson and renamed it Watson, is rebuilding the house which was gutted by fire. He will install Photophone.

BROADWAY

GEORGE SKOURAS is trying to sell his Mamaroneck home to Tom Collins. The other day Skouras met Connors and, as an inducement, guaranteed the M-G-M eastern sales manager he would have new pictures Friday, Saturday and Sunday to show in the projection room at the house. Nothing was said about clearance over Spyros Skouras who also screens pictures at his home nearby on weekends . . . E. M. Saunders, western M-G-M sales manager, and Joe Bezahler of the home office, flew to the coast via American Airlines Thursday to be on hand for the first of the district sales conferences called by William F. Rodgers in San Francisco . . . Myron Sattler, Paramount New York manager, has returned from a week at Havana. All of his tan is gone by now . . . Paul O'Brien returns May 11 from a honeymoon in Mexico City and Havana.

Lillian Bergson, Brooklyn booker for Paramount, is mourning the loss of her father . . . Tom Connors, by the way, is making a concerted effort to taper his waistline by five or six pounds . . . Eddie Mannix and Irving Asher flew in from the coast Wednesday night en route to England on M-G-M British production plans . . . Melvyn Douglas arrived from Washington Wednesday to appear as one of the speakers at the 75th anniversary dinner of The Nation, liberal weekly magazine, at the Astor . . . Mrs. Joseph R. Vogel is back from a winter vacation in Miami . . . Sam Appelgate, M-G-M branch manager in Philadelphia, visited the home office during the week . . . Joe Seider is tuning up his yacht, the Betty Bee, named after his wife, for an intensive fishing season. Ditto George J. Schaefer with his Jack 'n Jill, which has just arrived from southern waters.

Derby Notes: RKO had a special car on the Derby special which left from the Penn Station for its party of syndicate representatives invited to attend the premiere of "My Favorite Wife." George J. Schaefer, Ned E. Depinet, Barret McCormick, Irv Shiffrin and the writing team of Sam and Bella Spewack completed the group. Also on the train were Arthur M. Loew and Major Albert L. Warner. The RKO group which arrived from the coast in a chartered plane included Leo McCarey, Garson Kanin, Randy Scott, Gene Fowler, David Butler, Hal Roach, Perry Lieber, Margaret Ettinger and Irene Dunne and her husband, Dr. Francis Griffin. Highlight of the weekend was the singing of the traditional "My Old Kentucky Home" by Miss Dunne before the big race at Churchill Downs. The premiere at the Rialto Friday night stopped traffic in the already clogged streets of the horse-racing capitol of America.

J. Myer Schine is back at his Gloversville headquarters after a week at his Miami Beach home . . . Irving Goodfield of Apeda has been named official photographer at the World's Fair, which opens May 11 . . . Ralph Branton was in from Des Moines and wearing green-colored glasses . . . Louis Hyman, special representative for Sol Lesser, is visiting from the coast in connection with "Our Town," the producer's first for UA . . . Frank Nugent's first assignment as a 20th-Fox writer is "Lucky Baldwin," from C. B. Glasscock's novel. Nugent is the former top-flight Times *film critic . . . C. C. Moskowitz, Walter Reade, Joel Levy, Mady Hammerstein, Helen Aaron, Seymour Mayer and Bill Moses have returned from Florida vacations. Lillian Jeffrey, Joe Vogel's secretary, got back Sunday and Martin Moskowitz is planning to head south by car within the next few weeks . . . Jimmy Binkov, Union City exhibitor, returned late in the week from 15th and Euclid, Miami Beach. He spent about a week with his family there after being examined before trial in New York by RKO in the government suit. Binkov, while in Miami, told a BOXOFFICE reporter Norman Samuelson, former Allied of N. J. counsel, gave his name to the government as "having knowledge of relevant facts." Personally, Binkov added, he would rather see the suit settled than have it go to trial . . . Nicholas M. Schenck is due to return north for the summer about May 10. He will close his Miami Beach home and bring his family back to Great Neck then.

Edmund Mantell, Bronx exhibitor, is back from six weeks in Florida with nine pounds to the good—or is it bad? . . . It's Publicity, But—

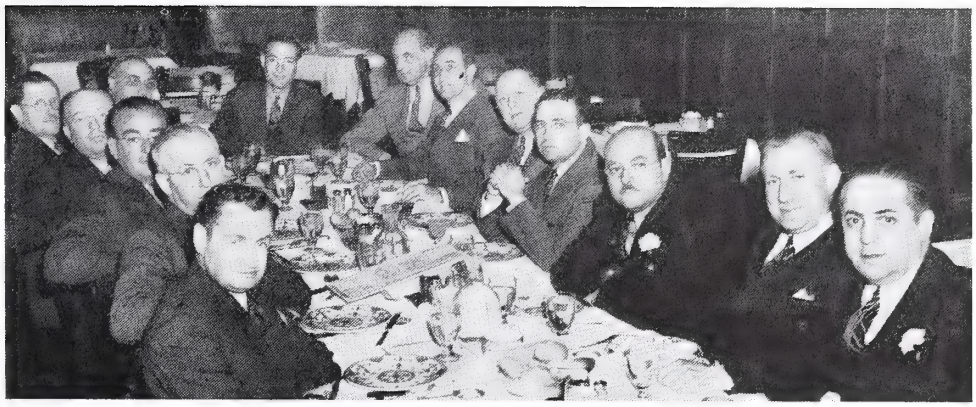
The little shaver is cute. His name is Richard Herman, and here he seeks the autograph of Helen Vinson on her arrival at Grand Central from Hollywood. Miss Vinson, currently interested in a vacation, finished a role in "Torrid Zone" for Warner before she left the coast.

Ambassador for Mono.—

Madeleine S. White, secretary of Monogram, took a Caribbean cruise. But she also converted it into a goodwill mission when she visited the Netherlands West Indies and visited Hazel Benton of National Theatres. Miss White, on the right, is photographed in front of the Paramount Theatre in Jacmel, Haiti.



BROADWAY

BILL SISTROM, RKO director, has returned to the coast . . . Mort A. Spring, executive assistant to Arthur M. Loew, was home ill during the week. He says it had nothing to do with the boycott of "Gone With the Wind" by British exhibitors, but just a cold . . . Michel Lauria, former franchise holder for Columbia in Italy, is stopping at the New Weston Hotel and anxious to buy some American pictures . . . Principal speaker at Town Hall in Los Angeles Monday is Stanton Griffis. Following his speaking appearance, Griffis goes to San Francisco to confer briefly before returning to New York . . . Harry Harris is reopening the President in the Bronx . . . Joe Seiden, who produces Jewish talkers, and Ben Sherman have taken the Clinton on the east side and will continue the policy of first run Jewish films. Moe Goldman had the house last.

Stanley Hand, Altec's demon traveling representative, is back in New York following a month's swing around the circle. The circle, so called, took him to the north, middle and southwest . . . Mrs. M. Boyer, who has a son named Charles, was one of the inbound passengers on the Washington . . . Richard Greene spent exactly four days here from Hollywood, the purpose being a guest spot on the Kate Smith air show. He co-stars with Vera Zorina in "I Was an Adventuress" . . . Milton J. Cross, well-known radio announcer, is being talked about as commentator for a talked about "feature newsreel," presumably to be sponsored by a national weekly magazine. He has just finished the narration on the first nine reels of "The Parade of Progress," designed to run to 52 reels in a series "on the historical achievements of man from the beginning of time." Which is a large order, it would seem, for any producer to undertake. Lester Park of Pastime Pictures, however, is the producer.

Dr. A. H. Giannini should be back in Hollywood by the time you read this . . . Godfrey Building curbstone huddle in the warm sunshine the other afternoon included the doctor, Jack Cohn, Nate Spingold, Louis Hyman, Monroe Greenthal, Jack Schlaifer and Jim Mulvey all of whom spoke about baseball, spring and a wide assortment of topics except one—motion pictures . . . Birthday for Schneider and a Party—

Columbia's treasurer has the 35th event observed for him by his associates via a luncheon at The Tavern. Around the festive board are Abe Montague, Rube Jackter, Lou Weinberg, J. A. McConville, Max Weisfeldt, Mort Wormser, Nat Cohn, Nate Spingold, Leo Jaffe, Louis Barbano, and Max Seligman. An unexpected guest, more or less, was Dr. A. H. Giannini, Columbia trustee, who had arrived on the day from California. Jack Cohn got there too late for the cameraman.

Dinner hour these evenings at Toots Shor's Dinerie and Winerie looks as though all the film companies were holding socials, dispite an active picket line which featured the opening. A quick tour on the arm of Morris Jacks revealed not only a handsomely appointed main-floor dining room and one of the most interesting banquet rooms on the second floor, but a mess of filmites, to-wit: Herbert J. Yates, Ned E. Depinet, John J. O'Connor, Max Fellerman, Freddie Meyers, Dave Levy, Leo Abrams, Louis Frisch, Sam Rinzler, Eddie Rugoff, Tom Loach, Dick Huber, Frank S. Hurst, Bert Sanford, Arthur Gottlieb, Grad Sears, Carl Leserman, Roy Haines, Eddie Schnitzer, Bob Benjamin, Arthur Krim, Truman Talley, Freddie Schwartz, Arthur Silverstone, and so on down the directory . . . Seventeen members of the National Film Commentators Circle, all affiliated with local radio stations, will be guests of Ampa at the next meeting, May 9, at Jack Dempsey's. David Lowe, president, will preside for his group and introduce four other speakers, the topic of which will be: Why don't the major publicity departments feed more material to the commentators?

David J. and Mrs. Chatkin are on their way to Hollywood where their stay will be without time limit. Chatkin proposes checking into new product and appraising the studio situation at large . . . Clarence Erickson, business manager of Walter Wanger Productions, who has been here from the coast for a couple of weeks, returns west shortly . . . Neil F. Agnew and Charlie L. Casanave consuming the better part of a half hour in deep conversation over the elevator starter's marble-topped throne in the Paramount Bldg. lobby . . . E. C. Grainger is in Columbus to scan bids on the new theatre Mort Shea will build in New Philadelphia, Ohio. His itinerary, before he returns next week, includes Zanesville and other Ohio towns . . . The Sidney R. Kents have taken a penthouse, unfurnished, and an entire roof atop 39 East 79th St. . . . J. Cheever Cowdin got up before breakfast to meet his son, returning from a vacation in Jamaica and California, at Grand Central. Young Cowdin will be groomed for the film business, pater admitted.

Why Rinzler Stopped Taking Papers Home

New York—Sam Rinzler explains why he no longer takes trade papers home. His wife has been reading the columns devoted to eating activities of executives at the more prominent spots.

"She doesn't see my name there," Rinzler complained, "and she asks me worriedly: 'Sam, aren't you eating lunches any more?'"

"Can I help it," Sam told her, "if the reporters don't eat in the Automat."

Buffalo Maintains Lead In Ned Depinet Drive

BUFFALO—It's still in the lead, is RKO's branch here at the close of the 13th week in the Ned Depinet Drive.

New York is in second place and New Haven, in third. The northeastern district under Herb MacIntyre tops all other districts while the east, under A. W. Smith jr. is ahead of the west which Cresson E. Smith supervises.

Spandau New Universal Manager in Albany

NEW YORK—J. J. Spandau has been transferred from Des Moines to Albany as Universal manager and Joe Engel has been made special representative. Engel was moved from Cleveland to Albany 13 months ago. He succeeded Gerald Leary, who retired because of illness.

Foreign Films Incorporates

ALBANY—Foreign Films, Inc., has been formed to conduct a motion picture business in New York. Incorporators: Attorney Harry G. Kosch, Jean Sikoff, Evelyn Costa, 527 Fifth Ave.

Oppose Gov't Plea to Study Phila. Pacts

NEW YORK—Taking the position the records sought "are only going to clutter up the court room and prove to be very irrelevant," major attorneys are not expected to offer strong opposition to the government's motion for an order directing distributor defendants in the all-industry suit to produce for inspection licensing contracts with 69 affiliated and independent theatres in the Philadelphia territory.

Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard will hear arguments on the motion May 7. Major counsel, however, may attempt to compromise the move by offering the records for government agents to scan at film exchanges, rather than be required to dig them out and drag them part and parcel into court.

The information sought covers 46 Warner theatres, one Loew house, and the balance independent operations. The breakdown is significant in that the motion, in an appended affidavit by U. S. Attorney Seymour Krieger, states it will, on the basis of the documents sought, prove "the manner in which each of the defendant distributors dealt with certain unaffiliated exhibitors . . . and the manner in which said distributors dealt with certain theatres operated by defendant distributors which were in competition with said unaffiliated theatres."

List 11 Independents

Also, the government states it expects to prove, through the documents sought, the manner in which defendant distributors dealt with certain houses now operated by Warner "which were formerly operated by unaffiliated exhibitors, both before and since their affiliation." Independent exhibitors whom the government intends to call first in presenting evidence in this respect are listed in the affidavit as Harry Fried, Henry Friedman, Allen M. Benn, Herbert Elliott, William Goldman, George T. Graves, David Milgram, Harry Perelman, David Shapiro, Columbus Stamper and Charles Segall. The affidavit goes on to state the government expects to offer proof with respect to the manner in which Warner "acquired or attempted to acquire financial interests in the operation of certain theatres named in the motion."

What Motion Calls For

Specifically, the motion calls for the presentation of "all contracts, including deal sheets and clearance or protection provisions, together with any amendments, modifications, and alterations thereof, for the exhibition of films in each of the following named theatres during the seasons set forth." The motion papers then set forth the 69 theatres, with seasons dating back, in some instances, to the 1924-25 season.

The motions are identical for all majors excepting those made out to Warner and RKO. In these two instances, additional information is sought in respect to leases, agreements, correspondence and other written communications between the two defendants' theatre subsidiaries and independent operators with whom leases or purchases were effected.

The theatres, where they are, their operators, and the seasons on which the government seeks data, all in Pennsylvania, follow:

Ardmore—Suburban, Harry Fried, 1937-38 to 1939-40; Ardmore, Warner, 1931-32 to 1939-40.

Bryn Mawr—Seville, Harry Fried, 1931-32 to 1939-40.

Darby—Parker, Warner, 1929-30 to 1939-40.

Gov't Men Here Monday To Prepare for Trial

New York—The government prosecution staff arrives here Monday from Washington to prepare for the June 3 trial. Its constituents are Paul Williams, Robert L. Wright, John F. Clagett, J. Stephen Doyle, James Hayes and James Malloy, assistants to the attorney general, and Seymour Krieger and J. Frank Cunningham, special attorneys.

William P. Farnsworth remains on in charge of the New York office.

Outlet Assurance Was Paramount's Desire

NEW YORK—It was to assure Famous Players-Lasky a permanent outlet for its product, coupled with the company's "inability" to sell the Warner circuit late in 1930 that led Paramount to acquire the Tower, Keith, Nixon and Roosevelt in Philadelphia, George J. Schaefer, RKO president, stated during his pre-trial examination before assistant attorney general Robert L. Wright in the all-industry suit. Schaefer, at the time, was eastern division sales manager for Paramount.

FPL operated the houses, excepting the Keith, for three years. The Keith was dropped after one year. Ultimately the Warner circuit acquired the Tower, Nixon and Roosevelt in 1933. Wright wanted to know why Paramount disposed of the units. Schaefer informed him the company had gone into receivership and the trustee deemed it inadvisable to continue their operation at a loss. Schaefer was asked if he recommended the deal with Warner, and replied: "No, the receiver urged it."

The witness admitted advising the Keith be dropped because it was in a "bad location, was not working out profitably and because we could get better representation and better money by selling Warner without incurring a theatre loss." Wright seemed rather surprised when Schaefer said Harvard University owned the Keith, which was used principally for vaudeville and was closed for a number of years before Paramount acquired it.

N. Y. Contract Check Suit Start Impetus

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—That distributors are preparing to start the government suit on June 3 was given additional impetus during the week as counsel for the majors began an intensive checkup on contracts, clearances and playing arrangements in the Greater New York area.

Each of the major exchanges has been visited daily by two to three attorneys from the home office, accompanied by outside counsel in some instances, interrogating branch managers and bookers for the New York and northern New Jersey territory.

The checkup covers playing arrangements for the past five years and is being concentrated on exhibitors named in the government's list of probable witnesses. In some cases it is expected an investigation will take three or four weeks, particularly where there are individual managers for the Brooklyn, Long Island and Manhattan and New Jersey areas.

Up to this time, it is understood, none of the district managers has been interviewed, but this is expected to come later.

The same plan, it is reported, is being carried out in all other exchange territories with local counsel engaged to handle the details.

Commercial Film Bids Stopped, Advises MPPDA

NEW YORK—Directors of MPPDA advise that no commercial film bids have been submitted by advertising agencies for theatre dates since the formation of the Advertising Advisory Council late in 1938.

"Border line ads" are disturbing the AAC, based on complaints about newspaper advertisements from some exhibitors. Caution is the watchword for the future.

Circuits Attentive to Bronx Development

NEW YORK—With the recent word a new development is planned for the Clason Point section of the Bronx, where at least 200 new two and four-family homes will be built by independent builders, considerable interest is being manifested by major local circuits. The new area to be developed is not far from the Park Chester section where Metropolitan Life Insurance now is completing its enormous apartment dwellings.

Loew's beat RKO to the punch in the Park Chester section, but it looks like the reverse in the Clason Point area. While Loew's made a deal with Metropolitan Life for a new 2,000-seat house to go along with the development long before construction was started, RKO has negotiations virtually completed with the Cocalis trustees for acquiring six houses in the Castle Hill and Inwood section.

Nearest Cocalis houses to the Clason Point development are the Ward and Rosedale on Westchester Ave. The Ward is the better of the two units and is included in the RKO arrangement. Ditto for the Castle Hill, on Castle Hill and Westchester. Which leaves the Rosedale sandwiched in and not included in the RKO pact.

Loew's houses closest to Clason Point are the Boulevard and Spooner. This is in the Hunts Point section, at one time an important territory for the circuit. However, in the past few years there has been a drift to the Fordham sector where Loew's has the Paradise and Grand. RKO has the Fordham, while Skouras has the Valentine.

Arrangements Understood Set

RKO has the Chester at the White Plains cross section at 177th St., which would make it the nearest house to Park Chester in the event the Cocalis entente does not materialize.

All arrangements for acquiring title to five of the properties and a long-term lease on the Ward are understood to be set. The deal is said to involve $1,500,000 cash. The other houses, in addition to the Ward, are the Pilgrim, Pelham, Interboro, Castle Hill and Marble Hill.

The Ward is nearest to the Clason Point section which is without a theatre. RKO is aware of the fact that 300 families will be potential customers as soon as the development is completed.

There were at least another dozen Cocalis houses involved in the RKO deal, but the latter eliminated these units because they play the Loew split. The larger houses, such as those RKO is taking, use the RKO split. RKO's theatres, the Franklin and Empire, are competitive to Loew's Boulevard, Spooner and Burland, in the Hunts Point and Prospect Ave. areas, all of which the Cocalis units strung along Westchester Ave. follow.

Lawyers are understood checking into the legal angles on the Cocalis situation so that no complications will follow.

Some months ago, it may be remembered, Loew's was anxious to assume operation of the Pickwick, Greenwich, Conn., for a year. When J. Robert Rubin, general counsel for M-G-M, called Paul Williams, assistant to the attorney general and in charge of the government's all-industry suit, the latter would not give his approval. Joseph R. Vogel had virtually completed the deal with Edward J. Peskay at the time, but the DJ angle kicked it out.

RKO is believed not anxious to have a similar incident and is investigating all phases of its proposed deal before taking title and lease.

So, while Loew's is one up in Park Chester, RKO will most likely even the score at Clason Point.

Blumberg Adds 9,500 "U" Voting Trusts

WASHINGTON—The securities and exchange commission has reported changes in the holdings of officers and directors of four film companies in the stocks of their corporations in March.

Most important transactions were reported for Universal Corp., with Nathan J. Blumberg, New York, president, acquiring 9,500 common voting trust certificates, making his total 13,500; Peyton Gibson, New York, officer, acquiring 500 certificates, giving him a total of 1,300 held direct and 26,500 through the Standard Capital Co., and Charles D. Prutzman, New York, acquiring 3,500 certificates, bringing his interest to 4,400, and 3,000 common voting trust certificate warrants, received from the company without cost.

Loew's, Inc., reported the acquisition of 25 shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common stock, giving it a total of 100,339, while in Loew's, Inc., itself, Charles C. Moskowitz, New York, director, acquired 300 shares of common, bringing his holdings to 900 shares.

The only other transaction reported was the acquisition of 11 shares of Pathe Film Co. common stock by Robert M. McKinney, Jersey City, N. J., director, not theretofore a holder of such securities.

Monopoly Committee Ready to Report

WASHINGTON — The temporary national economic committee, which for nearly two years has been studying monopoly conditions in various industries, has completed its investigations and is preparing to write its final report, which, however, probably will not be submitted to Congress until next session.

While the administration monopoly committee did not investigate the motion picture situation, its report nevertheless will be of interest and importance to the film industry because of its studies of the oil industry, where a similar situation of producer-to-public integration exists.

In that phase of the report dealing with its oil study, the O'Mahoney committee is expected to go deeply into the question of integration and its effects upon competition and the public.

Because of the current agitation against chain-store operations and the marketing activities of producers in important industries, the committee's views on divorcement will be of considerable interest, particularly as they will reflect largely the ideas of such enemies of "big business" as Leon Henderson of the securities and exchange commission and other New Deal liberals who comprised the executive members of the committee.

The committee's report is seen in Washington as reviving in the next session of Congress the current agitation for divorce in the motion picture and film industries, although it is probable that Senator Matthew M. Neely of West Virginia, now campaigning for the gubernatorial nomination in that state, will not be in Washington to press his measure.

It is the senator's hope, however, that he will build up a record at the hearings which are to open May 16 on which some other member of Congress can carry on. There is no possibility of definite action by the Senate on the bill this year and, in fact, it may turn out that the session adjourns before the hearings are completed and the testimony printed.

Congressman Lashes at Federal "Blitzkrieg" in California

WASHINGTON—A federal "blitzkrieg" has been launched against the state of California in which the two Neely bills and the recently-announced interior department charges for use of the public lands are but a few of the weapons, it is charged by Representative Leland M. Ford.

The Neely bills and the Interior charges would primarily affect California, the Congressman pointed out, as would also efforts now being made by the department of justice and the navy to secure possession of the state's underwater oil lands, the attempts to nullify the state community property laws and the discriminatory water rates on west coast freight to the Panama Canal.

"If you lived within the state you certainly would resent some of the things that I am going to outline, the same as we in California resent them," he told the House of Representatives.

"For instance, within a very short period of time, we have had to face the following things:

A Self-Censoring Industry

"The threat of the enactment of the Neely bill, which many people have been led to believe was moral censorship, but as a matter of fact contains nothing whatever pursuant to censorship. This matter of censorship has been entirely handled by the moving picture business, better than the handling of any other parallel conditions by any other business in the country. The bill would destroy at least half of this industry in California and would throw some 30,000 or 40,000 people out of work in Los Angeles county alone.

"The second threat comes from a so-called second Neely bill, wherein the bureaucrats wish to provide that those who produce motion pictures and know the most about it cannot stage them for the public but must put them in other hands. It is far easier for these bureaucrats and those who do not know anything about this particular business to destroy it than it is to build it up and to furnish jobs for our people."

Cites Right to Parks

In addition, Mr. Ford pointed out, Secretary Ickes has imposed charges for the making of motion pictures in the national parks and on the public domain, which are aimed entirely at the California companies.

"Is it coming to a point where the heads of our bureaus feel that this is their personal property, or do they see fit to recognize that those of the moving picture industry have equal rights with all other citizens to go into these parks, and that these same moving picture producers pay the salaries of these same bureaucrats," he asked. "Do the bureaucrats want the exclusive rights for staging scenes in their propaganda in our national parks, or do these parks belong to the people?

"Is it quite possible that all this pressure is being brought against the moving picture business with the future idea in mind of coercing them to such an extent that it will have the effect of a real censorship? If this is true, Congress ought to remove and take out of circulation such heads of bureaus as this."

Representative Ford quoted newspaper reports that Secretary Ickes charged Congress with discriminating against the national parks, and as saying that if Congress will appropriate sufficient money to maintain the parks "I gladly will take off all charges on special privileges to the movie companies."

"The motion picture moguls make big profits and I thought we'd get a little money out of them for using public property," he quoted the secretary as saying. "I don't see why anyone except those at the top of the Hollywood industry should get excited."

"No Discrimination" At Newark Court

NEW YORK—Defense attorneys in the key government suit drew from Anthony Bannon, former operator of the Court, Newark, the admission he had not been discriminated against when he and his partners acquired the house from Jacob Unger in 1926. The witness declared the clearance situation at the Court was no different before he took it over than after he assumed operation. The government charges the Court was "compelled" to follow Warner's Savoy.

During the course of his pre-trial examination, Bannon proffered the information he had been successful in getting Warner to waive clearance on certain pictures from two to three days "when I needed it," whereas the few attempts he made to do this with Joseph Stern, operator of the Savoy before Warner acquired it, he contended were futile.

A third point in the distributor defendants' favor was Bannon's statement that he has only a "general knowledge" of theatre operations in Newark at present, which conflicts with the government charge that the witness knows affiliated theatres in Newark have contracted for specific products.

Confident on Point

Bannon said he "would gamble 99 per cent" that he never had submitted a complaint to the department of justice either in respect to the film business in Newark in a general sense or over clearance in particular. He admitted the only discussion along these lines came up during meetings of Allied of New Jersey when Sidney Samuelson was present. Bannon is the third government witness who has made a similar statement for the court record.

The witness declared he has a stock interest in the Howard, Howard Beach, L. I., which he manages. He gave up the Court in 1933. William Farnsworth, special assistant attorney general, drew him out considerably on this point. Under questioning, he admitted his contracts do not specify clearance provisions, "but I get my pictures in seven days and have no complaint to make." The Howard, with 582 seats, follows the Cross Bay, State and Park.

He was asked to give the admission scale for the Howard. His answer went like this: Monday, 25 cents; Tuesday and Wednesday, 15 cents; Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, 30 cents. This includes double bills, money, games, dishes "and still we're not making any money."

Circuit Judge Declares Bank Night a Lottery

TRENTON—Bank Night games are lotteries, Circuit Judge William A. Smith of Essex county ruled, even though persons other than ticket holders in the theatre were listed as eligible prize winners.

Curiously enough his ruling was made not to outlaw the games, but to uphold the contention of the A. & G. Amusement Co. of Patterson, that it need not be held by a Bank Night contract because the game is illegal in New Jersey. Suit for $1,140 was instituted by William Furst for Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., owner of the copyright on the game.

The judge's ruling was part of a preliminary action in which Furst sought to have part of the theatre company's defense eliminated. The actual suit has not yet been started.

The judge declared "it is quite evident that it is not contemplated that those who are not patrons of the theatre will obtain the prize. The patrons are the ones at whom the exhibitor is directing his allurements and it is quite evident that the award to one not a patron would not be popular."

Meanwhile, Camden police were cracking down on Bingo games in churches and lodges.

"Pot O' Gold" Variation Success in a Theatre

WASHINGTON—Appearing at the Capitol with his band for a week, Horace Heidt followed through on his radio "Pot O' Gold" idea by offering $500 at every performance to the person whose name was selected from the local telephone book. The person called had to be in the theatre and had to claim the award within three minutes after selection.

Over the radio, Tums distributes $1,000 every Tuesday night with a consolation award of $100 if the party chosen is not at home at the time of selection.

Loew's paid the bill for the Heidt idea in the theatre and at the end of the week's engagement found the money given away totaled about $3,000. The engagement was a success as the idea caught on.

Juvenile Delinquency Blows Are Softened

ROCHESTER—Motion pictures have borne entirely too much of the blame for juvenile delinquency, the Rochester Films Council was told by Leon Whitlock, probation officer of Monroe county juvenile court.

But, as he gave the motion pictures a fairly clean bill of health so far as juvenile delinquency is concerned, Whitlock sharply rapped what he termed "laxity of supervision by some theatre managers in Rochester" over children admitted to picture shows.

Whitlock scored the managers on three counts:

1. That the city ordinance forbidding admission to theatres of children under 16 unaccompanied by parent or guardian was one of the most violated ordinances in the city.

2. That many managers, particularly in neighborhood houses, attempted no supervision over children whose antics disturbed others in the audience.

3. That lax supervision by theatre managements had permitted occurrence of "certain sex cases" in which young girls were approached by men patrons.

As to the effect of motion pictures on juvenile delinquency, Whitlock said his experience indicated they might play only a very small part in a few cases. Lack of supervision in the home and improper home environments, were major factors, he said.

Educator Lavish in Praise of Pictures

WASHINGTON — The educational motion picture "is the most revolutionary instrument introduced in education in our day and generation," representatives of 500 educational institutions and associations were told Friday by Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, at the opening of the organization's annual meeting in Washington.

"The possibilities of the motion picture in education have scarcely been dreamed of, much less realized," Dr. Zook declared.

"The time has now come for educators in the United States to assume a leadership in the educational motion picture, to advise on the kinds of films needed in education, to develop better ways of distributing films to schools, and to see that films are used, and used effectively, in the classroom.

"No longer can we regard the motion picture as the exclusive possession of the entertainment world, or as a complicated gadget whose value is unproved in formal education. Instead the motion picture supplies a peculiarly vivid experience, which can make the curriculum into a living thing—a new world in which time and space are no longer insuperable."

Counsel to Relay Mayer's Answers to Government

HOLLYWOOD—Louis B. Mayer will not go to New York for pre-trial examinations in the government suit, an agreement having been reached between M-G-M counsel and representatives of the department of justice to eliminate the eastern trek. Studio information sought, it is understood, will be provided by M-G-M counsel on demand.

Ross Federal Drive

ALBANY—The Albany branch of Ross Federal Service is making a determined effort, under direction of Manager Ralph Unks, to pile up checking days over its quota, in a campaign celebrating tenth anniversary of founding of organization. The drive, which is on throughout the 32 branches, is on checking work for film companies. Six branches are competing in Eastern section, and the contest has a different leader each week.

Completing 900-Seater

WASHINGTON—Louis Bernheimer is completing a 900-seat theatre in Brentwood Village Shopping Center on Rhode Island Ave. It will be known as the Village and employ RCA Photophone sound.

Bookers' Dance May 19

NEW YORK—Motion Picture Bookers of New York will hold their spring dinner and dance at the Astor Roof, May 19. Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra will supply the music.

Roxy Sets "Command"

NEW YORK—The Roxy has dated "Dark Command" for May 10.

Columbia (——) 88 Minutes Rel. Apr. 27, '40

Herein Columbia has a worthy successor to its illustrious "It Happened One Night," of which this film is considerably reminiscent. An uproarious romantic comedy, veering toward the farcical, it has a mirthful situation for nearly every turn of the camera and each of them is surefire for its quota of laughs. The picture assays as a cinch bet for the top brackets in revenue and audience acclaim. An adroitly blended screenplay is probably the largest contributing factor to the photoplay's appeal and deals with the necessity of an unmarried pair, who think they hate each other, to pose as man and wife to serve their individual financial interests. Loretta Young and Ray Milland are co-starred, the latter scoring with an outstanding performance which will give solid impetus to his march toward ranking stardom. Alexander Hall directed.

Loretta Young, Ray Milland, Reginald Gardiner, Gail Patrick, Edmund Gwenn, Frank Sully, Gordon Jones.

The Doctor Takes a Wife F — Comedy

Paramount (3934) 70 Minutes Rel. May 17, '40

The drawing power of Dorothy Lamour, complete in assorted sarongs; the further eye appeal of beautiful Technicolor photography, specializing in marine and lush jungle backgrounds; and the lift of a sprinkling of spectacular sequences are the picture's assets. But they will be taxed to the limit if they are to offset the handicap of an unusually fantastic story, which even the most naive fans will find difficult to accept in the serious melodramatic tone it attempts to assume. The cast, in which Robert Preston furnishes the virility and Lynne Overman that which was apparently written as comedy relief, does its best with the material at hand, as does Director Louis King. Their combined efforts, however valiant, hardly suffice to bring the feature up to the standards a more believable screenplay might have afforded.

Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston, Lynne Overman, J. Carrol Naish, Chief Thunder Cloud, Frank Reicher.

Typhoon F — Melodrama

Universal (——) 73 Minutes Rel. May 17, '40

Bob Burns has ample opportunity to display his homespun drolleries in this re-make of the veteran stage and screen property. Consequently, the Burns fans will undoubtedly find it thoroughly satisfactory comedy entertainment. For those who do not include the bazooka-playing Arkansan on their list of favorites, however, it will probably be considered dull and superficial. The lagging action in some sequences indicates no great pains were taken in developing the screenplay, a defect which Christy Cabanne's direction fails, largely, to overcome. Burns, a carnival card shark, lands in a booming oil town, where, to elude the forces of the law, he poses as a deacon. In this guise he thwarts the town's villain and aids the good citizens before moving on again.

Bob Burns, Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe, Peggy Moran, Edward Brophy, Thurston Hall, Jack Carson.

Alias the Deacon F — Comedy

Universal (——) 94 Minutes Rel. May 3, '40

That Crosby fella—he who has been doing right well in films and radio—breezes entertainingly through another picture, which, although it can hardly be termed an original model, is nicely tailored to his distinctive brand of comedy and crooning. Bing is ably aided and abetted by Gloria Jean, captivating miss of the silvery pipes. In fact the teaming of these two song birds is a ten-strike in smart casting and the resultant feature has much to offer customers of all ages and tastes; with a bonus for the oldsters who will enjoy a nostalgic thrill through the appearances of Blanche Ring, Eddie Leonard and several other oldtimers whose stars shone brightly during the golden era of the theatah. Story, a showcase for the Crosby-Gloria Jean talents, is interest-sustaining. David Butler produced and directed.

Bing Crosby, Gloria Jean, Charles Winninger, El Brendel, Allyn Joslyn, Claire Dodd, Moroni Olsen.

If I Had My Way F — Comedy With Music

M-G-M (35) 85 Minutes Rel. May 3, '40

Fundamentally, of course, this is a western—but one sufficiently different from the pack of run-of-the-mill actioners to make it stand out like an entertainment thoroughbred in a corral full of cow ponies. Its characters steal and fight and kill for prosaic borax instead of the proverbial gold or cattle, which fact fails to detract one iota from the story's pace, suspense and dramatic impact. Produced in the grand manner, the picture merits consideration accordingly, both for its budgetary importance and profit potentialities, which should find a high ceiling in all showings. As the greasiest, cussin'est, orneriest skinner that ever cracked a bull whip over a mule's rump, Wallace Beery approaches perfection, with a performance ranking with his "Viva Villa." Throughout, his support shares Thespic honors. Richard Thorpe's direction is splendid.

Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Anne Baxter, Douglas Fowley, Noah Beery jr., Berton Churchill.

Four or five murders are done in Honolulu and on shipboard en route to San Francisco before Charlie Chan gets his man. It seems the Oriental detective requires plenty of slaughter before he can deduce. Here is typical Chan mystery drama that moves in the familiar groove. The patrons will be satisfied. Victim number one is an inspector from Scotland Yard who is bumped off in Chan's Hawaiian office after he informs the Chinese sleuth about a mysterious strangler on a world cruise. Almost immediately afterwards another victim is garrotted in a hotel room. Chan goes along on the cruise ship and, with the aid of his son, sets the stage for the killer's capture, which takes place in an anti-climactic sequence in the San Francisco morgue. Eugene Forde directed.

Sidney Toler, Marjorie Weaver, Lionel Atwill, Sen Yung, Robert Lowery.

Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise F — Mystery Melodrama

RKO (025) 88 Minutes Rel. May 17, '40

All hands concerned hit the jackpot for comedy with laughs galore resulting. Under Garson Kanin's adroit direction, the triangle formula is reversed with happy results. Irene Dunne is the wife, who returns after being reported drowned on a scientific expedition seven years ago, on her husband's wedding day. Cary Grant is the bewildered male and Gail Patrick, the bride of the day. When it appears the gags may run out, Grant discovers his wife's only companion on the island was Randolph Scott. The production reflects the smooth teamwork of Producer Leo McCarey, who also collaborated on the script with Bella and Samuel Spewack, and Director Kanin. Grant proves an excellent light comedian with a deft sense of timing. Miss Dunne is at her lovely best; Granville Bates and Donald McBride are standouts in supporting roles.

Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick, Ann Schoemaker, Scotty Deckett, Donald McBride.

My Favorite Wife F — Comedy

United Artists (——) 57 Minutes Rel. May 3, '40

Straining any number of gags and comic business to their limits, Laurel and Hardy manage at the same time to deliver a rib-tickler that should satisfy their own particular following and liberally entertain others. The laughs, in view of the comedians' particular type of comedy, come off easy. A Broadway audience, about one-third consisting of children, guffawed and howled all over the place. The pair's clowning efforts are draped around a standard plot which sees the boys from horn testing, to a yachting trip, to jail. In between, Hardy has a nervous breakdown. A gangster, eluding the police, goes aboard their decrepit boat and they have to eat an ersatz meal they prepared for the outlaw. Ben Turpin, as a cross-eyed plumber, seen briefly, is responsible for a lot of plot gags.

Saps at Sea F — Comedy

Columbia (——) 75 Minutes Rel. ————

This is early vintage Vivien Leigh-Laurence Olivier and the exhibitor should bear in mind that players change through their progression in the arts. In the performance category, it is second-rate and, being an English production aimed for English audiences, much will be lost on U. S. audiences. However, it is an interesting homicide-courtroom story and the British court procedure is interesting. The story: Olivier and Miss Leigh become partners in crime when Olivier kills the long-absent and scoundrelly husband. The body is dumped in a Soho alley. A fallen minister is picked up and circumstantial evidence convicts him. Olivier, torn between blind justice, love and his brother, who seeks a judicial post, attempts to give himself up. Fate intervenes and the piece ends with Olivier and Miss Leigh going on to live an untroubled life. Basil Dean directed.

Laurence Olivier, Vivien Leigh, Hay Petrie, Leslie Banks, David Horne.

21 Days Together A — Drama

SELLING ANGLES: "Alias the Deacon"

Bob Burns carries the marquee load on this one, aided and abetted by Comedian Mischa Auer. Above the marquee mount five facsimiles of playing cards, from ace to ten, with portraits of five cast members on them. Distribute complimentary decks of cards to local bridge clubs and other organizations, imprinting theatre and picture billing on the backs of the cards. Hold an amateur night in which local magicians specializing in card tricks go through their routine on the stage. Tie up on Burns' radio show.

CATCHLINES:

He Won Riches for Others . . . And Happiness for Himself . . . Did This Card-Sharp, Who Proved to Be an Honest Gambler.

He Put It Over on Small-Town Slickers Who Thought They Knew All the Answers . . . But Found There Were Still a Few Tricks Left.

SELLING ANGLES: "Typhoon"

With Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston drawing credit as a new romantic team, Technicolor should also be on the marquee as a definite element in advertising and exploitation. Transform the lobby into a South Seas paradise, and, if the usherettes can bear up under it, dress them in sarongs. Obtain a wind-machine somewhere and install it in the foyer, turning it on and off periodically. Tie up with travel agencies, planting stills from the picture in their offices.

CATCHLINES:

A Princess of the Tropics . . . A Pearl-Hunting American . . . And Romance in the South Seas.

Adventure Supreme . . . In This Story of a Strange White Princess . . . Under Southern Stars.

SELLING ANGLES: "The Doctor Takes a Wife"

Build up Loretta Young and Ray Milland as a new co-starring team. As suggested by the title, invite local doctors, accompanied by their wives, to attend at special rates. Employ the stunt of offering free admission or a cash award to anyone who can sit through the entire performance without cracking a smile. Print up throwaways as "laugh certificates," exchangeable at the theatre for "one hundred hearty laughs."

CATCHLINES:

They Were Neither Happy Nor Married . . . But They Had to Fake a Romance . . . And Pose as Husband and Wife.

It Will Take You Days to Recover From Laughing at the Season's Most Sensational Fun-Fest.

SELLING ANGLES: "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise"

The exhibitor who exercises his imagination in creating stunts should have little difficulty in putting this one over. What has been done for Charlie Chan before should be revived. Display in the lobby or in a bookstore that handles the Earl Derr Biggers books a collection of various ropes, leather shoelaces and belts, call them instruments of death and invite spectators to see them used in the film. Toler's performance lives up to the Chan tradition. The film has a lengthy marine background and is well produced.

CATCHLINES:

This Killer Was So Forward He Murdered a Cop in Charlie Chan's Office.

From Honolulu, to the High Seas, to San Francisco . . . Charlie Chan Tracks a Strangler . . . And Gets Him.

SELLING ANGLES: "20 Mule Team"

Wallace Beery and Leo Carrillo are probably the most potent names for marquee billing and general exploitation. The title can be used in a tieup display with some automobile dealer, contrasting the primitive mule team transportation with his newest model cars. Don't neglect grocery store tieups on borax products and radio plugs in connection with the famous "Death Valley Days" program. Make over the lobby in a desert fashion, strewing sand along one side of the foyer and dressing attendants in western costume.

CATCHLINES:

The Thrilling Battle of Man Against Nature's Tortures . . . In a Living, Blazing Inferno.

Wallace Beery in His Greatest Role . . . A Daredevil of Death Valley in a Savage Fight Against Nature.

SELLING ANGLES: "If I Had My Way"

Give the marquee and advertising credits to Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean. Use the title in a letter-writing contest in which entrants tell what they would do if they "had their way" as mayor of your town, a Hollywood producer or something of the sort. The film is Crosby's 21st starrer. Give prizes to a specified number of Crosby fans first under the wire with names of the most of his previous 20 vehicles. Plug the songs in the picture and don't neglect tieups on the Crosby radio show.

CATCHLINES:

He Sang for Fun, and Believed Friendship Came First . . . Even When It Meant Playing Father to a Little Girl.

Another Bing Crosby Hit . . . With That Sensational Little Singing Star of "The Under-Pup" . . . Gloria Jean.

SELLING ANGLES: "21 Days Together"

Of course, in the line of opportunism the exhibitor will play up the two lead names for all their current worth. But if he also has his publicity man cook up a yarn on the film's admirable attention to London atmosphere—call it a London travelogue—his patrons might feel that they were not let down too much. The story is based on a John Galsworthy book—bookstores to catch the reading trade—and Galsworthy's following here is quite big. Many of the scenes are actual street shots in and around London.

CATCHLINES:

He Killed a Man in Self-Defense . . . But Fate Stepped in at the Right Moment.

SELLING ANGLES: "Saps at Sea"

Drag out all the tried and tested Laurel-Hardy props for this one. Work up a phoney ship for the lobby or the roof of the marquee and have life-size cutouts of the comedians, in color, rolling and tossing to the effect of electric motor animation. Promote a contest in which the goofiest menus are concocted—such as string for spaghetti, red paint for tomato sauce, etc. In a newspaper contest, offer prizes for the best gag titles (see pressbook). There is also an indoor golf game that can be promoted with sporting goods stores to which Laurel and Hardy have lent their capabilities.

CATCHLINES:

The Boys Are All at Sea and in a Fog.

You'll Rock With Laughter and Roll Into the Aisles at This Silly Saga of the Sea.

SELLING ANGLES: "My Favorite Wife"

The show should be sold as the "best laugh in town." Comedy angles should be stressed with teaser copy and ads. It could also be played up as a four-star film: McCarey, Kanin, Grant and Miss Dunne. Cutouts of the two stars should be prominently displayed. A contest can be held in which the men submit photos of their wives with prizes going to the best reason on "Why She Is My Favorite Wife." Tieups can be arranged with a local paper and department store to put over the contest.

CATCHLINES:

His Wife Returns on His Wedding Day . . . Then the Fun Began.

A Three-Ring Matrimonial Circus of Laughs.

HOLLYWOOD BOXOFFICE
NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE PRODUCTION CENTER
(Hollywood Office—Suite 219 at 6404 Hollywood Blvd.; Ivan Spear, Western Manager)

Attention Focused on Keeping Boom Alive

Preoccupation with the important task of keeping Hollywood's current film-making boom at its present high levels has apparently sidetracked any other developments in the ranks of the screen citadel's labor contingent, aside from a number of routine activities of no great significance.

Following the action of the Class "B" council in rejecting the proposed plan giving extras complete autonomy and a separate charter, the senior board of the Screen Actors Guild has voted to shelve further discussion of the topic until the "B" membership has worked out its scheme to bring about a spirit of closer cooperation and harmony with the "A" group. One of the important moves to be taken in this direction is the segregation of bit and part players from the regular extra group. Meantime the SAG will take immediate steps to reopen negotiations with producers concerning a proposed 15 per cent wage increase and other adjustments for extra players.

SDG Election

The Screen Directors Guild will hold its annual election of officers at a general meeting May 19, it was decided at a conclave of the SDG board of directors. Candidates for the various offices will probably be nominated within a week, the directorate announced.

Committee reports on opinions and suggestions by various studio scriveners anent the proposed producer contract negotiations were read and discussed at a meeting of the Screen Writers Guild board, which also worked out further details of the mass meeting scheduled for May 8.

The Society of Motion Picture Film Editors has begun voting to select 17 members of its board of directors. The new board will be confirmed at a membership meeting May 16. The SMPFE has also requested that producers begin negotiations with it pertaining to changes in its present contract, calling for shorter hours, a guaranteed weekly wage for certain classifications and other adjustments.

A snag in the Screen Office Employes Guild's drive for certification came when the National Labor Relations Board requested it to amend its bargaining petition, specifying more clearly the extension of its jurisdiction. Office workers at 20th Century-Fox, Warner and Paramount have voted to maintain their own independent unions and not affiliate with the SOEG, which claims in its NLRB petition to represent 1,700 white-collar employes. A mass meeting has been called by SOEG leaders for May 7 to discuss the present status of its negotiations.

The NLRB further is forwarding additional information to its headquarters concerning the status of the Scenic Artists Ass'n, which is contesting claims of the Motion Picture Painters to jurisdiction over studio scenic artists. The Screen Cartoon Guild has agreed to modify its list of classifications and reclassify a number of disputed workers at M-G-M, where it is negotiating a working agreement.

Producers are discussing demands filed by the Society of Motion Picture Interior Decorators and the Society of Motion Picture Art Directors, both of which are asking salary increases.

Current Major Lot Production Striking Boom-Time Pace

As to just what the hurry is, the usually ready and willing studio railbirds seem unable, for once, to venture a guess—but the boom fever which hit Hollywood's film factories about two weeks ago has developed to the point where the prosperous days of the spring of 1937—heretofore considered pretty much of an all-time high—are beginning to look like depression times.

And the 53-picture total now in production on the major lots seems slated at least to be maintained, if not increased, during May, judging from the schedules of films to come at most of the plants.

Warner, for example, with "No Time for Comedy" as the lead off May 1, will start seven other features during the month—including "You Can't Escape Forever," "The House on the Hill," "Flowing Gold" and "City for Conquest." Just a shade slower than the Warner pace is Paramount, which has pegged five to start within the next three weeks—the vehicles to include "Ghost Music," "Mystery Ship," "Victory" and "Doomed Caravan."

For United Artists, Richard Rowland has indicated he will launch "Three Cheers for Miss Bishop" within three weeks. Alexander Korda, having perfected his production plans, has begun filming the sequences necessary to complete "The Thief of Bagdad," which was made largely in England. For 1940-41 he will produce two pictures here and two abroad, and has left for London to complete his plans, intending to return here in June.

Plans to October

Other big-scale operations are planned by RKO Radio and 20th Century-Fox. In May the former will send "Sandra Mala," a story by Gene Fowler; "Photo Finish," to be produced and directed by David Butler; "Too Many Girls," "Men Against the Sky" and a George O'Brien western before the cameras. On Fox's docket are "The Return of Frank James," to start May 6, and "Down Argentine Way," slated to start a few days later.

Monogram plans a May start for its biggie of the year, "Rip Van Winkle." Universal will gun its next Deanna Durbin starrer, "Spring Parade," around May 10. Republic has placed "Hit Parade" back on schedule after shelving it for some time, and will launch the musical within four weeks.

Plans as far ahead as next October are charted by Universal with the announcement that Frank Lloyd will gun his first production for that company around October 1. Lloyd has a six-picture contract with the company.

Universal, Mayfair and Ritzes in Settlement

Dispensing with the necessity for arbitration proceedings which had been scheduled, the argument between the Ritz Brothers, Mayfair Productions and Universal—which resulted in the comedians withdrawing from Mayfair's "The Boys From Syracuse"—has been amicably settled.

Under the terms of the deal, the Ritzes will make two films for Universal, one of which will be produced by Jules Levey's Mayfair unit. The comedy trio had alleged the billing allotted to them in "The Boys From Syracuse" was not satisfactory. An arbitration committee comprising E. J. Mannix, Ben Holzman and Robert Kenney, state senator, had been reviewing the matter when the settlement was made.

LeMaire Joins Columbia

Rufus LeMaire has joined the Columbia studio production staff as a special talent executive.

Griffis, Holman Map Convention Plans

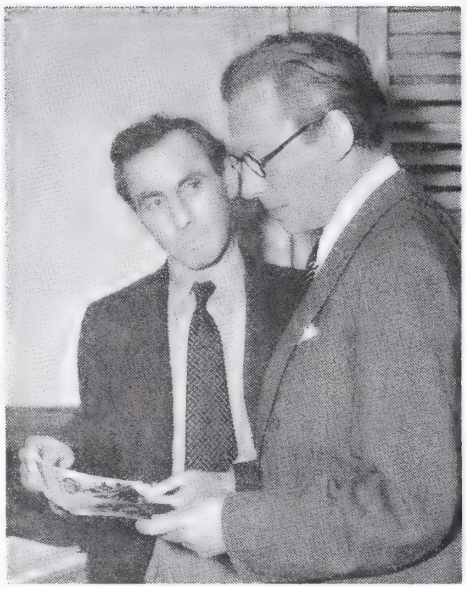
With the arrival of Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, and Russell Holman, home office production executive, at Paramount's Marathon Street studio, preliminary plans for the three-day national sales convention set to open here May 24 are being shaped by them with Y. Frank Freeman, William LeBaron, Henry Ginsberg and other studio executives. The sales gathering will be attended by about 100 branch and district managers, One Hundred Percent Club salesmen, and New York executives.

Griffis and Freeman will huddle on product and budgets for the 1940-41 program and will arrange the schedule for announcement at the convention, for which President Barney Balaban and Neil Agnew, chief of sales, will be on hand. The studio currently is farther ahead on its schedule than for many years past, and delegates will be enabled to view nearly a dozen pictures either completed or before the cameras.

Murray Silverstone, chief of United Artists' operations, checked in to confer with local UA producers concerning plans for the company's two regional sales meetings, to be held in New York, May 13-15 and in Chicago, May 17-19. His discussions here concerned sales policies, the lineup of product expected from each unit and other corporate matters, including the proposed establishment of a UA publicity department in Hollywood.

Schaefer From Kentucky

Another arrival in the film capital was that of George Schaefer, president of RKO Radio, who pulled in from the Louisville, Kentucky, premiere of "My Favorite Wife."



He will stay several weeks, looking into product matters, current and forthcoming pictures. Ned Depinet, sales chief, accompanied him. Also in at RKO Radio is William Sistrom, returning from England, where he surveyed the production field and laid the groundwork for an RKO Radio unit there. Future plans for England will be discussed with Schaefer.

Al Lichtman has returned to the M-G-M lot in Culver City after spending a week in New York conferring with home office executives. Pulling out was William Orr, New York executive of the company, who was here for about ten days discussing product and sales matters with Louis B. Mayer, E. J. Mannix and other studio officials.

Louis Hyman, distribution executive for Sol Lesser Productions, left for New York with a print of "Our Town," to be delivered to the United Artists office.

William F. Rodgers, Metro's sales chief, and Howard Dietz, advertising publicity head, have checked in from New York. They will attend the company's regional sales meeting in San Francisco, May 6 and 7, with Rodgers slated to return May 8 to speak at the first annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners.

To discuss the production lineup and budget allotments, as well as to undergo pre-trial examination in the government's anti-trust suit, a delegation of three 20th Century-Fox executives trained out for New York. The party included Darryl F. Zanuck, William Goetz and Sol M. Wurtzel. They will remain in the east about two weeks, with Joseph M. Schenck taking over the studio production reins during their absence.

Discuss 'Bagdad' Plans—

Planning an early swing into action both in Hollywood and in England for United Artists' 1940-41 schedule, Producer Alexander Korda (right) discusses with his brother, Director Zoltan Korda, arrangements for completing "The Thief of Bagdad," a Technicolor production begun in London but to be completed here because of the War. The producer leaves for England shortly to plan for the making of two films there, which he will match with another pair to be turned out in America.

Patterson Ticket Pushed By HLDA With Campaign

Following a general membership meeting, at which a unanimous vote for the Lieut.-Gov. Ellis Patterson slate in the coming presidential primaries was secured, the Hollywood League for Democratic Action is putting forth all of its organizational efforts in shaping up a campaign in behalf of the Patterson ticket.

The newly-reorganized HLDA community council, under the temporary chairmanship of Dorothy Lishner, met to set up its plans for precinct and telephone work. The Patterson slate is pledged to no one presidential candidate.

For the HLDA's next open forum meeting, May 4, Paul Robeson, Negro baritone and stage and screen actor, is being urged to appear to discuss "The Negro in War" and "The Entertainer in War."

Ullman's First

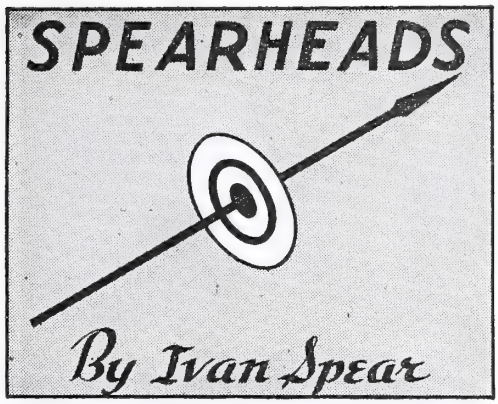
First production assignment at RKO Radio for Frederic Ullman jr., former head of Pathe Newsreel, is "A Lady in Love," a story by Edmund North. Ullman will make it for the Lee Marcus unit.

Reshuffle Starting Dates on Lineups

A widespread reshuffling of starting dates to point up production activity in May and June is one of the current objectives of studio executives, who have a film-making boom of pretentious proportions on their hands and, seemingly, are intent upon keeping it alive.

Twentieth Century-Fox, for example, has added two properties to its 1940-41 lineup, each scheduled for early treatment. They include "Breach of Discipline," a European play, and "Karpa," both to be made by Sol M. Wurtzel. For the latter a three-month location jaunt to Mexico has been ordered, with Mexican actors to be used in supporting roles in a bid for the Latin-American market. The studio has indefinitely postponed filming of "I Married a Nazi," with "The Return of Frank James" going into work immediately as a replacement. First 1940-41 release will be "The Great Profile," slated to start within a few days.

Warner has set new May starting dates on three top-budgeted vehicles—"The Man From Fleet Street," rolling May 9; "City for Conquest," May 20, and "The Letter," May 28. Universal has May starts chalked up for five features and a serial, "Junior G-Men." In the feature bracket it lists "Where Did You Get That Girl?" "Nobody's Sweetheart Now," "Spring Parade," "When the Daltons Rode" and "Slightly Tempted."



Mannix, Asher to London

Other properties listed for camera work in May include Republic's "Scatterbrain," rolling May 5, and "Carolina Moon," to get underway the next day; Paramount's "Ghost Music," "Doomed Caravan" and "Victory." At the latter plant "The Duchess Rides High," starring Betty Field, is also on schedule for summer production. The story is by M. Coates Webster.

For United Artists, Edward Small has announced a May 10 start on "Kit Carson." Producer Alexander Korda, delaying his projected trip to London for a week, has signalled a start on the production of several scenes for "The Thief of Bagdad," which will require about three weeks of shooting. Korda plans to spend about two weeks in London shaping up plans for turning out two 1940-41 features for UA.

Also London-bound were E. J. Mannix and Irving Asher, of M-G-M, who will survey production activities at Denham and discuss the advisability of sending additional talent abroad. At the Culver City plant "Escape" will roll May 6, to be followed May 15 by "The Yearling" and May 20 by "Wyoming." On June 15 Pandro Berman will roll "The Ziegfeld Girl."

Looking farther into the future, Samuel Goldwyn has charted "Natchez" as his next production. It will star Gary Cooper and goes before the cameras in November, from a script by Jo Swerling and Jan Fortune. Also on Goldwyn's schedule are "Seventh Cavalry," "Hans Christian Andersen," "Tahiti," "The Little Foxes," "Black Gold," "MacIntosh" and "City Without Men."

WHEN an audience outsquawks Donald Duck, history is made—even in Hollywood.

Walt Disney's raucous brain child met his Waterloo at the Pantages Theatre where he appeared in his latest subject on the occasion of the "press" preview of RKO Radio's "My Favorite Wife." The winnah and a new squawking champion is the "press," for which the preview was ostensibly staged.

The invitational telegrams, on specially printed blanks, announced the event as "the first press preview of the Irene Dunne-Cary Grant co-starring comedy . . . tickets at the door, etc. . . ."

But when the "press" arrived to claim its ducats, which are coveted documents indeed at the preview of any Leo McCarey production, it found a mad, milling mob which made a sit-down strike look like an old ladies' sewing circle.

An under-manned table where the tickets were being dispensed was the vortex of the precedentally colossal aggregation of producers, directors, writers, film editors, actors, sound mixers, musical scorers, technical advisors and agents—their assistants, friends, neighbors, relatives and stooges, even to the fourth generation. By organizing a series of flying wedges, end runs and off-tackle plays, the "press" contrived to fight its way to the point of supply, albeit executing the herculean mass attack consumed the better part of an hour. But it was only a mirage. There were no "press" tickets for the "press" at the "press" preview.

It was at this point that Donald Duck took the count.

Eventually, a harassed Nap Harrison, one of the bright boys in the Gower Street orchid-nursery, managed to dig into his shoe and uncover a few tickets which friends of the front office had amazingly overlooked and which gesture resulted in a part, at least, of the "press" crashing the "press" preview.

And so the bouquet of withered vegetables—scallions contributing the dominant note—which graces the desk of Perry Lieber, RKO's genial Number One praiser, is in recognition of having attained a new low in mismanaging a "press" preview.

Dorothy Lamour goes vacationing to Hawaii. Whereupon Paramount's never-overlook-a-bet publicists decide to hold the "world premiere" of her current picture, "Typhoon," in Honolulu, billing the event as a typical, glamorous, Hollywood debut, albeit la Lamour was the only attending representative of the film colony.

Now Bette Davis departs for the Islands and the Warner welkin-ringers are caught flat-footed with nary an available foot of romantic South Seas film. They might have protected themselves against such an emergency by trading a few suits of prison denim, of which they certainly have a super-abundance, for some sarongs.

Changing the title of Warner's "This Man Reuter" to "The Man From Fleet Street" should certainly help a lot in informing the public as to the nature of the epic.

Add "Oh, Yeah?" department:

Jimmy Fidler columns: "Glad to hear Ed Sullivan's p. a. tour is clicking . . . "

And it is the same Fidler who carries keyhole reporting to a new high in bad taste with the following:

"Lana Turner's call on doctors was to check on Little One signs; I hear docs said 'not yet'."

With the nation's top political and economic experts guessing as concerns President Roosevelt's ideas on the third term issue, it's mighty sweet of Hedda Hopper to give the real lowdown with the information that he will "undoubtedly be nominated for a third term, will make a flying trip to the convention, turn down the nomination, and suggest Attorney-General Robert H. Jackson, then become secretary of the navy. Which would make him the Churchill of America if we should get into the World War."

Nice reporting, Hedda—especially in a motion picture column, spare the mark.

Warner has selected Kane Richmond, Billy Byrne, Nick Lukats and Bill Marshall as the famed "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame for the fourthcoming "The Life of Knute Rockne." Despite which the four horsemen of Hollywood remain Gene Autry, Bill Boyd, George O'Brien and Roy Rogers.

Gossip column reports "Louis Hayward took that place at Laguna for the summer to indulge in his favorite sport—swimming—and now discovers the cove below his home is infested with octopi . . . "

He could have obtained the same effect by renting a summer place among the agents on Sunset Strip.

Borax, Bigamy and Bazookas

Viewing the week's preview lineup, one might be encouraged into believing that Hollywood is making some slight progress toward that Utopia about which production and distribution magi have been romancing for the past two seasons—the elimination of the lowly and maligned "B" feature.

All of the seven films given initial showings are qualified from one perspective or another, for consideration on the top side of first-run programs. Most of them attain such position through both entertainment qualities and budget, while a few must lean entirely upon the impressiveness of the bankrolls that went into their making.

In the first division fall Metro's "20 Mule Team," RKO's "My Favorite Wife" and Hal Roach's United Artists production, "Turnabout."

The first-named, produced in the grand manner, is nevertheless still fundamentally a western; but a western that is completely out of the ordinary in pace, suspense and dramatic impact. As a big-scaled bundle of celluloid in which Wallace Beery delivers a performance ranking with his famous "Viva Villa," it demands consideration by every showman as a potential money-earner of the highest order. Splendid direction was accorded the feature by Richard Thorpe under the faultless production handling of J. Walter Ruben. The screenplay by Cyril Hume, E. E. Paramore and Richard Maibaum, from a story by Robert C. DuSoe and Owen Atkinson, neglects no proven ingredient, despite the fact that prosaic borax—not the proverbial gold or cattle—provides the incentive for the lusting, fighting and killing that characterizes most of the motivation.

Leo McCarey's latest production for RKO Radio, "My Favorite Wife," can hardly miss being a hit, what with the boxoffice magnetism of the Irene Dunne-Cary Grant co-starring team; a brilliantly sophisticated, laugh-laden screenplay; and the high quality of Garson Kanin's direction. Bella and Samuel Spewak did the script from an original by themselves on which McCarey collaborated. It overlooks no bets in attaining its goal—delightful comedy entertainment.

One of the season's funniest and most unusual comedies is Hal Roach's "Turnabout"—in which the veteran producer-director has more or less carefully expunged the risque situations which made the Thorne Smith novel such an outstanding success. What with its delicate change-of-sex motivation, however, it still isn't exactly ideal fare for the kiddies; but sophisticated audiences, seeking novel entertainment, are sure to acclaim it as just what the doctor ordered. Roach paced his direction for laughs all the way, and the screenplay by Mickell Novak, Berne Giler and John McClain, after a somewhat draggy start, gears itself up to an equally fast tempo. As an experiment in droll fantasy it makes few mistakes.

In varying degrees, four fell short of the top bracket.

Twentieth Century-Fox's "I Was an Adventuress" limps under the handicap of a somewhat artificial and dated story of international jewel thieves; which is, to a large extent, surmounted by the lavish production trappings supplied by Nunnally Johnson and the hard-working, skillful

Talent and Casting Units Are Merged at Para't

"Streamlining" of the personnel structure at the Paramount studio, in preparation for the 1940-41 season, is still under way, the latest step being the merger of the talent and casting departments under the general supervision of William Meiklejohn, former agent, who reports for his new duties May 6. Signing of Meiklejohn, as announced by Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, is a move to further the "streamlining" process, which Freeman declared is being undertaken to "increase production efficiency" and to "save money wherever it can be legitimately saved" without sacrificing "production value and showmanship."

John Zinn, business manager of the talent and casting department, will continue in that capacity, and Arthur Jacobson, who has been heading the talent department, also will remain with the studio, Freeman said.

Another addition to Paramount's executive staff was that of Julian Blaustein, former head of the story department for Music Corp. of America, who has become assistant story editor at the studio. At the same time, George Arthur, producer, turned in his resignation, effective May 31, after 12 years with the studio in various capacities.

Harold Dobbs has resigned as casting director for Republic after five years at the plant. He began as assistant casting supervisor.

Creation of a new post, that of public relations assistant, has been announced at 20th Century-Fox, where the position has been taken by Jack Bolton. He will work under the supervision of Col. Jason Joy.

Edward Arnold Seeks Aid In Staging "American"

Pleading that the building of Americanism in the nation's youth is an essential factor under present-day conditions, Edward Arnold headed a delegation which appeared before the county board of supervisors and requested an appropriation of $3,200 to aid in staging an "I Am an American" ceremony at the Hollywood Bowl May 19. Arnold was accompanied by Attorney Joseph Scott and two other members of the "I Am an American" movement.

The board has instructed the county counsel to draw up a contract with Arnold's group pledging aid if an appropriation can be secured from one of the county's exploitation funds.

Borrows Jon Hall for Lead In "Kit Carson, Avenger"

Edward Small has borrowed Jon Hall from Samuel Goldwyn for the title role in "Kit Carson, Avenger," his next production for United Artists release. It hits the cameras May 10 with George B. Seitz, on loan from M-G-M, directing. Hall has just completed the lead in Small's "South of Pago Pago."

Randolph Scott originally was slated for the "Kit Carson" assignment, but withdrew because of other commitments.

Legion Honors Mayer—

Tri-City Debut for "Lillian Russell"

With a tri-city sendoff for "Lillian Russell" scheduled for May 15 in Hollywood, Pittsburgh and Clinton, Ia., 20th Century-Fox's drumbeaters have taken the play away from other studio publicists for the time being in the matter of staging elaborate premieres of current and forthcoming product. Present plans are to have a number of stars on hand for the openings in each city, with Alice Faye, who stars in the picture, already slated for the Pittsburgh trek and Don Ameche set to appear in Clinton. The latter city was the birthplace of the noted stage beauty around whom the story revolves.

As advance ballyhoo for the opening of "The Sea Hawk" in New York City next September, the Warner publicity-exploitation staff is drafting plans where the ship used in the making of that picture will be sailed east via the Panama Canal. The "Sea Hawk" will arrive in Manhattan about August 15 and will be docked for a month. Its trip and stay in the east will be covered by a national radio hookup. The departure of the vessel will be signalized by formal exercises in which top city and state officials will participate; Errol Flynn, star of the film, will function as master of ceremonies and about 50 newspapermen will make the trip as far as San Diego, the first stop. Flynn will join the crew in Miami.

Neufeld Productions Ups '40-41 Film Total to 36

Explaining that its exchange branches are prepared to absorb more than twice the number of pictures first planned, Harry Rathner, president of Producers Releasing Corp., has instructed Sigmund Neufeld Productions to turn out 36 pictures for 1940-41 distribution instead of the 15 originally announced. Of this total, 18 will be westerns, the balance melodramas and action features. The company's first release will be "I Take This Oath," going into distribution May 15. Currently in production is "Frontier Crusader," first of a series of six Tim McCoy westerns.

Samuel Bronston has moved his headquarters from General Service studios to the James Roosevelt-Globe offices on the Samuel Goldwyn lot. With all details of the Bronston-Globe merger now officially approved, an early start will be made on the new company's production schedule, initialer which will be "The Bat." United Artists will release. Additional space at the Goldwyn plant has been acquired, and Frank Perry, vice-president of the Bronston unit, has announced he will make his permanent headquarters here, moving out from New York.

With General Service currently crowded to capacity, the Stephens-Lang unit has leased space temporarily at the Fine Arts studio, where it has launched production on the third in a series of "Dr. Christian" films for RKO Radio release.

In order to discern and establish the status of studio properties and pictures claimed by Educational Pictures, a series of hearings in federal court here has been launched by representatives of Harry Fromberg, trustee for Grand National. Among witnesses being examined are Richard Pearl, former GN studio manager; Harold Lewis and E. H. Allen, vice-president of Educational Studios.

RKO Radio gave "My Favorite Wife," co-starring Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, its world premiere at the Rialto Theatre in Louisville, Kentucky, May 2, the event being tied in with the running of the Kentucky Derby. Miss Dunne, invited by Gov. Keene Johnson to be the guest of honor at the turf event, headed a contingent of Hollywood celebrities who planed to Louisville for the affair, including Randolph Scott, Producer Leo McCarey, Producer-Director David Butler and others. Miss Dunne reigned as Belle of the Derby Ball and, on Derby Day, sang the first stanza and chorus of "My Old Kentucky Home" at Churchill Downs. The Hollywood delegation was joined in Louisville by RKO Radio's president, George Schaefer, and Ned Depinet, sales chief.

Officials of the Pacific Coast Borax Co. and Ranger executives who aided Metro in filming "20 Mule Team" in Death Valley attended the preview of the film April 26 at the Village Theatre in Westwood. F. M. Jenifer, president of the borax corporation, and his wife hosted a party comprising 19 other borax executives. The Ranger contingent was headed by Superintendent I. I. Goodwin and included Rangers Cameron, Curry, Gower and Cadwell.

Production Records Fall; 53 in Work

Continuing to set new production records, the total in work at Hollywood's major film-making plants has gained another notch, with 53 features now in work —ten of them new starts.

Columbia, gunning an untitled vehicle in its "Blondie" series, has six in production. Eight films are crowding M-G-M's stages to capacity, newest starter being "Strike Up the Band." Monogram is idle currently.

"Mystery Ship" went into work at Paramount to raise that lot's total to nine. RKO Radio, with no starts listed, is grinding away at seven. "Grand Ole Op'ry," "Carson City Kid" and "Melody Ranch" got the go signal at Republic, which simultaneously completed "Rocky Mountain Rangers" to emerge with four in production.

Seven are in work at 20th Century-Fox, with "The Return of Frank James" getting under way and "Young People" hitting the finish line. Holding to its previously-established four-picture pace is United Artists. Universal gunned "Black Diamonds" and completed "Hot Steel" and "You're Not So Tough" to wind up with three in work. Warner listed two starters—"Money and the Woman" and "No Time for Comedy"—to raise its total to six. "The Sea Hawk" went into the cutting rooms.

Revamping Makes Central Casting Activity Hub

Developments pertaining to the reorganization of Central Casting Corp. which project got under way with the recent appointment of Howard Philbrick to succeed Campbell McCulloch as general manager of that unit, are coming thick and fast, with Philbrick's office the center of considerable activity along that line.

Coincident with a statement in which Philbrick declared "no person related, in any degree, to an employe of Central Casting is to receive any assignment for extra work from this office except when some exigency of casting so demands," Bert Hampton, a staff veteran with 14 years of service, turned in his resignation. No successor has been named. Philbrick reiterated his intention of giving every extra a sympathetic, courteous hearing, but stressed that "these moves affect only specific problems. The basic problem of too many people for too few jobs remains."

In still another pronunciamento, Philbrick asserted Central Casting is not a "happy hunting ground for gangsters" and discussed with the sheriff's office a proposal to fingerprint extras as a means of detecting the presence of gangsters, hoodlums and other "undesirables." Compulsory fingerprinting has been ruled out, however, as being against labor code ordinances.

Along the job placement line, Philbrick will inaugurate a rotation system insofar as it is possible, and meanwhile is clarifying and amplifying the present incomplete and haphazard records.

cast. Given the benefit of the smart exploitation it requires, there is no reason why the film should not register on the profit side in the upper brackets. Karl Tunberg, Don Ettlinger and John O'Hara wrote the screenplay, into which considerable suspense and a number of amusing moments were injected through Gregory Ratoff's capable direction. This trio of writers worked from an original by Jacques Companeez, Herbert Juttke, Hans Jacoby and Michael Duran, European authors all. The dence numbers, particularly a striking ballet sequence featuring Zorina, were tastefully staged by George Balanchine.

Paramount's "Typhoon" boasts, on the credit side, the powerful draw of Dorothy Lamour in a sarong; some gorgeous Technicolor photography; and a sprinkling of spectacular action sequences. These comprise its total list of assets, which must be stretched to the limit to offset a highly fantastic story in the melodramatic vein, so filled with loopholes that it offers a serious handicap to the hard-working cast and to the efforts of Director Louis King. Anthony Veiller functioned as producer and Allen Rivkin based his screenplay on an original by Steve Fisher.

Bing Crosby preserves his entertainment record in Universal's "If I Had My Way," which has been deftly styled to his particular brand of comedy and crooning; and in which he receives able support from Moppet Gloria Jean, who sings and acts with the best of them. True, the script by William Conselman and James V. Kern can hardly be called an original model; but the completed feature, as produced and directed by David Butler, has considerable to offer customers of all ages and tastes. It includes, furthermore, a bonus for the oldsters through the incorporation of a sequence featuring Blanche Ring, Eddie Leonard and a number of other old-time theatre greats. Conselman, Kern and Butler combined to turn out the original story.

Given ample opportunity to display his homespun drolleries, Bob Burns should more than satisfy his own particular fans in Universal's "Alias the Deacon." Others who don't go for Burns and his bazooka-playing brand of humor, however, may consider this re-make of the veteran stage and screen property somewhat dull and superficial. There are noticeable defects in the screenplay by Nat Perrin and Charles Grayson, resulting in a lagging of action in some sequences—a defect which Christy Cabanne failed largely to overcome in his direction. Ben Pivar was the associate producer.

Start "Mystery Ship"

Director Edward Dmytryk has gunned "Mystery Ship," featuring Henry Wilcoxon, Carole Landis and Onslow Stevens, as his latest assignment for Paramount. Eugene Zukor is producing.

Congressman Lashes at Federal "Blitzkrieg" in California

WASHINGTON—A federal "blitzkrieg" has been launched against the state of California in which the two Neely bills and the recently-announced interior department charges for use of the public lands are but a few of the weapons, it is charged by Representative Leland M. Ford.

The Neely bills and the Interior charges would primarily affect California, the Congressman pointed out, as would also efforts now being made by the department of justice and the navy to secure possession of the state's underwater oil lands, the attempts to nullify the state community property laws and the discriminatory water rates on west coast freight to the Panama Canal.

"If you lived within the state you certainly would resent some of the things that I am going to outline, the same as we in California resent them," he told the House of Representatives.

"For instance, within a very short period of time, we have had to face the following things:

"The threat of the enactment of the Neely bill, which many people have been led to believe was moral censorship, but as a matter of fact contains nothing whatever pursuant to censorship. This matter of censorship has been entirely handled by the moving picture business, better than the handling of any other parallel conditions by any other business in the country. The bill would destroy at least half of this industry in California and would throw some 30,000 or 40,000 people out of work in Los Angeles county alone.

"The second threat comes from a so-called second Neely bill, wherein the bureaucrats wish to provide that those who produce motion pictures and know the most about it cannot stage them for the public but must put them in other hands. It is far easier for these bureaucrats and those who do not know anything about this particular business to destroy it than it is to build it up and to furnish jobs for our people."

Cites Right to Parks

In addition, Mr. Ford pointed out, Secretary Ickes has imposed charges for the making of motion pictures in the national parks and on the public domain, which are aimed entirely at the California companies.

"Is it coming to a point where the heads of our bureaus feel that this is their personal property, or do they see fit to recognize that those of the moving picture industry have equal rights with all other citizens to go into these parks, and that these same moving picture producers pay the salaries of these same bureaucrats," he asked. "Do the bureaucrats want the exclusive rights for staging scenes in their propaganda in our national parks, or do these parks belong to the people?

"Is it quite possible that all this pressure is being brought against the moving picture business with the future idea in mind of coercing them to such an extent that it will have the effect of a real censorship? If this is true, Congress ought to remove and take out of circulation such heads of bureaus as this."

Representative Ford quoted newspaper reports that Secretary Ickes charged Congress with discriminating against the national parks, and as saying that if Congress will appropriate sufficient money to maintain the parks "I gladly will take off all charges on special privileges to the movie companies."

"The motion picture moguls make big profits and I thought we'd get a little money out of them for using public property," he quoted the secretary as saying. "I don't see why anyone except those at the top of the Hollywood industry should get excited."

REVIEW FLASHES

FLIGHT ANGELS (WB)—This commercial aviation story has what audiences demand and relish. Wayne Morris, Virginia Bruce, Jane Wyman. Lewis Seiler directed.

I WAS AN ADVENTURESS (20th-Fox)—Lavish production handling and a hard-working cast manage to surmount a somewhat dated and contrived story of international intrigue and jewel-thievery in this one, which should register in the upper brackets if given smart exploitation. Zorina, Richard Greene, Peter Lorre. Gregory Ratoff directed.

SKI PATROL (Univ)—Timely and mildly engrossing drama which obviously was inspired by recent headlines concerning the Russo-Finnish embroglio, and which should serve with average distinction as supporting fare. Feature is retarded from attaining a higher station through mediocre scripting and direction and want of important cast names. Warren Douglas produced; Lew Landers directed.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

"Wild Geese Calling" Is First by Lloyd for 'U'

Frank Lloyd's first production for Universal on his three-year sharecropping deal will be "Wild Geese Calling," a new novel by Stewart Edward White which has Washington, Oregon and Alaska in the 1890's for its background. Martha Scott will be starred.

Production reins on "Man Hunt" at 20th Century-Fox have been handed to Kenneth Macgowan.

At Seattle "Irene" Premiere—

Seattle Goes Gala For "Irene" Debut

SEATTLE—This city literally went Hollywood for the world premiere showing of RKO Radio's latest musical, "Irene," at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. The picture was given a big sendoff the opening day by the personal appearance of Anna Neagle, the star, and Herbert Wilcox, producer and director of the picture.

From the moment she arrived by train, Miss Neagle was kept going at top speed with receptions, radio programs and press interviews. RKO and Hamrick-Evergreen theatres "pooled" press agents to handle the campaign, with Terry Turner arriving from New York and Connie Krebs and Lew Marin from the studios. This trio worked with Eddie Rivers and Vic Gauntlett of the Evergreen staff.

At a special cocktail reception held in the Olympic Hotel, Miss Neagle and Wilcox hosted Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Langley, Mayor of Seattle; John Boettiger and Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, daughter of the President; Cecil Hope-Gill, British Consul at Seattle, and Mrs. Hope-Gill; Mr. and Mrs. John Hamrick, many of society's leading figures, and the dramatic editors of all papers, including the newspapers in Vancouver.

Following the one-day engagement in Seattle, the star and producer traveled on to Portland for a similar engagement.

PCCITO Committees Make Arrangements

LOS ANGELES—Confidently expecting a minimum of 250 and a maximum of perhaps 400 exhibitors to be in attendance, judging from advance reservations, the arrangements committee for the first annual Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners convention is working ceaselessly to perfect every detail of the affair, which opens at the Ambassador Hotel May 8 for a three-day session. Leading figures in production, distribution and exhibition will be on hand to air their views on every subject pertaining to the three branches of the motion picture industry.

The impressive list of speakers already lined up is being expanded daily by R. H. Poole, convention chairman, secretary of the PCCITO and executive director of the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., which is acting as host to other PCCITO units during the conclave. His latest action was to dispatch an invitation to Joe Pasternak, Universal producer, to appear.

One of the significant addresses, Poole predicted, would be that of William F. Rodgers, Metro's chief of sales, who is slated to talk May 9 on distribution and its relation to exhibition and production. Poole declared he "greatly appreciated" Rodgers' acceptance of the invitation to speak and said the showmen he represents "consider that distribution is so important that it will be one of the most valuable subjects" under consideration at the convention.

The complete program, as arranged to date, follows:

PCCITO trustees' meetings—May 7, all day; May 8-9-10, at 9:30 a. m.,; May 11, all day. Pre-sessions—May 8, at 9 a. m., registration; May 8, at 10 a. m., conciliation conference.

Business sessions—May 8, 1:30 p. m.-5 p. m.; May 9, 10 a. m. to noon; May 9, 2 p. m. to 5 p. m.; May 10, 10 a. m. to noon.

Subjects—"What It Is All About," "Organization," "Double Bills," "Legislation," "Advertising Accessories," "Distribution," "MPTOA Viewpoints," "The Government in Our Business," "Your Relations With Your Public," "Zoning and Clearance," "Open Forum" and "Questions and Answers."

Speakers, in addition to Rodgers, Poole and other PCCITO trustees, are to include Frank Capra, George Dembow of National Screen Service, Abe Montague, Columbia; Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox; Neil Agnew, Paramount; Ned Depinet, RKO Radio; J. R. Grainger, Republic; Gradwell Sears, Warner; Ed Golden, Monogram; L. J. Schlaifer, United Artists; William Scully, Universal; and Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA.

William Hinckley Dies

POCATELLO, IDA.—At one time a special photographer for M-G-M, who spent 15 months in Italy during the filming of "Ben Hur," William Hinckley, 47, died here last week, the victim of a stroke.

Wobber Outlines Paramount's Theatre Building in 1927

NEW YORK—Paramount's theatre building activity in 1927 and immediately following was largely actuated by a desire to meet a stage show policy which originated in New York and had become "a magnet," plus the fact that "production and distribution had become unprofitable," Herman Wobber, general sales manager for 20th Century-Fox, testified during his pre-trial examination in the all-industry suit before Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Wright.

Wright's questions were almost entirely devoted to Wobber's activities prior to and through his association with Paramount up to the time he joined 20th Century-Fox in 1932 as Pacific coast sales manager. He held a similar post with Paramount.

His background could well have served as the basis for a scenario of the Horatio Alger variety. He started as the operator of a nickelodeon in San Francisco in 1908. The Unique, it was called. Three-reelers were the films of the day, and they came from General Film Co. Soon there was a second house, the Odeon, which operated on the same policy. Then came the Imperial, also in San Francisco, which Wobber claimed to be the first theatre in the country with a definite weekly change and hour policy at an admission of 10, 20 and 30 cents. Films for the Imperial came from the Progressive Motion Picture Co. Three houses in Monterey were added to the group.

Wobber also represented Progressive while operating his theatres and in 1912 became interested with W. W. Hodkinson in the state rights field. Progressive grew until it did business in 12 western states. At about the same time Adolph Zukor released the first feature, "Queen Elizabeth" and, with Zukor producing from 15 to 18 features a year and Jesse Lasky entering production and Bosworth making French and Italian films available, it was no time that Progressive flourished as distributor of these programs. In 1913 Wobber sold his interest in Progressive to Hodkinson but continued to operate his three theatres.

While Hodkinson originated and formed Paramount with the aid of state right buyers in 1915, Wobber succeeded in disposing of his theatres and shortly thereafter was engaged to manage the company's western exchanges. Wright interrupted Wobber's background itinerary to inquire why he disposed of his theatres. "Profit," he replied. "You mean they became unprofitable?" Wright continued. "No," was the rejoinder, "very profitable," and as if to emphasize the point, adding: "I sold them to an advantage."

Wright took the witness over six principal cities while he managed Paramount's western exchange to determine at precisely what time distributors first acquired first run theatres in those situations. In the course of explaining the San Francisco setup, Wobber said Paramount took over operation of the Grenada, Imperial, St. Francis, California and Portala in 1927 while Fox was bidding for the same group. When Wobber declared Paramount relinquished operation of these houses to Fox West Coast in 1933 at the time the company went into receivership, the witness denied, in answer to an inference, that the takeover by FWC included a "consideration" for the National Theatres subsidiary to continue to play Paramount product.

Wobber testified to the distributors that acquired first runs in Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Portland and Denver.

Oregon Independents Elect O. J. Miller

PORTLAND—The Independent Theatres of Oregon, organized in December as an affiliate of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, announced appointment of O. J. Miller, Portland, as executive secretary. Headquarters were established recently on Filmrow.

In accepting the position, Miller returns to the theatre business after a six-year absence, during which he was associated with Trusteed Estates of Oregon, Inc. Previously he was connected with Multnomah Theatres as unit manager, and also operated for a time the old Chaldean house in Portland.

Directors of the Oregon independents elected Bob White of Portland and A. West Johnson of Eugene as representatives to the PCCITO's first annual meeting at Los Angeles in May.

Monogram Holds First Regional in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO—Monogram Pictures held its first regional meeting of the year in San Francisco.

W. Ray Johnston, president; Trem Carr, vice-president; Ed A. Golden, general sales manager, and other Monogram executives attended. In addition to all exchange managers and franchise holders in this area, there were several Monogram stars on hand for the meetings and festivities.

Walter Morris Replaces Kofeldt at Santa Rosa

SANTA ROSA, CALIF.—Walter Morris has replaced Walter Kofeldt as manager of the Towne Theatre here. Morris was formerly at the Uptown in Pasadena, where he has been replaced by Gene O'Keefe.

Doing Yarn for Wellman

HOLLYWOOD—Adela Rogers St. John is writing an untitled original at Paramount for Producer-Director William A. Wellman.

LOS ANGELES

FOR conferences with Charles P. Skouras and other Fox West Coast executives, Charles Thall of the San Francisco office checked in for a short stay . . . A visitor at the Warner plant was W. Marsh Gollner of the East Shore circuit in Salisbury, Maryland.

A two-week run at the United Artists Theatre in Long Beach has been completed by "The Challenge," Film Alliance release, booked on a dual with United Artists' "Rebecca" . . . Irwin Wagner, president of the Wagner Sign Service of Chicago is here for a weeks stay.

A bad cold forced Howard Perretz, M-G-M booker, to take the day off recently . . . Henrietta Neilson, who has been doing temporary secretarial work at the Metro exchange, expects to become a bride any day now—but won't divulge the identity of her husband-to-be.

The Federal Correctional Institute on Terminal Island, near San Pedro, is accepting bids for pictures from most of the local exchanges for projection at that penal establishment . . . A booking visitor was Harvey Levinson of the Cozy Theatre.

Ben Welansky and Steve Broidy of the Monogram exchange in Boston were guests at the Warner plant in Burbank. Also John R. Giles of the Giles circuit, Boston, and Clifford B. Broun of the Ottumwa Theatre Co., Ottumwa, Ia. . . . Another out-of-towner making the rounds was Bill McCreary, head of the Minnesota Amusement Co. of Minneapolis.

Jules Levy, general manager of the Premier Pictures' Seattle branch, has returned to his headquarters after two weeks here . . . Stopping off here en route to Monogram's regional sales convention, which opened in San Francisco, May 3, was Ben Elanski, franchise holder from Boston. From the local exchange Marty Solomon, M. J. McCarthy and Dudley Forry made the trip north; as did Howard Stubbins, Pacific Coast franchise holder, Monogram's President W. Ray Johnston and Scott R. Dunlap, production chieftain.

Henry Herbel, coast sales manager for Warner, has returned from a business jaunt which took him to Seattle, San Francisco and Portland.

Mrs. Foster Jackson, of the Elsinore in Elsinore, checked in on one of her few visits since her automobile accident some months ago . . . Julius Moskowitz, owner of one of Filmrow's drug stores, became the father of a baby boy and, resultantly, almost bankrupted his stock of cigars.

Booking visitors: Boris Posner, Arlington Theatre; Jimmy Poynter, operator of the San Clemente in San Clemente; M. Blum, Mecca Theatre, Mojave . . . All 56 members of the Los Angeles Motion Picture Club have finally received their membership cards, duly signed and notated by President Ken McKaig . . . Bob Quinn, district manager for Altec Service, checked in from his San Francisco trip.

Stretching his legs after his recent operation and siege in the hospital, Jack Jacobs, Metro salesman, looked in along the Row to say "hello." He expects to be back on the job in a week or so.

Conspicuous along Filmrow because of their sunburned faces were members of the Los Angeles Motion Picture Club who captured plenty of fresh air and a few fish when, on April 28, they chartered the deepsea vessel, Kingfisher, and tried their luck off Hermosa Beach. Ken McKaig, United Artists salesman, is the club's president.

Ralph Carmichael, Metro's office manager, back on the job after a vacation in Palm Springs . . . R. A. Calderon, branch manager for Azteca Films, returned from a trip to the homeoffice in El Paso . . . Visiting the Universal branch is G. Malafronte, auditor from the New York office. Another visitor at Universal was Frank McCarthy, eastern sales manager, who checked in for studio conferences at Universal City.

Booking for his Seattle Theatre in Chula Vista—near San Diego—was Tommy Huntington. He operates the house for the Keogh circuit . . . Other booking visitors: Greg Carter, manager of the Tele-View Newsreel Theatre in Hollywood; Johnny Menard, in from Downey; Ben Peskay, Banner and Palms theatres.

Jimmy Summerville, Universal shipper, is on his annual vacation, while Lane Nichols, of M-G-M's shipping department, headed for San Francisco to attend some IATSE doings . . . The Alexander Pre-Vue Co. of Denver has opened local offices at 1929 South Vermont. Here for the occasion were Don Alexander, president, and Bruce Scholer, western division manager.

Because the RKO Radio, Columbia and Universal conventions all take place toward the end of May, members of the Los Angeles Motion Picture Club have decided to postpone indefinitely the dinner-dance which had been scheduled for May 24 . . . H. V. (Push-Back) Williams, of the Kroehler Seating Co., won the $10 jackpot for bagging the biggest catch at the LAMPC's recent fishing trip.

J. P. Filbert and George Bourke have pulled out for Mammoth Lake for a week's fishing trip . . . Ben Mohi, Princess and Century theatres, came in for bookings . . . Ditto Irving Kanowitz of the Union.

Eddie Golden, Monogram's general sales manager, dropped in at the local exchange.

"Burma" to Lipscomb

HOLLYWOOD—W. P. Lipscomb will adapt "Moon Over Burma" for Paramount. Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston will be co-starred.

Popkin Circulating "Service Passes"

LOS ANGELES—After being under a voluntary ban for several years, "service passes" entitling bearers to reduced admission prices are again making an appearance in this exhibition area.

The circulator is Harry Popkin, of the Million Dollar Theatre, who has flooded the city with passes calling for a service charge of 10 cents per person, good only on Monday and Tuesday night. It is Popkin's contention that by so doing he is not violating the price-breaks and zoning ordinances because on those nights he books films which are entitled only to the 10-cent break.

Other downtown and suburban operators so far have not followed suit. Popkin's action elicited no comment from other independent exhibitors or from the Independent Theatre Owners of So. Calif. and Ariz., which several years ago waged a successful campaign against the "service pass" idea.

Anti-Picketing Writ Is Valid at White Center

SEATTLE—Continuance of an anti-picketing injunction in behalf of the Coys Center Theatre at White Center against projectionists Local 154, has been granted by Superior Judge William J. Wilkins.

At the same time, Judge Wilkins dissolved a temporary order against the union for distributing handbills and using sound truck equipment at the theatre. In granting continuance of the anti-picketing injunction, the court also sustained the contention of the exhibitors that they could run their theatre without hiring a union man.

Recently the court ruled that the co-partners could each work a shift in the booth and were not obligated to hire a union operator.

Accord With Labor

SAN FRANCISCO—Eleven American Federation of Labor organizations, representing every class of worker or performer to be employed in the huge entertainment program of the 1940 Exposition, have reached agreements or understandings with employers, the local actors' headquarters announced this week. This makes the Exposition 100 per cent union.

New Edmonds Novel to Fox

HOLLYWOOD—"Chad Hanna," a novel by Walter D. Edmonds ("Drums Along the Mohawk"), has been purchased by 20th-Fox.

Trumbo Original to 20th-Fox

HOLLYWOOD—"The Man With a Shovel," an original by Dalton Trumbo, has been purchased by 20th-Fox. Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich will co-produce.

Gunman Is Wounded in Fox Wilshire Holdup

BEVERLY HILLS—One gunman was seriously wounded, while his confederate escaped with a booty of $334.65, in a spectacular holdup at the Fox Wilshire. Ellis Sylvester, assistant manager, who had been forced into the ticket cage with Geraldine Glenn, cashier, by one bandit brandishing a revolver, rushed out and flagged down a police patrol car. The other man, who had been holding Manager Ray Deusern and Sydney Sussman, the doorman, at bay, escaped through one of the theatre exits with the money.

The wounded bandit, Kenneth Clark Brien, was downed across the street from the theatre. The resultant traffic tieup and excitement did not penetrate into the theatre, however, where the audience had been informed of the affair by Deusern.

PORTLAND

AS THIS is written, Hugh S. McLeod, Tusco manager, is lying seriously injured in a Centralia hospital, victim of an automobile accident Saturday night. The full extent of his injuries had not been learned here, nor how quickly he will be able to return to Portland. Details of the accident also were meager . . . Tempus fer-gosh-sakes fugits, with two of the help at 20th Century-Fox off for their summer vacations. Mildred Johns and Joe Ford pulled out Monday for New York and Los Angeles, respectively . . . T. J. Cleary, Fox traveling auditor, moved along to Seattle last week.

Portland's allegiance was transferred temporarily to Great Britain last Thursday, with Anna Neagle taking over for George, R. E. Here with her boss, Herbert Wilcox, for the world premiere (not including Seattle) she was welcomed by Burgomaster Joe Carson and the business gentry with fitting ceremonies. Here also were various RKO officials, including Conrad Krebs, New York, publicity manager; Terry Turner, New York, exploitation director, and Lew Marin, field representative.

Harold Le Duc of Advertising Accessories will desert Filmrow in June to reopen the theatre at Nehalem, closed for the past several years. Meanwhile the house is being completely renovated and modernized, with new booth, equipment, decorations and upholstered chairs per Western Theatre Equipment Co. . . . W. Patterson, Fox assistant booker, took a short count from the flu during the week . . . For whatever it's worth to Hollywood casting directors, four of the first five Princesses selected by students of Portland high schools for the annual Rose Festival were brunettes.

Newsreels sequences of the recent Far West Kandahar ski races at Timberline Lodge, filmed by Will E. Hudson of Seattle, are being screened at various suburban houses . . . Mrs. L. A. Moore of Hermiston, Verne Ross of Toledo, and Mrs. Milt Odem visited Filmrow during the week.

SEATTLE

TWO SHOW-SHOPS this week are refunding their advance ticket sales. First, the Metropolitan, when Alexander Woollcott's engagements were canceled, following his heart attack; second, the Music Hall when Orson Welles cancelled his personal appearance.

H. S. McLeod announces that he has closed his Seattle office of TUSCO and will do all his work out of Portland. Jeff Fretland will move to the Rose City and join the staff there . . . Bill Duggan, local manager, and Al Harris, his assistant at the Monogram exchange, off to San Francisco to attend a regional meeting. Al Goldstein, president of Monogram in the Northwest, will meet the boys there. Al left for San Francisco a few days ago to attend the funeral of his father. Walter Wessling, Monogram manager in Portland, will also attend.

Howard McBride in from Spokane to defend himself in court. Acting as his own attorney, Mac had the case dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. He was being sued over a contract he had with a state right distributor . . . Stan Goodman is the name of the young chap who made his appearance on the Row this week. Stan is manager of the New Hoquiam, one of the Warner chain. He came to the Northwest recently from California.

Last rites were held this week for Henry "Hank" Cady who was well known among Seattle theatres. Hank was for years publicity director for the American Mail Line and he was always promoting some idea that would tie up with a theatre . . . Charles "Tiny" Burnett, for years the orchestra leader at the Orpheum, and his brother, Meyer, who played violin in the same orchestra, each was bequeathed $10,000 from the estate of their mother who died January, 1939. Tiny is now located in Bremerton and Meyer has a jewelry store in Seattle.

Edna Phillips was selected at the Paramount to represent Seattle in the "Miss Streamline" contest to be held in San Francisco . . . A meeting of the trustees of the Film Club was held this week with another meeting called for May 6. Among those present were J. T. Sheffield, president; Eddie Lamb, B. F. Shearer, Leroy V. Johnson, Herndon Edmond, Harry Blatt and Joe Cooper, club manager.

Dorothy Wilkison, who resigned as form clerk at the Paramount exchange, was honored by a luncheon at the Sorrento Hotel and given a traveling bag. Dot has accepted a post with the federal bureau. Olive Walker has succeeded her . . . Frank L. Newman and Frank X. Christie to Los Angeles for a meeting with Charles Skouras . . . Mrs. Jay Tew of North Bend in town but not doing any booking. She is on jury duty.

E. J. Rising, RCA district manager, here from San Francisco . . . Here's news for you fishermen. Art Gollofon of Warner stands a good chance of winning the Sedro-Woolley steelhead derby. He has the biggest fish to date, 18 pounds and 9 ounces which won the March prize of a fishing rod . . . Anna Neagle and Herbert Wilcox, dinner guests of the John Hamricks . . . Connie Krebs, of the RKO publicity department in Hollywood, back from Portland and over to Vancouver, B. C., to attend a dinner . . . Dorothy Shearer celebrating a birthday.

BOX 284 — SEATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO

THE film houses are already beginning to feel the pinch of the 1940 Exposition. Since the special advance sale admission books were issued a month ago, over 200,000 have been bought. As the Fair comes under the heading of amusements, the money for these books comes out of John Citizen's theatre budget.

Anna Neagle and her producer, Herbert Wilcox, stopped over for several days this week en route to Seattle for the opening there of "Irene." While here, Miss Neagle met the press at a party sponsored by RKO . . . H. Bradley Fish has given up his office in the Monogram Building and moves over to Universal in the capacity of city salesman. The Fine Arts franchise which Fish handled here will probably be taken over by Coast Pictures . . . Gorden Allen is back from a trip through the San Joaquin valley . . . "Rebecca," in its sixth week at the United Artists, is still drawing crowds . . . The light opera season, comprising four weeks and four productions crammed with Hollywood names, starts May 13 at the Curran Theatre.

A. M. Goldstein, president of Monogram in the Northwest, was in town this week to attend the funeral of his father . . . "Red Ryder," Republic's new serial, is getting some fine publicity from the San Francisco News, the paper which carries the daily Red Ryder strip . . . Sam Clark, affectionately known as "Little Barnum," has emerged victor from an attack of hostile germs. After a siege in bed he is again tending to Warner exploitation.

The personnel at 20th Century-Fox all received cash bonuses for placing third in the recent S. R. Kent date drive . . . Ed Beck out on a short trip to Los Angeles . . . J. A. Harvey jr. seems to have scored a scoop for his concession at the Exposition. Harvey will have the dwarf horses taken from the Grand Canyon on display . . . Doris Brockhaven, Columbia secretary, announced her engagement and many of the Row boys are going about with gloom in their soul . . . Mike Newman, Columbia exploiteer, in town to direct the campaign for "The Doctor Takes a Wife."

San Franciscana: The Ice Follies, which did a tremendous business during its two months run last fall, returns to town on May 15 with a new show . . . Paul Muni comes to town for two weeks with his "Key Largo" opening May 6 . . . Jeanette MacDonald played to a packed house for her concert here.

The list of exhibitors who have already returned their reservations for the PCCITO meeting in Los Angeles is surpassing even the anticipations of optimistic Rotus Harvey . . . The Row has been extending birthday congrats to Edna Geiger, Warner biller, and wedding anniversary best wishes to Lucille Glover of the same exchange . . . The Harvey circuit has booked "Gone With the Wind" for its entire chain and will open the epic in Portola . . . "Dark Command" has been selected to open the new Redwood house, the Noyo in Willats. The opening was May 3 . . . Jane Clayton, Warner starlet, was recently a visitor and dropped in to see the Harveys who are related to her.

The Tivoli, dark since the attempt three months ago to revive light opera with local talent, opened April 27 with "Scorched Earth" under the sponsorship of the American Medical Relief Corps in China . . . Bob Lippert planed out for a week's trip to New York and Chicago . . . 20th Century-Fox screened "I Was an Adventuress" this week.

Visitors to the Row: Leo Reese, Orpheum, Lakeport; Peter Perry, Yearington, Yearington; Bill Gustine, Sanger, Sanger; Charlie Gray, Newman, Newman; Stewart Kuster, Playhouse, Carmel; Dan Nunan, Turlock, Turlock; Walter Cree, El Rey, Tulare; Ray Summers, Angel, Angel's Camp; Edy Coffey, Santa Clara, Santa Clara, and the Anea brothers, Frank, Sylvester and Salvatore.

Several of the downtown subsequent-run houses are revising their policy in the attempt to keep their heads above water. The Casino and President dropped their admission from 25 and 20 cents to 20 and 15 cents, respectively. The President is discontinuing its policy of weekend vaudeville. The house game was changed this week from "Screeno" to "Wahoo."

Dan McLean is leading the fight for lower film rentals for the Market St. second run houses which have to combat first run competition. Dan's Embassy operates with a 30 cent admission in the evening and a 25 cent afternoon price and with six of the first run houses on a 40 cent evening policy, the jump is not great enough. McLean says he cannot cut admissions and still pay the nut so the only solution is a reduction in the film rental.

Mrs. Sally Davis, 20th Century secretary, is off for her annual two-week vacation . . . . Phyllis Burke also is absent from her regular position at the M-G-M switchboard—the vacation in her case is a honeymoon jaunt. Phyllis was married April 30 . . . L. C. Bingham, M-G-M exchange head, is on the sick list.

Ed Stokes is renovating his Eastmont in Oakland . . . Paul Rosini is in his fourth month at the Bal Tabarin, which breaks all records for runs of magicians at that spot . . . The Harvey Amusement office had an easy week what with all the bosses up at Portola fishing and supervising the opening of "GWTW" at their house there . . . Vernon Hughes has taken over the assistant manager's office at the Orland in Orland . . . E. L. Boles was in town this week making final arrangements for the new house he and J. A. Boles are building in Central Valley. It will be called the Mecca and will open late in June.

Bob Wenzel, Republic shipper, is at home for a few days. His "sprained" ankle turned out to be a chipped bone . . . Myron Hopkins, M-G-M shipper, is back on the job after a vacation.

The local IATSE group has elected William Ring of Los Angeles as representative to the convention in Louisville . . . Charlie Owens got the boys new IATSE buttons and now sports a small diamond in his button in recognition of his services . . . Joe Cane, Republic booker, was the winner of the first cash prize awarded by Sid Weisbaum in the collections drive . . . Jimmy Myers, Republic salesman, is back from a swing through the Nevada territory . . . Les Savage, new Columbia auditor, has been in town.

Metro has tied up with the Pacific Borax Co. in the exploitation of "20 Mule Team" and the Borax people have secured 1,000 windows in this city and 300 windows in Oakland for displays. Credit Ed Beck with the idea . . . Paramount is moving three doors west for the next six weeks while present quarters are gone over with paint brush, hammer and nail. When the renovation is complete, Paramount will have the finest screening room on the Row in addition to a smart new building.

Sid Newman, Warner bookkeeper, is off to a dude ranch in the south for his vacation . . . Row visitors this week: Harry Hyashino, Lincoln, Stockton; George Smith, Willats, Willats.

Those in attendance were as follows: Mr. Bell, C. McConaughy, Alfred J Ackerman, Oscar Kuschner, Eddie Zeyen, Harry Markun, Al Hedding, Grey Kilbourne, Dudley Williston and Don R. Rossiter.

The regular monthly meeting of the board has been moved up one day to May 8 because of election day on Tuesday. Plans for the coming summer convention will be definitely made.

B&K to Experiment With A Price Cut at Covent

CHICAGO—B&K is cutting prices at the Covent for a four-week trial period, two days a week. On Wednesdays and Thursdays the house is offering "bargain days" at 15 and 25 cents, going into first-week of release for those days. The remainder of the week it is staying in "C" week with 20 and 30-cent admissions.

Miriam Hopkins Vehicle

HOLLYWOOD—Slated as a vehicle for Miriam Hopkins at Warner is "January Heights," which Richard Sherman has adapted from a novel by Polan Banks.

Speculate on Possible Effect Of Film "Monopoly" Finding

By GENE RICH

CHICAGO—Filmrowites are speculating what effect the findings of the special master, Judge Edgar Eldredge, in the criminal contempt case will have on the local situation. For one, it is expected that with the master's report finding that a monopoly of first-run product does exist in the Chicago loop, the independents' anti-trust monopoly suit against B&K and the majors might be pushed to further conclusion. It was reported also that with this finding more or less in favor of the independents, the two or three other anti-trust suits said to be in the air in the last few months might actually be filed.

Attorneys for Barney Balaban, B&K and Paramount—who were found guilty of violating section 10 of the 1932 consent decree in the master's report—have until May 21 to file objections to the findings. Likewise, it is expected that the government will file objections to the report which found that the other six major companies are not guilty of any violations whatsoever. These will be heard by Federal Judge Charles Woodward after the written objections are filed. After these hearings, he is expected to give his decision, and it is thought the government attorneys will push for an early hearing and finding, as a concurrence by the judge in the master's findings would materially aid the government's big suit in New York.

The master's findings are reported elsewhere in this issue of BOXOFFICE. A cursory survey of opinions of film attorneys shows that the substance of the finding is that Barney Balaban, B&K and Paramount are guilty only of having a monopoly on first-run product in the Chicago loop. The findings exonerated them, as well as the other majors (Columbia was not a party to the suit as it did not enter into the consent decree originally), of any conspiracy charges (which the government withdrew toward the end of hearings last year), or of any coercion. Originally the government had also conceded that RKO Radio Pictures and Universal should be withdrawn as parties to the suit.

"Is a Monopoly"

Master Eldredge found that since B&K through selective contracts bought approximately 80 per cent of the major companies' output annually—and that the other 20 per cent of the pictures were termed "sloughs"—this constituted a monopoly, since no other first-run house could be operated. He also found that B&K bought and paid for product which it did not use first-run and which were thus not available either to other first-run houses.

In his report, Master Eldredge said that he studied approximately 2,000 pages of oral testimony and 500 exhibits, and was asked to judge from 184 propositions of fact and 22 propositions of law by the government attorneys.

Should Judge Woodward concur in the master's findings, the Jones, Linick & Schafer-operated Oriental would be one of the chief beneficiaries in the loop, and would thus have top major product made available to it.

Reports Revive of B&K Settlement With Indes

CHICAGO—The finding of Special Master in Chancery Edgar Eldredge in the federal contempt case here this week led to revival of reports—carried first months ago in BOXOFFICE—that the independents' anti-trust monopoly suit against B&K and the majors would be amicably settled. Shortening of clearance and making available pictures either in a double-feature or single-feature atmosphere were the most discussed points in the rumored settlement.

Niesse Resigns as G. M. for Olson

INDIANAPOLIS—Carl Niesse has resigned as general manager of Olson Theatre Enterprises, operators of the St. Clair, Strand, Ritz, Oriental and Uptown, all neighborhood houses, and the Lyric, a downtown theatre. He will devote his time to the operation of his own Vogue on College Ave. near Broad Ripple.

Charles M. Olson, president of the Olson group, hereafter will personally supervise the five neighborhood houses.

Niesse became general manager of the Olson string when they were acquired last year from R. R. Bair. He opened his Vogue in June, 1938.

Tryouts for "Go West" Open in Joliet, Ill.

JOLIET, ILL.—Initial tryouts of routine, gags and stunts for the forthcoming M-G-M production of the Marx Brothers' next film, "Go West," opened here this week at the Great States Rialto.

With the Marx Brothers on a three-week tour which ends May 16 at the Chicago Theatre in Chicago, are Charles Friedman, stage director, and Irving Brecher, writer, who worked on the skits and who will also work on the scenario. Howard Dietz, M-G-M director of advertising and publicity, attended one of the performances here and conferred with Friedman, Brecher and the Marxes.

Plan Silvis House

SILVIS, ILL.—Carpentier Bros., Charles and Emil, who now operate the Majestic and Strand in East Moline, Ill., contemplate the erection of a 500-seat house here to cost about $35,000. It will be ready for an early fall opening. The manager of the new house is to be Joseph Carpentier, a third brother.

MILWAUKEE

RICHARD MACAULAY, scenario writer for Warner Bros., was in town last week for a fraternity initiation at Marquette University . . . Fox's Zenith, north side neighborhood house, is now offering Targa-Min on Wednesday nights with cash prizes for bulls-eyes.

Harris Ashburn, Marquette University graduate and one-time actor at the old Fox studios, is in town with his dancing act at the Schroeder Hotel.

Some 7,000 persons turned out for the second annual Fox Movie Ball at the Wisconsin Roof here last Monday night. Fifty-cent admission ticket was good either for the dance or any Fox house as well as a chance on an automobile.

Fox's Palace, local first run, which has in the past started its new shows on Fridays, has announced a new policy of Wednesday starts . . . Charles Conway, manager of Fox's Varsity here, has been gracing Harvester cigar ads.

The Fox-Lincoln, of which A. R. Zimmer is manager, will be host to a health, beauty and charm school, May 7-10.

ST. LOUIS

A SPRING series of foreign-made films has been booked by the S'Renco Art Theatre, opening Monday night, May 6.

The combination of the Royal American Shows and the Beckmann & Gerety Shows at Grand Boulevard and Laclede has provided tough competition for neighborhood motion picture theatres in that section . . . Paul Osborne's comedy, "Mornings at Seven," has been added to the list of attractions for the Town Square this summer. The theatre holds forth on the roof of the General Van Bldg.

Manager Jimmy Irving of the Maplewood, one of the St. Louis Amusement Co.'s fleet, will stage a mock-premiere a la Hollywood at his house on the nights of May 7 and 8. High school pupils will impersonate various stars. As they drive up to the theatre they will be met by liveried attendants and unload in the glare of flood lights. There will be microphoned interviews, bands, banners, flags, etc.

Although the recent St. Louis Police Circus at the Arena set a new attendance record with 266,485 cash customers for the 14*-day engagement, the net profit of about* $72,000 was decidedly off from the $97,000 mark set in 1939. The reason given was the greater expense. The show was produced by the Fanchon & Marco interests.

Goldie, a horse that was a gift of the late Will Rogers to Buck Owens, radio cowboy singer, in appreciation of Owen's training of Rogers' string of polo ponies, celebrated its tenth birthday in St. Louis at the Will Rogers Theatre. There was a birthday cake and other trimmings. Maury Davis is manager of the theatre.

The Garrick, a burley house, shuttered for the season April 19. Manager Jack Beck plans to take a short vacation before going to Atlantic City to open the Globe for the Hirst circuit in June.

Lou and Joe Ansell, George Wiegand, Ben and Sam Schuchart, Sam Levin, Harry Hines jr., Tony Matrici, Eddie Ashkins, Ray Colvin, Bill Williams and Johnny Walsh, who constituted the St. Louis delegation to the recent Variety Club convention in Dallas, Tex., are back home and telling of the good times they had in Texas.

HOLLYWOOD—George Cukor will direct the film version of "Philadelphia Story" for Metro. Katharine Hepburn, as in the stage version, will play the starring role.

St. Louis Price War Strikes New Note

ST. LOUIS—The price war in this sector has reached the stage where some independent theatre men are endeavoring to cancel out any and all motion pictures that may be shown at a 15-cent admission for adults or used in a triple feature program.

In letters to managers of exchanges, protestants are naming the theatre and date at which the cut-rate or triple program was used. In connection with the 15-cent admission, the exchange manager is being told the protesting exhibitor's contract for the film being canceled out provides that he must show it at an admission price in excess of 15 cents, and that under the circumstances, he cannot stand by and permit a film to be shown earlier at 15 cents and then follow at a higher admission rate.

"The cancellation of the foregoing mentioned picture," one of the protesting letters states, "is not to be figured as one of the group cancellable under the regular cancellation clause in my contract, but shall be in addition to this cancellation privilege; nor shall this cancellation in any way be construed as a waiver of any other of the terms or conditions of my contract.

"This is also to advise you that if and when new contractual relations are entered into for the next season's product, I shall insist upon a clause in that contract that will definitely prevent houses running for 15 cents admission or less, from playing the pictures ahead of or day and date with my house running at a higher admission price, and in addition provide an equitable amount of clearance against such houses in such instances, to protect my house running at a higher admission price."

The independents also say they shall insist on a clause against triple programs in their new contracts, or at least a reasonable amount of clearance against any house in St. Louis or St. Louis county using motion pictures on triple feature programs.

Milwaukee Teachers Favor Motion Picture Studies

MILWAUKEE—The Milwaukee Teachers' Co-operative council has recommended a critical study of outstanding current motion pictures by junior and senior high school students. Such study, it was contended, would be valuable to members of English classes and amateur camera enthusiasts. It was proposed that bibliographies on films prepared by the Milwaukee County Better Films council be made available to the students.

Sketch Little Theatre

ST. LOUIS—F. Ray Leimkuehler and Hugo K. Graf, associated architects, have completed sketches for the proposed new $40,000 theatre building to house the St. Louis Little Theatre. A campaign to raise funds for the building is now in progress.

CHICAGO

HOWARD BECK of Detroit has been transferred to Chicago by M-G-M as city salesman . . . Frank Williams, Warner theatre booker, is back after that siege of pneumonia.

Romance has struck the Warner film exchange. Betty Hessler will say "I do," in a week or two, to Dave Ramsdell, checking supervisor. Betty is in the bookkeeping department.

Two newcomers at National Screen Service in the office are Arleen Van Praag and Loretta Ginther. Over at Advertising Accessories, new additions are Herman Marks, Seymor Shafer and Gordon McFarland.

Dave Katz of Hollywood Advertising is getting out all of his new line of "cool" items for theatres . . . We got crossed up last week and had Jack Flynn as a B&K district manager. Of course, Jack is still very much of a district manager for M-G-M, and we bow in shame.

Walter Branson, RKO district manager, vacationing in Hot Springs, is due back next week . . . Jack Rose is back from a week's vacationing in his home, Omaha . . . Indiana-Illinois Theatres is remodeling its offices in the Standard Oil Bldg.

Jack Hess is no longer connected with the Downtown Shopping News. He was amusement manager of the paper . . . The Marx Brothers were through here en route to Joliet where they opened their current tour during which time they will test gags for their next M-G-M film, "Go West."

Eleanor "Bonnie" Raymer is opening a lingerie and hosiery shop, to be called "The Bonnie Shoppe," Monday, May 6, in the Standard Oil Bldg.

Paul Sander, formerly with Variety, and for a short while with BOXOFFICE, now heads the outdoor division of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

John and Mrs. Balaban attended the Kentucky Derby, Saturday, in Louisville . . . Ben Kalmenson, Warner western district manager, was here while en route to the west coast.

Bob Gillham, Paramount advertising and publicity head, was due here this week to confer with Ralph Ravenscroft, studio publicity representative, on plans for the coming premiere of "Those Were the Days," at Galesburg, Ill.

Joe Grossman, chief of service at the United Artists, was married recently to Miss Belle Shapiro.

Fast Time and Spring Weather Hit Takes

CHICAGO—With the inauguration of daylight saving time upon a balmy spring day, business was off considerably throughout the loop and suburban houses Sunday. "Rebecca" at the United Artists, however, continued to hold up well, while "Buck Benny Rides Again" was adequate at the Chicago.

In the suburbans, however, practically every house experienced a slump.

Compromise Reached in Street Widening Job

INDIANAPOLIS—The controversy over the widening of Talbott Ave. has at last been settled and the parking ban on one side of the street will be lifted only following completion of the work. Harry Markun, operator of the Talbott and Belmont, and merchants on the street offered to pay the entire cost of the work, but some residents protested. As a compromise, the street will be widened only in the one block, but will be resurfaced from 16th to 22nd St.

Advertising Outlays Prove Profitable

MINNEAPOLIS — While loop first-run houses apparently are cutting down on newspaper advertising expenditures in what appears to be an economy campaign prompted by a more-than-seasonal business decline, many of the neighborhood theatres have been doing the very reverse and with good results.

A number of the larger independent houses are taking double and triple their usual amount of display advertising space for such outstanding boxoffice pictures, for example, as "Northwest Passage." Evidently the policy is bearing fruit because it is being used more extensively all the time.

When "South of the Border" went into independent neighborhood situations for its first Minneapolis showings, display newspaper advertising space in most instances was doubled, tripled and quadrupled. The picture did exceedingly good business in nearly every neighborhood and suburban house where it played.

Feeling among the uptown independent neighborhood exhibitors is that advertising expenditures should be governed by the merit of the attraction. Increased outlays for top-notch pictures usually prove justified and boost profits, it's asserted.

Theatre Building Activity Confined to St. Paul

MINNEAPOLIS — Considerable theatre building activity is in evidence in St. Paul and also probably would be manifest here, too, except for the refusal of the city council to issue any more permits.

Three showhouses are under construction in St. Paul and vicinity. Licenses apparently are forthcoming to everybody desiring them.

In Minneapolis anywhere from six to a dozen prospective builders are unable to get permits. The aldermen take the position that the town already is overseated and that further theatre construction would jeopardize present investments and lower entertainment quality. One suit to force the issuance of a license is pending.

Dubinskys and Majors Face Conspiracy Suit by Cassil

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—A suit for $452,775 damages was filed in the federal district court here Monday (April 29) by Frank H. Cassil of the Rialto Theatre against major distributors and Dubinsky Brothers circuit. The suit, plaintiffs to which are Cassil and Mrs. Eugenia D. Cassil, his wife, alleges that through "unlawful combinations and conspiracies" in violation of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts the defendants damaged the Rialto's business and the plaintiffs to the extent of almost half a million dollars.

Defendants are 20th Century-Fox, M-G-M, RKO, Paramount, United Artists, Universal, Columbia, Vitagraph, Charles G. Geiger, Barney Dubinsky, Irwin Dubinsky, Edward Dubinsky ("who is also know as Edward Durwood"), Dubinsky Bros., a co-partnership consisting of Barney Dubinsky, Irwin Dubinsky, Edward Dubinsky and William Dubinsky, and the Kansas City Operating Co., co-partnership consisting of Barney, Irwin, Edward and William Dubinsky.

Specifically, the Cassils charge that because of "the unlawful acts of the defendants" they, the Cassils, have suffered the following particular damages to their business and property:

(1) Their business, and their investment in it, amounting to $59,500, have been substantially destroyed.

(2) Their purchase of the Valley Theatre, "coerced as aforesaid by the unlawful acts of the defendants, resulted in loss and damage to the plaintiffs in the amount of $5,925.96.

(3) The forced reduction of the admission price at the Rialto Theatre, as hereinbefore alleged, brought about by the unlawful acts of the defendants, resulted in loss of operating receipts in amounts aggregating more than $60,000.

(4) "In order to offset the devastating effects of the unreasonable and excessive protection features herein alleged and the other unlawful acts of the defendants pursuant to the combinations, conspiracies and attempts to monopolize," the Cassils were "compelled to incur large and unusual expenses for special promotional and advertising projects, to maintain a reasonable minimum patronage sufficient to enable the continued operation of their theatre; that by reason of" this, the Cassils have been damaged in the total sum of $150,925. The total damages asked are three times this amount, or $452,775.

The suit, filed by Monsky-Grodinsky-Mayer & Cohen of Omaha, relates that the Cassils became owners and operators of the Rialto, located in the suburban district of St. Joseph, in March, 1930, and began operations on June 21, 1930. The "defendant exhibitors" (the Dubinskys and Geiger) assumed ownership and operation of the Electric, Missouri, Orpheum, and Crystal, in downtown St. Joseph, in the fall of 1932.

"The operation of the plaintiffs' theatre was solely dependent upon plaintiffs' ability to obtain motion picture films produced and distributed by the defendant distributors in sufficient number and upon such terms and conditions, both as to time of showing and price, reasonably required to enable the operation of the theatre in competition with other theatres operating in St. Joseph."

The petition charges that "the defendants unlawfully and in violation of the Anti-Trust Laws of the United States, entered into a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade among the several states and combined and conspired to monopolize, and attempted to and did monopolize, the trade and commerce among the several states in reference to the motion picture trade or part thereof, and the said defendants unlawfully combined and conspired together for the purpose of driving the plaintiffs out of the business of exhibiting motion pictures and eliminating the said plaintiffs from the motion picture trade and industry." It further charges that "the defendants combined and conspired together for the purpose of aiding and assisting the defendant exhibitors and the defendant Geiger to remove the plaintiffs as competitors of the defendant exhibitors and the defendant Geiger."

Specifically, the Cassils base their suit for damages on the following allegations:

"That ever since the fall of 1932 and pursuant to the aforesaid unlawful combinations and conspiracies:

"(a) Defendant distributors refused to furnish pictures to plaintiffs for second run showing and plaintiffs were forced to show in the Rialto third and subsequent run pictures, whereas prior to 1932 and prior to the inauguration of the conspiracies, combinations and monopolies alleged herein, plaintiffs had contracted for second run showing of films with defendant distributors for the Rialto, to be shown upon the lapse of 60 days after the first run; that with reference to some of the pictures the refusal to furnish them for second run showing was in direct violation of contracts theretofore entered into between plaintiffs and defendant distributors.

"(b) Defendant exhibitors were permitted by distributors to and did contract for the entire production of pictures of distributors for both first and second run for St. Joseph, even though the number of pictures thus contracted for were greatly in excess of the maximum number that could possibly be used by the defendant exhibitors, as a result of which the defendant exhibitors were placed in a position to and did control and direct what pictures should become available to and be played by the plaintiffs and the time of their exhibition.

"(c) Defendant distributors granted to defendant exhibitors a special privilege and advantage to the detriment of and injury to plaintiffs in that the Crystal Theatre, after its acquisition by the defendant exhibitors, notwithstanding its 15 cent adult admission price, was given protection and prior showing privileges over the Rialto which then maintained a 20 cent adult admission price, with the result that the Rialto was forced to lower its admission; and to the end of accomplishing the

Kaycee Quartet Is In Tie for Honors

KANSAS CITY—It was a draw.

The mellifluous finals of the barbershop quartet contest came out a tie on the voting at Variety Club Monday, and it looks like half a milk pail for each of the two participating groups: Hal Perrin's Bodiform Bobolinks (M. R. Perrin and Bill Perrin, Hal's brothers, John Nelson, Kenneth Smith and Ed Matheny) and Gus Kubitzki's Red River Oakies, composed of Gus, John Long, Charley Crawford and Bob Conn, all of 20th-Fox.

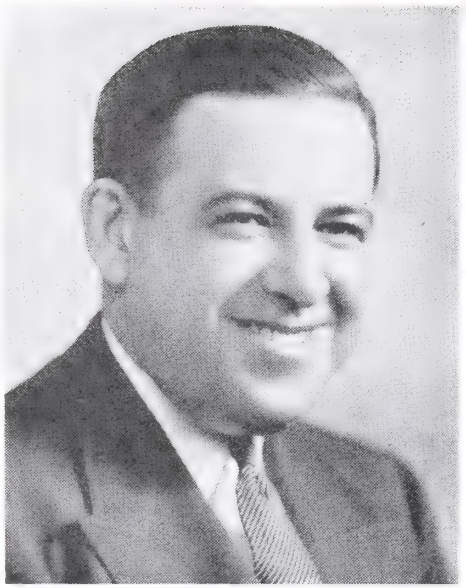
F. E. Ritter of the Fox Uptown emceed the finals (and did a swell job of it!), and the boys really leaned into those long notes.

Variety Monday accepted the challenge of the Cinema Club to a golf tournament May 19, place to be announced. It will be five men on a side, with Leon Abraham chairmanning for Variety and Martin Stone for Cinema.

Chief Barker Jay Means appointed an initiation committee consisting of Frank Hensler, Norris Cresswell and Leon Abraham.

Among the guests were Harold Harris of H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., guest of E. L. Harris of Alexander Film (and no relation); Jack Zern, Altec, Dallas, and Sam Whiteside jr., new assistant to Hal Perrin of American Seating Co.

Commenting briefly on the Dallas trip, Jay Means said that for him it was an eye-opener. He praised John Harris of Pittsburgh as the inspiration of Variety, and reiterated Variety's primary purpose of charity.



Charley Gregory suggested the tent here send the Dallas tent a scroll signed by members of the club who attended the recent convention and telling how much the Dallas affair was appreciated.

Burlington Plaza Bow Draws Trade Figures

BURLINGTON, KAS.—The new $25,000 Plaza made its formal bow here with a full house and standing room taken. Hosts to townspeople and the trade were A. J. Simmons and Warren Weber. Simmons has moved to Burlington, and will manage the new 400-seater, which, stadium-type, is modern throughout. Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Weber and the Webers' young daughter also were on hand to participate in the opening celebration.

Crump Taylor, Plaza, Appleton City, Mo.; C. S. Laird, Madison, Madison, Kas., and other exhibitors, attended. Film and allied trades were represented by John Scott, Republic-Midwest; Ben Marcus, Columbia; E. L. Harris, Alexander Film; Stanley Goldberg, Monogram; Reube Melcher; Sam Abend, Film Delivery; Bud Truog and Homer Ellison, National Screen Service, and others. Larry Larsen, architect (and an exhibitor), was unable to attend.

Weber also operates the Pix at St. John; Ellinwood, Ellinwood, and Ritz, Stafford, Kas. Simmons and Weber have the Plaza at Howard, Kas.

With Universal—

Lou Levy, promoted from salesman to branch manager for Universal in Des Moines, succeeds Jere Spandau, who has been transferred to Albany, N. Y. Filmrow has known Levy since 1920, when he started film selling out of Omaha. He came to Des Moines in 1925.

Lou Levy Optimistic In 20th Trade Year

DES MOINES—Stacks of congratulatory letters and telegrams are helping Lou Levy, new Universal branch manager here, to admit that he's as optimistic this spring as he's been in any of his 20 years in the film business.

The dark-haired smiling Lou started his film selling in 1920 when he went to work for Sidney Myer at the Fox exchange in Omaha. Two years later he shifted to Universal, selling for Harry Lefholtz there.

Educational and Premier Pictures attracted Levy in 1924. Jimmy Winn, now Warner district manager in Kansas City, was his boss in those days and A. H. Blank was the Des Moines and Omaha franchise holder.

Levy came to Des Moines in 1925, still with Educational and Premiere. Doc Banford at the Metro office here put him on the M-G-M staff in 1926, however, and for 11 years Lou peddled Metro product.

He turned to Grand National as branch manager here in 1937 and stayed with that concern until the district court closed its doors this year.

Levy went to Universal as a salesman at that time and became branch manager of that office April 22 when Jere Spandau was transferred to Albany, N. Y.

"I except to be just as fair with exhibitors as I have been in the past," outlines Levy in regard to his policy in the territory. "And I've never been more enthusiastic about any product than I am about the top six pictures listed on the Universal schedule for 1940-41."

Rising Farm Income Foretells Big Year

MINNEAPOLIS—An explanation for the improving theatre business throughout the territory, except for the Twin Cities and other isolated instances, is found in government figures, just issued, showing a substantial gain in Minnesota and North and South Dakota farm income.

The latest figures available are those for February. They reveal gains of 40 per cent for Minnesota and 95 per cent for North Dakota over the corresponding month a year ago. South Dakota also forged considerably ahead.

This trend foreshadows a greater measure of prosperity for exhibitors the ensuing year than they've experienced for a considerable period, in the opinion of local exchange managers. It looks like a big year ahead, they say. Rising farm prices and increasing demand for various products, due in part to war developments, should make for steady improvement in all lines of business, but particularly for such luxury industries, leaders feel.

The territory primarily is dependent on agriculture's welfare for its prosperity. And with every indication that the farmers and those who serve them will be better off than at any time in recent years, optimism is mounting in the film exchanges.

February government payments to Minnesota farmers amounted to $4,898,000, compared to $2,259,000 for the same 1939 month. North Dakota farmers received more than $5,000,000, as against $1,106,000 a year ago.

Despite the fact that wheat exports to Great Britain are below expectations, prices have soared due to various causes and if there is a normal yield of grain this summer still better times are in the offing.

Engagement of Des Moines Film Star Stirs Comment

DES MOINES—Hollywood's inadvertent release of the news that Universal's Helen Parrish was engaged to Forrest Tucker stirred comment here among those who remembered him at Casady grade school and at North High where he played football as Meredith Tucker. He was widely known then for his impersonations of stage and screen celebrities.

Tucker's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heringlake, live at 1422 22nd St. here. He came here when he was six, shortly after the death of his father at Indianapolis, Ind., and lived with his grandparents until three years ago.

Time to Duck, Maybe

DES MOINES—Any theatre manager in Iowa who is blaming hard times if his grosses aren't up to snuff, may take time out now to duck. Fact is, new home construction permits in 15 larger Iowa cities showed a 27 per cent gain in March as compared with the volume in March, 1939. The dollar gain was $166,402. Des Moines led, Waterloo was second, Davenport third and Cedar Rapids fourth.

Extensive Remodeling on Central States' Grand

OELWEIN, IA.—A $35,000 remodeling project is scheduled to be started at once on Central States' Grand here.

The entire front will be remodeled with a boxoffice brought forward under a U-shaped canopy and the present inner and outer lobbies converted into one large furnished lobby.

The theatre will be modernized, air-conditioned and redecorated throughout. The first floor is to be equipped with new seats, and $5,000 worth of new sound equipment will be installed.

The job, under the direction of Wetherell & Harrison, Des Moines architects, is expected to be completed about the middle of June.

Lid Clamped Tight on Minny Night Spots

MINNEAPOLIS—Night clubs and taverns are having a tough time of it here as a result of a citizens' law enforcement league's activities. A number of licenses have been revoked because of gambling and other law infractions. Two of the largest and leading night clubs, "Happy Hour" and "Curly's," obtained injunctions from the district court to restrain the city council from revoking their licenses—the former for permitting gambling and the latter for selling liquor after hours. The lid is on the tightest that it ever has been.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE

BARGAIN—Complete single bearing Simplex, perfect condition, original sprockets, very slightly worn. Mazda lamp and control. Everything complete, ready to run silent, $75 cash plus transportation.

The lads out at Fox Midwest are really happy. They placed first in the first week of the 13-week National Theatres campaign. Nice going!

We just learned this one. At Lawrence, Kas., during the premiere of "Dark Command," Wendy Barrie was signing autographs in one of the hotel rooms. As she signed them, she passed them along to a man sitting nearby, practically concealed beneath a large hat. The fellow, alleged to be a "Hollywood cameraman named Jack Carr," finally was discovered to be R. W. McEwan, former Bank Night distributor, and Filmrow familiar.

How They Sell 'Em

DES MOINES—Most successful and one of the most original of the theatre exploitation projects in the middle west these days is Orville Rennie's semi-annual local stage revue in his Rivoli at Hastings, Neb.

His third such revue was staged April 11, 12 and 13, titled "Sense and Nonsense" with an all-local cast. The local revues regularly boost Rivoli business 200 per cent above normal and this year netted space in the Omaha World-Herald roto section to boot.

Rennie produces them at an expense which, plus the cost of a good flat rental picture, has never been more than equal to that of a straight picture expense on a top bracket percentage film, he reports.

None of the cast receives pay and they all provide their own costumes. All they receive is the fun of being in the show, the training they get and a banquet after the final performance.

Through the three days of the revue, Rennie worked a tieup with a Hastings florist shop to provide his ushers with roses to hand every woman attending the theatre. On each flower was a tag reading: "IT'S A DATE to see Deanna Durbin next (date)."

Benefit ticket sales are helping the grosses in some Iowa areas. Jimmy Schlatter ties up regularly with the Junior Hadassah in a ticket sale drive to swell attendance at his Capitol Theatre in Sioux City, Ia.

With "Young Tom Edison," Dale McFarland scored for his Capitol in Davenport, Ia., by giving the YMCA Mothers Club members 25 per cent on all tickets sold, the campaign being conducted two weeks in advance of playdate.

In addition to the ticket sale itself, the tieup gave the Capitol window cards in all classrooms and the distribution of 5,000 heralds in the Davenport schools. The club set up ticket booths in every department store and bank with stills and posters on the picture displayed. It also arranged for three spot announcements daily on Radio Station WOC.

In Cedar Rapids, Ia., Hal Sheridan put the Young Men's Bureau to work for "Young Tom Edison" and his Paramount Theatre with the 25 per cent offer. The sale there was conducted with a "kickoff" dinner, general chairman, majors, captains, team workers and all the trimmings.

Graduating classes of surrounding towns are providing business for Bob Fulton at the Paramount in Waterloo, Ia., and Jimmy Redmond of the Bonham in Fairbury, Neb.

In Fairbury, Redmond arranges with the chamber of commerce to send a letter to every senior and junior class in all towns within a radius of 100 miles. This invites the class members to spend their "Sneak Day" in Fairbury and points out the pleasures of such a visit—and the entertainment to be found at the Bonham Theatre.

Last year more than 50 schools took advantage of the invitation and each class contained from 15 to 60 students.

Warren Butler built up the gross on "Pack Up Your Troubles" at his Princess in Sioux City, Ia., by staging a "Laugh Week." He stickered everything in sight, stenciled the sidewalks, had a float touring the business district with a laugh record amplified and a display on a corner near his theatre with laugh records inside the display. His radio announcements carried the same idea, and in the Princess lobby he had two distorting mirrors, borrowed from an amusement park. On these were placards reading: "If you think this is funny, wait until you see 'Pack Up Your Troubles.'"

Butler, incidentally, gets his heralds around town free, through local distribution of Liberty and Life magazines. In exchange he gives 50 of the boy salesmen free shows the following Monday afternoon.

Harry Schiller in Grand Island, Neb., has worked the popularity contest twice as a ticket-selling promotion. Each girl is required to sell at least $10 worth of tickets in order to qualify. All Tri-States theatres in the town participated with votes counting according to the price of tickets sold.

Special numbered hard tickets were used to provide an easy checkup. Votes were all issued from the boxoffice, when the hard ticket was exchanged or regular admission tickets purchased, but the rules specifically provided that contestants could not solicit votes in or around the theatres.

Grand Island contestants worked hard for the top prize, a trip to Hollywood, promoted through the Union Pacific advertising department, and a screen test.

Schiller also has been successful with an annual stage wedding, discreetly handled.

Jake Cohen, Tri-States partner at Ottumwa, Ia., still views giveaway nights as great business-getters, but cuts the cost by including a sponsor on the merchandise giveaways. The grapevine says he offered $400 worth of merchandise prizes one night at a cost of $50 by the sponsor method.

Orville Rennie used a simple lobby display to start people talking about "Virginia City" at his Rivoli in Hastings, Neb. He installed a desk and had an usher dressed like a sheriff in attendance. A sign on the desk read: "Park your guns here before you see 'Virginia City'!" The stunt might apply to any horse-opry.

Bob Fulton at the Paramount in Waterloo, Ia., has picked up gratis newspaper space in the Waterloo Evening Courier during national want ad week in each of the last three years through cooperation with the classified ad department. Copy reads:

"On all classified ads which are inserted and paid for in advance, one ticket to the Paramount Theatre is given to see (name of attraction)."

A midnight sarong contest in conjunction with a late showing of "The Road to Singapore" gave the Omaha at Omaha, Neb., a 25 per cent lift on the day's gross.

Bookmarks were distributed to help promote the showing of "Rebecca" at the Des Moines and Roosevelt theatres in Des Moines.

LINCOLN

CLEARING up odds and ends before your regular agent returns from a Hollywood journey: Beatrice and North Platte are busy planning "Sod Buster Days" and "Days of '69" celebrations. Gracie Allen's going to be on hand for the latter, a hangover from last year's "Union Pacific" holiday.

Slowly, local houses are edging back towards vaude . . . Nebraska is featuring amateur night on Tuesdays, and the Lincoln brought in a "Frozen Alive" gal flash for this week.

Irv Deer, midwest rep of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, spent a couple of days speaking at Hastings.

Present conductor of this pillar, Glenn Trump, a Nebraska State Journal sports writer, is planning a trip to York for a track meet just so he can find out if Carl Rose can still write.

Laura Walker and some of the other "How many, please?" gals frequent the bowling alleys . . . We'll offer a reward to the person that finds Bob Livingston when he isn't chewing gum or hasn't a paper tucked under his arm.

Runs Nudist Film Despite Deep Censor Excisions

DES MOINES—Despite police censorship that stripped the film of most of its nudist scenes, Hayden Peterson continued showing "Children of the Sun" as scheduled through last weekend at his State in East Des Moines.

There is no legal provision in Des Moines or Iowa for censorship of motion pictures, but there is a state law prohibiting the displaying of "obscene" pictures or literature or providing "immoral" entertainment.

Giveaways Progress In Minneapolis

Minneapolis—Survey shows that giveaways of various kinds are on the increase here. Bank Night is still the most popular stunt with exhibitors, but book nights, free table and dresser ware also are much in evidence. In numerous instances, neighborhood houses are playing up their giveaways over their screen attractions in their newspaper display ads.

F. Cassil Files Suit Against Dubinskys

same unlawful purpose, the same discriminatory procedure was put into effect with respect to the Electric Theatre, owned, managed and controlled by the defendant exhibitors . . . The Electric, prior to July, 1938, was a first run house with an admission of 25 cents and upward, but was transformed into a 15 cent admission price theatre upon the closing of the Crystal, and was given protection over the Rialto.

"(d) Defendant distributors refused to permit the plaintiffs to show any of their pictures prior to the expiration of a minimum period of 132 days from the completion of the first run of the pictures by defendant exhibitors or prior to two weeks after completion of the second run of the pictures by defendant exhibitors, although the protection period prior to such unlawful combinations and conspiracies and monopolies had been approximately 60 days from the completion of the first run of the pictures; and the defendant distributors at the instance of the defendant exhibitors and pursuant to and because of the unlawful combinations and conspiracies then and now existing between them enforced and imposed the protection period of from 132 to 146 days in favor of the defendant exhibitors and against the Rialto, notwithstanding the same was excessive and unreasonable and wholly without justification.

"(e) Defendant exhibitors have at all times since the fall of 1932 contracted for and received from the defendant distributors greater privileges in their license contracts than did the plaintiffs and the license contracts between defendant exhibitors and defendant distributors have been of a character advantageous to the defendant exhibitors and disadvantageous to and discriminatory against the plaintiffs, in that among other things they allowed defendant exhibitors substantial rejection privileges and special options as to the time of exhibition, all of which rights and privileges were denied or substantially withheld from the plaintiffs.

"(f) Defendant distributors at all times subsequent to the fall of 1932 . . . refused to furnish pictures to the plaintiffs except upon the basis of excessive and unreasonable protection periods hereinabove alleged in favor of the defendant exhibitors and except at prices equal to and in many instances greater than the prices that plaintiffs had theretofore been paying for second run pictures which were subject only to the lesser period of protection; namely, 60 days after first run; that such prices which plaintiffs were required to pay subsequent to the inauguration of the unlawful combinations and conspiracies were unreasonable, excessive, discriminatory and frequently prohibitive."

In addition, the Cassils allege, the Dubinskys and Charles Geiger in March, 1934, opened a theatre competitive with the Rialto, the Valley, in suburban St. Joseph. This was in the same trade area as the Rialto.

The Dubinskys, "who owned and operated a large number of theatres in Kansas and Missouri and were in a position to and did induce defendant distributors to discriminate in their favor and against plaintiffs with respect to price of and other matters in connection with motion pictures, threatened to procure for the Valley and the defendant distributors threatened to give the Valley not only price advantages but also protection and priority in the exhibition of pictures over the Rialto."

All of this "was designed by defendants to and did compel plaintiffs, in an attempt to preserve the Rialto" and its business to purchase the fixtures and equipment of the Valley and to take over the lease on the Valley for the unexpired term; namely, July 1, 1937, to March 31, 1939, "and to operate the theatre at a loss," with resulting damage to the Cassils of $4,925.96.

These advantages have been granted to the Dubinskys and Geiger by each of the distributors, and these restraints have been imposed upon the Cassils by each distributor, the petition charges, "at the instance of defendant exhibitors and pursuant to uniform agreements made with the defendant exhibitors, the agreements being pursuant to concerted action on the part of the defendant distributors, with full knowledge on the part of the defendant distributors of the effect of their uniform and collective agreements with the defendant exhibitors. The granting of such rights and privileges to defendant exhibitors, while they were denied to and withheld from the plaintiffs, was in pursuance of and to the end of making effective the unlawful combinations and conspiracies hereinabove alleged."

Cassil is president of the Kansas-Missouri Theatres Ass'n.

DES MOINES

WHOOPS for Bert Thomas, who's to be the new booker at Columbia . . . Bert'll put his pencil behind his ear for Evidon May 6 . . . Jean Post gets Bert's old stall at Republic, and Al Blair is expected to fill Post's shoes in Tilton's poster department . . . Being one of the judges, Tri-States' DD (Dorothy Day) oughta get some of the credit for that pretty blonde Merle Lindsten who paraded for the Drake Relays with the Register's Baby Mine.

Ollie Reese is back on the Row at RKO after a five-week session with high blood pressure . . . Margaret McGaffey (the Mrs. Efficiency who made such a hit as a secretary with Charley Levy when he was here for "Career") subbed for Ollie while she was gone . . . Gretchen Kelleher and Ollie's sister, Rhoda, popped up at the Fort DM Coffee Shop after Edward Everett Horton's performance Sunday . . . Gretchen says she doesn't get time to read BOXOFFICE, but she hears all about what she's been up to from those who do.

After seeing her at the Shrine Sunday, we have again decided that Mrs. Emil Franke is without question the most striking-looking Filmrow wife, but who'd expect a showman like Emil to pick anything else? The Dimples may have severed some of his Filmrow connections, but the Walt Lohman-Opal Judd combine still seems to be in effect . . . Opie and Walt were at the Shrine Sunday . . . Mitzi loved the little pants, Opie . . . the Burton Jerrells saw Horton fiddle around on the stage at $2.24 a throw, too.

For a long time we've been casting a baleful eye on the art-about-this and story-about-that system Tri-States has been using on the R&T theatre page . . . now it's come to G. Ralph's attention and he's decided it's pretty sour business to spike the guns that way, too . . . at least it'll be an art-and-story-about-the-same-pic system from here on out. Nancy Branton took the center of the society page Sunday as befits a young lassy of her extraordinary beauty.

The Blank brothers, Myron and Ray, had Sunday dinner together at the Fort DM Coffee Shop . . . Some p. a.'s face ought to get veree red when he reads this item: Ken Clayton received a 30-cent refund from the Pullman company on an alleged compartment ride to Delray Beach, Indianapolis, Ind., January 29 . . . Ken has never been to Delray Beach, and luckily happened to be well accounted for on January 29 (he was the guy who shared BOXOFFICE's honeymoon in NY on that date) . . . The Claytons have long been aware that they go lotsa places, see lotsa things and drink lotsa liquor by proxy, but this is the first time they ever got a refund!

Lou Levy says he's looking for some new pictures for his office walls and he'll be pleased with the smiling faces of some exhibs . . . We note that six months after the DM BOXOFFICE tells Dear Editor she thinks something ought to be done about the pretty ducat peddlers, Barney Oldfield comes out with the very same suggestion for a cashiers' beauty contest.

We'll have to pass over local Passover activities lightly, because we don't know much about them . . . Anyhow, a lot of Filmrowers looked fat and well-fed after the big holidays . . . Chick Friedman entertained Mr. Haas, Joe Deitch, Joe Russell and Lou Levy among others, and from what we hear, Chick is some entertainer. Morris Smith had his usual Passover gang over including Joe Smith, and Joe Rogatnick. Lou Elman played at being host, too, and a lot of Filmrowers deserted their ping-pong tables for the Temple on Polk Blvd.

Morris Smith took some sulfanilimide to prevent pneumonia, and acquired a fine skin eruption. Now he knows he's allergic to sulfanilimide. Because Morris had to spend some six days in the hospital . . . Joe Smith and Jack Kennedy spent one day discovering that a skin eruption doesn't affect pitch technique . . . Joe Rogatnick at Universal is trying to find a gal who looks like Nan Grey, but Kennie Weldon says he'll still take his Bibianne . . . That good-looking girl in slacks who strolled into Universal at 9:30 the other night was Mrs. Ralph Olson coming to tell him it was about time to quit working.

Bing Miller has a new red Pontiac coupe with which to impress the exhibs in his territory . . . We hear for the first time about Tim Evans' love affair. She's a smart DM schoolmarm . . . Ray Copeland is slated to come up missing the week of the 15th. He'll be hobnobbing with the three little fishes (he'll never admit they're little, though) . . . Enthusiasm for reopening the local Variety Club may get a shot in the arm since some of the boys have returned from the national whinging in Texas.

Tri-States managers outside of Des Moines and Omaha are taking Horace Greeley seriously . . . A free trip to Hollywood is the prize offered the manager who shows the greatest increase in boxoffice gross over house average on "Dr. Cyclops." The film packed 'em in for half of its week at the Paramount here . . . Central States' "Lillian Russell" premiere in Clinton gets a free ride in tomorrow's Sunday Register with Alice Faye's picture and story on the mag cover and a roto layout on the chorus gals in the film . . . Don't be surprised if a sarong contest pops up in connection with "Typhoon."

Speaking of snozzles as we were a while back, reminds us of the day Jere Spandau put the new Spandau profile through its paces for our benefit, and we opined that with his new pug, everybody would pick him for the Irisher and BOXOFFICE as one of the chosen people . . . Lou Levy tells us that everytime he goes out in the territory with a nice fresh BOXOFFICE, he comes home with that release sheet in the back torn out by some exhib. Handy thing to have around, BOXOFFICE.

Universal convention is slated in Atlantic City on May 10-11-12 for the eastern districts, and in Chicago on May 17-18-19 for the western districts . . . Bert Thomas' new blue suit with the stripes is reputed to be a honey. Watch for its appearance, folks . . . The R&T listed only RKO, but we understand most every exchange on the Row was roped in for a worthless check by Raymond D. Peters, a cook at Tama, Iowa's King's Tower. Thursday, the Row showed up en masse at the jail to identify Peters. Probably there were never so many Filmrowers at the police station all at one time before.

Clinton Planning to Make Premiere Three-Day Fete

CLINTON, IA.—Clinton business men, having been assured of one-third of the "Life of Lillian Russell" premiere here May 15, are now planning to stretch their celebration into a three-day fete, starting May 13.

The first two days will be limited to local events and merchandising programs, however, with the big show still limited to May 15 when the film stars will show up and the film will be shown.

A beauty contest has been added to the program here with Iowa and Illinois girls competing for the title of "Lillian Russell of 1940." Merle Lindsten, blonde queen of the Drake relays from Coe College at Cedar Rapids, already has agreed to compete and there will be entries from Cornell and Grinnell colleges and the University of Iowa.

Other beauty contestants are to be selected in the quad-county area—Clinton and Jackson counties in Iowa and Whiteside and Carroll counties in Illinois. Competitors from this area will be picked at a costume semifinal contest May 14.

Christening of the North Western-Union Pacific's new streamliner "Treasure Island" may be added to the days events, also. It is possible it will make its maiden run from Chicago to Clinton to bring the stars to the premiere.

Meanwhile, although simultaneous premieres will be staged at Pittsburgh, Pa., and Hollywood. Clinton residents were gloating over the news that in addition to Don Ameche and Lynn Bari, Joan Davis, Brenda Joyce and Cesar Romero were expected to be among the big-name Clinton visitors.

Minneapolis Celebration Will Present Autry

MINNEAPOLIS—Gene Autry, western film star, will be brought to Minneapolis for the local civic aquatennial celebration July 20-28. He'll have his horse, Champion, along, and he'll be one of the features and master of ceremonies at a huge rodeo. Negotiations now also are pending for the appearance of other screen luminaries during the celebration.

Weisfeldt to Omaha

MINNEAPOLIS—Jerry Weisfeldt, former Warner booker, has resigned from Film Alliance sales staff to join the 20th-Fox booking staff in Omaha.

MINNEAPOLIS

MOE LEVY, 20th-Fox district manager, back from a Des Moines inspection trip . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, visited New York on business . . . Paul Mans, independent circuit operator, called to Los Angeles by the illness of his wife's mother . . . Harold Field making a tour of inspection of his Pioneer circuit of Iowa theatres . . . Excelsior Amusement Park opened for the season . . . Bing Crosby has promised to attend midsummer golf tournament in Twin Cities.

The boys still are raving about that Variety convention at Dallas. They agree it was the greatest convention they ever attended and the best time that they ever had. Chief Barker Ben Blotcky prizing a huge drawing of himself that was on display at the convention. At the big birthday party for Abe Kaplan, circuit operator, at Dallas the boys presented him with a beauty of a pocket watch . . . Don Buckley of Redwood Falls, Minn., proved the party's dancing sensation . . . Bruzz Rubel, the showmen's broker, was mistaken repeatedly for Ricardo Cortez and pestered for autographs.

Bill Elson had a reunion with his brother, an army officer stationed in Texas . . . The married men brought back nifty gifts for the wives whom they left at home. Likewise some of the single fellows for their sweethearts . . . Ben Spewak flew in the last day and was the center of much attention . . . Bill Cameron, M-G-M salesman, was dubbed the most serious-minded delegate . . . Mike Manas, Twin City Variety club steward, returned with a Mexican regalia . . . The boys were glad to see Harry Sherman, in from New York. He's a member of the Tent here . . . Exhibitor W. L. Hamilton's hearty laugh was the envy of everybody who heard it . . . Those cowboy hats and boots are attracting lots of attention.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Lyle Webster, Chippewa Falls, Wis.; Leo Backer, Browns Valley, Minn.; S. Backer, Hankinson, N. D.; Harry Knowlton, Elsworth, Wis.; W. Faulkner, Plum City, Wis.; A. M. Inman, Fairfax, Minn.; E. P. Parsons, Renville, Minn., and Abe and Udell Gill, Farmington, Minn. . . . C. K. Olson, Warner Bros. branch manager, has recovered from his tonsilectomy and is feeling like his old self once more. He had a tough time of it for a few days . . . Eph Rosen, representing the Producers' Releasing Corp., screened "The Beast of Berlin" for Bennie Berger and others who were much impressed. Rosen is distributing the picture in the territory.

"Rebecca" a holdover both in Minneapolis and St. Paul and did big business in both cities . . . Joe Fieldman of National Screen out of business a few days following a tooth extraction . . . Twin City Variety Club to hold a diner and general meeting Monday at Hotel Nicollet. Those who attended Dallas convention to tell about it and future plans to be discussed.

Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, visited South Dakota accounts . . . J. L. Stern of Majestic back after a spring vacation trip on which his wife accompanied him. They motored through the south and attended the Variety convention at Dallas . . . Minnesota Amusement Company asserts that boxoffice stage attractions are unavailable and nothing is in prospect for the Orpheum at the present.

Bill Evidon, Columbia office manager, now at his summer home at Mound, Minn., with his bride of a few weeks . . . LeRoy Smith, M-G-M booker, is vacationing at International Falls, Minn. . . . Bess Crane, Eddie Ruben's private secretary, on a diet, and from the way she's looking these days we'd say it's a beauty diet . . . "Hy" Chapman, Columbia branch manager, gaga over his new flicker, "The Doctor Takes a Wife." Happy, too, because of the big business that "My Girl Friday" and "Too Many Husbands" did at the State and Orpheum, respectively.

Doesn't Pantages Theatre look pretty in its new spring coat of paint? . . . Mannie Sgutt, Columbia's roving statesman, pleased over party prospects in the forthcoming South Dakota election . . . Now that Tommy Charack has been away from these parts for some time, Harold Lyons, 20th-Fox salesman, is being rated as the Row's best-dressed man. But no wonder—he took over Tommy's tailor . . . OMAHA

BERGER A. TOMTE, Paramount peddler, has a birthday to celebrate. It's hard to believe that the handsome fellow is a grandfather. Just look at him! . . . Bill Haarmann, Paramount booker, also celebrated a birthday recently . . . BOXOFFICE is readying a personal news flash for next week.

Fritz Largen, Lyric, Creighton, Neb., says the exhibitors need the help of producers who will turn out consistently good pictures . . . Ed Stengel, film peddler, also a birthday celebrant this week . . . When will Wally Johnson, exhibitor at Friend, Neb., be married? Soon, we hear, to a charming girl working in Omaha.

Carroll A. Lane, exhibitor at several Iowa towns, has a birthday soon. Lane is worth a whole column. He was formerly a school teacher and principal, now has several good circuit spots. The punch line is, he lives in Carroll, Ia. He's just 35 years old.

Earl C. Arehart, Strand, Milford, Ia., has a birthday soon. He's just past the half-century mark. Earl is a follower of baseball, is opposed to double features and thinks BOXOFFICE is "very good" . . . Marie Gamerl at Warner's celebrates her ninth wedding anniversary.

How the years roll by! . . . Carl White, theatre supply man, and wife, Hazel, celebrate their 22nd wedding anniversary this week . . . Bob Oliver, popular exhibitor at Onawa, Ia., will soon be 34 years old. Bob would like to spend full time fishing and hunting if running two theatres didn't interfere just a bit!

A quick trip through the exchanges and we discover: Joe Scott, Fox boss, has been warming up his golf clubs. Joe has the very fortunate situation of living next door to two golf courses . . . Frank Van Husan, Western Theatre Supply, wonders how the fish are biting in the northern lakes . . . Glenn Rogers of Film Transport certainly has a lot of trucks around his place.

When will Meyer Stern of Capitol Pictures fix that glass in his office wall, or will Mike Roth pay for it? . . . Don McLucas, United Artists chief, wonders if grass will grow on that terrace back of his house . . . Regina Molseed at RKO is getting the Omaha territory directory ready for print.

The Metro outfit has more than its share of good looking gals, Mr. Shumow. How's the garden coming, Harry? . . . Joe Jacobs in Columbia wants a plug for a certain picture which we won't mention this week, just to spite him . . . Carl White has already had his mention . . . Carl Reese of Republic fears he's next in line for a nose operation.

Bob Ballantyne's layout looking as well kept and prosperous as ever . . . Walt Green is certainly proud of all the machinery at Fepco . . . Sid Rose was out so we couldn't get the dope on the change of salesmen there . . . Ted Mendenhall has moved to his summer home for a while to escape the heat (it's only a gag, Ted).

Exhibitors generally wondering what about the summer business. Two years ago it was jackrabbit circuits, last year soft ball, and this year, what to come? . . . Harold Hall, exhibitor at Elkader, Ia., says "low cost entertainment" is the solution.

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

WE THOUGHT that Wes Mansfield of Tama was about the most versatile of theatre exhibs (Wes operates the famed King's Towers in Tama and did employ that cook who recently worked his taking ways to death on the Row) . . . Now we discover that George Frick of Graettinger has almost as many fingers in the pie.

Leonard Kaplan (Iowa City-Waterloo-Mason City) is being accused of rushing in and out of DM for play dates, but not on pictures.

The C. M. King with the insurance biz in New Hampton is the same C. M. King who operates the theatre at Monona . . . what do you do, King, sell 'em a policy and then tickle 'em (or bore 'em) to death with the product?

Wes Mansfield sold Traer to Bly McLaughlin, they're saying along the Row.

Edna Rector Grand of the Star in Sioux Rapids and D. F. Grand of the Avery in Garner were in last week . . . Edna sent two identical telegrams, and Western Union returned one to her because she scribbled.

The B. F. Hagemann's of the Waverly and Bremer theatres in Waverly are quite a couple—he's chubby and she's charming. Does anybody else think he looks like Smiley Burnette?

R. E. Brown opened his new Cozy in Harlan last week. The house seats 310 persons.

Ralph Green of the Dodge at Fort Dodge is the fair-haired boy of these parts, they say. Ralph is young, handsome and of all things, smart! He started out with the Loop in Minneapolis. Now, in addition to the Dodge, he has recently acquired the Pix and Time in Aberdeen, S. D.

Bob Malek jr. of Independence and Gladbrook says the Gladbrook Uptown is his dream castle, and that he'll never, never give it up. In other words, the joint makes him dough.

Julio Massarini of Melcher drives a hard bargain, the boys tell us.

Ed Nordhus of the Strand in McGregor sounded like the Little Man Who Wasn't There to us. Everybody said Ed was in town, but nobody reported that they had seen him.

William Obrecht of the Ritz in Rolfe is so big he makes all the DM bookers feel small.

J. D. Peck recently opened a new stub circuit which includes Rippey, Callender and Stratford.

We can't understand why we don't hear from Jack Bauma at Pocahontas.

We just received a letter from Doc Twedt of the Lido in Manly. Doc claims he's growing that beard to promote "Virginia City," but you can't fool us. Doc knows he's one handsome guy in them beard and them tall silk hat.

If you don't think Orville Rennie of the Rivoli in Hastings is some promoter, then you haven't seen the space he's been pulling down in the Omaha World-Herald roto section with his annual stage reviews . . . or maybe you don't know just how hard it is to rate that much space in any roto section.

Walter Carroll of the Star in Colfax was shopping along the Row for Sunday shows last week . . . Leo Wolcott of the Grand in Eldora was around . . . The Petersons, Charles and Walt, from Hampton, showed up . . . so did Henry Rehfield of the Iowa in Bloomfield . . . Harry Herman was in from New Hampton booking and lining up some equipment for the May 15 opening of the Fireman's Hall. Why don't you change that name, Harry?

: The Ideal Salesman :

COUNCIL GROVE, KAS. — Cle Bratton, manager of the Ritz here, who believes a film salesman should be an all-around man with diversified interests, suggests "The Requisites of a Good Film Salesman" as follows:

Must be a man of vision and ambition, an after-dinner speaker, before and after dinner guzzler, night owl, work all day and drive all night and appear fresh the next day.

Must be able to entertain exhibitors, exhibitors' wives, cutie pies, and pet cashiers without becoming too amorous; inhale dust; drive through snow ten feet deep and ten below zero and work all summer without perspiring or acquiring B. O.

Must be a man's man, a ladies' man, a model husband, a fatherly father, a good provider, a plutocrat, democrat or New Dealer, old dealer and fast dealer, a technician, politician, mathematician and mechanic.

Must be a sales promotion expert, create a demand for mediocre pictures, a good promiser, correspondent, attend all conventions, funerals, visit exhibitors in hospitals and jails, contact all accounts every six weeks and in spare time look out for new business, do missionary work, attend all sales meetings.

Must have unlimited endurance for frequent over-indulgence in wine, women, wind and gab; a wide range of telephone numbers in all the principal towns. Must have a car, an attractive home and an aptness for padding the old chisel sheet.

Should be an expert driver like "Parky" Parkhurst, a talker like Bob Carnie, a man of wisdom like Bud Riley, a getter-arounder like Ben Adams, a dancer like "Shack" Shackelford, a poker player like Herb Stultz, a diplomat like Tom Baldwin, a golf player like Charlie Knickerbocker, a financier like Jack Renfro, a capitalist like Tommy (Univ) Thompson and a bridge player (can any film salesman play bridge?)

Should always live in one state, buy his automobile tag in another, so that he won't have to pay taxes in either.

Fawcett's Breezy Point Resort Is for Sale

MINNEAPOLIS—Breezy Point, Minn., summer resort near here, owned by the late Capt. Billy Fawcett, publisher of film fan publications, and which has been visited by many screen stars, has been offered for sale. Although the resort represents a $1,300,000 investment the price has been set at $225,000. Gordon Fawcett, a son of the deceased publisher, will manage the resort this summer.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Name Ellen Drew Ideal

KANSAS CITY—Ellen Drew, Paramount star, was selected as the "Ideal American Girl" by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, it was announced by Adjutant General Robert B. Handy jr., at the national headquarters of the order here.

With the selection, Miss Drew becomes the 1940 national Buddy Poppy Girl of the veterans organization and hostess to the forty-first national encampment of the VFW in Los Angeles, August 25 to August 30.

Banning of card games in its rooms seems to have spelled finis for the Fiddlers' Club, organization of young film men. A K. Evidon, the club's First Fiddler, says he is negotiating with Chief Barker Ben Blotcky of the Twin City Variety Club regarding merging of the two groups.

Helen Johnson, Welworth circuit gal, back from a wide vacation swing around the Southland. Said she had to return to Minnesota to get warm, but on Tuesday, when the temperature suddenly dropped again down to around freezing, she rued those words.

Overshadow Classic At Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE—Hollywood stars in droves descended on Louisville this week overshadowing, in part, the 66th annual running of the Kentucky Derby classic at Churchill Downs.

Irene Dunne, Randolph Scott and Walter Connolly and eleven other west coast luminaries were to have flown here Thursday to participate in the pre-release world premiere of Miss Dunne's new picture, "My Favorite Wife," at the Rialto, and the Stephen Collins Foster memorial celebration at Bardstown, Ky., on Friday.

Meanwhile, the annual business session preceding the seventh annual dinner Derby Eve of the Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels, was to have been laid at noon Thursday at the Kentucky Hotel, with additional Hollywood and film celebrities attending.

Others in the group scheduled to have arrived with Miss Dunne for the RKO film's premiere included Leo McCarey, producer, and Garson Kanin, director of the picture; Sam and Bella Spewack, writers; Gene Fowler, author and scenarist; Hal Roach, producer; David Butler, director; Dr. Francis Griffin, Miss Dunne's husband; Mrs. Walter Connolly, Miss Margaret Ettinger, and Perry Lieber, RKO publicity chief.

To Bardstown Celebration

At the invitation of Gov. Keen Johnson, Miss Dunne was to have sung "My Old Kentucky Home," "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair," and other Foster melodies at the Bardstown celebration honoring the Kentucky composer with the issuance of a one-cent commemorative postage stamp. Postmaster General James A. Farley and the film group were to have participated in a coast-to-coast radio broadcast of the ceremonies.

The premiere group was to have been welcomed at Bowman Field airport by Governor Johnson, Mayor Joseph D. Scholtz, some mint juleps, a delegation of prominent Louisville women, several bands, some mint juleps, the student body of Loretto Academy, of which Miss Dunne is an alumna, and some mint juleps.

Miss Dunne, a native of Louisville, and the city's second premiere within a month, vied with other stars, flood lights, bands, the Derby itself and the Colonels' dinner for brightness. A broadcast was to have been held from the lobby of the Rialto the night of the film's debut, with Boyd Martin, film critic of the Courier-Journal and director of the Little Theatre, as master of ceremonies.

At the Colonels' dinner, besides the governor, Mayor Scholtz and Miss Dunne, the following were to have attended:

Bing Crosby, Postmaster General Farley, William A. Quigley, Joseph Schenck, Howard Chandler Christy, Bryan Field and George E. Allen, all members of the governor's committee; and the following members of the general staff for 1940:

Jack Alicoate, Sidney R. Baer, Jack S. Connolly, Frank G. Menke, J. J. Pelley, Charles E. Pettijohn, all with the rank of "general," and Don Ameche, Dick Andrade, Bill Corum, Bernard Dickman, Samuel Fuson, Clark Gable, Charles F. Gannon, Joseph Hartfield, Howard Hawks, Clem McCarthy, George L. Schein, Harry Switow and Credo Fitch Harris, all with the rank of "colonel," besides others.

It's 100 Per Cent Shea In Zanesville, Ohio

ZANESVILLE, OHIO—The Liberty, Quimby, Imperial and Grand theatres have been acquired by the Shea Theatre Corp., independent circuit which operated the Weller here for the past five years. It gives the Shea interests all five theatres here.

The four houses added were operated by the late Caldwell H. Brown who died recently. The estate sold them to the Shea circuit. The Weller has 1,100 seats, while the Liberty is a 1,400-seater. Others are smaller.

Additions give the Shea group more than 50 theatres, largely located in smaller cities and big towns mainly through Ohio, Pennsylvania and the New England states.

Newspapermen and Stars To Pittsburgh Premiere

PITTSBURGH—World premiere of 20th-Fox's "Lillian Russell," May 15, at the Harris Alvin and Senator here, will be attended by several dozen newspaper men from eastern cities who will be guests of the producing company. In addition to Alice Faye, who plays the title role, also scheduled for a personal appearance at the premiere is Edward Arnold, who will again enact the role of Diamond Jim Brady. Harris circuit executives stated this week that Henry Fonda may also be present.

Special 20th-Fox representatives are here in advance of the opening and are arranging a number of premiere festivities. Don Ameche is scheduled to attend the Clinton Ia., premiere of "Lillian Russell" the same evening as the local opening.

"Montana" to Steindorff

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has assigned Ulrich Steindorff to adapt "Montana," based on a book by C. B. Glasscock. George Brent and Olivia DeHavilland will co-star.

Move in Detroit to Organize Managers

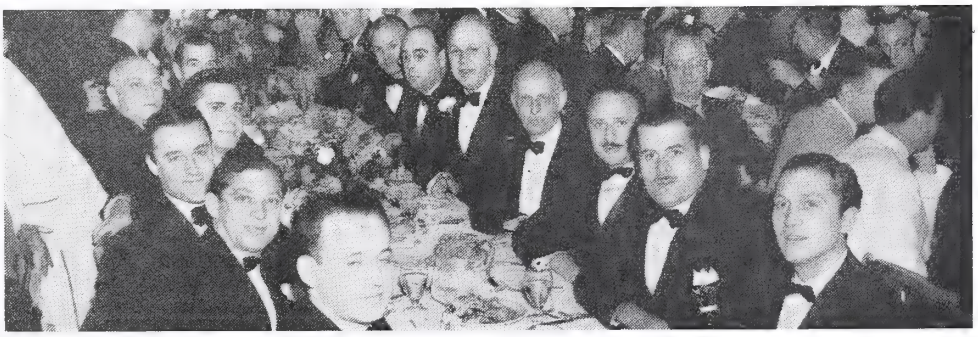
DETROIT—Organization of the newly-formed Theatre Managers and Assistant Managers Local No. 22312 in Detroit and suburbs is now under way, a charter having been granted to the Local by the American Federation of Labor.

At an election last week, Roy Miller, who formerly managed the Palms-State, Broadway-Capitol and other houses, was elected president and acting business manager. Names of other officers are being withheld for the present.

Miller says there are probably 300 eligible members in the city and suburbs. Cashiers and treasurers, who were included in a proposed union started here about a year ago, are not covered in the present organization unless they rank as managers or assistants. It was these classes of employes which prevented granting of a charter a year ago, due to conflicting union jurisdiction.

Miller points out some type of permit could be worked out in cases where an operator or owner manages his own house, similar to the permits granted by the IATSE in a few cases where the owner functions as projectionist.

In an exclusive statement of the union's objectives to BOXOFFICE, Miller said:



"We are organizing to improve conditions for managers and assistants. The management position has gone back further than any other position in the theatre today. Any time the operator had to economize, the manager had to take a cut. Projectionists, stagehands, electricians, engineers—all union crafts—have improved their salaries and conditions over ten years ago, but the managers are getting about one-third of what they got then.

"I found some theatres paying managers as low as $22 a week—and it takes six to seven years of training to be a manager."

Miller has established temporary headquarters at 4072 Pingree Ave.

Kent Adapts "Thieves"

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Kent is adapting "When Thieves Fall Out" for Warner.

At the Festive Board in Dallas—

Paramount Into Ohio Over Outlet Need

NEW YORK—It was Paramount's lack of sufficient representation and the inability to sell the Warner circuit, which had the principal theatres at the time, that prompted the company to acquire interests in, or build theatres in, Mansfield and Steubenville, Ohio, and Wheeling, W. Va., declared George J. Schaefer, RKO president, during his deposition in the government's key suit before Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Wright. The period referred to was 1930-31 when the witness was eastern division manager for Paramount.

In order to assure Paramount a permanent outlet for its product, the company built theatres in Mansfield and Steubenville where Warner also operated, Schaefer said. The deal in Wheeling was a partnership arrangement with a Mr. Zeppos, who had an old house and needed financial help in modernizing it to meet the Warner competition, the witness added.

CINCINNATI

SOCIAL event of the week was Monogram's invitational opening to their handsome new quarters on the Film Mart. Crowds of exhibitors, exchangemen and friends in the trade called during the day to congratulate William Onie on his new enlarged offices, and to partake of the refreshments.

Several houses closed by the flood, including Manchester, Athens, Ohio, and Ashland, Ky., are reopening following the clean-up. Augusta, Ky., kept its theatre going when high water closed all business houses. Patrons came to the show in boats and skiffs. Mr. and Mrs. Crist of Ripley, Ohio, were not forced to close down, but all roads leading to the town were shut off. Business in consequence, suffered a severe setback.

Mrs. M. E. Thalheimer, wife of Marcus E. Thalheimer, Logan Theatre, Logan, W. Va., was seriously wounded when a gun falling from a cupboard accidentally discharged, piercing her shoulder. Reports are she now is convalescing at her home. Mrs. Thalheimer is a daughter of Ferd Midelberg, well known exhibitor . . . Milt Jacobs, Metro representative, is to undergo another operation at the Branch Hospital, Columbus.

Cheering news is that Max Margolis, Republic manager, is home from the hospital, and will soon be back at his desk . . . Homer Guy, Dayton exhibitor, made a flying trip to the Row and also took in a few baseball games. Herb Bird and Fred Krimm also here from Dayton . . . Bob Harrel, Cleves, Ohio, is getting his new Avalon ready for an early opening.

Virgil Jackson is anticipating an early May opening for his new Overlook here . . . Mike Vane, brother of Willis Vance, prominent exhibitor, is coming back into the game with the erection of a new house at Lindenwald section, Hamilton. Mike formerly operated the Crescent at Winton Place.

Archie Clemmons, the Black Diamond Coal Co., had his fun with Jerry Marks, Universal representative for West Virginia. Archie refused to sign on the dotted line unless Jerry took a plane ride with him. Marks was game, Clemmons introduced a few somersaults in the air, and finally brought his nervous passenger to earth, where a crowd of friends were gathered to witness the flight. The moral is, Marks got his contract, with a few thrills thrown in.

Tom Larkin of the Roosevelt, New Bremen, Ohio, is putting in a new marquee and sign . . . Warner personnel are lining up their annual vacation periods . . . Peter Rosian, Universal manager, was guest of honor at a testimonial dinner tendered by the Cleveland branch . . . Irving Sochin of United Artists announces holdovers throughout the territory on "Rebecca," which bids fair for a five-week stay here.

The Cincinnati Cinema Club will discontinue meetings during the summer months, due to so many of the membership being addicted to golf. The club, almost a year old, has a thriving membership, and a splendid financial foundation. Its primary purpose is for mutual benefit to film salesmen, who comprise its roster. Rudy Knoepfle of Republic, is prexy. Incidentally Charley Powers of Paramount, one of the Cinema Club's charter members, has been transferred to the Paramount Cleveland office. Powers is a West Virginia representative.

Manager Moran closed his theatre at Mt. Olivet, Ky., in order to install new seats and new sound equipment. Following a three-day shutdown the house was set for reopening about May 1 . . . Mrs. Joe McKnight, wife of RKO's Kentucky representative, is convalescing following her recent operation at Lexington, Ky. . . . Gus Boudot, RKO office manager, will be back at his desk May 12 following a rest in Florida.

Metro's E. M. Booth spoke over WKRC, campaigning for the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital fund. Metro's 20-mule team was here also, parading the city streets, with the Mayor, William Devanney, office manager; City Manager Col. Sherrill and Lieutenant Governor Herbert gracing the procession.

C. B. "Burt" Hukle has completed plans for the construction of the Westmore, new $45,000 theatre, at Huntington, W. Va. Hukle also operates the Roxy. The new house will be ready in four months.

Correct Amusement Tax Figures for Kentucky

FRANKFORT, KY.—The correct rate of impost in the Kentucky amusement tax is three cents for each admission over 38 cents and one cent for each additional ten cents, J. M. St. John, executive assistant of the department of revenue, points out. The citation is in response to incorrect earlier reports published.

Coin Machine Pictures In Censor's Province

DETROIT—Inquiry by BOXOFFICE discloses that the new coin-controlled films will be subject to the censorship of the police in this city. The question was taken up with legal authorities of the police department, and Censor Charles W. Snyder said:

"These films will definitely be subject to censorship, inasmuch as they are to be shown for public exhibition. They will be reviewed by the censor, under some plan to be worked out by the distributors."

Because the idea has not been worked out locally, details have not been filled in, but is understood that they may not be subject to showing in the regular equipment in the Film Projection Room, where Snyder now reviews all films, and that some special arrangement may be required, with some suitable location provided with adequate projection facilities for the censor's use.

CLEVELAND

HARRY REINHART, Canton exhibitor, and Mrs. Reinhart, who have been trying since the first of the year to pull up stakes for a vacation, are finally and definitely leaving on May 7 for an extended stay in California. Their first objective is Los Angeles, but they hope to spend at least a month in Hawaii.

Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, and Saul Bragin, head booker, after a week in New York, held a series of meetings with circuit managers. The southern district met in Columbus, while the boys of the northern Ohio district gathered in Cleveland to discuss forthcoming product.

Tom Lyons, assistant auditor of the Associated circuit, was the object of a sentimental singing telegram in the office in honor of his birthday. It was a toss-up whether the messenger boy who sang the message, the boys in the office who sent it, or Lyons who received it, was most affected.

Al Sunshine of Hollywood Advertising Co. is hiding behind those glasses so he can see you better, my dears . . . The Roy Russells of Millersburg are celebrating the recovery of their son from an operation for appendicitis.

Harry Barlow didn't open his St. Clairsville as scheduled. Unfinished electrical work delayed the opening . . . The old Duncan Theatre in Killbuck, abandoned by Carl Duncan when he built his new house, has a new name and a new operator. Now called the Family, it is being run by James King for the owner, Mrs. Ada Bedford.

"That They May Live," French peace propaganda film, is booked to play the Hanna at a 25-75-cent admission scale. The picture is being handled locally by Nate Gerson and Dick Deutsch of Real Art Pictures.

Charles Raymond, recently appointed Loew district manager, is spending a lot of time getting acquainted with out-of-town situations . . . Frank Belles, Republic field sales representative, spends his spare time counting the bricks as they go into his new home out Lake Shore Blvd. way . . . And Rudy Norton, also of Republic, is still having trouble with that eye infection.

Joe Kauffman, Universal branch manager, and Mrs. Kauffman, after celebrating the successful run of "It's a Date" at the Hippodrome where the picture had a bigger weekend than any other Durbin picture, pulled out of town for a bit of ocean air at Atlantic City.

Fred Meier of the News put Cleveland Variety Tent very much on the map when he tied for first place in the golf tournament down Dallas way. But Fred's a better golfer than gambler. When it came to drawing for the trophy, he wasn't so good, so instead of bringing home the trophy for the clubrooms, he brought a new golf bag for his own use.

That was a good one they pulled on the radio the other night when interviewing D. W. Griffith, who recalled the good old days when Lillian and Dorothy Gish were stars of the first magnitude. The interviewer bridged the time from then to now by tagging the interval "from Gishes to dishes."

Paul Pontius of Woodville was a visitor at the exchanges. So was Bill Selman of Norwalk, who comes in very seldom these days . . . Charles Powers, who has been with the Paramount office in Cincinnati, has joined the Cleveland Paramount sales force as successor to Max Greenwald, who resigned to head the Eyria chain of houses which he and associates bought from John Pekras. Powers is succeeded in Cincinnati by Bob Clark, former Paramount ad sales manager in Pittsburgh.

Manny Pearlstein, head of the Warner Theatre publicity department, is using his relaxation time brushing up on the philosophy of the old Greeks who invented the Quiz Bee method of questions and answers. Right now, Manny is developing a paper on the mental workings of Aristotle before a group of young people who are presenting papers on the development of philosophy.

George Lefko, RKO branch manager, is working on deals with subsequent run independent circuit owners for city showings of "Pinocchio" . . . It is reported M-G-M is considering re-titling Spencer Tracy's picture, "Edison, the Man," because of the apparent lack of public interest in "Young Tom Edison."

Thousands in Louisville Glimpse 20-Mule Team

LOUISVILLE—En route to the New York World's Fair, Dell "Curley" Eagles, 58, veteran muleskinner, piloted a 20-mule team through downtown Louisville as thousands lined the curb to witness the procession. The team is the one used by Metro in their picture "20 Mule Team," soon to appear at Loew's here.

Kentucky Is Calmed As River Recedes

LOUISVILLE—Reaching a crest here of 35 feet, seven above flood stage, Ol' Man River early this week slowly began to slip back into his regular channel.

Although there was no repetition of the serious damage which resulted from 1937 flood conditions when the Ohio set an all-time high here, waters throughout the Ohio River Valley and its tributaries in Kentucky overflowed their banks, covering highways, flooding theatres in some sections of the state, slowing deliveries of prints to theatres and, in general, slowing patronage.

Ashland, Ky., probably was worst hit in Kentucky, with water standing in the city's streets and several theatres closed. Elsewhere, only the loss of some patronage and late print deliveries were the chief complaints.

Expect ICC Decision on A Film Transit Permit

LOUISVILLE—A decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on an application of Kentucky Film Transit, Inc., for permanent authority to transport by truck, motion picture films and supplies to Kentucky cities other than Louisville, is expected next week. The application was opposed at a recent hearing here before J. L. Bradford, Nashville ICC examiner, by the Railway Express Agency on the ground that it already was giving adequate film distribution service.

"Proven Pictures" Will Continue at Madison

DETROIT—"The House of Proven Pictures" will continue to be the slogan and policy of the Madison, recently taken back by UDT, it is stated by officials. Rumors have been current the house would switch to a first run policy.

Policy of the Madison for several weeks has been to invite patron requests for films, and book accordingly. Latest dual was "The Adventures of Robin Hood" and "Dark Victory," to be followed by "Rose Marie" and "Wings of the Navy."

Mr. and Mrs. Rees Open New House at Cameron

CAMERON, W. VA.—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Rees, newlyweds, are opening their Rees Theatre this week. House had been under construction for a number of months.

Cameron's old theatre, the Almo, continues in operation under the management of C. E. Kuhn.

Holds "Pinocchio"

DETROIT—The United Artists, ace first run here, is holding "Pinocchio" a second week. The house, usually a single biller, is co-featuring the Disney film with "Millionaire Playboy."

Roadshow Men Will Swarm Michigan

DETROIT—Roadshow operators are planning a more intensive coverage of Michigan this year, reports from the field indicate. Some 20 are expected to be active, setting a new high for the state. Size of the field is indicated by the fact these men will run from one to five circuits apiece with at least five towns to a circuit.

Indications are these will be almost exclusively in theatreless towns, as Michigan roadshowmen have generally followed the policy of not invading towns with established houses. In some cases, they come into towns where the theatre is open only one or two nights a week, however.

Dennis Film Co., which has had a number of circuits in the past, is reported coming into the state with a systematized selling plan, while Raoul Cleaver, who formerly headed Powers Pictures of Michigan here, is another new operator, assisted by his son, Bud, and Chuck Harris. Established operators reported adding new towns include Robert Helmore and Harrison Beach. Sixteen mm films are used in most cases.

A Series of Lawsuits by Delray Merged Into Two

DETROIT—A series of lawsuits involving the Delray Theatre has been resolved into two, clarifying the issues involved, Charles P. Nathanson, theatrical attorney, informs BOXOFFICE. The suits filed over the past couple of years, are now listed in circuit court by his client, Delray Theatre, Inc., as No. 217895 against Charles Stepanauckas, and No. 217896 against Mrs. Ida Klatt.

The suits are an outgrowth of the failure of Delray Theatre, Inc., to obtain possession of the house, Oct. 1, 1937, under an alleged agreement with Mrs. Klatt, according to Nathanson. Mrs. Klatt was former owner of the property, which was being operated by Stepanauckas at the time under a lease which, the attorney said, expired the same day. Possession was not obtained for some six weeks, according to Nathanson, who said his client is suing for the cost of proceedings alleged necessary to secure possession from Stepanauckas, and for loss of business during this period.

The house is now being operated by Saul Korman and associates under a deal made with Delray Theatre, Inc.

The National Surety Corp. is being included in the Stepanauckas case as garnishee defendant, Nathanson said.

Construction Under Way On New John Stahl House

PITTSBURGH—Foundation for the new theatre in Homestead Park, Munhall, is completed and building construction will go forward immediately. John Stahl, who owns and operates two Homestead theatres, is owner of the new house which will have a seating capacity of 700.

Fast Time Fight in Cleveland Intense

NEW YORK—With radio and oil interests favoring daylight saving in Cleveland, theatre interests in the Ohio town are predicting a tough battle in trying to continue under standard time. According to Nat Holt, Ohio RKO circuit district manager, union labor has always given unqualified support to the move to stave off adoption of daylight saving.

However, the opposition this year indicates one of the toughest fights. A hearing is scheduled before the Cleveland city council next Wednesday when it is hoped to again defeat the move.

Hundreds Greet Autry At Pitt Reception

PITTSBURGH—Hundreds of Gene Autry fans, all members of the industry, greeted their boxoffice champion at a reception Monday afternoon in the assembly hall of the AMPTO of W. Pa., on Filmrow. Exhibitors were on hand with their kiddies to shake hands with the singing cowboy and to obtain his autograph on stills and photos supplied by Republic Pictures Corp. of Pittsburgh.

Berlo Vending Co. furnished several hundred candy bars for the occasion and Canada Dry donated six cases of "Spur."

Joseph Gray of Spangler Is Congress Nominee

SPANGLER, PA.—Former Congressman Joseph Gray, veteran exhibitor of Spangler, is the Democratic nominee for the political post which he occupied several seasons ago. He won the nomination by a large majority at last week's primary election.

Gray's nomination is for the U. S. Congressional seat for the 27th District, comprising Armstrong, Jefferson, Indiana and Cambria counties.

BOWLING

PITTSBURGH — Republic copped season honors in the Filmrow Bowling League by a one-game margin over Universal at the final evening of play last Friday and will be awarded the "Columbia Pictures Trophy" at the ninth annual banquet of the league at the Roosevelt Hotel, Saturday evening, May 4.

Final games were hotly contested. The league leaders won two of three games from Columbia and Universal took a like number of games from Monarch. Had Universal won three games, it would have been tied for first and a playoff would have been necessary. Angelo Marino of Universal was awarded the final $1 for high individual score for the evening, having turned in a 195 game.

Harry Goldstein Meets With Branch Managers

CLEVELAND—Harry H. Goldstein, Paramount district manager, held a meeting here of branch managers in his district, with the following present: "Duke" Clark, Cleveland; Dave Kimelman, Pittsburgh, and J. J. Oulahan, Cincinnati. It was a routine meeting to discuss forthcoming Paramount releases and sales policies.

Choose Louisville Co-ed

LOUISVILLE—Miss Helen Keith Ransdell, a University of Louisville co-ed, is one of 48 selections chosen in Paramount's All-American College Queen contest.

Vote to Reconsider Status of Bingo

AKRON—By a 7 to 6 vote, the city council has voted to reconsider the legality of Bingo, which, along with other forms of gambling, was banned here recently.

The fight for a rehearing on Bingo was led by Edward O. Flowers, president of the council, who is planning an ordinance which would tax each dollar played at Bingo, and similar games, three cents.

He bases the legality of his proposed ordinance on his contention that the state considers Bingo an "amusement," and, as such, is subject to the three per cent amusement tax.

A Check on Theatre Fire Alarm Boxes to Be Made

DETROIT—Special fire alarm boxes in five of Detroit's largest theatres have not been serviced in seven years, Fire Commissioner Nate S. Shapero told the commission at a meeting. In other cases, he said, there are "dead" boxes in theatres. In contrast, the city is maintaining some 400 alarm boxes not required by law in private buildings at an annual cost of $7,000. The theatre alarm boxes are legally required.

Fire Marshal Otto G. Lindemeyer jr. was instructed to check up on the situation.

Curfew Law Is Costly to Small Nabes in Detroit

DETROIT—The Detroit curfew law has meant an actual loss of about $15 a week to small neighborhood houses, Edward Hilke, manager of the Perrien, tells BOXOFFICE.

Particularly during the bowling season, parents have been accustomed to driving up and leaving their youngsters at the show, calling for them later. Under the new regulations, managers cannot admit minors under 16 in the evening unless accompanied by parents.

Hukle Starts Building In Huntington, W. Va.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.—Construction has been started on a new theatre on Adams Ave., between West 12th and 13th streets, for C. B. Hukle of the Roxy here on Fourth Ave. The one-story building will seat 600 and include a stage.

F&Y Construction Company of Columbus, Ohio, is the builder. Estimated cost is around $50,000.

Sentenced for Manslaughter

HARLAN, KY.—Crussie Collins, projectionist at Hazard, Ky., was convicted of manslaughter in the shooting to death last November 4 of Clora Roberts, and was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary at Eddyville, Ky.

PITTSBURGH

"MULE SKINNER" Charlie Baron was a busy man this week in connection with the local appearance of M-G-M's 20-mule team. He obtained railroad permit, water rights permit and a number of incidental permits in addition to city street parade license. The big parade attracted unusual attention Thursday morning and the Wallace Beery picture opened the next morning in the Stanley . . . Sympathy of the trade went out this week to Jack S. Graham, RKO city sales representative, whose wife, Mrs. Sadie Joyce Graham, died last Saturday at the West Penn Hospital. Solemn requiem high mass was at St. Paul's Cathedral. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery . . . C. C. Kellenberg was general chairman of Pittsburgh's "Americanization" rally in Soldiers' Memorial Hall, Oakland, Wednesday evening. A dinner at the Variety Club honored Assistant Secretary of War Louis A. Johnson, former national commander of the American Legion, who was the chief speaker at the patriotic rally.

Jimmy Nash, who joined the Allegheny Elks' bowling league two months ago, was at Fort Wayne, Ind., over the weekend where he competed in the National Elks' tenpin tournament . . . Pauline Basenko, 16-year-old concert mistress of South High School's orchestra, was the first prize winner in the Phil Spitalny talent hunt at the Stanley, obtaining a special engagement at the theatre with Guy Lombardo's orchestra, $100 in cash, and a chance to go far in the entertainment world. She is a clarinetist. Second prize, a silver loving cup, went to eight-year-old Hilda Fern, actress . . . Theodore S. Davis, M-G-M student salesman, formerly of the Detroit office, is working out of the local branch exchange.

A. & S. Steinberg are installing air conditioning at the Columbia, Shinnston, W. Va., which Miss Lynne B. Monroe is remodeling. At a later date, Miss Monroe and associates plan to erect a new theatre there across the street from their Princess . . . M-G-M Pep Club at its Tuesday meeting presented gifts to recently married members of the exchange staff: Anthony Semplice was given a mix-master; Edward Micinski got a floor lamp, and Beverly (Semenow) Robin received a three-way portable radio.

Art Morrone and M. N. Shapiro returned from a vacation at Mineral Wells, Tex., following attendance at the Variety Club shindig at Dallas . . . W. M. Lodge, McConnellsburg exhibitor for 20 years, has the California bug. He visited there last year and he wants to return and live in the Golden West, in which event his son Bob will look after the Fulton. The veteran exhibitor told us of his desire to return to California while here this week on a booking tour . . . Christy Wilbert, a local press agent several years ago, is here in the interest of "Lillian Russell" for 20th-Fox . . . Wallace Bros. Circus here May 17-18 will feature Lee Powell, the original "Lone Ranger" who is seen in "Hi-Yo Silver!" now showing at the Senator . . . Sydney, Australia, wishes a Variety Club charter.

Vincent Scatena is redecorating the Washington, Swissvale, for Morris Roth. New theatre for Leon Reichblum at Charleroi is another house being decorated by the Scatena Studio . . . Harris circuit has discontinued the one-day stage attraction at six neighborhood spots after a month's tryout . . . Dorothy Hipple of Chicora was a special guest at the Gene Autry reception at the AMPTO headquarters. She brought along a beautiful Gene Autry scrap book which the handsome cowboy was glad to page-through and to autograph for his good fan . . . Our thanks to the Berlo Vending Co. for the candy donated for the Gene Autry party. Thanks, too, to Canada Dry for its supply of "Spur."

The Weisses of McKeesport and Tom Gilbert of the New Oakland, among local exhibitors subpoenaed in the all-industry suit, were notified this week that the new federal court trial date is set for June 3 . . . From our observation at theatres this week, we would state that the Will Rogers National Theatre Week was a grand success. Exhibitors who didn't use the gratis drive short subjects or who haven't contributed for the benefit of the Will Rogers Memoral Hospital, Saranac Lake, N. Y., should make out a check and forward it to Harry Seed, zone chairman, at the Vitagraph exchange.

Filmrow visitors included V. F. Scott, F. E. McClellan and George Gartland of the Scott-Ideal circuit, Johnstown, Pa.; Nick Anas, Weirton, W. Va.; John Kozak, Philippi, W. Va.; Joseph P. Air Conditioning Well Permit Is Refused

PITTSBURGH—Mayor Cornelius D. Scully has refused to sign an ordinance granting permission to the Shadyside Amusement Co. to drill a well for air cooling a proposed theatre in the Shadyside district. Returning the ordinance to city council, which had approved it last week, Scully said:

"Air conditioning is increasing at such a rate in the city that revenue promises to be a substantial source of income and I believe we should adopt the policy of requesting those who install air conditioning equipment to buy their water from the city."

The ordinance petitioned for permission to "use and operate a vault together with an eight-inch water well at 5520 Walnut St., adjacent to their property between Ivy and Bellefonte Sts."

Adorno Permit Victory Is Not Contested

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—There will be no appeal on the part of the city of Middletown from the decision of Judge William H. Comley of superior court in ordering the superintendent of public works to issue the proper construction permit for Adorno's proposed open-air theatre.

Judge Aaron J. Palmer, corporation counsel, announced to this publication last week that "the superintendent of public works has been advised to cancel his order forbidding Maria Adorno's operation of the theatre forthwith."

Judge Comley's decision, issued early during the week, followed a trial of the case on its merits in March. Mrs. Adorno, having secured a permit for the theatre, was later ordered not to operate it, having been charged with violation of the building ordinances. The case went into superior court on a mandamus action, with Judge Joseph H. Adorno and Judge Leonard O. Ryan for Mrs. Adorno, and Judge Palmer and Attorney Carlos Ellis jr. appearing on behalf of the city.

Summer Theatres Freedom From Licenses Riles

KEENE, N. H.—Peter D. Latchis, one of the state's leading film men, has notified the licensing committee of the local board of aldermen that his license fees for each of his two theatres here are paid under protest while the summer theatre is not required to pay for any permit.

Trade members, who face competition from the state's summer theatres, are watching with interest the controversy.

Interrogatories by Ascap Filed in Lavietes Suit

NEW HAVEN — Lengthy interrogatories have been filed in federal court by Ascap, Irving Berlin, Inc., and Santly-Joy-Select, Inc., in their damage and injunction suit against Harry L. Lavietes, operator of the Pequot. Following filing of answer by the defendant, it is expected the case will reach trial some time in May.

Theatre Prospects in New England Bright

BOSTON—Theatre prospects in the northeast look bright. Business has generally been picking up throughout the territory. Leading hotel men of the six New England states prophesy that 1940 may equal or even surpass the record of 1929 when New England hotels returned over $500,000,000.

Would Set Allied Meet Before Neely Hearing

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, eastern regional vice-president of Allied, still tentatively plans to set the next regional meeting of Allied States Ass'n in Washington slightly in advance of the proposed hearing on the Neely bill.

Standard Contract Is Itself a Conspiracy, Contends M&R

By BRAD ANGIER

BOSTON—"The standard contract, which in a form may look so harmless, was in itself a conspiracy which crystallized the practices of the industry," George S. Ryan, attorney for the plaintiffs in the Morse and Rothenberg anti-trust suits, charged in summing before Philip Hendrick, Master, at the federal building the record-long motion picture monopoly suit.

"In the contract," Ryan said, "you will notice provisions for almost every contingency that might arise. It defines protection and tells about the giving of protection. It talks of first, second, and subsequent-runs. It provides for availability of film. Though the guise of standard contract the distributors got together and put in all the practices of the industry in the form in which they wanted them to operate; had them agreed upon and put into effect. Even the matter of admission prices is regulated.

"In the standard contract they provide that there shall be a minimum admission price of ten cents unless a greater price is provided in some other part of the contract. There in itself is a conspiracy as to the admission prices.

"They agree that they will not sell to a theatre unless it charges a certain amount. It is the same kind of agreement that has been condemned as a conspiracy time and time again. The supreme court has said that the question of whether that is a responsible price or not is of no consequence, and this is an agreement to fix prices.

"In addition to that, there is, of course, an agreement as to protection in various other provisions (all the practices of the industry, so far as they relate to distributors and exhibitors), consolidated in the form of a contract and made law by a combination which the supreme court has said—so far as it is related to arbitration —was a conspiracy."

Cites Credit Committee

Ryan took notice at another point that, "Counsel have asked for documentary evidence of proof of conspiracy.

"In accordance with the provisions which I made in my opening," Ryan said, "if you will look at the credit committee rules, you will find there the proof of conspiracy. They will find proof of conspiracy in the standard contracts which have been in evidence, contracts over the signatures of the defendant distributors. These are certainly evidence of conspiracy by the distributors.

"If there was anything like competition among these distributors, wouldn't it seem that there would be some other way of operating these credit committees. Why is it that whenever they are putting a sanction upon a man with whom they are dealing or whenever they are raising the mailed fist to crash it upon him, it has to be by an agreement of distributors not to sell?

"Why do they resort to boycotting? They knew the value of their products. They knew they had the one weapon which no one could resist, and they were combining to put into force that irresistible engine of destruction.

"If you take that credit committee, for example, wouldn't it have been sufficient for those men to appoint an agency and send out the questionnaire? Or have some man who could go out and talk to the exhibitor if he did not reply, and then report and let the distributor decide what they wanted to do about it?

"If Paramount, with an uncompleted contract with so and so in Somerville, is faced with the sale of that theatre to another fellow, it is all right for Paramount if it says 'I am not going to supply you because there is this other contract. Perform that contract and I will talk business with you.'

"Wouldn't it seem as if they could do it that way? Why is it that they always have to get together and they have to use the power which they have and which they know they have to put a man out of business if he does not yield to them?"

Attacking "the contention of the defendants in regard to what is ethical and what is proper in the motion picture industry," Ryan sought to prove to Philip Hendrick, Master, that, in substance, "First National was destroyed by Paramount in combination and collaboration with the Fox and Warner, and it was finally ended by Warner, with the cooperation of Fox and with the cooperation of Paramount, and as the result of securing stock from those two companies, gained control of First National, merging it with Vitagraph and putting it out of existence."

Questions Counsel

"William Mallard, RKO," Ryan told the court "as to whom it took five pages to find out if there were certain representatives of the distributors who attended meetings of the law committee, stated that he could not specify any particular man at any particular time, and he did a great job of evading and avoiding.

"We have a copy of his signature twice on this exhibit (593, the proposal to Mr. Hays to take his protection matter up with the department of justice).

"Mr. Mallard testified at some length in his deposition and said that he did not remember any discussion of protection in 1930 at any meeting of the law committee. He recalled no discussion of the matter of protection at the meeting of the law committee. He did not remember that in the fall of 1930 the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was attempting to put into effect a plan for adoption of protection in various territories throughout the United States.

"Then he went on to say that he recalled that he had read in 1930 that there were going to be throughout the United States and 32 key cities, meetings of exhibitors and distributors, for the purpose of setting up in each section a plan of protection. He testified that he knew generally of the existence from the fact

Operators Anniversary Banquet a Success

BOSTON—The 30th anniversary of the Moving Picture Operators Union, Local 182, was observed in Boston Wednesday when a banquet in celebration at the Copley-Plaza turned out to be a strictly SRO affair. Thad C. Barrows, president of the organization during most of its three decades of service, was chairman in charge of the affair.

THAD BARROWS

"It is with a great deal of pardonable pride and pleasure that the Motion Picture Projectionists of Boston, Local 182, are today honoring their organization's 30th anniversary," the AFL affiliate formally stated on the occasion.

"Thirty long years of mutual friendship and achievement; 30 years of progress and realization of high ideals in craftsmanship; 30 years of growth upon a foundation of truth fostered by a spirit of willing cooperation; 30 years highlighted by a tenacity of purpose dedicated to the entertainment of the motion picture public; 30 years of constant research in an effort to reach the highest standard of motion picture projection!

"We are always conscious of the ever present fact that the projectionist is the connecting link between studio and theatre; we appreciate the tremendous responsibility that is ours in presenting a high standard of entertainment; we assume the burden of research and constant experiment in order that our craft might contribute to the advancement of this great industry.

"The projectionist of today is a skilled craftsman with an excellent knowledge of mechanics, electricity and optics. He has indeed a very great responsibility—for failure to measure up to the high standard means that all the producer, director and cinematographer have striven for loses much of its value.

"Today as we mark the 30th year of our existence—with obligations and achievements finely balanced—we pause for a brief moment with our friends and associates to honor the inspiring progress of a great organization."

Five Head Group

Officers of the IATSE Local, which requires that all members be American citizens, include Thad C. Barrows, president; Bernard McGaffigan, vice-president; Joseph Rosen, treasurer; Albert R. Moulton, financial secretary, and James F. Burke, business manager.

Junior M. P. Councils' Symposium on May 28

NEW HAVEN—The Junior Motion Picture Councils in the public schools here have set their annual public symposium for May 28 at Troup Junior High, with Elizabeth Connellan as faculty chairman. The program will be planned around general motion picture appreciation and a demonstration of a classroom film. The groups have been rotating in motion picture appreciation programs broadcast over WELI.

Paper Defends Trade And Urges Reform

HARTFORD—"In the recent congressional discussions of the Neely bill, which would revolutionize the movie industry, the small, independent exhibitor has been pictured as a down-trodden individual, with no rights of his own," says the Hartford Times.

Continuing to discuss the above but other current theatre problems as well, the newspaper points out that, "Double features, bum pictures and financial losses have been charged against an industry pictured as a Big Bad Wolf. Actually the small, out-of-the-way theatres have been leading their big brothers and sisters around by the nose for some time. Often they have misled, as in the case of double features, screeno games, giveaways and other strictly non-theatrical wheezes calculated to lure people into the theatres.

"The double feature, now a major menace, may have been legitimate in the old silent days . . . when poverty-stricken side-street theatres offered two pictures for the price of one to compete with the more prosperous downtown palaces that had symphony orchestras and pipe organs to play an accompaniment.

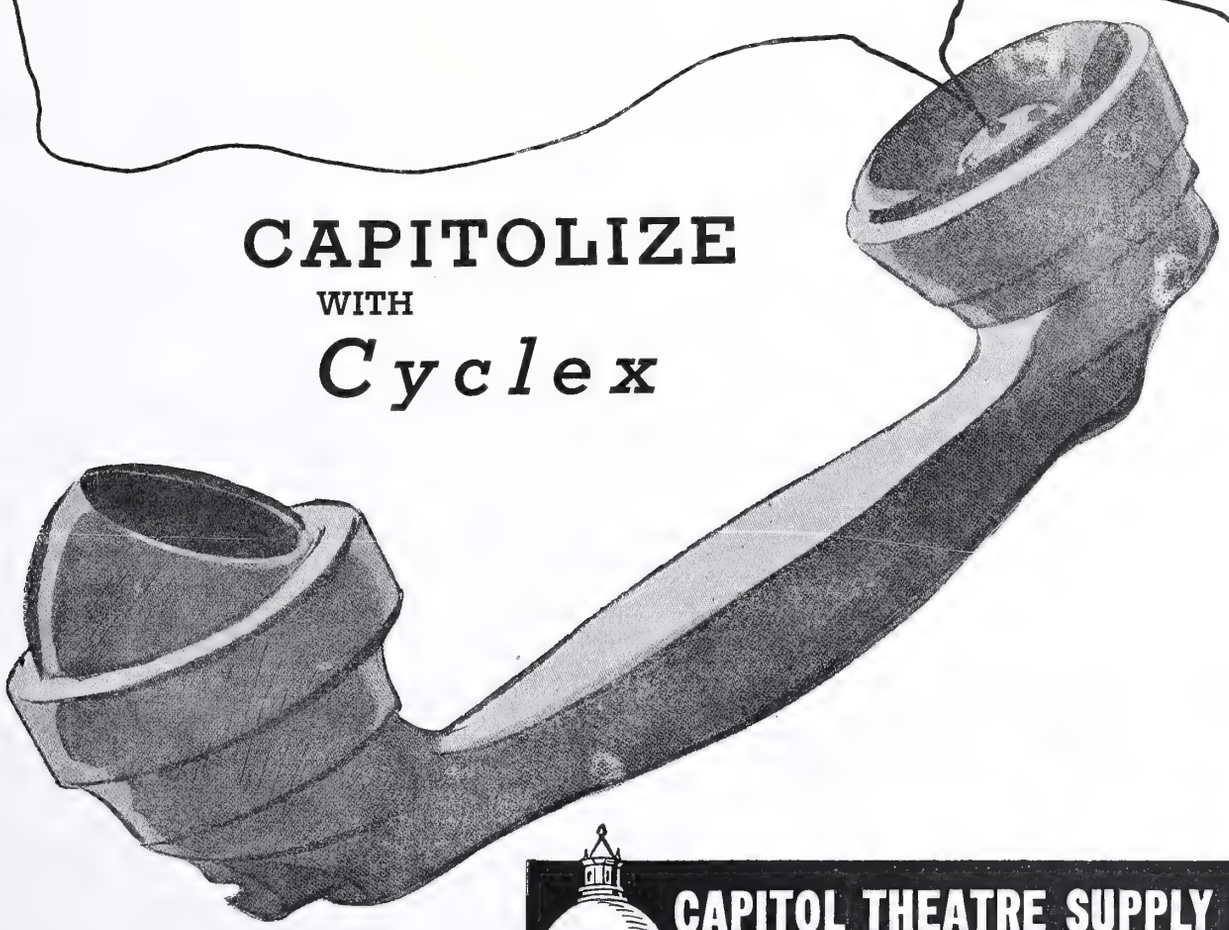
"But today, things are different. Sound reproduction and projection in the neighborhood theatres is generally as good if not better than in larger places. A patron approaching any theatre offering 'two pictures for the price of one' has just as much reason to be suspicious as the housewife who is offered a quart of milk for the price of a pint. There's apt to be water in it!"

New York and Boston Film Men to Pitkin Banquet

NEW HAVEN—Connecticut film men will be augmented by film notables from New York and Boston when they gather at Racebrook Country Club May 7 to celebrate Barney Pitkin's 20th anniversary on Meadow Street.

Barney has had a steadily rising career from his first job as poster clerk and assistant shipper for Gordon & Mayer, to the managership of RKO in 1928, and his friends and associates will gather to extend felicitations and talk over old times and new.

Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, will act as toastmaster, his now traditional role in the film district. The part of chairman, usually assumed for all sorts of industry parties by Barney himself, is this time being handled by Thomas J. Donaldson, Metro manager.



Those who have not yet made reservations for the event may do so at the door. Outstanding entertainment features are planned, in addition to the dinner.

RKO Studies Exchange Plans

BOSTON—Pereira and Pereira, Chicago architects, have been completing plans for the proposed new RKO exchange in Boston.

"I want that new projection lamp. The name slips my mind— No, it's not just a low intensity lamp, converted to burn Suprex carbon. It's brand new, sensational; made on an entirely new patented principle. No, it doesn't use any rectifiers or generators. Gives high intensity light at less than low-intensity cost. Carbons? It only burns one pair of carbons per lamp in nine hours— That's it. Cyclex! Cyclex, Cyclex, Cyclex! I don't want to forget that name again."

that he saw a published account of it but that he had no participation in it and, therefore, recalled no particular discussion.

"Then he went on to say that he did not recall that the Hays organization itself was attempting to set up the protection.

"Here is the general counsel of a defendant, a man who is also general counsel of the parent or controlling corporation, and also general counsel of affiliated theatre corporations and general counsel for distributors in a conspiracy suit where suspicious acts have been unearthed, and where the only possible defense could be honesty, deliberately committing perjury.

Touches on Block Booking

"Your Honor, no other word can be more applied to the testimonies of the general counsel of RKO; no other word but perjury. His own signature proves it. If that is the case, what can we expect when we try to get the truth from these men? If a lawyer, a member of the bar for a number of years, in the high position in this company, has to resort to tactics of that kind in order to keep the plaintiffs from recovering, what will you expect from the fellows 'whose jobs are on the table?' "

Touching upon block booking, Ryan said that this industry practice, "as has been indicated by the circuit court of appeals for the second circuit, would be illegal if it were arrived at as a result of combination or agreement among the distributors. In substance, they said that in the case of Federal Trade Commissions vs. Paramount-Famous Lasky Corp.

"In ordinary business, if a man were conducting a grocery store or a book store, or an automobile agency, or almost any other line of enterprise that you could imagine, suppose that the men from whom he got his supplies came to him and said, 'We are willing to sell to you, but you have got to take out every article we produce in the next year. You have got to buy them,' wouldn't you say that was a rather strange method of doing business?

"And then if you came to the motion picture industry and you found that one company is doing business that way, you would wonder how the company had arrived at or was able to enforce such trade practices. But then if you found that all the major companies were doing subsequently the same thing, you would wonder how it is that the motion picture industry, of all the others, this unusual practice is in effect and all the leading companies are doing it?"

Contends Control Complete

Said Ryan at another point, "the representatives of the defendants who have testified here have tried to create in Your Honor's mind the impression that they are bidder competitors, that they are out to sell their pictures, and they do not know and they do not care what the other distributor is doing. Wherever a man gets a chance you see that thrown into the record.

"Your Honor will notice from an inspection of these papers something that cannot be made up for the purpose of this case. If you can see how they competed, as we go ahead you will notice that these companies, started back around 1921 or 1922, they so worked together to control and dominate this industry that there is no other factor in it of any real consequence.

"They control everything. If you were to go back and look at this industry in 1921 and say, 'Suppose these eight distributors and producers and their affiliates set out to control this industry, to dominate it in every respect, to dominate competition, what would they do?' Your Honor would find that they did exactly what any man would see would be the most effective way of dominating and controlling the industry and eliminating competition.

"These competitors have pooling arrangements among them. While counsel will say, 'That is another one of the words of Mr. Ryan that does not mean much, like block booking,' it seems a lot.

"When they say they are competitors and you will find that every opportunity they are working together, whether it is in production or distribution or exhibiton of films, in any situations where they are presumably in competition with each other and where you would not expect the public to get a run for its money by reason of these people operating in competition, you will find that they have pooled their theatres and are operating them for their joint benefit."

Hartford Eagles Hold a Benefit for Boys Town

HARTFORD — The Fraternal Order of Eagles is contemplating the erection of a new building at Boys Town, Neb., at a cost of about $150,000.

As part of a nationwide campaign to raise funds for Father Flanagan's famed project, the local Charter Oak Aerie sponsored a benefit performance of the motion picture, "Boys Town," at the Harris Bros.' State here on Thursday, April 25. In addition to two showings of the feature picture, there was a competition between five drum corps.

Chairman for the event was Rocco Matarese, stage manager of the State.

Theatres Help Hartford Publicize Traffic Law

HARTFORD—Nearly all theatres in the metropolitan Hartford area cooperated with the Hartford Chamber of Commerce when the latter began publicizing the new 30 miles-per-hour speed limit in the city by showing a special motion picture trailer which urged observance of the new law. The trailer was shown in theatres from April 22 to May 1.

Returns to New Haven

NEW HAVEN—Eddie Cantor came back to New Haven last week for the first time since acting in "Kid Boots" at the Shubert in 1925, this time for the opening of "40 Little Mothers" at the Loew-Poli. He also made a two-day personal appearance with the opening of the picture at the Loew-Poli in Waterbury.

PROVIDENCE

BAN on "Strange Cargo" placed by the Providence bureau of police and fire a fortnight ago had an aftermath in Pawtucket Saturday when police officials there ordered A. L. Lashway, manager of M&P's Strand, to discontinue showing of film after a two-day run.

The E. M. Loew battle against the IATSE, which has been waged since Loew entered the Newport scene with a lease on the Colonial two years ago, came to a climax last week when agreements between the theatre and the union were signed. Monday Gerald Wagner, house manager of the circuit's new Paramount, and W. H. White, president of Local 309, announced agreements would be signed that day. Loew, accompanied by Mrs. Loew, visited Newport Tuesday to look over circuit's newest link. In addition to Manager Wagner, others moving to Paramount from Colonial include Francis Shaffell, assistant manager; Alfred Perry, Mrs. Alice Sherman, Sidney King, Ed Sherman, Anthony Serra, Chester Wlodkowski, Lewis Shepley, Charles Forman, William O'Connell, Manuel Ferreira, Wallace Peterson, Francis Sullivan, Cornelius Sullivan and Manuel J. Sears.

When the Pawtucket zoning board sat in session April 24 to consider application for permit to build new theatre at 561½ Smithfield street, in Fairlawn section of city, no one appeared to argue for or against the project and the matter was "taken under advisement" by the board. Permit is being sought by Fairlawn Enterprises, Inc., but identity of officials back of new house remains undisclosed. Meanwhile, in Pawtucket, William A. Pinault, who is building a new neighborhood house in the Darlington section of city, announced plans to lease it on completion to Currie & Harmon, Inc., new corporation recently granted papers. Walter B. Harmon of Providence and Chester J. Currie and Judge Raymond J. McMahon of Pawtucket are incorporators.

Edward L. Reed, Strand manager, is in New York this week booking up extra strong features for house's 25th anniversary, which falls in June. Assistant Manager Johnny Hodge is in charge during Reed's absence.

All first run houses had a shutdown April 29 when a short-circuit fire in one of the power stations of Narragansett Electric Co. caused circuits in downtown area to go off for about 20 minutes. Most houses made no attempt to entertain patrons during interval, but at Loew's State, Manager Ed McBride had the stage manager wheel piano out from wings and Maurice Cooke, house organist, entertained.

Ledwith Union Delegate

MERIDEN, CONN.—State Senator Charles H. Ledwith has been elected by the local Stage Employes and Moving Pictures Machine Operators' Union to attend the national convention of that organization on June 3 at Louisville, Ky., as Meriden delegate.

Cole Checks Up on Claim by Walker

DALLAS—Stating that he will be in a "rather embarrassing position" when he appears before the Interstate Commerce Commission of the House in Washington on May 12 to testify for the measure, if Judge R. L. Walker's contention that 92 per cent of the exhibitors in Texas have signed petitions against the Neely bill is correct, Col. H. A. Cole is canvassing the trade to determine the authenticity of the claim put out by the president of the Theatre Owners of Texas.

The letter sent out by the national Allied head included an enclosed form which asked the recipient two questions, one, whether he signed a petition against the Neely bill, and if so, his reason or reasons for doing so.

A stamped envelope was also enclosed to "facilitate the matter" of a reply.

R&R-United Plan Two New Ones; Restore Another

DALLAS—Three R&R-United theatre jobs are on the way, two coming up immediately. Plans for a new 800-seat deluxer in Huntsville are completed and construction will get under way soon, while construction contract for a new 800 seater in Crockett will be let at an early date. Plans to restore the Pal at Palestine have been under way and this job will be undertaken within a short time.

Corgan & Moore, local theatre architects, executed plans for all three houses.

McLendon Will Build New 800-Seater in Atlanta

DALLAS—B. R. McLendon, fast developing circuit operator with headquarters in Atlanta, says he has purchased a property in Atlanta on which he will soon build a new streamlined 800-seat theatre. The cost was $4,000, and the entire layout with building and equipment, he said, will aggregate $40,000. McLendon's circuit is known as Tri-State Theatres.

McLendon said that Lloyd Epperson has been made advertising manager for the circuit, with headquarters in Atlanta.

Martin Building a New House in Andalusia

ANDALUSIA, ALA.—Construction of a new 1,200-seat theatre was started by R. E. Martin immediately upon his acquisition of the one-half interest in the Paramount-Fox Theatres owned by Mrs. Z. D. Studstill.

The new house, to be known as the Paramount, replaces the one destroyed by fire early this year.

Fulgham Sues Interstate Unit Under the Anti-Trust Laws

DALLAS—The fifth in a second series of damage suits by independent exhibitors against the Interstate circuit, or affiliates, was filed last Saturday in Judge Atwell's federal court by H. E. Fulgham, covering the period he operated the Joy Theatre in Tyler. Fulgham now owns and operates the Ideal in Fort Worth. His case is against Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc.

The Fulgham complaint, based on the Sherman and the Clayton anti-trust acts, asks damages of $20,000—triple under federal law—plus $3,750 attorneys fees, making a total of $63,750.

In his petition, Fulgham claims he is a citizen of Tarrant county whereas the defendant is a Delaware corporation with general offices in the Majestic building at Dallas. Fulgham says his admission prices at the Joy in Tyler were 10 and 15 cents and that the theatre was known as a subsequent run. He points out that the defendant operated the Arcadia, Queen and Majestic in Tyler and that showings in these houses were largely first runs.

Fulgham does not charge conspiracy in his case, but cites alleged agreements between film companies, claiming he was unable to secure playdates on a bona fide contract he had with Paramount and charging that Consolidated "threatened" Paramount to this end. His playing arrangement with RKO was terminated for the same reason, he says. Because of the conduct of these two distributors, other exchanges refused to do business with him, Fulgham claims.

In his petition, Fulgham also claims he had a conference with Karl Hoblitzelle in the latter's office during the summer or early fall of 1936 when he was told that Consolidated did not want an independent exhibitor in Tyler—that Fulgham's existence there interfered with the plan and operation in Tyler of the Consolidated (Interstate) circuit and that Fulgham was certain to lose money and eventually his investment. At the same time, Fulgham claims he was offered terms to sell out.

The Fulgham case marks the eighth to be filed against Interstate within recent months. Cases of the Joy in Houston; Cliff Queen in Dallas; River Oaks in Houston jointly with the Varsity in Dallas, were settled out of court. Others were filed within the past few days by H. N. Jorgenson of the East Grand, Dallas; R. Z. Glass, Fair, Knox and Lawn, Dallas; Sam Kirchheimer, Northside, Houston, and Louis Richker, Gayety, Fort Worth.

Claim Exclusive Right to Operate Texas Drive-Ins

HOUSTON—Events in the operation of local film houses have been very smooth for the past few months, but it seems things will take a faster turn in the next few weeks with the appearance of a large advertisement in the Chronicle on the theatrical page, to the effect that any persons other than W. G. Underwood and C. C. Ezell who try to operate drive-in theatres in any Texas city, with the exception of El Paso and Corpus Christi, would be legally challenged by Park-In Theatres, Inc., of New Jersey.

C. A. Richter, Nick and Pete Katsaris and Leon Newman, who operate a drive-in in Corpus Christi, have stated in the local press they intend to build and operate a drive-in in Houston and are now constructing the Texas Drive-In Theatre, which they claim will be the largest in the world.

Build in Mercedes

SAN ANTONIO—Manager G. L. Wood of the State, Mercedes, has announced that the Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc., will erect a new house in Mercedes. The purchase of the old Manhattan Cafe building as a site was authorized by Karl Hoblitzelle, president of Interstate circuit.

NTS Outfits Two

DALLAS—The local National Theatre Supply branch has sold mechanisms and magazines to the Beltonian, Belton, Tex., and virtually all equipment to Carl A. Milentz for his new theatre in San Antonio.

Interstate Faces Two Anti-Trust Actions

HOUSTON—Two federal court suits were brought against Interstate Circuit, Inc., seeking damages of about $100,000 and alleging provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act had been violated.

Sam Kirchheimer, Houston owner and operator of the North Side Theatre, is asking damages of $30,094 and attorney's fees of $3,500.

R. Z. Glass, also of Houston, operator of the Knox, Fair and Lawn in Dallas, brought the second suit, asking a judgment of $68,443.47 and attorney's fees of $7,500.

Sam Kirchheimer said his suit was an outgrowth of a federal charge filed in 1938 against Interstate, alleging violation of the Sherman act, at which time the supreme court decided against the defendant. Before this time Kirchheimer claims he could not get "A" pictures and that after the decision he was able to get "A" films but that he had to wait for them and pay more than other houses who charged 25 cents while he maintained a 15-cent price for over 25 years.

R. Z. Glass, who also operates the Stude here, was out of the city and did not make a statement.

Campus to Open With a New Monogram Picture

DALLAS—Lee Threet, who was in town early this week conferring with V. A. "Buddy" Walker on the opening of the new Campus at College Station, said the christening would take place Thursday night and that the opening picture ought to satisfy college students who have been vigorously objecting to clearance of Bryan theatres over the College. The picture is even ahead of Houston, Threet said. It is Monogram's "Son of the Navy."

Ritter's Austin Visit Spells SRO Business

AUSTIN—Elmo Hegman, skipper of the Ritz, really dug his spurs into the task of exploiting the recent personal appearance of Tex Ritter along with the star's current Monogram release, "Pals of the Silver Sage." The Ritz played four SRO days and could have handled a couple of more days holdover.

Manager Hegman traded heavily on the "home town boy" angle, Ritter being a former University of Texas student. Here's what Hegman's exploitation schedule looked like:

Monday—The Men's Glee Club of the University gave a banquet in Ritter's honor.

Tuesday—The western star visited a half-dozen local schools. Interviews and pictures appeared in the local newspapers.

Wednesday—Ritter was interviewed over Radio Station KNOW.

Thursday—The sagebrusher was the guest of honor on Tom Martin's Texas State Network broadcast.

Appearing with Ritter at the Ritz were the western-film comedian, Slim Andrews; and Dick Phillips and Curly Hogg, musicians.

The Arcadia in Dallas May Precipitate a Price War

DALLAS—Threat of a possible price war in Dallas became apparent this week as the Arcadia, seating over 1,000, intimated to film companies the big house may drop to 15 and 20 cents the first of May.

Since it was built a number of years ago as the ranking neighborhood theatre here, the Arcadia has maintained a 35-cent top on various availabilities. During the years, however, it was superseded by at least two houses, the Village and Lakewood. Arcadia seats are about evenly divided in its ramp balcony and lower floor. Under the new setup, it is presumed the lower floor will go to 20 and the ramp to 15 cents.

Discussion of the price cut brought much talk and some excitement to the Row. One neighborhood exhibitor felt that any 500-seat theatre making a like price cut would have no appreciable effect, but that the Arcadia, around 1,100-seats, going to 15 and 20 cents would have an effect on every theatre in Dallas charging more.

One 25-cent theatre owner, who owns no balcony, was undecided whether to match the Arcadia cut with a straight 20 cents or 15 cents admission. When the Arcadia makes its cut, it is certain the East Grand, Peak, Haskell, Rita and Fair in that section will have to match it, one neighborhood exhibitor believes. If the price is met in these quarters, then it will be up to theatres all over Greater Dallas to do likewise, he said further.

Puzzling Filmrow is why should the Arcadia cut from 35 cents to 20 cents. The answer from distributor circles is that the Arcadia claims it does not want to play pictures day and date with six or more 25-cent theatres on Sunday as has apparently been the custom here during recent years.

The Interstate office said Wednesday it had no interest in a possible price war—that it knew nothing about one and certainly would not join up if it came. Several independents, however, were visibly disturbed over the outlook.

R. H. "Bob" Clemmons, manager of the Arcadia, told BOXOFFICE he had nothing to say this week, but that within the next few days he would make his position clear in reference to the price cut.

Two Drive-Ins Seen Possible for Tulsa

TULSA, OKLA.—At least two drive-in theatres will be constructed near the city limits of Tulsa, one of them to be in operation by June 1.

These intentions were announced here by Lew A. Chatham and Abe Rosewall, representatives of the Griffith Southwestern Theatres organization. Chatham says he closed deals for options on four pieces of land outside the city limits. The options involve 10 to 15 acres. Traffic checks will be made and the two drive-ins constructed on the most likely two of the four locations but only one will be ready within a month.

It will accommodate about 1,000 cars on ten elevations. Minimum admission fee will be 15 cents for adults with a possibility of family nights when a carload will be admitted for 50 cents. Pictures will be second-run.

Advises Witnesses Against Interviews

Dallas—Referring to reported activities in Texas in advance of the government key industry suit, Col. H. A. Cole, president of national Allied, makes the following statement:

"A number of Allied members have come to us stating that attorneys for the film companies are seeking interviews of all witnesses named by the government in the New York suit, and have asked my advice.

"I told them they were not obligated to discuss anything with such attorneys or other representatives of film companies in connection with testimony they expect to give in that trial and, further, it would be better to refuse to discuss such matters at all."

"Strange Cargo" Picketed During Run in Houma, La.

HOUMA, LA.—Pickets carrying banners paraded in front of the Bijou here all day April 28 in protest of the motion picture, "Strange Cargo," which they branded as "indecent." Clyde Busch, local labor leader, stated the pickets were not a union undertaking, but only a protest by private individuals against the "indecency" of the picture.

"Strange Cargo" was condemned by the local branch of the Legion of Decency.

NEW ORLEANS—"Strange Cargo" is playing here at Loew's State to excellent business and without any disturbance.

Allied Dallas Offices Will Be Streamlined

DALLAS—The combined Allied Theatre Owners of Texas and the national Allied States Ass'n offices are going swanky and streamlined, if decorators and furnishers now on the job come through. Colonel Cole is moving across the hall into new quarters where it appears there will be no resemblance to the old location. Acoustical treatment, refrigeration cooling and fluorescent lighting are in the plans.

About paying for the costly setup, Cole jocosely remarked enough lawsuits may be won soon to pay for the overdraft.

JACK GRUBEN, Monogram's east Texaner, had a thrilling experience as he stopped to gas up at Frankston just as the tornado and cloudburst was passing through. At the station, he was talking to a young fellow by the name of Cook who was filling up the tank. Someone told Cook his baby had just drowned in the high waters. Gruben was just getting ready to sign a ticket when Cook threw it in his lap and was away. Gruben learned later that the young Cook was a son of an elder who operated a silent theatre in Frankston in about 1917, and who Gruben knew in those days Jack said had he been on the road a few minutes before, instead of at the station, he would have either had to buy a new car, or Monogram would have had to hire a new salesman.

Howard Baskin, booker for Oskar Korn; Charlie Helms, manager of Texas Theatrical Printing, and Paul Plumley, were injured in an automobile accident Monday night in front of the union terminal. He is an ardent supporter of BOXOFFICE not only because of the news it carries but of the help it gives him on all reviews.

Dr. Long's Daughter Grants Writer Biography Rights

ATLANTA—Dr. Crawford W. Long, Georgia's discoverer of the use of ether anesthesia, may be the subject of a motion picture. This is indicated by the information that Mrs. Eugenia Long Harper, the physician's daughter, has granted William G. Minder, scenario writer, all rights for the portrayal of Dr. Long's life.

Mrs. Harper said Minder planned to write a scenario depicting the life of Dr. Long and would go to Hollywood soon. The agreement grants Minder exclusive rights for radio, moving picture and stage presentations to "any and all of Dr. Long's life story or history."

LeRoy Martin Is Named Manager at LaFayette

LAFAYETTE, ALA.—LeRoy Martin, former assistant manager at the Martin Theatre in Opelika, Ala., has been appointed manager of the LaFayette Theatre, succeeding Miss Dorothy Slay, who has been transferred to the R. E. Martin home office in Columbus.

A. T. Vinson, who has been on an extended vacation, due to illness, is back at the Martin in Opelika, as assistant manager.

Howell Knows the Answer; Remodel to Make Money

DALLAS—You have to spend money to make money (or stay in business). Take it from Roy Howell, who was here from Coleman taking in all of the Variety convention. Roy, well known here and throughout Texas, said his outfit is going to spend a lot of money to remodel and modernize the Howell and the Dixie.

Adopt "Book Night"

HOUSTON—All Interstate circuit suburban houses in Houston are using Book Night, boxoffice stimulant.

And He's Not Sorry

MEMPHIS—One might say that Warren Moxley, who operates the New in Turrell, Ark., literally fell into the show business.

It was while on his dairy route in Memphis that Moxley slipped on an icy step and busted a knee-cap, and from here we'll let Moxley tell his own story:

"The company took care of my doctor bill and everything and just treated me swell. I was laid up quite a while and when I went back to work I'll be doggoned if I didn't slip right down and crack the cap on my other knee.

"I was so embarrassed that I didn't want the company to know, and I stayed home and had my wife phone that I just wasn't feeling well. They found out about it later, though.

"Anyway, I decided I was too clumsy for that job. Besides, I had a little money saved and I decided the time had now come for me to do something I had always wanted to do—get in the show business."

And, he reflects, he's not sorry he did.

Dixie Doin's

By "AL" HENDERSON

JAMES DIXON who has had the managerial spot at Saenger's Centenary at Shreveport, La., has resigned to enter the roofing business in Texas. Much luck, Jimmy.

Harry Hunter has swapped places with friend Buchanan at Vicksburg, Miss. Buchanan going to the Alamo and Hunter to the Strand.

R. V. DeGrey, managing the W. S. Taylor interests at Laurel, Miss., tells me that he has installed new equipment at all three of their houses. They operate the Arabian, Strand and the Jean, all in Laurel.

Had a short but pleasant visit with Miss Geraldine Ames of the A and G theatre at Bay St. Louis, Miss., and she tells me that she has just celebrated her 25th year of theatre operation and ownership, all of which have been spent at Bay St. Louis. Here's hoping you stay in the business another 25 years, Jerry.

Ran into E. L. O'Neill of New Orleans Universal, working on Sheffield of the Strand at Poplarville, Miss. Wonder if they got together?

Noted here and there: Royal about ready to open his new theatre at Gulfport, Miss. . . . C. C. Meyer at Biloxi, winding up the construction of the new theatre he is erecting there . . . Bill Carmicheal expects to open his new house at Hazelhurst, Miss., around June 1 . . . Bill Mosely putting the finishing touches to his new theatre at Picayune, Miss., and it certainly is a nice house.

Seen here and there: Johnny Martiniere of the Saenger at Gulfport, Miss.; Jake Alford of the State at McComb, Miss.; met Frances Gatlin at Hattiesburg, Miss., and Bob Swanson, the Saenger at Shreveport, La. Thanks for favor, Bob.

Jake Alford of the State at McComb, Miss., has a talented son in Louis (Lit) who is president of his law fraternity at the University of Mississippi and captain of the ROTC. Jake is really proud of his son.

W. S. Stroud, who owns and operates the Palace at Wiggins, Miss., tells me that he has installed new sound, a new screen, remodeled the interior (using Temlock in coral, ash and walnut), new projection equipment and remodeled and redecorated the lobby and the front. It really improved the appearance of his theatre.

May Produce a Sequel To "The Biscuit Eater"

HOLLYWOOD—Plans for a sequel to "The Biscuit Eater" are being laid by Paramount with the assignment of James Street, author of the original, to write another story, tentatively titled "Lonnie." Jack Moss, who made his debut as a producer with "The Biscuit Eater," will hold the production reins, and Stuart Heisler, who directed the initialer, also draws a repeat assignment.

Richards to New Orleans From Miami Holiday

MIAMI BEACH—E. V. Richards jr., here on his usual winter vacation, has sailed for New Orleans on his boat, the Loretta.

The day before he left, Richards conferred with Leon D. Netter of Paramount who then flew to New York. Also here were Harry Oliphant, treasurer of Saenger Theatres, and "Slim" Higginbotham, Saenger partner in Baton Rouge.

Plans Are Completed for 1,000-Seater in Atlanta

ATLANTA—Plans are completed for the new 1,000-seat theatre the Grant & Fairview Amusement Co. will build here at Little Five Points on Moreland Ave. Anticipated opening is around August 15. The theatre will be known as "The Little Five Points."

Ordinance Segregating Negroes to Continue

BESSEMER, ALA.—The ordinance prohibiting the assembling of white persons and Negroes in the same building for amusement or entertainment, will not be amended, the city council voted at a recent meeting. A request had been made to amend the ordinance, making an exception of theatres to use the gallery for Negroes.

Play "Dark Command"

OKLAHOMA CITY—The State here and the Ritz, Corpus Christi, first-runned Republic's "Dark Command."

A Case Where Effort Doesn't Pan Out

New Orleans—"It's a sad world in which your own best past performances return to do you out of next month's rent," opines the New Orleans "Item" editorially, in calling attention to the growing trend of broadcasting Hollywood's best film efforts over the radio while various cultural groups over the country screen the better product of the past at private gatherings.

Canadian Pioneers Meet in Toronto

TORONTO—The Canadian Picture Pioneers, an organization of men and women actively engaged in the business more than 25 years, held its inaugural gathering at the Royal York Hotel here, May 1, under the chairmanship of Clair Hague, dean of Canadian film executives. The program consisted of a business session after registration, cocktails, a formal dinner, and an old-time floor show. The entertainment was arranged by Archie Laurie.

The life membership list of the group has reached the 125 mark, and for each was prepared a bronze membership plate similar in design to that created by the original pioneers' club in the United States.

The Canadian Pioneers have been granted a charter by the Dominion government and details of the incorporation were unfolded at the business meeting by Hon. Earl Lawson, former member of the Federal Parliament, who started as an exhibitor here before the last war. Because of the distances to a central point in Canada, announcement was made that provision had been arranged for the organization of club branches under a warrant charter and these are to be established at Vancouver, Winnipeg and Montreal.

Guests were in attendance from New York City as representatives of the American Pioneers Club, the party being headed by Jack Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures and president of the New York club. Among those who had accepted invitations for the Toronto rally were Max A. Schlesinger of South Africa, W. Ray Johnston, Eddie Golden, Arthur Gottlieb, Arthur A. Lee and Max Levy of Chicago. Because of a function in New York the following night, special arrangements were made for the transportation of the guests by airplane on Thursday morning, the party being driven in automobiles to the Buffalo, N. Y., airport where they were to catch the plane for Gotham.

It was brought out at the Toronto dinner that the oldest Canadian exhibitor still in harness is John Schulberg of Winnipeg and the evidence was sufficient to prevent a challenge by rival claimants. A pioneer in attendance from the Maritime Provinces was A. J. Mason of Springhill, N. S., who captured the honors for traveling the farthest distance for the celebration. Mason is still energetic, as evidenced by his vigorous leadership of independent exhibitors in Nova Scotia in trade and legislative issues.

Fast Time to Ontario; Frowned On by Some

TORONTO—Daylight saving went into effect in most cities and towns of Ontario, but the comments regarding "false time" were not unanimous. Merchants and many others of Orangeville presented a last-minute petition to maintain standard time and there was a sharp division of opinion but the measure went through. Several cities in isolated spots are having no part of it and this only adds to the confusion.

Out in the Canadian West the only city to adopt summer time is Regina, Sask., and just to make it interesting, the city lawmakers out there put D.S.T. into effect way back on April 14. Some centers in the east are not changing the clocks until June and some turn 'em back September 1. Others again revert to standard time September 15 and still others not until September 29.

"School Days" Will Be Premiered in Ottawa

TORONTO—The world premiere of "Tom Brown's School Days" will be held in Ottawa, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Freddie Bartholomew, male stars, to make personal appearances at the opening.

The announcement came from Major Hugh A. Green, a wartime official of the Canadian government, in behalf of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League which is made up of veterans of previous wars. The proceeds of the opening are to be donated to the Legion for its war charity fund. Major Green's own son, Hugh, 19 years of age, had a small part in the picture, having gone to Hollywood to try his luck as an actor.

The theatre was not named while the date of the premiere was not stated.

Brampton Capitol Observes Seventeenth Anniversary

BRAMPTON, ONT.—A successful anniversary week has been completed by Jack Campbell, manager of the Capitol, on the occasion of the theatre's 17th year in business.

Easing of Child Ban Stirs Satisfaction

TORONTO—The decision of the Quebec government, as announced by Premier Adelard Godbout, to lift the ban on juvenile patronage at theatres, in effect since 1927, as soon as a special censor board can be set up for the selection of films for children, has been received with considerable satisfaction among the film distributors here, who see a pronounced benefit from the change in policy.

The principal effect will be that parents will be able to take their families with them to the show whereas, previously, they have had to take turns in looking after their offspring while the other enjoyed screen entertainment—or else not go at all.

During the past year the Quebec government let down the bars for such features as the Royal Visit film, "Snow White," "Gulliver's Travels" and "Young Tom Edison," but otherwise the juveniles knew little of pictures with the exception of those shown in churches under questionable conditions. Theatres showing these approved features charged 25 cents admission for juveniles, by the way.

Another angle to the situation is the granting of the voting franchise to the women of Quebec, and it is believed the women's vote will bear considerable influence in matters affecting family life. Quebec has been a weak sister in the point of theatre revenue among the various provinces, while taxation there has been comparatively high but the theatre interests are now to get a break.

Biltmore in Oshawa, Ont., Has a Gala Opening

OSHAWA, ONT.—The new Biltmore, completed in three and a half months, opened recently to an audience of civic notables including the mayor, aldermen, and others of the city's prominent. Construction of the theatre, owned by Barnett E. Laxer, was supervised by the Demelis Brothers of Toronto.

Convention in Calgary—

Delegates of the Sharpe Theatre circuit, with units located wholly in country points of Alberta, attending the luncheon held at their first annual convention in Calgary.

British Films Find a Path to Montreal

By ROY CARMICHAEL

MONTREAL—An inability of British pictures to achieve more than a limited success here seems to have been definitely relegated to the past.

Feeling that British films—unpopular possibly because the French-Canadian population are more accustomed to American diction and Hollywood stars—might do better if shown in an English-speaking suburb and well advertised, United Amusement recently tested that theory at the Snowdon, with the British comedy, "A Girl Must Live." The amazing popularity of the attraction, which has just concluded a fourth week, has confirmed United Amusement in the merit of such a policy.

With British films now a regular feature, Montreal, which always sees the best Hollywood and Parisian attractions, becomes increasingly an international film center.

Independently owned theatres in the city are almost all of small size. On the east end of St. Catherine St. are several independents playing only French films. Other independent theatres are located on St. Denis St. and elsewhere in the north end of the city. One of the latest independents is the Empire, almost on the northern limit of the city, and France Film Co., which controls the distribution of Parisian films in Canada, is proprietor of the latest French cinema, the Beaubien.

Chains Are Linked

The largest chain is that of the United Amusement Corp., which has several theatres on St. Catherine St., including the most modern of all, the centrally located York, which gathers its patrons from all over the city. The United Amusement theatres usually get leading pictures after they have been shown at the Imperial. A few years ago United Amusement secured a controlling interest in Confederation Amusements, another large chain which continues to be operated separately and successfully. An illustration of the close relationship between the two chains is to be found in the Savoy, modern house in Verdun, which was constructed for United Amusement, but which is operated by Confederation Amusements. Other Confederation houses are located north, south, east and west, at a considerable distance from the center of the city. Some play only Hollywood pictures while others alternate these with Parisian films, this depending on the district in which they are located.

Montreal's first-run houses are located on St. Catherine St. west, within a few blocks of each other. Farthest west is Loew's, then come the Capitol, Palace, Cinema de Paris, Orpheum and Princess. The Cinema de Paris, smallest of the first run theatres, confines itself to Parisian productions. Films which are likely to have long runs are usually booked by Loew's or the Orpheum.

Two of the largest theatres in the city are the Imperial on Bleury St., which plays second run of leading films at reduced prices within a few weeks of their appearance on St. Catherine St., and the St. Denis on St. Denis St., which shows only French films.

Thirty years ago, when the first motion picture theatres made their appearance here, Montreal was plentifully supplied with legitimate theatres. His Majesty's, formerly Proctor's, and the Academy, witnessed productions by the world's leading theatrical stars. The Princess alternated between stage productions and vaudeville, and Bennett's, later the Orpheum, ran stock and sometimes vaudeville. Occasionally leading Parisian stars took part in a season of French stock. The Theatre Francais was a center for melodrama, and burlesque flourished at the Royal and the Gayety. Now, there is not a single theatre in Montreal devoted to the legitimate drama, although stage plays, when they come, can always find a home at His Majesty's, which, between times, exhibits outstanding films at slightly more than the St. Catherine St. first-run prices. The Orpheum, Princess, Francais and the Gayety (now known as the Mayfair), have been converted into cinemas, the last-named recalling its burlesque days by adding a light vaudeville program.

Traces War Expenditure Effect on Business

TORONTO—"Huge sums of money are being spent by the British government and the government at Ottawa for essential war supplies," declared Dick Main, supervisor of Associated Theatres chain, in a statement regarding the present and future trend of business as it applies to moving picture entertainment.

"The effects of war orders tend to increase the cost of materials and the cost of labor," he continued. "This increase will filter through from primary industries to the retail merchant, the professions and to amusements. The theatre business is looking forward to a great year. The extra dollars that we can make now will help us to prepare for a period of depression which may follow. They will also enable us to contribute more generously toward the multitudinous charities and services, not to mention taxes, which are the necessary accompaniment to the Allies' war effort."

Bill Passing Concession In St. Catharines, Ont.

TORONTO—L. T. Coyle, manager of the Granada, St. Catharines, Ont., faced a problem when the city council adopted the license system for handbill distributors and then placed a stringent curb on door-to-door delivery of literature by issuing a permit to only one man. The immediate result was a skyward boost in the charges for distribution because of the monopoly.

A protest by Coyle, who has been a school trustee for several years, brought an easement by the city fathers in the granting of permission to the theatre for the distribution of heralds but only by employes of the Granada, on the understanding that there would be no littering of the streets.

'Calling Down' Contest Elates in Hamilton

TORONTO—A novel stage stunt in which a number of lady patrons participated aroused tremendous laughter at the Granada, Hamilton, Ont., when Manager Lloyd Taylor staged a "Calling Down Contest." Four ladies were invited to the stage and were asked to portray the role of a wife whose husband was missing from home at 2 a. m. following pay day. Each lady was asked in turn what type of husband she preferred, such as tall, short, dark, fair, thin or fat. As soon as each had made her choice, a male of designated characteristics staggered on stage from the wings in an apparently drunken condition and the lady was told to bawl him out just as she would at home. The results were startling and effective and the audience had a big time selecting the winner by applause.

Henry Marshall of the Rideau, Ottawa, has introduced a new angle to his musical quiz contest by inviting members of the audience to the stage to name the title of their favorite song. As soon as it is mentioned, the pianist starts up the number and the competitor must sing the chorus, after which the audience picks the winner. Marshall introduced the stunt with four young ladies.

A stage act that created much merriment at the Royal, North Bay, was a bottle-drinking stunt staged by Manager Gordon Beavis. Four big men, one weighing more than 250 pounds, crawled across the stage on their hands and knees, wearing bright-colored baby bonnets. The stunt wound up with the huskies imbibing milk from pop bottles through nipples.

Originality in Stunts Is Revealed in Ontario

TORONTO—A very interesting stunt for "The Light That Failed"—in fact, two of them—was worked by Manager Grant Garrette of the Geneva, Orillia, Ont. One was a guessing contest for guest tickets which involved the burning of a tall candle in a jewelry store window, with the proprietor registering the exact time at which the flame extinguished itself. The public was invited to name the moment—in advance.

The other trick was a lighted electric bulb lying on the earth of a flower pot in a hardware store window. Fixed to the front side of the pot was a dummy base plug with ends of wires protruding but hidden under the pot was the real connection. This was a tie-up with a brand of light bulbs which did not fail.

Manager Tom Mascaro of the Capitol had the people of Belleville Ont., running all over town to figure out a stunt for "Four Wives." He printed cards, each of which bore a picture of one wife of the story, and these were handed to customers of selected stores as they made purchases. Any person bringing a complete set of four to the theatre received a complimentary. The inside story is that an equal number of cards was printed for three of the characters but only 100 for Wife No. 4. At that, 16 complete sets were presented at the Capitol for a prize.

TORONTO

N L. NATHANSON, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., is not eligible for the Canadian Pictures Pioneers which requires association with the industry for 25 years to qualify for membership, the start being in 1915. Nathanson inaugurated his first theatre, the Toronto Regent, in 1916 and therefore must wait until 1941 before joining the paternal circle, according to Chairman Clair Hague of the Pioneers. The company vice-president, James J. Fitzgibbons, is not only a member of the Canadian Pioneers, but also of the club in New York City. The historic downtown rivals in Toronto, Tom Daley of the Imperial, Jack Arthur, until last September the manager of the Uptown, and Jules Bernstein of Loew's are all charter members of the Canadian club.

One film exchange executive who was compelled to miss the big party of the Pioneers May 1 was Leo Devaney, general manager of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada, because he had left the hospital only a few days previously after having an appendectomy. His Ontario branch manager, Frank Meyers, is fully qualified as a Pioneer.

B. E. Norrish, head of Associated Screen News, and also of the Allied Film Industries of Quebec, is numbered among the film pioneers. Ben was the man who created the Canadian government motion picture bureau, being succeeded by the late Raymond S. Peck and by the present incumbent, F. C. Badgley. This bureau is rated the first official film agency to be established by any government.

Two ladies of the motion picture field have admitted their age and are full-fledged members of the Canadian Pioneers. One is Ray Lewis, owner of the Avenue and Pylon in Toronto, and the other is Mrs. B. K. Moore, proprietor of Moore's, Grimsby, Ont. Incidentally, both have families—Ray Lewis boasts that she is a grandmother.

Archie Laurie, now in business for himself after these 30 years, deserves considerable praise for the manner in which he organized the entertainment fare for the charter banquet of the Canadian Picture Pioneers. This took the form of a floor show reflecting the style of motion picture presentation a quarter of a century ago.

Arthur Lee of New York, who has tendered his resignation as general manager of G-B Pictures effective June 1, is one Pioneer who has designated his present classification as "unemployed." His summer home in the Georgian Bay district of Ontario is shown on the map as Royal Canadian Island and he announced that he is spending some time there before getting into new harness.

In line with old-time events, J. L. Hunter, veteran manager of the Ontario branch, Paramount Film Service, Ltd., is exhibiting a group photograph of the 1927 convention of Famous Players Canadian Corp. in which there are many familiar faces and, alas, of several who are gone.

Joe Holliday, former sports writer and also connected with the Radio Station CFRB, Toronto, has been appointed manager of the Circle in the Toronto north end owned by H. H. Freedman, former president of the Independent Theatres Ass'n.

Manager Jimmie Lynch of the Runnymede, Toronto, was host to about 2,000 juveniles at the Saturday matinee for a stamp club stunt in which everybody received souvenirs . . . Sam Ulster has introduced giveaways at the Embassy in the Bloor-Yonge zone of Toronto for the first time. His opposition, the York of the B&F circuit, started the fireworks by offering volumes of an encyclopaedia and Ulster has taken up the challenge by announcing dishes for an extra charge.

Manager Fred Trebilcock of the big Uptown, Toronto, was enthusiastic in his announcement of the holdover of "Rebecca" for a fourth week . . . Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire-Universal and son of N. L., has returned from a lengthy vacation in California.

Lorne Green of Toronto is getting plaudits for his work as narrator of the National Film Board's "Atlantic Patrol," dealing with the Canadian Navy, which has its first run at the Imperial. Frank Follett and E. R. Wilson were the cameramen, the director being Stuart Legg, formerly of England.

After one week for the second run of "Gone With the Wind" at the Bloor, Toronto, Manager Jack Laver returned to the regular policy of the theatre.

A Canadian Film Board Feature to Columbia

TORONTO—Columbia has secured the distributing rights for the first picture, "Atlantic Patrol," to be directly produced by the National Film Board of Canada, the first run being at the Imperial, large F-P house in Toronto.

"Atlantic Patrol," which deals with the wartime activities of the Royal Canadian Navy, was produced under the supervision of F. C. Badgley, director of the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, and the director was Stuart Legg. Work is already proceeding on a picture dealing with Canadian soldiers across the Atlantic to be called "Privates' Lives."

MONTREAL

FILMROW has a couple of vacant offices which, it is hoped, will be taken up by somebody in the film business. The vacancies are caused by the departure of Empire-Universal and Regal Films, which have taken offices downtown . . . Championship of the Filmrow Bowling League has been carried off by Paramount, which defeated Warner two out of three games. Interest now centers on the bowling league banquet to be held at an early date.

Sports arenas, vacant since conclusion of the hockey games, are being converted into motion picture halls in some centers. Joliette, Que., did this successfully, and now William Frigon is understood to be contemplating a similar enterprise in Shawinigan Falls . . . Leo Choquette's new theatre at Kenogami, near Jonquieres, is reported to be doing remarkably good business. Named the Princess, it is under the management of "Billy" Hall. Choquette also owns theatres in Farnham and Waterloo, Que. . . . A new theatre is planned for Hudson, Que., by J. Rozon.

Fire in the paint shop of the Roxy on St. Lawrence Blvd. brought a section of the fire brigade to the scene. They succeeded in extinguishing the small outbreak without alarming the audience which continued to view the film unperturbed while the firemen worked . . . Motion pictures are a necessary relief from war worries. The other day Winston Churchill attended the opening in London of "Gone With the Wind" and King Leopold of Belgium postponed acceptance of Premier Pierlot's resignation in order to enjoy the Brussels premiere of "The Rains Came," a benefit showing for wounded war veterans.

R. Vallee has taken over the old Premier at Sherbrooke and is remodeling and re-equipping it . . . Britain has determined to eclipse German film publicity of war activities, and Sir Edward Grigg, financial secretary to the war office, announces the First Lord of the Admiralty has made arrangements to have a number of newsreel cameramen accredited to units of the British fleet. More official photographers will also be attached to the British Army . . . Katharine Cornell's "No Time for Comedy," which is playing at His Majesty's, will be filmed, with James Stewart and Rosalind Russell in leading roles . . . "Atlantic Patrol," Canadian government film which will be released shortly, was produced and directed by Stuart Legg of the National Film Board, with the assistance of Captain F. C. Badgley, director of the Motion Picture Bureau and his staff of technicians.

Morris Davis of the Belmont gave the North End a treat by arranging the personal stage appearance of Richard Tyrol, star of "The Great Waltz," in conjunction with a special Sunday vaudeville show and the Palais d'Or orchestra . . . Ed English, province of Quebec manager of 20th-Fox, has returned from his company's convention in Chicago . . . Tom Dowbiggin, sales manager of Paramount in Quebec province, is in the United States on his annual vacation . . . Archie Cohen, salesman for Columbia, has returned from a business tour of Gaspe.

WINNIPEG

AT THE Metropolitan, "Public Opinion," the new stage quiz cooked up by Don Gauld and Syl Gunn, is scheduled for its opening bow to the public on Monday night. In the form of a contest in which members of the audience test their ability to discern public opinion on a number of controversial subjects, "Public Opinion" originated with Neil Leroy, assistant sales manager at radio station CJRC. This station will stage broadcasts from the Metropolitan weekly, which will be conducted by Esse Ljungh, well-known radio and theatreman and authority on national and foreign affairs.

Hilliard Gunn, formerly head usher at the Metropolitan here, is now assistant to Frank Willis at the Fort William Orpheum. Willis formerly managed the Metropolitan . . . Eddie Newman is regarded as the coming threat to all local golf kings now that he has managed to break 100 with a magnificent 99, putting him definitely in the category of the elect . . . "Beau Geste," banned in Canada just after the war broke out because of protests on the part of the French consul at Ottawa who thought it detrimental to the French army, has now been released and will be shown next week at the Metropolitan.

Twelve sequences for the scheduled motion picture, "Women in the War," showing the war effort of Canadian women, will be filmed in Winnipeg next week, according to J. B. Scott of Ottawa, production supervisor of the Canadian government motion picture bureau who arrived here to direct operations. The picture is one of a series on Canada's war effort, sponsored by the Dominion government through the bureau in conjunction with the national film board.

Stopping over in Winnipeg on their way across the Dominion on a trip to pick up atmosphere and possible locales for a British film to be made in Canada this year, three British film makers disclosed their venture is being backed by John Sutro, one of the original members of the board of London Films. It is intimated the proposed cast would be large, and would contain a number of the best-known British stars. The entire company is expected to arrive in Canada some time in June. The three visiting Britishers included: Michael Powell, producer, director and author, who was chief assistant to Alexander Korda in the film, "The Lion Has Wings;" Emeric Pressburger, author of "U-Boat 29," and Roland Gillett, production manager of "Fire Over England," "Fairwell Again" and "The Beachcomber."

Two British films, "School for Husbands" and "The Crimson Circle," are doing SRO business at the Osborne . . . A. E. Zorn, district supervisor for F-P, returned from a trip to the head of the Lakes and is now out again on an inspection trip to Calgary and other western points of the circuit . . . J. Miles, president of Western Theatres, Ltd., returned from a trip to Toronto . . . Lennie Norrie, formerly assistant to Manager Charlie Taylor at the Portage la Prairie Playhouse and before that with Leno Toraldo at the Winnipeg Uptown, has been appointed booker with Western Theatres, Ltd.

No Film Rejection By Ontario Board

TORONTO—Of 2,278 features and short subjects examined during the last fiscal year by the Ontario film censor board, 403 less than in the previous 12 months, not one feature was officially rejected, according to the report of O. J. Silverstone, chairman.

Paramount's "Beau Geste" was withdrawn at the request of the French consul, and two other features, "6,000 Enemies" and "The Primrose Path," were held back but later given approval. "Beau Geste" may yet be released, it is intimated.

The board made alterations in 184 films before approval, including 15 changes in 54 British films.

The statistics show there were 1,915 features and shorts from the United States and 304 foreign, mostly French.

The policy of the board is to exercise "extreme caution" to avoid the spread of propaganda, and Chairman Silverstone states that all foreign product except that from France is barred from Ontario during the war on the ground that war considerations must have precedence over any contention that the screen should enjoy the greatest degree of freedom. Says he:

"It is the object of this board to foster education and stamp out propaganda."

During the previous fiscal year, the board condemned one feature outright.

CALGARY

THE Palace, an F-P unit dark for two weeks, has opened. Eddie Zorn, district manager from Winnipeg, was in Calgary for the opening. The Palace was reseated and redecorated.

Dewey Bloom, publicity man for Metro at Toronto, stopped off for the weekend en route to Vancouver. Dewey is planting exploitation for "GWTW" bookings in the smaller towns.

H. Phillett arrived from Winnipeg to take over the managerial reins at Regal Films. Joe Myers, former manager, resigned owing to ill health.

J. B. Barron, controlling the Grand, is in Winnipeg arranging to take over the Walker Theatre, now in the hands of the city.

Ottawa Theatre Landmark Razed for New Structure

OTTAWA—The Family Theatre, a landmark here in the heart of the downtown section, is being wrecked to make way for a modern business structure. Dark in recent years, the Family was opened 40 years ago and was successively used for all forms of theatrical entertainment. Many celebrities of the stage have played in it.

The Family was operated by various interests, chief of which was the Brouse-Brock sponsorship with the late Harry Brouse of Ottawa operating this and the Imperial for many years.

VANCOUVER

THE Filmrow Table Tennis Club had its first clash with an outside team, and though it went down in defeat, it put up a good fight against the seasoned players of Imperial Oil Co. There was a broad smile on Norman Duncan's face as the Strand resounded with the squeals and laughter of children as they watched the screening of "Swiss Family Robinson" . . . Norman says adults at evening performances were just as numerous and as appreciative as the young ones.

Maynard Joiner went down to Seattle to see the first showing of "Irene," but is disappointed that Anna Neagle, who made a personal appearance there, cannot be here for its premiere ta the Capitol.

By skillful planning and close cooperation between C. Denham, the house manager, and Sam Lechtzier, who furnished and installed the seats, the Dominion, Victoria, was reseated without interruption to performances, though the balcony had to be closed for a short period while a new floor was being laid.

The Dominion of Vancouver is the next reseating job in view, but the house will probably be dark for a short time as an entirely new floor will be put in which will involve some excavation and concrete work. Charlie Doctor, the manager, anticipates a start within the next ten days.

R. John Dawson expects a long run for "So This Is London," which had its premiere Canadian showing on April 27 . . . It is pretty well understood, though not officially confirmed, that a new theatre will be built on Granville St. opposite the Dominion. It will be a 1,200-seat house and will be erected by Vested Estates for lease to operators represented by W. J. Long. Details are withheld for the present.

Big Production in Canada Is Planned by Briton

MONTREAL—Michael Powell, of London, a well known British producer, director and author, now on his way west, announced that one of the most ambitious British pictures to be produced this year will be filmed in Canada this summer.

Powell will produce and direct the film, which will be from a story now being written by Emeric Pressburger, who wrote the screenplay for "U-Boat 29."

Powell and Pressburger and other members of the advance guard of the production, including Roland Gillett, associate producer, Alfred Seabourne, film editor, and William Paton, personal assistant to Powell, conferred with government officials in Ottawa, then left to visit Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

Marlene in "Seven Sinners"

HOLLYWOOD—"Seven Sinners," a Joe Pasternak production for Universal, will star Marlene Dietrich. Tay Garnett will direct from a script by John Meehan.

The Exhibitor Has His Say

Columbia

Beware, Spooks!
Better than average midweek business. Joe E. Brown always draws and pleases. Wish he made more pictures. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 343.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, South Berwick, Me.

His Girl Friday
Another fine comedy from Columbia but no boxoffice pull. Business less than average and many folks missed a fine picture. Talked with only one couple that didn't like it and I suspect that the picture was "too fast" for them. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. Orville Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Bad Little Angel
Played with "Two Thoroughbreds" (RKO). Poor business. People just did not care for this combination, so I consider I made the error and must profit by my mistake. I am not telling you where to play them. I don't know myself. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Balalaika
Very satisfactory for Eddy fans, but I haven't enough of them. Very poor business. Thurs., Fri. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

Broadway Melody of 1940
Very good musical. Pleased almost all. Business only average. Should have done better. Sun., Mon. Weather: Cool. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

Congo Maisie
Fair, but not nearly as good as "Maisie." Average business. Saturday. Weather: Good. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

Earl of Chicago, The
Absolutely no good. Montgomery acted like he was nuts and if I ran one a week like this I would go nuts also. No business. Too much "Me Lord" stuff. Tues., Wed. Weather: Good. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

Fast and Furious
Played on Bank Night (Wednesday). Most of patrons asked why it wasn't played on Sunday-Monday. Good entertainment. Pleased everybody. Weather: Cold. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Judge Hardy and Son
Just as good and just as interesting as the others in this series. If you cannot do business and satisfy your patrons with Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker and Fay Holden in this family series, your place is not in show business. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Young Tom Edison
Metro sure produced a natural here. This type of picture doesn't do too well with our particular audience, but from a production standpoint, you couldn't find anything better to display on your screen. Put on a real campaign to get them in and you'll be proud to face your patrons as they leave. Audience: All went out pleased. Boxoffice: A little better than average. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Paramount

Great Victor Herbert, The
Fine entertainment but business below average for Sunday-Monday. Good music not appreciated by my crowd. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 343.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, South Berwick, Me.

Law of the Pampas
Not bad at all, and compared with run-of-the-mill westerns, I'd say good. Photography very nice, acting acceptable, and story as good as could be expected. Audience: Enjoyed it. Boxoffice: Average for Saturday. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Light that Failed, The
Good acting, good directing, fair business. English story always ruins any show for me. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Rain. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

What a Life
Good little picture. J. Cooper popular here. Rain kept business down. Wed., Thurs. Admission: 25-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 343.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, South Berwick, Me.

An open forum for exhibitor comment. Please address communications and requests for report blanks to THE EXHIBITOR HAS HIS SAY, BOXOFFICE, 4804 E. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo.

Republic

In Old Monterey
Autry popular here as elsewhere. Here is the best picture we have had from him. Pleased all. Wed., Thurs. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 343.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, South Berwick, Me.

South of the Border
One of Autry's best. OK from every angle. Push it and make money. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

RKO Radio

Bullet Code
Just another O'Brien western. Same plot—hero saves ranch for old man with beautiful daughter. Fri., Sat. Weather: Good. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 200.—Mrs. Orville Von Gulker, Roberta, Okeene, Okla.

Flying Deuces
Good enough comedy which brought many laughs. My people seem to like comedies, as they generally go over better than average. Fri., Sat. Weather: Fair. Admission: 25-15. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 343.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, South Berwick, Me.

Hunchback of Notre Dame
As per grosses, very poor. Just another English picture. If the Hunchback had looked any worse I don't think anybody would have come. Sun., Mon. Weather: Good. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

: Warns Against Shock :

WICKENBURG, ARIZ.—Metro's "Northwest Passage" is tainted with several gruesome sequences which don't add anything to the picture that I can see.

This is the second instance of gruesomeness appearing in Metro pictures with no good excuse. The first was in "Man From Dakota" where Beery commits an axe killing. The head-eating incident in "Northwest Passage" is the second.

I would like to suggest to Mr. Mayer that he unload the individual who believes these kinds of things enhance the attractiveness of a picture enough to warrant their inclusion. In my humble opinion, resorting to tricks like the above constitutes an admission on the part of the producer that he is trying to cover up lack of real ability, and to me it is a bad sign.

When vaudeville artists some years ago began using the "shock technique" to cover up their inability to give real entertainment, they sounded their own deathknell. The folks of the legitimate stage hanged themselves the same way. In both cases the great American family trade was scared off by embarrassment and/or disgust. Let's hope the film industry does not maneuver itself into the same corner.

E. A. STEIN,
Out-Wickenburg-Way Theatre,
Wickenburg, Ariz.

20th Century-Fox

Day-Time Wife
The title and subject matter raised a question in my mind as to the advisability of using it for Sunday-Monday on account of a matinee for children. However, after playing it I believe I made a wise choice and business held to better than normal. Weather: Cold. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Honeymoon's Over
Acceptable little program pix with a good lesson in it which is well coated with entertainment. We played in a spot where we knew we would have pretty good attendance anyway, and everyone went out happy. Boxoffice: Pretty fair. Admission: 40-10. Cosmopolitan patronage. Population: 700. Capacity: 263.—E. A. Stein, Out-Wickenburg-Way, Wickenburg, Ariz.

Universal

Charlie McCarthy, Detective
Played with "What a Life" (Paramount). Both these pictures were good, but one is no good without the other, or something similar. Either one is too weak to stand alone. At least, that's my personal opinion. It may be different in your situation. I took a chance on double billing and everyone seemed satisfied including myself. Fri., Sat. Weather: Snowy. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Charlie McCarthy, Detective
Fair business. Quite a number of wisecracks that register. Fri., Sat. Weather: Cold. Admission: 20-10. Rural patronage. Population: 1,000. Capacity: 300.—Logan Hedrick, Homer, Homer, Ill.

Destry Rides Again
Good show to less than average business due to heavy rain both nights (Sunday-Monday). James Stewart fine as usual with entire cast giving excellent support. Admission: 25-10. General patronage. Population: 2,600. Capacity: 343.—Arthur E. Phifield, Park, South Berwick, Me.

Warner Bros.

Brother Rat and a Baby
Played Sunday-Monday. Thoroughly enjoyed by young and old. I think Wayne Morris had too much part and Priscilla Lane too little. Fair business. Weather: OK. Admission: 25-10. Small town patronage. Population: 1,200. Capacity: 388.—Felix Tisdale, Ritz, Brantley, Ala.

Dead End Kids on Dress Parade
On a double bill (with Universal's "Laugh It Off") for Tuesday at bargain prices, I had SRO the first hour after opening. This beat all previous records for Tuesday in the past six months. I am not saying what it was that brought them in. That's up to you to decide. Weather: Fair. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Kid Nightingale
Played this with "Missing Evidence" (Universal) at bargain prices against strong opposition in other lines of amusement. Drew fair business. The Pot O' Gold does not seem to affect us here. No one has been called around here. Tuesday. Weather: Rain. Admission: 40-10. General patronage. Population: 3,000. Capacity: 486.—A. E. Andrews, Emporium, Emporium, Pa.

Selling Seats

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Several Window Displays Plug "Child Is Born"

CLEVELAND—Julius Lamm, manager of Warner's Uptown, and his assistant, Don Myers, really sold "A Child Is Born" to the community. The local Five and Ten store came through with a large window display. Then Lamm put in a window display in a vacant store and followed this up by getting a free window in the neighborhood department store. The department store featured a card with the copy:

"Baetz's supply the things the stork forgot to bring. See 'A Child Is Born.'"

To add to the campaign, Lamm made a folder from an ad mat and sold the back of the folder to four merchants, which paid for the entire campaign.

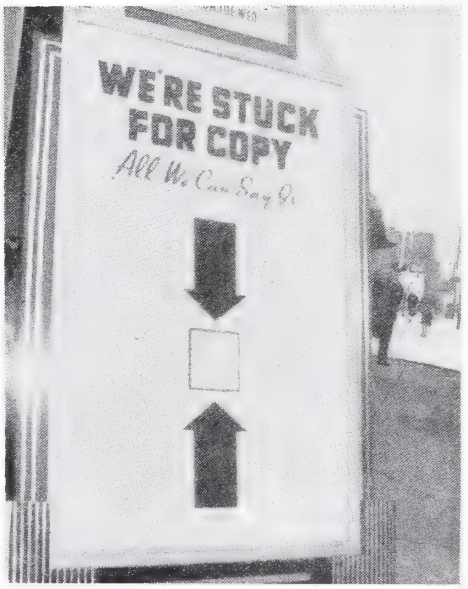
In the lobby Myers strung up a clothes line from which hung a row of diapers, each with a stencil of the name of the picture, and also an array of baby clothes.

To round out the campaign, local hospital heads and nurses were invited to be guests of the management at the opening performance of "A Child Is Born."

Send Traveling Bookshop Exploiting "My Son"

CLEVELAND—A new word has been added to the English language by Milt Harris and Ed Huegle of the Loew publicity department. The word is "Bookmobile" and it was coined for the traveling bookstore put on the streets by Loew's to exploit "My Son, My Son," playing at the State Theatre. A special vendor's license was secured from the city; an attractive blonde was the saleslady; and the automobile parked at strategic locations all over town to sell copies of the book.

The stunt was a tieup with Burrows Brothers Co., one of the city's leading book stores.



This was the first time Cleveland book buyers were ever given curb service.

Misses No Angles

KANSAS CITY—Warner's "'Til We Meet Again" was sold in Kansas City by Lawrence Lehman of the Orpheum with an eight-day contest in the local Journal inviting the women to write 50-word letters on the situation in the picture, and with the distribution in leading bars and hotels of a card giving the ingredients of a "'Til We Meet Again Cocktail." In the case of the letters, ducats to the Orpheum were awarded the best 20.

Prizes for Toasts

CLEVELAND—In addition to the usual tieups with radio, newspaper classified ads, restaurant menu cards, trailers, and displays, Manny Pearlstein, head of the local Warner publicity department, arranged a toast contest with the Plain Dealer on "'Til We Meet Again" that caught the popular fancy. The toasts submitted had to be based on the theme of the title. Cash prizes were awarded for the best.

Get Them Looking—

Here is how E. R. Erickson of the Warner Rhodes on the south side of Chicago got the public attention focused on "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." The small square between the two arrows contains copy on the picture.

NUGGETS

WARNER is seeking to popularize orchids with men in its promotion on "Brother Orchid." Through an arrangement with the FTDA, comprising more than 7,000 retail florists, the organization will plug a new species of the flower named after the picture. The angle is to persuade men to wear white orchids with formal attire and purple with sports apparel.

A special full-color streamer, calling attention to Gene Autry's airshow and to "Rancho Grande," has been forwarded for window posting to all of its dealers by the William Wrigley Jr. Co. These streamers are also available to exhibitors at Republic exchanges.

Manager M. E. Lofgren of the Stuart, Lincoln, Neb., arranged with a department store to give away 50 pairs of silk stockings to the first 50 women whose leg size was similar or close to the "silken legs" in "Earl of Chicago."

Part of Manager Irving Lipnick's campaign for "Geronimo" at the Symphony, Chicago, consisted of a tieup with a nearby archery range. Passes went to the best archers of the week.

M-G-M's short, "Drunk Driving," had a strong lobby promotion at the Detroit Harmony Theatre, managed by Eddie Jacobson. Jacobson borrowed two dozen 8x10 photos of auto wrecks from the recent files of the Detroit police department, and put them on an easel in the lobby, making an impressive exhibit.

Masked Bathing Beauty on Horseback for "Florian"

HOUSTON, TEX.—A masked girl in a white bathing suit rode a very valuable horse through the leading streets as one of the highlights of the "Florian" campaign put over by Manager Francis Deering and Publicity Director Homer McCallum for the run at Loew's State.

The horse, loaned by a local sportswoman, was covered with a royal purple robe with the title of the picture in cutout letters. The masked girl rode each day at noon and appeared in front of the theatre each evening during the first two days of the engagement.

One week in advance, want ads were inserted to learn the whereabouts of Austrian war veterans to be interviewed by the press and over the air. Through a tieup with Liberty magazine, 8,000 folders were distributed along with the magazine. Four three-sheets using teaser copy were carried up and down the main street. Special cards featuring the dancer, Baronova, were planted with dancing schools.

Selling the Industry as Well as Their Program

OSHKOSH, WIS.—The Strand here prefixed its advertising of "Too Many Husbands" and "King of the Lumberjacks" with a prologue captioned, "Remember the old 'Peep Shows?'" and continuing as follows:

"Yes? The old 'Peep Shows' of 40 years ago just two minutes long . . . and the 'Nickelodeon' with hard benches a fellow started in that stuffy, empty old store . . . and the bangin' piano . . . and then the big silent movies . . .

"Just look back and see what a change the years have brought to the modern theatre . . . NOW the screen brings you voice, sound, color and music—MUSIC of the 100-piece symphony orchestras—the VOICES of your favorite stars—COLOR that has never been equaled—SOUND of war-torn Europe and the laughter of happy little children at the school picnic.

"Too, the new works of great authors-stories you remember in childhood . . . all come to life TODAY in motion pictures . . . in comfort, healthful surroundings, safety and refinement.

"Sincerely, we don't believe there is a place on earth where you can get so much enjoyment and pleasant entertainment as at the 'movies' today . . . and for such little money.

"So we invite you to bring your family—your friends—your best girl or beaux to the theatre tonight or tomorrow . . . and we suggest the STRAND because we really have a fine show."

"20 Mule Team" Campaign Elaborate in Detroit

DETROIT—Elaborate program of exploitation is being arranged by Warren A. Slee for the Michigan Theatre's opening of "20-Mule Team," centering about the visit of the famous wagons here. Letters to civic organizations and leaders, and the standard publicity tieups have been expanded in amount.

Plans call for Henry Ford, Edsel Ford and Hank Greenberg to greet the parade at the city hall on Monday, with letters to and from these celebrities and others as well, delivered by mule team.

Extensive radio tieups are being ar-

Short Subject Reviews

Unusual Occupations

Paramount (No. 4) 10 Mins.

Here is a man with a novel hobby. William Parker Lyons has a collection of relics of the old west worth over $500,000. This sequence is by far the most unusual to appear in a long time. There are also clips about a woman bag-puncher; a dentist who constructs bridges with toothpicks; a woman who paints on cobwebs; and an English family which makes the tall fur toppers for the Coldstream Guards.

The Blue Streak

Paramount (Sportlight) 10 Mins.

The story of the blue geese which migrate from the Hudson Bay region in the winter to the marsh lowlands of Louisiana. The sequences show how the Indians lure the bird within gun range in contrast to the white sportsmen. The photography of birds on the wing is top-notch.

Stealin' Ain't Honest

Paramount (Popeye) 7 Mins.

Short of ideas, this is quite a fantastic concoction about the adventures of Popeye and Olive Oyl against the greedy Bluto. There is also a scarcity of humor.

Me Feelings Is Hurt

Paramount (Popeye) 7 Mins.

Popeye takes his boat and goes west to win back the heart of Olive Oyl from cowpuncher Bluto. There is the slam-bang fight, the can of spinach, and the inevitable ending. Not very good.

SHORT OF THE WEEK

The Flag Speaks

M-G-M 19 Mins.

The advance dope on this short indicates that it will have plenty of attendance pressure applied to members of various patriotic societies and groups throughout the country. Likewise, the exhibitor will also be urged to play it by these same groups. Done in Technicolor, it tells of the history of the American flag from revolutionary times down to the present. Various historical moments are re-enacted by a cast of familiars and there is a general spectacular air about the entire film. It concludes with information and displays on the right and wrong ways in which the flag should be flown, paraded and draped. Audiences have accepted historical shorts in the recent past and this one should keep that interest alive. Embarrassingly vigorous patriotism has been soft-toned in this film. In any case, it's guaranteed to make audiences applaud.

Popular Science

Paramount (No. 5) 10 Mins.

Most substantial and absorbing sequence in this issue is the one which covers the various activities at Langley Field where the government tests the latest sky cruisers. There is another bit of equal calibre showing how modern developments in house furnishings can make a home out of one room. Opening shot discloses how dental students practice on a rubber head.

Have You Met Yvette?

Paramount (Headliner) 10 Mins.

Introducing Yvette, radio's throaty chanteuse who impresses favorably in her screen debut. Paul Baron's band supplies the straight musical numbers. The director rates a cheer for the informal presentation which sets the reel apart. Yvette skillfully blends her songs in English and French.

ranged, with radio interviews, and a special tieup by spot announcements with the "Death Valley Series" being broadcast over WWJ currently.

Jacobson Calls the Army To Help Sell "69th"

DETROIT—A tieup with the Army is being arranged by Eddie Jacobson, manager of the Krim circuit's Harmony, for "The Fighting 69th." Jacobson is arranging to borrow a big cannon, no less, as well as smaller army equipment, to put out in front of the house. In addition, he is arranging for 120 ROTC youths in uniform to march three miles down the main business street of the neighborhood, with band playing, to the theatre, where they will be admitted free.

Display Big Boots

LOUISVILLE—Presaging the arrival of "Dr. Cyclops," a huge pair of black leather boots weighing 400 pounds was set up in the lobby of the Rialto here. Then four bootblacks were put to work applying polish to the clodhoppers, which proved quite amusing to patrons and passersby.

On a Big Scale—

Fashion-Book Tieups for "Rebecca" by Macy's

NEW YORK—Capitalizing on the speculation as to what the non-existent heroine of "Rebecca" might be like, UA has arranged a series of tieups with Macy's to publicize the Music Hall run and to push the store's line of fashions representing its conception of her wardrobe.

Additional exploitation was given the picture by the store which featured the novel in the book department and window display. UA spotted small ads on book pages when the picture opened.

To focus attention on the tieup, a contest was held at the theatre to pick the girl who most resembles "Rebecca." A group of judges were stationed at the theatre and handed cards to women patrons inviting them to attend the finals which were held at the store the following day. The winner is to receive a screen test.

"Edison" School Display Sells in Harrisonburg

HARRISONBURG, VA.—Displays on "Young Tom Edison" were placed in the schools by Manager Jack W. Fretwell of the State, who received cooperation from the teachers by stressing educational aspects of the film.

A special 40x60 cutout of Mickey Rooney was ordered for lobby display emphasizing the fact Rooney was selected "1940's King of the Movies." Three window displays were arranged featuring electrical illusions accompanied by posters carrying credits.

The merchants contributed to a series of co-ops with the local utility placing a large ad in the newspaper giving full credit to the theatre and picture at no cost to the management.

"20 MULE TEAM"

WALLACE BEERY

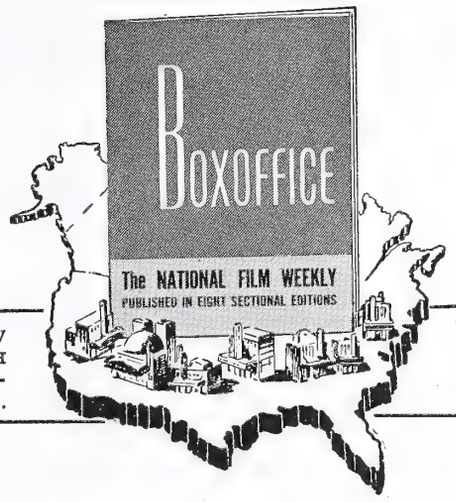
with Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau, Anne Baxter, Douglas Fowley • Screen Play by Cyril Hume, E. E. Paramore and Richard Maibaum • A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture • Directed by Richard Thorpe Produced by J. Walter Ruben

"'20 Mule Team' A-1 Western. Done in the grand manner, with top-flight production, direction, performance and photography. Wallace Beery at his best, playing the type of role in which he is most popular and providing extremely good entertainment. As brilliantly executed western drama as the screen has seen. Historical authenticity and presenting the most vivid panorama of the arid majesties of Death Valley ever shown on the screen. Beery is in his element in the role of the mule skinner, giving an even better characterization than in 'Bad Man of Brimstone'."

—Hollywood Reporter

"A natural for Wallace Beery and will serve further to ingratiate him with an ever-increasing audience. The story, absorbing excitement and suspense, both romantic and melodramatic. One of the best gun-fights ever seen on the screen winds up for a happy ending. High level of gripping entertainment. A topnotch job all the way. Scenically the picture is remarkable."

—Daily Variety



"Death Valley has been overlooked too long by Hollywood in picking stories for Westerns. In '20 Mule Team' M-G-M will cash in strong on the picturesque history and strangeness of this locale. Story offers excellent role for Wallace Beery, one of the most colorful parts he has had."

—Harry Friedman, L. A. Examiner

"'20 Mule Team' roaring melodrama of Death Valley. A rip-roaring tale with its desert panoramas and its bad men, with a superabundance of action and a great fight-to-the-finish wind-up. Death Valley has seldom been delved into so effectively. All in all a hit."

SHADOW-BOXING WITH ISSUES

THAT the government's case will go to trial June 3 is widely accepted and expected. In that sense, the suit is discounted although settlement by consent decree is not so thoroughly frozen as some would make out.

The news columns last week told the story: How decree advocates in New York feel they have gone as far as they could; how the department of commerce is for the method and the department of justice against, after having indicated acceptance; how action, if action there is to be, must come from Washington through intervention reaching beyond Attorney General Jackson and Thurman Arnold of the anti-trust division.

Thus, as there needs must be in view of equally, if not more pressing, problems removed from the courtroom, time allows for other considerations.

No more vital one confronts this industry than the necessity of working out a mathematical formula to make its ends meet. Once more, as inevitably it must, this brings the discussion to the war, to what it has done and will do further to income, to rising costs in Hollywood, to unemployment in America.

Three points already have been established as pat Hollywood conviction, in toto representing the studios' road out. One is the impossibility of cutting costs by placing the blame on labor. Two is the expressed opinion admission prices must be raised. Three, and a complement of two, is the insistence big pictures must be accorded more playing time.

The first impresses as a defense argument for the current system and the level at which it is functioning. Unmentioned arguments which make up the whole, however, include:

The foolhardy competition of the producers among themselves for names which they think are indispensable, but about whom theatremen have vastly different ideas.

The archaic belief money thrown to the winds and partially, or substantially, caught on the celluloid will make up for thinness in story, direction or talent. That's an old chromo designed to cover up bad judgment or lack of brain power, or brain power ineffectually applied. Also, it must be remembered the public is thoroughly accustomed to having its eye knocked out.

Competition among producers for the best achievement record and the persistently lingering custom of making pictures more for each other than for the customers. Anyone familiar with the Hollywood scene knows what this is about.

The second is typical of the wishful thinking which is prone to replace the realistic. A pleasant indulgence, it can be comforting and comfortable, but how practical is another story. Over ten millions are out of work in this country. Sidney Kent places the figure at eleven. CIO declares it is about fifteen, and there are dependents. How, then, admissions can be stepped up in view of this economically dislocated panorama is something this department eagerly seeks to learn.

The third, as a trailer of the second, suggests exhibitors either are not playing the product for all it contains or ought to pile on added days to help out the producer even if the drawing power of the attraction has waned. Several producers mean precisely the latter. They feel the theatreman must extend himself by giving the studios all possible breaks, for otherwise the flow of quality merchandise will be interrupted. Presumably on this theory, they also mean quality ultimately will cease altogether.

It may be that pictures are being pulled while there is still life in them. By way of leaning backwards, assume it to be true in some instances. Yet certainly this cannot be the general rule. The average theatre operator will run any film for what he can get out of it; he does not require any distributor advice to follow the obvious course. Assuming, further, that extra playing time ought to be, and will be, thrown in by way of aiding the producer—and this is assuming a great deal—the combination cannot add up to a successful answer.

Hollywood, consciously or not and we believe consciously, is dazzled by the phenomenal gross of "Gone With the Wind." Its success is imprinting a damaging brand in many coast directions. This is the circumstance which, in short, explains statements that theatres do not know their gross ceilings; that possibilities undreamed of and untapped are lying dormant in the existing structure; that admissions can be hiked at will, runs extended.

All of this is quite correct, provided there can be a series of "Gone With the Winds," but this is hardly likely and, for evidence, there is its producer's own statement.

The successful, as well as the only, answer is in quality product more reasonably turned out and at a cost measured by the conservative possibilities of the domestic market.

Those who produce insist it cannot be done.

This rolls up an overwhelming array of expert opinion thundering against a more of less solitary voice.

The roar may out yell, but it won't silence it.

52,000 AMUSEMENT SEATS AT NEW YORK FAIR; 6,200 HOUSE FILMS SHOWN WITHOUT CHARGE

Increase of 15,000 Seats Over Last Year in Free And Admission Spots

By LEONARD WEISBERG

Copyright, 1940, Associated Publications

WORLD'S FAIR, FLUSHING, N. Y.—The 1940 edition of the World's Fair opened its gates over the weekend with close to 52,000 amusement seats of all descriptions. This exclusive tabulation by BOXOFFICE, repeating the sole effort of a like nature last year, indicates an increase of 15,000 seats available in both gratis and admission charge attractions. The aggregate may conceivably swell to 55,000 within a month, on the basis of contracts that were in the signing stage when this survey was completed late in the week.

As last minute preparations were rushed it appeared there will be more than 6,200 seats in 30 auditoriums designed exclusively for the showing of films at which there will be no charge. The official survey of free films at the Fair last year, compiled by the newsreel and film department, of which Claude R. Collins is director, places the number of seats at 6,000. This survey estimates that attendance ran "well in excess of 20,000,000." The nature of the pictures to be shown remains the same—industrial, scientific, documentary, travel, educational and commercial reels with plugs plentifully smothered by entertainment.

On the basis of last year's attendance, which Collins admits is arrived at without accurate tabulation by the film sponsors' management, Fair spokesmen are hopeful that up to 35,000,000 will see the free films this year. Their theory is that, if 21,000,000 of the 26,000,000 who turned up one or more times at Flushing Meadows in 1939 saw the shows, it may be predicted that the 40,000,000 expected to attend the Fair before it closes could provide a potential audience of 35,000,000. This, again, is sheer guess work, but it stems from the belief eight of every ten persons who went to the Fair last year took in at least one free picture show.

All things being equal, there appears to be good reason for the Fair spokesmen's optimism in regard to attendance in the ensuing months, and its bearing on the consumer potentialities for which exhibitors have invested in costly auditoriums, not to mention union scales for projectionists. Firstly, admission to the grounds has been reduced from 75 cents to 50 cents. Children's admissions have been cut in proportion, with even greater cuts on specially designated days. Parking rates for automobiles are down from 50 cents to 25 cents. The cost of food, over which there was much criticism last year, has been perceptibly sheared, with new restaurants offering hot dishes from 25 cents up.

A Typical Crowd at the Fair—

Indicative of the extent to which many of the exhibits at the New York World's Fair were patronized last year and expected again this, is this scene in the Previews of Progress auditorium in the General Motors Building. It seats 612, runs a variety of ten-minute shorts, charges no admission. Last year's attendance: 1,200,000.

Amusement Area This Season Boasts 75 Big, Little Shows

NEW YORK—In addition to the estimated 6,200 free seats for films at the World's Fair, exhibitors in the metropolitan area face about 75 counter-attractions to their own shows. About 37 of these—all in the amusement area—will charge from 15 to 25 cents for adults, with children's admissions scaled to about one-third less. The balance will be mostly in the 10-cent group. Definitely listed are but three shows at 40 cents and two calling for a 99-cent top. The latter two shows start their scales at 40 cents.

Following is a compilation of the Fair's principal attractions in the amusement area:

FAINT RUMBLES OF SETTLEMENT AGAIN HEARD AS CAPITAL CALLS FOR MORE CIRCUIT DATA

Companies Check Records To Supply Details to Commerce Dep't

WASHINGTON—Indicating that all hopes for an amicable adjustment of the all-industry suit are not in vain is the persistent report experts of the department of commerce have asked major companies with theatre affiliations to supply additional data on the operations of the various units all over the country.

It is understood the five distributor-producer-exhibitor companies are checking up on records and will comply with the request. It is believed the commerce department is anxious to secure every available detail on theatres, such as the time each was built or taken over, seating capacity, types of policies and when changes were made, admission prices and when changes were affected, costs, clearance and protection, film rentals, advertising expenditures and other operating expenses.

N. M. Schenck, Active in Capital Talks, Back in New York

NEW YORK—Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M, and a prime mover in the industry's negotiations with the department of commerce to set up a program of basic principles for eliminating alleged abuses within the industry, returned from his winter home in Miami Beach Sunday. His wife and three daughters accompanied him.

Major Attorney Back East After Griffith Dismissal

NEW YORK—C. B. Cochran, Oklahoma City attorney representing major companies in the government suit against the Griffith circuit, arrived Wednesday for conferences with distributor counsel in connection with the unexpected dismissal of the action requested by the plaintiff.

Considerable talk pivoted about what the government can and cannot do as a result of the sudden move.

Distributor counsel here, however, are not overlooking the fact there is a possibility of a new action being filed by the department of justice against the same circuit, probably in Dallas because of the independent's circuit operations in Texas and also because that city is the stamping ground for Col. H. A. Cole, president of Allied.

The fact that Allied won the Interstate case which dealt with precluding duals and minimum admission prices of 25 cents may also have a bearing on a re-filing in Dallas.

Attorneys for majors point out the government has something up its sleeve by its lastest move. It is stated that, after distributor defendants won an order directing the government to supply a bill of particulars in the Griffith case, counsel for the plaintiff asked that the time allotted be cut down. The court complied and a short time later the government defaulted on its own request. Following this, the department of justice asked that an order for dismissal be entered because of the default.

Just what is in the government's mind

See Gov't Slough on Production

New York—With government counsel foregoing pre-trial examinations of Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz of 20th-Fox and indicating also it will not be necessary to bring Louis B. Mayer, production head of M-G-M, for a quiz before starting the trial, industry attorneys are of the belief that the production angle of the all-industry suit will not be stressed.

Major counsel also points to the fact that Paul Williams, assistant to the attorney general, has admitted before Federal Judge Goddard that the government's information on production is meagre and what data it has is about 10 years old.

This leads distributor attorneys to conclude the government will stress theatre divorcement, alleged unfair clearance and protection and alleged overbuying by major circuits.

Federal Bigwigs Dress Stage For Trial Appearance June 3

WASHINGTON—Government bigwigs are rapidly shaping plans for the presentation of the all-industry suit, slated to get under way before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard in New York, June 3.

While the plans are far from complete, the tentative outline calls for Attorney General Robert Jackson, "Trust Buster" Thurman Arnold and Paul Williams, in charge of the suit, to make the opening presentations. Jackson is expected to appear on behalf of the government for about an hour at least, pointing out the importance of the action as it bears on the industry as a whole.

Presentation of the government's history of the suit and rebuttal by attorneys for each of the major company defendants is expected to take about a week.

The next procedure will be to call all industry executives subpoenaed. The intention here is to give the court a complete history of the industry by the men who have spent a greater part of their lives in it and at the same time familiarize the judge with necessary and vital background.

As soon as the leading executives complete their testimony, the government will then call upon 11 independent exhibitors from the Philadelphia area. These men will be queried on exhibition and practices by major circuits in that area.

While it was believed Greater New York exhibitors would first be called upon to delve into the exhibition problems confronting the small theatre operator, the government is inclined to believe the situation as it prevails in that territory is much too complicated because of the Loew and RKO strength. In Philadelphia, Warner, of course, is viewed the lone major circuit controlling many important situations.

Seymour Krieger will handle this phase of interrogation. It is pointed out Philadelphia and parts of New England are Allied strongholds in the east and, since Krieger has spent the greater part of a year interviewing exhibitors with complaints, he would be the logical man to examine the witnesses on the stand. Examination and cross-examination of witnesses from the Quaker City area are expected to take from four to five weeks.

About the time the government and defense attorneys finish with the Philadelphia witnesses an adjournment will be taken for the summer months, starting about Aug. 1 and resuming about Oct. 1.

William P. Farnsworth, who has been handling the New York end of the suit, will examine witnesses from the New York and northern New Jersey area. He may also handle exhibitors to be called from the Connecticut territory. These examinations are slated to get under way in October.

The next territory will be the midwest. Robert L. Wright, in charge of pre-trial examinations, will query complainants from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and adjacent areas. Wright comes from Chicago and is familiar with the territory. He also acted for the government in the contempt proceedings against B&K. It is figured that these examinations will carry the case over until the first of the year. Beyond that nothing has been worked out.

When it is time for the coast exhibitors to be called, Albert J. Law and Harold Collins will go to New York and conduct the examinations. The two men have been on the coast for more than three years checking into various complaints before and after the suit was filed in the summer of 1938.

Notes to You from Red Kann

WITHOUT even referring to them, Hi Phillips goes champion for the exhibitor at large with a profound discussion of daylight saving in his "Sun Dial" column, appearing in the "New York Sun."

For your amusement:

"Daylight Saving is with us again.

"Daylight Saving stymies the night and makes the dawn anybody's guess. It was once an experiment, but it is now a habit, a tradition and regular routine business.

"Daylight Saving confuses the cows, balls up the birds and exasperates the milkman, but it delights the golfer, tickles the kiddies and is a joy to the after-dinner motorist.

"It makes daylight last longer at the end where it is supposed to be shorter, and makes it shorter at the end where it used to be longer.

"Daylight Saving provides for 'the mostest light where the mostest people can enjoy it the mostest.'

"It drives the philosopher's sage observation 'It is always later than you think' from the minds of people who are sure it is never as late as it is supposed to be.

"It proves that you cannot only fool some of the people all the time and all of the people some of the time, but that you can fool all wrist-watch wearers half the time.

"Daylight Saving moves bedtime from midfield to the ten-yard line.

"It puts America on a Share the Sun basis, brings the privilege of mowing the lawn after dinner within the reach of all and gives to the late golfer the more abundant life. With all his alibis delivered under natural lighting.

"The alarm clock set for six now goes off at seven, but leaves everything all even. The man who quit work at five now gets off at four, but it's really six. (Or are we, too, all mixed up?)

"Wives accustomed to having dinner ready at dusk suddenly discover the steak is done in a bright sunshine, but find it doesn't make any difference. Henry will be late, light or dark.

"The 4 p. m. boat leaves at five, the three o'clock train is an hour late, but still on time; the laundry that was to be done at two will be ready at three, which is really two, anyhow, and if your watch is an hour fast it is probably okay.

"Welcome, Daylight Saving. We were so muddled that nothing could make it worse."

IT wasn't available to Phillips at the time, but there's the instance of Huttonville, that Ontario town which finds itself staggering under three kinds of time. The town itself determined to stay on standard time. Local industries, however, went for daylight time. The school board added the final touch by advancing half way when it advanced school clocks thirty minutes.

A slight case of confusion.

Another Sign

Official:

"Due mainly to war conditions abroad, Loew's, Inc., has revised its table of amortization of film costs, applicable to all pictures released subsequent to August 31, 1939 by reallocating such costs in the proportion of 70 per cent to domestic and 30 per cent to foreign, instead of the previous respective allocations of 65 per cent and 35 per cent."

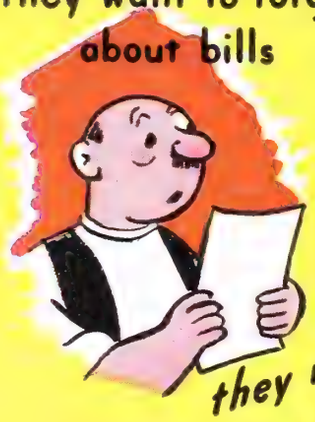
Warner did it first, Columbia only a handful of days back. Now Loew's, controlling M-G-M, the company with the largest foreign business of them all. It's merely another marker swinging in the wind, emphasizing anew the trouble boiling overseas and the need for this industry to rely heavier and heavier on its home market.

Waiting

The amiable and widely respected Dr. A. H. Giannini, to whom many in New York and in Hollywood owe allegiance for financial aid extended them when he was active in the Bank of America, has been visiting along Broadway. Actually, he came on for a meeting of the Columbia board.

"I have a complaint," he was remarking the other day. "When I joined the board of Selznick-International, I thought I'd get a lunch out of it, at least. Being a normal individual, noontime, or thereabouts, to me suggests food time. But Jock Whitney usually walks in at one o'clock and declares he has just had breakfast. Dave Selznick arrives a few minutes later saying he just got up. No lunch.

"When I was asked to join the Columbia board, a sort of understood stipulation went along with it I was to get lunch, anyway."



Natural query: "Well, what's happened?"

The doctor: "The board never meets around lunch time."

CLIFF WORK

"U," AFTER DOMESTIC PEAK, STEPS TO 59 FOR NEW YEAR

ATLANTIC CITY—Universal is setting its cap for greater domestic returns next season in the effort to offset diminishing foreign returns by increasing its schedule to 59 features, William A. Scully, general sales manager, told the eastern regional convention at the Ambassador Sunday. "We realize the only way to combat our smaller foreign grosses is to produce for American exhibitors the best boxoffice pictures we have ever made," he stated.

The main block will be made up of 42 features in addition to which there will be three Frank Lloyd productions, seven co-starring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine and seven starring Johnny Mack Brown. The latter two are action series. Planned are these:

Two starring Deanna Durbin to be produced by Joe Pasternak and directed by Henry Koster.

"Back Street," from the Fannie Hurst novel.

Three Frank Lloyds.

"When the Daltons Rode," with Walter Pidgeon, Kay Francis, Brian Donlevy, Robert Stack, Andy Devine and Broderick Crawford. George Marshall will direct.

One Irene Dunne.

Two Marlene Dietrichs. One will be "Seven Sinners," based on Ladislaus Fodor's story and directed by Tay Garnett. The other will be "Countess of New Orleans." Pasternak will produce them.

W. C. Fields in "The Bank Dick." Eddie Kline will direct.

"Glamour," starring Charles Boyer. Based upon Edna Ferber's story. Pasternak will produce and Henry Koster directs.

"Riviera," starring Allan Jones and two unnamed feminine stars. This will have an original music score by Jerome Kern and will be based on a novel by Earl Derr Biggers. Leonard Spigelgass will be associate producer.

"Little Bit of Heaven," starring Gloria Jean with Helen Parrish, Robert Stack and Lewis Howard. Pasternak will produce and Richard Wallace direct.

"Straight From the Heart," starring Gloria Jean with Robert Cummings, Nan Grey and Butch and Buddy, the kids from "The Under-Pup."

One William Seiter production.

One starring Bob Burns and Martha Raye.

"Trail of the Vigilantes," early Montana story with a historical background.

A George Marshall production as a follow up to "Destry Rides Again."

"Tight Shoes," by Damon Runyon.

One with the Ritz Brothers, produced by Jules Levey.

Two Baby Sandys. These are "Baby's Day Out" and "Butch Minds the Baby," the latter by Damon Runyon.

Victor McLaglen in "Modern Monte Cristo," with John Loder, Anne Nagel, Philip Dorn and Cecil Kellaway. Harold Schuster will direct. Marshall Grant will be associate producer.

Two Hugh Herberts. "Who's Crazy Now?" and "Slightly Tempted." The cast of the latter includes Johnny Downs, Peggy Moran, Elisabeth Risdon and George Stone. Lew Landers will direct and Ken Goldsmith produce.

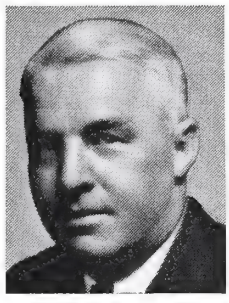
"Invisible Woman" which Joe May will direct and Burt Kelly produce.

The Andrews sisters in "Argentine Nights." Albert Rogell will direct.

"The Black Cat," based upon a comedy-horror version of the Edgar Allen Poe story.

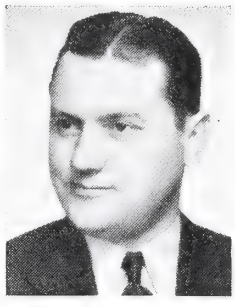
The Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys joined in two. One will be "Give Us Wings," the other, "Fighting Stowaways." Ken Goldsmith will produce.

Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in "The Monster of Zombor."



"Moonlight in Hawaii."

The balance of the 42 will be known as Marquee Productions and will be selected from these properties:



"San Francisco Docks," "Streets of Cairo," "Black Pearls," "Ragtime Cowboy Joe," "They Dance in Havana." "The Wildcat of Paris," "Rhapsody in Stripes," "The Acquittal," "Dust Bowl," "Ghost Patrol" and "Margie."

The Arlen-Devines are "Tall Timber,"

UA LOOKS TO ITS PRODUCERS TO DELIVER 26 FOR 1940-41

By BILL ORNSTEIN

NEW YORK—UA looks forward to a minimum of 26 pictures from its various producers for 1940-41, Murray Silverstone, chief company executive, declared upon his return from Hollywood where he finalized plans for the new season. A few weeks ago, it appeared UA might hit 30 for next year.

The detail goes to the eastern sales regional meetings at the Waldorf-Astoria Monday through Wednesday and to the western regional meetings at the Congress, Chicago, Thursday through Saturday.

"Only big pictures make money today," Silverstone observed on his return. He appeared happy over Samuel Goldwyn's acceptance of a personally extended invitation to attend both conventions, but shied clear of questions seeking to learn if the Goldwyn circumstance was interpretable as an extension of an olive branch. More or less regularly for weeks now, reports have been around that the Goldwyn-UA litigation might be settled amicably and out-of-court.

The UA executive likewise preferred not to discuss reports indicating Harry L. Gold, vice-president in charge of eastern sales, is about to become general sales manager, thereby ending the dual control which Gold currently shares with L. Jack Schlaifer, vice-president in charge of the west.

The following day, the UA executive, confined to his home by illness, held a bedroom interview when, in the presence of both Gold and Schlaifer, he stated flatly no change in sales control was contemplated or had been under consideration.

When asked if any new producers were in prospect, Silverstone said none. UA, therefore, will draw its product from an official roster of 13 made up of Samuel Bronston Productions, in which Globe Productions, originally formed by James Roosevelt, is merged; Charles Chaplin, Samuel Goldwyn, Alexander Korda, Sol Lesser, Ernst Lubitsch, Loew-Lewin Productions, Gabriel Pascal, Hal Roach, Richard A. Rowland, David O. Selznick, Edward Small and Walter Wanger.

Silverstone appeared quite upset over the Hollywood story in the New York Times on the day of his arrival to the effect Gene Markey, former 20th-Fox producer, was negotiating to make three a

NEW YORK—Drawing upon 13 producers for its minimum of 26 for the new season, UA's official lineup designates 19 by title. They are:

Charles Chaplin—"Production No. 6," variously titled "The Great Dictator" but not finally so. Stars Chaplin, of course, and is being directed by him with Paulette Goddard, Henry Daniell and Emma Dunn in the cast.

Samuel Goldwyn — "The Westerner," starring Gary Cooper with Doris Davenport, Walter Brennan, Fred Stone and Lillian Bond. William Wyler directed. Goldwyn plans "Natchez," starring Cooper, for a November starting date and has on his list of futures, with no indication as to availability, "Seventh Cavalry," "Hans Christian Andersen," "Tahiti," "The Little Foxes," "Black Gold," "MacIntosh" and "City Without Men." There is no indication about their distribution beyond the persistent and unchanged circumstance that UA maintains Goldwyn in its official list of producers. Beyond releasing "The Westerner" for UA handling, the producer has maintained silence on whatever else he may produce.

Alexander Korda—"The Thief of Bagdad," with Sabu, Conrad Veidt, June Duprez and John Justin, Ludwig Berger and Michael Powell directing and William Cameron Menzies producing. This was partially sold on the 1939-40 lineup, then sales effort ceased. "Womanhunt," starring Vivien Leigh and based on "Gone to Earth," a novel by Mary Webb. "Lady in the Dark," starring Merle Oberon with Melvyn Douglas in the lead.

Sol Lesser—One production. Vehicle not selected.

Ernst Lubitsch—One production. Vehicle not selected.

Loew-Lewin Productions — "Flotsam," from the novel by Erich Maria Remarque, starring Fredric March and directed by John Cromwell. "Night Music," based on the play by Cliff Odets.

Gabriel Pascal—"Major Barbara," by George Bernard Shaw. This is being directed and produced in London by Pascal with Wendy Hiller and Robert Morley in the leads.

Hal Roach—"Road Show," comedy based

Stupendous and Colossal Describe Irene Dunne Visit

Huge Crowds Storm Rialto

(Pictures on Picture Page.)
By MARION PORTER.

Now we know why stupendous and colossal are Hollywood's favorite words.

They are necessary to describe such showings as the world premiere of "My Favorite Wife" at the Rialto Theater Thursday night with Irene Dunne, Louisville-born star of the RKO-Radio picture, appearing in person.

Boyd Martin's review of the film is on page 6, section 2.

Stupendous, colossal and terrific were the crowds that surged in front of the theater in hopes of a glimpse of the famous actress. Thousands were unable to get seats inside.

Group Arrives By Plane.

Miss Dunne, together with Randolph Scott, also in the production, the director, and other movie moguls arrived by plane earlier in the day at Bowman Field.

The big events of the Kentucky visit for Miss Dunne are her appearance at the Stephen Collins Foster stamp issue celebration at Bardstown at 10:30 a.m. Friday and the Kentucky Derby Saturday, when she will sing "My Old Kentucky Home."

Upon the advice of other members of her party who told her it would be "dangerous" to enter The Rialto through the crowded front entrance, Miss Dunne reluctantly consented to abandon the traditional premiere "entrance" with lights and a word of greeting for the populace, and agreed to slip in the rear door.

Star Wears Light Blue.

Dressed in a light blue long-sleeved dinner dress and matching turban and wearing a shoulder bouquet of orchids, Miss Dunne, seated backstage with Mr. Scott, smiled at the dialogue of their picture which came from the sound box behind the screen.

Meanwhile photographers scurried about taking pictures of the stars and the director, Leo McCarey; Boyd Martin, The Courier-Journal dramatic critic, who was master of ceremonies, membled over his lines of introductions for the visitors; the crew of WAVE, which broadcast the program, ar-

D. Scholtz and Mrs. Scholtz were introduced all around and the stage hands patiently assembled a drawing room set while walking around numerous ladies in evening dress, furs and flowers and gentlemen in dinner coats.

When Miss Dunne was presented to the audience the applause was deafening and elicited pleased head-noddings among the backstage contingent. She spoke briefly in her pleasant voice and consented to sing a song—"Wishing Will Make It So."

Ticket "Scalper" Nabbed.

Mr. Martin was introduced by Burt Blackwell of WAVE. The dramatic critic presented in succession Bella and Sam Spewack, authors of the production; Walter Connolly, who played in a stock company here and who recently appeared in "The Great Victor Herbert;" Mr. McCarey, David Butler, director of "Kentucky;" Mrs. Connolly, Mr. Scott, the Mayor and Miss Dunne. Mr. Martin thanked the Fourth Avenue [illegible] Company, RKO-Radio Pictures and Johnson Musselman, manager of The Rialto, for bringing Miss Dunne and her party to Louisville. Mr. Martin, Fred J. Dolle and Dennis H. Long were hosts at a dinner party for the star preceding the premiere.

Evidence that Irene Dunne's Louisville homecoming reached the ultimate in public success was offered by the Police Department Friday night when they charged a Detroit youth, here for the Derby, with scalping tickets in connection with the premiere of Miss Dunne's picture.

The youth is Fred Karam, 20, who was charged also with disorderly conduct and vagrancy. He said he purchased eight tickets for the premiere at 45 cents each, but admitted he had to sell them, good only for standing room, at that price. He had sold six when arrested.

A real, true tear that was not a movie product came to the eye of Irene when she heard and saw the extent of the ovation that

A Typical Theatre at the Fair—

Indicative of the extent to which commercial sponsors have gone is this interior of the theatre in the Johns-Manville Building on Bowling Green Plaza at the New York World's Fair. The house seats 150, is air conditioned, runs films and charges no admission.

52,000 Amusement Seats, 6,200 Show Films Free at N. Y. Fair

The amusement area has been entirely renovated, with about 75 attractions of every conceivable entertainment nature. This represents a sizable increase over the setup last year and is additionally significant in that tariffs have been generally lowered.

The foregoing data is not intended to link up with the free film outlook for the 1940 edition of the Fair, but it remains that Ford has built a new 420-seat theatre, Lucky Strike has installed divans for its guests to view pictures, the railroad industry has increased its seating capacity in its theatre from 50 to 200 seats, New Jersey is a newcomer with a 60-seat auditorium and other governmental and industrial exhibitors have gone to additional expense to improve last year's sound apparatus.

Few Free Film Shows Lost

The Fair has lost a few free-film shows with the departure of the Russian Pavilion, the nominal charge instituted by the French Pavilion for the benefit of the Red Cross, the closing of the Frank H. Lee exhibit and its 25-seat theatre and the discontinuance of the WPA exhibit and its 299-seat auditorium. This loss in free seats already has been overcome and stands to widen as some of the darkened theatrettes are taken over by as yet unsigned sponsors.

No cross-section of what the Fair is offering this year would appear to be complete without noting the glaring and direct absence of one of the greatest of all industries—motion pictures. Radio, television, communications, transportation, petroleum, steel, glass, publishing, automotive, clothing, photography, utilities and so on down to the smallest industries are all represented in tangible, animated and progressive manner. But the film industry, again as last year, has its focal point in "Land of Liberty," showing in the Federal Building. It is the picture edited by Cecil B. DeMille, showing sequences of Americana as pieced together from 125 features.

The bulk of the other pictures have been made available by commercial sponsors and are either outright advertising in tone or treated with a semi-entertainment approach. Many are animated and these are mostly in color. The foreign film shows are virtually all of a travelogue character, although a few go into elaborate statistics. These are for the most part of eight or ten minutes duration, and are screened with greatest turnover possibilities in mind.

From a size point of view the 612-seat theatre of General Motors tops the list. The program consists of a large variety of 10-minute, 35mm shorts. The same type of policy drew for General Motors more than 1,200,000 persons last year, according to a spokesman. Safety driving hints and new line improvements make up the material for the films.

Next largest, also in the automotive field, is Chrysler, with a 500-seat theatre. The show here is novel in that the audiences view the screen through polaroid lenses which impart a three-dimensional effect.

Ford is represented with films for the first time with a new 420-seater, which provides standing room for an additional 300. The feature there runs about 45 minutes and is titled "Melody in F," being a Technicolor fantasy of cartoon technique on transformation of raw materials into cars.

Federal Building Program

The Federal Building houses a 350-seat auditorium where "Land of Liberty" is shown. The program runs continuously from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The 300-seat World of Fashion theatre features fashion films for men and women, as well as presentations of new apparel.

The government's recent efforts in the line of documentary films, such as "The Fight for Life," which is currently playing at the Belmont, "The River" and "The Plow That Broke the Plains" constitute the program in the 299-seat theatrette in the Federal Works Agency project.

National Biscuit, in the Food Building, is operating a 260-seat house featuring a cartoon in Technicolor especially produced by Walt Disney, and other subjects showing the use of packaged goods.

The Little Theatre in the Science and Education Building is planning a profusely diversified program of films. The declared success of this enterprise last year, when 43 different subjects were shown, is again expected to draw capacity crowds.

Household Finance is operating a 250-seat auditorium in the Communications Building and is repeating, in 15-minute films, the advantages and advisability of its services. The subjects are titled "Happily Ever After" and "Heap O' Livin'!" The performances run continuously from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The petroleum industry is represented with an elaborately produced 15-minute subject animated through the use of rubber puppets to demonstrate petroleum's modern uses. The showings are in a 200-seat theatre. The film is titled "Oil-Can-And Does."

In the Railroad Building, the Railway Supply Industry's exhibit is focused on a series of 16mm silent shorts in a 200-seat auditorium, enlarged from 50 seats last year. The subjects are shown daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The 196-seat theatre in the New York State building again accommodates a large variety of shorts showing the manifold functions of state departments. such as the board of education, the police and fire departments, civil service, parks, sanitation, etc.

A Macfadden Theatre

Macfadden Publications' 180-seat theatre features a 35-minute film of a typical American family and its relationship to modern advertising.

Johns-Mansville is repeating a series of educational subjects in its 156-seat auditorium dealing with acoustics, heat, cold and modernization of old houses.

International Business Machines, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and York Safe & Lock Co. are sharing the 130-seat theatre for subjects of an educational, social and scientific nature.

Maison Coty, Boys' Club of America, the states of New Jersey and Ohio, Lucky Strike and Eastman are exhibiting films in auditoriums averaging 60 to 70 seats.

Then there are the foreign countries' projects. Belgium and Great Britain are showing pertinent subjects in 225-seat theatres; Brazil, Switzerland and Sweden each are exhibiting films in 150-seaters; the Dominican Republic and the Jewish Palestine Pavilion each have about 150 seats; the Danish Pavilion, 75; Icelandic Pavilion, 50; while Cuba and Czechoslovakia have as yet not opened their theatres, the former containing 200 seats, the latter, 91.

Although the situation frequently changes without official notification, a checkup reveals that about 20 other commercial exhibitors screen all manner of 16mm subjects for stand-up viewing. These for the most part are of a strictly commercial or technical nature to demonstrate their wares.

This about completes the picture insofar as films are concerned. But it is only a drop in the bucket insofar as the rest of the show on Flushing Meadows is concerned.

Higher Admissions Only Out—Zanuck

NEW YORK—Declaring "we are taking a helluva beating in Europe," Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of 20th-Fox production, avers that the "only salvation is in increased admissions" in the domestic market. The producer outlined his opinion as he stepped off the 20th Century, arriving from the coast with William Goetz, Sol M. Wurtzel and Mack Gordon, for home office conferences with Sidney R. Kent, president.

Because of schedules made up in advance, Zanuck maintained 20th-Fox could not readjust its production budget downward. "As a matter of fact," he added, "we spend more than we announce. We can't spend less."

Taking into consideration the losses from abroad, the 20th-Fox production head continued, "I don't know where the money is coming from and how any company can break even unless admission prices are raised.

"The public is anxious to pay for pictures they want to see. The public has become highly selective in its film entertainment. That's why we are planning the greatest number of big pictures ever on our program for next season. We are hoping for big domestic grosses. Increased admissions and extended playing time will give us that."

While the company does not intend to abandon "B" pictures, Zanuck declared the smaller type film is "of no consequence."

He cited the cost of "Lillian Russell" as $1,800,000, and added properties like "Brigham Young" and one or two others had exceeded the $1,000,000 bracket. To continue his plan of high-powered pictures, Zanuck closed for "Wild Geese Calling," by Stewart Edward White, while en route to New York. The book is among the best sellers. Two others owned by the company are "Chad Hanna" and "How Green Was My Valley."

The producer appeared to be satisfied over the price he paid for two of the stories, but would not disclose the figure on the third. For "Wild Geese Calling," $50,000 was paid; for "Chad Hanna," $65,000. "How Green Was My Valley" cost more than the latter.

All indications point to a parting of the ways with Shirley Temple, who has another year to go on her contract. Zanuck, in answering reports about 20th-Fox dropping the moppet, said: "While I am here one of the things to be taken up with Mr. Kent is whether we will use Shirley Temple for the balance of her contract."

For the second year in a row, Zanuck said he had bought up Alice Faye's free radio time. He said he was still against stars appearing on the air unless the tieup had a direct connection with a particular picture.

Although the government has been vitally interested in Zanuck's arrival for pre-trial examination, the producer was not served with a subpoena as he alighted from the Century. Zanuck said he expected to testify by deposition.

Fox Sales Plan Set, Regardless of Suit

New York—That 20th-Fox's sales policy for the new season is set and the company is going ahead despite the all-industry suit is emphasized by Sidney R. Kent, president.

"If we had to wait for developments in the suit in Washington and New York that would take four to five years," Kent avers.

Although Darryl F. Zanuck, William Goetz and Sol Wurtzel were in New York this week for production conferences with him, Kent plans to head for the coast later in the month.

Schenck Pact Extension 20th-Fox Topic May 27

NEW YORK—Extension of the contract held by Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, may be acted upon at the board meeting May 27. Contracts of both Darryl F. Zanuck, in charge of production, and Schenck were slated for consideration at the annual stockholders' meeting.

Only action was taken on Zanuck's contract which was extended for five years.

Plan Concentration on Weekend Booking

NEW YORK—A greater concentration on Saturday and Sunday dates is on 20th Century-Fox's selling agenda for 1940-41. Herman Wobber, general manager of distribution, registered the point at the Chicago sales convention, a transcript of his address there now reveals.

Stressing those instances where the selling force will be required to direct greater attention, he said:

"If we analyze the results of all our sales in the final completed form, we would find we probably wasted several millions of dollars through improper protection of our contracts. And in saying that I am not referring to the percentage or price terms you obtained, but rather am I referring to our failure to have contracts fulfilled as written. Our failure to specify the proper number of days—the proper days of the week—and the proper houses in which pictures should be played.

"The absence of Saturday and Sunday playtime on our top pictures is entirely too costly to be overlooked and this is a matter that we are going to watch very carefully this year when contracts are submitted.

"The privilege of playing the greater percentage of our pictures in situations where we sell to ownerships that control three or four houses and through which they have a right to play the bulk of our pictures in the poorest houses is another matter of great cost to us.

"We have been careless in many instances in not selling an adequate number of pictures on percentage; and in many instances of selling too few pictures in too many localities. Our great weakness is that we enjoy the best terms obtained on any contract on entirely too few pictures."

Solon From California Finds Bill 'Uncertain, But Drastic'

WASHINGTON — The Neely block-booking bill is "an uncertain but drastic" effort to regulate prices and transactions in the motion picture business "that is likely to produce quite unexpected and devastating results," according to Representative John M. Costello of California.

The bill he said, "is offered as a legislative patent medicine to cure all the ills of the motion picture industry, but it contains a slow poison as its active ingredient."

Explaining the composition, operations, practices and difficulties of the film industry in a lengthy article in the Congressional Record, Costello declared that it is an industry set apart from all others in that its prices and transactions cannot be governed by the rules which apply generally between wholesaler and retailer.

Explaining that a standard price for films is impossible because one theatre is able to pay more than another and one picture may be worth more than another, even in the same location, the congressman pointed out that these conditions resulted in selling on what he designated as a "horse trading" basis, with distributor and exhibitor each seeking to make the best deal possible.

"Since what is bartered has uncertainties and contingencies much greater than is predictable as to its ultimate value there is an inherent premium upon attempts at sharp trading," he admitted.

Marketing "Uncertain"

As a result, the business "is kept in a turmoil of disputes, arguments and controversies brought about by the fact that the marketing of the exhibition rights has to be on this uncertain basis, with the suspicion always present that the other fellow is getting the better of the bargain, or that a better bargain could be secured if it could be done over again," he added. "Years of experience have developed many shrewd traders in this field on both sides, many ingenious and resourceful tactics to secure commercial advantages in this bargaining and trading," he said. "To complicate the matter even further, there are numerous factors other than the picture itself and the theatre itself that affect the value of the exhibition rights bargained for and the prices paid for such exhibition rights. Some of these are psychological, such as the efforts of exhibitors to convince the distributors that their business is bad and not up to expectations, and to keep secret the actual receipts on the distributors' pictures."

Explaining that block booking is merely wholesale selling, Costello pointed out the desirability to a distributor of accepting an offer for all his pictures over that of a competitor who wanted only part of them. Thus, he contended, it is the competitive buying between rival exhibitors that exercises the compulsion in block booking.

The Neely bill, he said, does not prohibit block booking but only "compulsory" block booking, and, he added, "apparently the sponsors of this legislation realize that this compulsion, at least in part, is based upon the compelling desire of the exhibitor to secure the best possible terms in buying motion pictures for his theatre, because the important part of section 3, the block booking section of the Neely bill, is concerned with regulating the prices quoted by the wholesale distributor to the exhibitor on the exhibition rights offered for sale."

Warning to Congress

"Exactly what pricing or price quotations by the wholesale distributor it is intended to declare illegal and punishable under the act appears to be uncertain and ambiguous," he continued. "But as this is the heart of the act, it should be examined carefully and clearly understood before Congress ventures into the field of price-control legislation for an industry that has the peculiarities of the motion picture to contend with in its marketing and pricing problem.

"Independent theatre owners who have examined the price control provisions of section 3 of the Neely bill, and who are familiar with practical theatre operation and management responsibilities, are alarmed at its possible interpretation and application to their business by the courts under the severe penalties provided for any violations. In their opinion it will arbitrarily freeze the asking prices first quoted by each distributor on its pictures, which is usually somewhat higher than those finally agreed upon, will prevent negotiations for more favorable prices and terms, and will prohibit price discounts and reductions by the wholesale distributor to secure orders for more than one picture.

"It is strongly urged that an arbitrary requirement by statute will force an artificial and very substantial increase in film costs, particularly to the smaller theatres, with no improvement likely in quality or values, which may prove disastrous to many small independent exhibitors,

Col., WB, Last Majors To Set Conventions

NEW YORK—The last two majors to set dates for sales conventions are Columbia and Warner. With all others either having cleared their conclaves or already committed to future dates and locales, only Republic is to be heard from.

Columbia is down for a three-day session in Chicago, to start June 4, to be followed for a like period June 11 in Atlantic City.

Warner will open the first of two meetings in Pittsburgh June 10, to run for three days, with the second regional getting under way in Chicago June 17, also for three days. The company states its original plans for a national meeting in Washington to have started June 10 was canceled "for reasons of practicality and economy."

Tactics to Pursue Plaguing Neelyites

WASHINGTON—Faced with an early conclusion of the Congressional session, proponents of the Neely block booking bill are torn between the desire to make a smashing showing of the need for such legislation and, the knowledge that if the hearings before the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce are too long prolonged chances of securing action on the floor will be proportionately diminished.

Hearings on the block booking legislation will open before the House committee May 13 with the Senate judiciary committee scheduled to swing into action three days later on the Neely divorce bill.

Secretaries of neither committee could give any estimate of the number of applications for time which have been filed nor the length of the hearings, but admitted that "hundreds" of requests have been sent in by individuals and organizations who want to tell the members just why the two measures should be enacted without delay.

Seek to Shorten Hearings

The House committee is making an effort to shorten the hearings by asking that where groups represent individual interests or areas they appoint one representative to speak for all, but it was not believed much headway was being made in that direction due to the fact that many of those who have applied for time believe that he or she is qualified as no one else to present the particular viewpoint which it is desired to bring out.

Unless the hearings on block booking can be restricted to a very few days, it is hardly likely that the committee will be able to reach any decision before the end of the session, now looked for very early in June.

On the other hand, estimates of the time required for the hearings, on the basis of the appearances which have been filed, run from two weeks to a month, the latter a period which would make adjournment of the session and the end of the hearings simultaneous.

See No Divorce Push

On the Senate side, there is no indication that any effort will be made to push the divorce bill through the Senate this year unless the session is prolonged beyond present expectations. It is not believed that the hearings will be very lengthy, since proponents of the bill have said they might be able to present their entire case in as little as two days, but it is expected that the committee will require considerable time to make a decision on the measure, particularly from the standpoint of constitutionality.

It is recalled in Washington that the same committee two years ago held hearings on a measure providing for divorce for the oil industry, but never took any action because of doubts as to the constitutionality of the legislation. A House committee, incidentally, held similar hearings last year and pigeonholed the bill.

Chasms Created by Legislation Must Be Bridged-Kuykendall

KANSAS CITY—While the outcome of legislation pending against the industry and the government suit against major producers and distributors is important, the ultimate fate of the trade will depend upon the ability of different factions to bridge the chasms that will be created by such legislation, in the opinion of Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, who expressed his views in a brief stopover en route to the Los Angeles meeting of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners.

"The most desperate need today," said Kuykendall, "is for exhibitors and distributors alike to forsake provincialism and its attendant concentration on local problems for the national industrial welfare. The problems we have in this respect are quite similar to those confronting a congressman when he must consider the welfare of the nation instead of the immediate benefit accruing to his particular locality. Whenever the legislative barrage has subsided, and the big guns of litigation have echoed into the background, as eventually they must, there remains the greater job of reconstruction, which will be made far easier and less costly if all factions in the trade now will realize the magnitude of this job and conduct themselves in these preliminary proceedings accordingly."

Addressing an informal gathering of theatre owners here, Kuykendall reiterated his opposition to the Neely bill, predicating it almost entirely upon the economic and political aspects rather than the moral. He said that the contention the bill was a necessity on moral and community selection grounds had been rather completely disproved and asserted that many public groups he had addressed in the south recently had gone on record against the measure.

Kuykendall will attend Neely bill hearings in Washington starting May 13.

Colman Stars for RKO In Five of 10 From UPC

HOLLYWOOD—Swelling its ranks of outside producers, RKO gets Ronald Colman as a star in five of ten pictures to be made by United Producers Corp. in the next three years. The company is headed by William B. Hawks as president and executive producer. A brother of Howard, the director, this will be William's first venture in production from the agency field.

George J. Schaefer, RKO president, set the deal while here.

California Solon Dubious on Neely

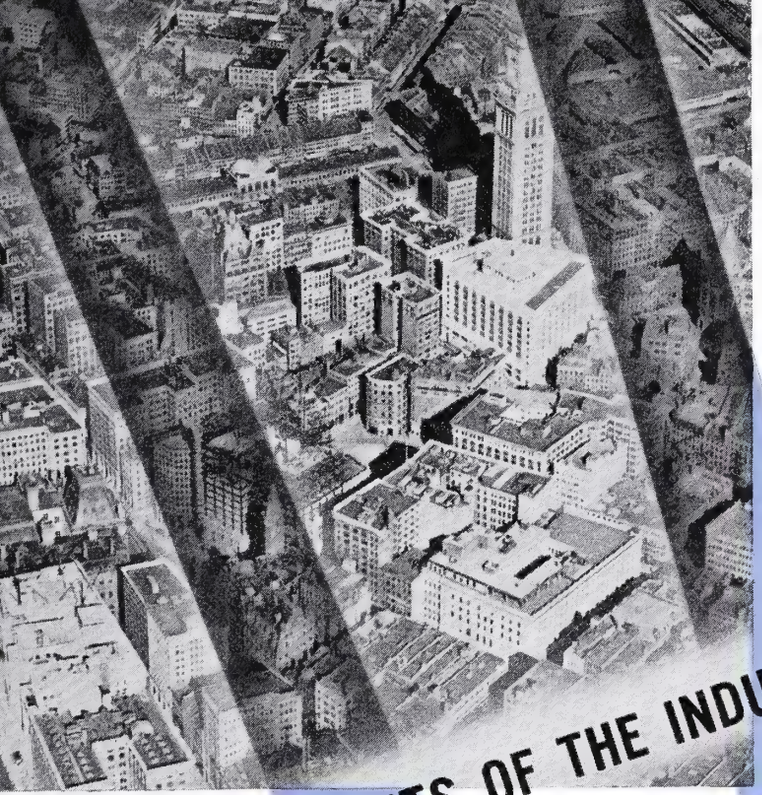
though possibly not contemplated or understood by the supporters of this legislation.

"Exactly how the exhibition rights to motion pictures must be priced according to the specifications of section 3 of the bill when offered to an exhibitor by the wholesale distributor, what changes in the quoted prices are allowed during negotiations, and just what changes are forbidden, and specifically what arrangement of prices and percentage terms finally agreed upon will be within the law are matters of considerable doubt that have never been made explicit. To impose such uncertainties and risks of fine and imprisonment on the innumerable transactions of the motion picture industry seems intolerable."

The other operative section of the bill, dealing with blind selling, is equally uncertain of application, the Congressman asserted, and "no one quite knows what would be required to comply with the prescribed 'accurate synopsis of the contents of such film' and other descriptive matter specified."

Finally, he said, while "no one quarrels with the avowed purposes" of the bill to bring about the exhibition of better pictures, there is nothing in the measure to prohibit the showing of objectionable pictures or to require the showing of the finest. Rather, he asserted, "it is merely an uncertain but drastic bill to regulate wholesale prices and commercial transactions between the wholesale dealers and the retail dealers in the motion picture business that is likely to produce quite unexpected and devastating results. It is offered as a legislative patent medicine to cure all the ills of the motion picture industry, but it contains a slow poison as its active ingredient. I strongly urge the members of Congress to examine the operative sections of the Neely bill carefully before taking the responsibility of imposing it upon the motion picture industry as a federal statute."



Wanger to Concentrate On Bigger Features

HOLLYWOOD—Walter Wanger is through with programmers and will concentrate on bigger attractions at a minimum cost of $1,000,000 each for 1940-41. "Foreign Correspondent," based on "Personal History," by Vincent Sheean, is understood to have gone over that figure already and the film is not completed.

The producer, therefore, will trim his total output. This season with "Winter Carnival" as a carryover from last, he did four. Next season, the peak will be three. Wanger plans a New York trip when he finishes "Foreign Correspondent" and "The Long Voyage Home."

Hecht to Coast

NEW YORK—Ben Hecht has gone to the coast on a one-picture deal for Columbia, calling for him to direct "Before I Die."

From Michigan to Wisconsin New Theatres Are on the Way

BOXOFFICE, in the issue of May 4, published its quarterly survey embracing the first three months of the year. It covered 37 states, revealing 81 houses are planned, 65 are actually under construction while 69 opened in that period. Detail dealing with 11 states not included in the first installment and Canada, follows:

Michigan

Berkeley—A new theatre is to be built here.

Birmingham—A new house is contemplated here.

Cass City—C. H. Schuckert's new Cass had a late March opening.

Deckerville—Joseph P. Uvick opened his new 350-seat Thumb in January.

Detroit—Wisper & Wetsman are erecting a 2,500 seater at Seven Mile and Meyers Roads in the northwestern section.

The Broder circuit has opened its third house here, known as the Time and seating 680.

Komer & Goldberg announce plans for a new house in the northwest section to be called either the Cornell or the Oxford. They also plan a theatre on the Seven Mile Road, tentatively called the Sherwood, and a third house in Royal Oak, northend suburb.

Ecorse—Construction on the new Harbor at Outer Drive and W. Jefferson Ave. has been started for Andrew Bzovi and will seat 1,200. A September opening is scheduled.

Farmington—Associated Theatres will build a new theatre.

Flint—The new Nortown, a 900 seater, was opened by Dr. A. Eiseman late in February.

Melvindale—A new house is to be erected for Louis Schlussel.

Plymouth—Harry Lush will have a new house here.

Wayne—Walter Shafer is planning a second house.

Oregon

Bend—Hodkinson & Blount's new house, the Tower, had an early March opening.

Seaside—Construction has started on Eddie Callahan's new house, which will seat 650.

Pennsylvania

Altoona—The new Rivoli in the Llyswen residential district is now open.

Fairdale—A new 500 seater costing upwards of $45,000 is now under construction for Benny Gugliotta and Sons.

Charleroi—Robert S. Coyle will erect a new theatre to accommodate 900.

Ebensburg—Plans have been completed for a new theatre on High St., opening within 60 days is expected.

Work will start at once on a new theatre to replace the Rivoli which was destroyed by fire several months ago. It will accommodate 700 at an estimated cost of $50,000.

East McKeesport—The site has been cleared for Frederick Theatre Co.'s new 500 seater to be erected at Broadway and Fifth.

Media—Building reports show that Harry Dembow will erect another house here.

Meadville—The theatre under construction on Water Street will be owned by Grace Boehm.

Munhall—Construction has been started on a theatre by John S. Stahl.

Philadelphia—Sam Stiefel is building a new house in Roxborough, as is Charles Kirkel.

Pittsburgh—The new Whitehall Amusement theatre is now under construction in the Brentwood district.

The new Gerard in the West View section opened in January.

Shadyside district is to have a theatre on Walnut St. near Aiken Ave.

Sunbury—L. J. Chamberlain is building the Island Park.

Rhode Island

Pawtucket—The zoning board has approved plans for a 900-seat theatre in the Darlington section. It will cost about $50,000 and be ready by the fall.

Harry Brandt intends to build here.

Providence—It is the intention of Harry Brandt to include this city in his operations.

South Carolina

Calhoun Falls—A new theatre is under construction by W. M. Broadwell at an approximate cost of $10,000.

Latta—The new house which opened here is called the Latta and is operated by R. E. Atkinson and J. W. McMillan.

Rock Hill—Robert E. Bryant has handed out the contract for construction of a 750-seat theatre which will be completed soon.

Tennessee

Knoxville—Construction on the 600-seat Sunset is expected to be completed within three months, according to W. E. Drumbar, owner.

Memphis—Bernard Woolner expects to open Memphis' first drive-in theatre this spring.

Nashville—The new Belle Meade is expected to be completed shortly, according to the Crescent Amusement Co.

Paris—The New Princess was opened by B. F. Biggs.

Texas

Alvarado—Will Barnes' new theatre has opened. This replaces the old one wiped out by fire.

Corpus Christi—Work on the new theatre on North Beach is progressing and is expected to be ready sometime this month. Seating capacity is 400 and the cost is about $17,000.

Dallas—Construction of a theatre on the Cole estate on North Fitzhugh has been approved by the zoning board.

El Paso—The new Pershing located at Five Points opened the latter part of March.

Garrison—Kenneth McFarland recently opened a theatre here.

Honey Grove—The new State opened early in March.

Houston—Albert Farb is building a $125,000 house to be called the Hollywood and seating 1,200 in the Riverside section.

A second drive-in theatre for Texas is now under construction for the Texas Drive-In Theatre Co.

Lisbon—A new 500-seat theatre is to be erected adjacent to the U. S. Veterans' Hospital and will be managed by Irving Lambert.

The OK Theatres Circuit is building a new theatre in the southernmost limits.

San Antonio—Carl Milentz of Houston plans to construct an all-Negro theatre on East Commerce St.

Tenaha—The Queen was recently opened by E. Lee Scarborough.

Tyler—A building permit has been granted the Texas Consolidated Theatres, Inc. for a new 1,000-seat house.

Virginia

Arlington—The new 700-seat house here is another link in the Neighborhood Theatres chain.

Richmond—The Lichtman Theatre Corp. of Washington is building a 450-seat theatre on W. Cary St. for colored patronage.

Herbert Green will also build a colored theatre.

Waverly—Hal Lyons is building a new theatre.

Washington

Battleground—M. A. Rhoads of Woodland was reported to have opened his new theatre here before giving it a name.

Clarkston—A new theatre, scheduled for an early summer opening, will be erected by the Mercy Circuit.

Kelso—William Ripley says he is planning a new house.

West Virginia

Beckley—Plans are set for a new theatre seating 850 and costing about $60,000

: —And in Canada :

In the first quarter of 1940, Canada witnessed the opening of four new theatres, the launching of three and decisions to build three, according to surveys made by BOXOFFICE correspondents. They reported:

Opened

Alberni, B. C.—Harold Warren opened his new theatre, the Roxy, recently. It seats 300.

Guelph, Ont.—The latest link in the Famous Players Canadian chain was opened in late March and is known as the Palace.

Toronto, Ont.—David Romberg is manager of the Colony which opened here recently and seats 700.

Wallaceburg, Ont. — Tony Allevato opened his new house recently.

In Construction

Hamilton, Ont.—Scheduled to open in July, the York is under construction here and will be operated by L. Gregory.

Islington, N. B.—Brock Farrow will manage the Kingsway now under construction.

Montreal—Windsor Theatres is progressing with the construction of a house at Ottawa St. and Moy Ave.

Planned

Edmonton, Alta.—Construction on the tenth theatre here to be erected at an approximate cost of $25,000 will start shortly and will be located on the south side.

Moncton, N. B.—A new theatre with a capacity of 1,000 or more will be erected on the corner of St. George and Weldon Sts.

Wells, B. C.—Reports are current this town is to have a new theatre to be operated by Levi Graham.

Griffis Urges U. S. To Let Films Alone

LOS ANGELES—Pleading for the continued independence of the "nation's most widely-patronized art," Stanton Griffis, chairman of the Paramount executive committee, charges the government in its current attack is pointing its heaviest guns at an industry which has consistently refrained from exerting its own vast potential influence on the government.

In an address before the Town Hall, a weekly luncheon club composed of local business men, Griffis stated the government is beginning its offensive at the moment when the foreign situation has made the industry's position the most difficult in its history.

Calling attention to the current plight of the industry, Griffis outlined the problems which now confront it. "A great combination of art and business finds itself today beset on every side by attacks of local, state and federal agencies, in the courts and the legislature," Griffis said.

"We are harassed by such congressional bills as the Neely bill; harassed and tormented by suits of the department of justice aimed toward forcing the major companies to separate theatre ownership from production; worn down by taxes of every conceivable nature; inhibited and limited by almost 100 censor boards which have sprung up around the country; all at a time when an unprecedented collapse of foreign income is upon us due to the breakdown of foreign currencies and the war."

"Sticks to Its Knitting"

The political paradox of the government's attack on the industry was compared by Griffis to Hollywood's conspicuous aloofness from partisan politics and propaganda.

"This is an industry," the Paramount executive affirmed, "that consistently, even if not quietly, sticks to its knitting of furnishing amusement, laughter, entertainment and escape; spends its far-flung energy in making the world a happier place to live in, and resolutely endeavors to keep out of the field of politics and propaganda."

Griffis contended if the companies so desired they could within a very short time influence public opinion as to elect a congress and a president. He added motion pictures probably have more influence on the lives of the younger generation than most schools and colleges put together.

Speaking as a New York financier and businessman, Griffis took issue with those who claim that government regulation is the way to improve quality of pictures and asked the industry be allowed to solve its own problems in the future as it had in the past.

Declaring films have reached the point where they educate as well as entertain, he said, "It is a remarkable truth that perhaps this development is followed by the fact that, as pictures become better, they invite more intellectual and intelligent criticism and tend to create, not obscure, the growth of perfectionism."

Griffis defined his own position as an organizer of art. He quoted a prominent Paramount theatre partner as saying "the greatest art in the world is art of the organization of art" and described his job as just that.

Goldwyn Suit No Korda Cross-Country Topic

the former stated. Korda also has a motion up in court to dismiss the action as it applies against him, and this phase assertedly was not mentioned either.

But taking the matter by and large, Korda feels that the situation will be straightened out eventually. He said he was not concerned with details of the action and was not familiar with what legal developments were taking place in the local federal and Wilmington courts.

Korda was slated to take a Clipper to England to resume work on two pictures planned there and for UA's schedule next season. He did not know the names of the stories to be chosen, although several are being considered. He also has a number of players lined up and arrangements will be set on his arrival at Denham Studios. Two pictures annually for two years in Hollywood also are planned.

The British-American producer is not taking his wife, Merle Oberon, with him for the four to five weeks he expects to be gone.

When a newspaperman asked Goldwyn and Korda if their trip east was in connection with the former's suit, both denied it.

Roach Rounding Out Bank Loan Details

NEW YORK—In addition to attending the UA convention here, Hal Roach arrived from the coast, with a stopover at Louisville for the Kentucky Derby, to complete final details of a $6,000,000 loan from Bankers Trust Co. of New York and Security-First National Bank of Los Angeles.

While here, the producer finalized plans with Bankers Trust which will participate in the financing of six pictures planned for next season. Up to the present, the Los Angeles bank has been financing Roach alone. Of the $6,000,000, approximately $500,000 will be spent on advertising.

Victor Mature, who plays the male lead in "One Million B. C.," is being groomed by Roach as star material. The player is set in two pictures with a possibility of a third for next season.

Also while here, Roach looked over the new batch of plays and conferred with his eastern representative, Thomas C. Walker, and Grace Rosenfield, who handles the talent and publicity end of the local office.

Actress Pact Settled

LONDON—It is reported here Gracie Fields has settled her 20th Century-Fox contract by mutual assent.

"U," After Domestic Peak, Steps to 59 for New Year

"Leather Pushers," "South of the Amazon," "Skyhawks," "The Wreck of the Zaraga," "The Return of the Sheik" and "Northern Lights." Christy Cabanne will direct and Ben Pivar produce.

The Johnny Mack Browns with Fuzzy Knight and Julie Duncan, new stunt girl, are "Son of Roaring Dan," "Man From Cheyenne," "Forgotten Valley." "Calgary Stampede," "Martial Law," "Vigilante" and "The Lariat Kid." Joseph G. Sanford will be associate producer.

The short subject lineup includes 13 two reel musical shorts, 13 one reelers, a two reel special, 15 "Stranger Than Fiction" and 15 "Going Places." Universal News continues at its accustomed two issues a week. Six cartoons are to be reissued. Known as Color Cartune Classics, titles are "Jolly Little Elves," "Toyland Premiere," "Springtime Serenade," "Three Lazy Mice," "Candyland" and "The Fox and the Rabbit."

Four serials likewise in the schedule are to be Dick Foran in "Winners of the West," the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys in "Junior G-Men," "The Green Hornet Strikes Again" and "The Leopard's Claw." Henry MacRae will produce the last-named three.

In a statement of policy, Scully declared, "While Universal joins with the other producing and distributing companies in the belief that the exhibitors of America must help in the fight to retain and even improve the level of production values on motion pictures which must now look almost exclusively to the domestic field for profitable distribution, the company, nevertheless, holds to the conviction that such cooperation on the part of exhibitors should not be forced upon the basis of production costs alone. The resulting product must be meritorious and boxoffice."

Although a second regional will be held at the Drake, Chicago, beginning Saturday and terminating Monday, William J. Heineman, western sales manager, is attending the eastern meeting here. Similarly, Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager, will attend the Windy City sessions. Scully, of course, presides at both.

The home office group here includes Nate J. Blumberg, president of the company, and Cliff Work, head of the studio. Others are Joseph H. Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign sales; Leo Abrams, short subject sales manager; Morris Alin, Oscar Binder, J. Jordan, John E. Joseph, Charles Kirby, Hank Linet, C. Margon, James Miller, E. T. Murray, Louis Pollock, Adolph Schimel, Andy Sharick and Herman Stern. District managers from the field include Harry Graham, A. J. Herman and Dave Miller.

From the field are these exchange managers, salesmen and bookers:

Albany—Jere Spandau, manager; Joe Engel, special representative; I. Shiffman and C. Weill.

Atlanta—John T. Ezell, manager; L. Brauer, E. Cox, R. Gann, C. Jordan and T. Miller jr.

Boston—W. P. Kelly, manager; J. Callahan, F. P. Dervin, H. J. Martin, J. H. Murphy, W. Murphy, E. Warren and J. R. Wilson

Buffalo—J. J. Scully, manager; W. F. Bork, J. Fater, C. Heerdt and L. J. Leiser.

Charlotte—Paul Baron, manager; J. W. Bishop, R. Good, J. W. Greenleaf and R. Masterman.

Cincinnati—Peter Rosian, manager; G. B. Gomersall, Nate Le Vene jr., J. Marks, F. Schreiber and H. W. Young.

Cleveland—J. R. Kauffman, manager; J. Frew, J. Krenitz, G. Rosenbaum and A. W. Young.

Dallas—E. S. Olsmith, manager; E. Green, J. M. Lutzer, L. D. Lutzer, C. M. Miller, J. E. Mitchell and W. Pittinger.

Memph.s—J. A. Prichard, manager; L. H. Andrews, B. Jordan and H. Mansfield.

New Haven—Morris Joseph, manager, and J. Pavone.

New Orleans—W. M. ("Snake") Richardson, manager; N. Lamantia, C. McMillan and E. O'Neill.

New York—Dave A. Levy, manager; W. Benson, M. Cohen, H. Furst, N. Goldberg, J. Liggett, B. Price, L. Simon and P. Winnick.

Oklahoma City—James Hobbs, manager; M. Holstein, H. H. Martin and White Cliff jr.

Philadelphia—G. F. Schwartz, manager; W. J. Doyle, Jack Engel, F. Fortunate, M. Koppelman, J. Leon and S. Perlswe g.

Pittsburgh—J. Lapidus, manager; D. Barnholtz, S. Feld, F. Guehl, L. Hess and W. Satori.

Washington—Bernie Kreisler, manager; O. Blumenthal, W. E. Davis, B. Frank, S. Tabor and L. J. Young.

Canada is represented by Clair Hague, Paul Nathanson and M. Perry.

Suit Settlement Hints Continue

with this unusual procedure is as mysterious to lawyers for the defendants as it is to some of the local special assistants to the attorney general, it is learned.

But something is expected to happen shortly. In the event another suit is filed in a different city and jurisdiction, counsel for distributors are expected to take advantage of the dismissal by asking that it be made prejudicial.

Gov't Asked Dismissal Rather Than Tip Hand

WASHINGTON—The government moved for dismissal of the Griffith suit in Oklahoma City rather than tip its hand by furnishing what it feared was too broad a bill of particulars, it is explained here. If a dismissal motion is granted, the way is left open to appeal on the question of whether the particulars demanded were too sweeping. After a decision, the case could be re-filed.

Michigan to Wisconsin, New Theatres on Way

by Carl Meadows and W. A. Stanley of the Lyric Theatre Co.

Cairo—The Grant, Bill Heaton's new house, opened recently. It seats 280.

Cameron—The new theatre which will be opened here at an early date has been named the Rees.

Dunbar—Construction has been started on a modern 800-seat theatre by Lester Rosenfeld at a cost of more than $100,000.

Fairmont—The new Lee has opened.

Marmet—The new Marmet, Harry McHaffie's theatre, seating about 700 has opened.

Nitro—Clemence & Hensley have a June 1 opening in mind for the new house here.

Shinnston—Plans have been completed for a new theatre to replace the one destroyed by fire.

Wisconsin

Brookfield—A new drive-in is being erected here.

Pulaski—Mrs. Fred Ziehm is building a new house.

Sturgeon Bay—A new 800-seat theatre is being erected by George Hannon.

Sawyer—A new house to be called the Bay View will be constructed this spring.

Goldwyn Hits N. Y., Brings Cue Along

NEW YORK—Fewer and better pictures, higher rentals and higher admission prices make up the triple-barreled solution offered by Samuel Goldwyn for the industry's current ailments.

In fine fettle in a press interview in his Waldorf-Astoria suite, the producer reaffirmed his oft-repeated axiom that what the industry needs is quality, not quantity.

"I feel the same amount of money spent on 600 pictures should be spent on 200," is the way Goldwyn puts it.

A raise in admission price is essential, according to Goldwyn, who observes, "No exhibitor will raise the price unless the picture is worthy of it."

In keeping with his beliefs, Goldwyn is introducing some innovations for the sale of "The Westerner." He says every exchange will have a print so exhibitors can view the film before buying it.

"Anyone who wants to buy the picture can see it first," he declares. "I'll show it to exhibitors all over the country. If they don't like it, they don't have to buy it. After all, I put my hard-earned money into it and I'll tell them what I want."

World premiere of "The Westerner" will take place in Fort Worth, Texas, June 25-27. The film, which will be released by UA on its 1940-41 program, will be unreeled for the first time before delegates at the eastern divisional sales meeting here Monday night.

Goldwyn also plans to attend the western sales session in Chicago. He places no significance on his presence at both conventions except for his interest in the sale of his picture. For the producer shed no light on his relations with UA. "It's all in the brief," he said in countering questions about his reported out-of-court settlement with the distributing company.

He says quite definitely, although his studio is working on important properties, that his plans for the future are not settled. "What's the use of getting oil out, unless you know what pipe-line it is going through?" he asks.

Drastic changes in production will have to take place in production, Goldwyn maintains. He does not expect negative costs to be pruned, but instead, looks for an increase.

"One thing about eliminating bad pictures," he points out, "is it will eliminate a lot of incompetents who make them. Making fewer pictures will do that."

Goldwyn believes the Neely bill is "terrible," except in that it would eliminate block booking.

Majors Again Move To Re-Open Italy

NEW YORK—A last stab at Italy will be made by the majors through the state department via Ambassador William A. Phillips in Rome. The foreign managers, BOXOFFICE learns on good authority, have rejected the proposals resulting from conferences between Vezio Orazi, head of the Italian government monopoly, and F. W. Allport, Hays office representative, held in Rome last week.

Allport was informed direct distribution would not be permitted nor would the American companies be allowed to buy control of existing Italian distributing companies. The negotiations, however, were carried on in a friendly manner and it is reported Orazi signified a willingness to make a number of concessions.

Foreign managers have reaffirmed their stand on direct distribution and it is highly doubtful whether they will relinquish it at this point, it is said.

As BOXOFFICE reported last week, distributors were placing their hopes on the current exchanges taking place between Washington and Rome over a new commercial trade treaty or reciprocal trade agreement.

The state department will place before the highest officials in Rome the following:

American companies will not sell pictures to Italy unless they can do so under their own management. Otherwise, Italy cannot expect any concessions or compromises from the distributors.

The Italian plan, as submitted to Allport, would allow distributors to sell 75 pictures to Italian franchise holders for a flat price of $750,000 which would be allocated among the eight companies.

It was also suggested the blocked lire of the American companies be used for Italian production with the American companies keeping the foreign exchange earned by the picture abroad.

As an alternative to selling pictures at a flat price, the American companies might arrange for percentage contracts with Italian distributors. A flat amount on each picture would be paid to the American distributor and remitted in dollars. Then the American distributor would receive as percentage an amount not to exceed a fixed sum which could not be transferred in dollars.

One executive in summing up the situation said it was sine judicie, which can be literally translated as being "before the judge" or "in the laps of the diplomatic gods."

Bigger Films, But Less, Outlook In London Under Money Quota

NEW YORK—Bigger and fewer pictures probably will be produced by distributors in England as a result of the optional monetary quota. Under the agreement, the distributors must produce one British picture for every 100,000 feet of film imported, short subjects and newsreels excluded, with labor costs equalling three pounds per foot.

The original footage quota remains in effect at 22½ per cent. Currently distributors are producing a number of single British quota pictures which are profitable in the British Empire as features suitable for duals.

Main inspiration for the monetary quota is the desire of some distributors to produce top pictures suitable for world consumption. The example set by M-G-M with three successful British features in a row, no doubt influenced other distributors to do likewise. Another important reason is that as long as 50 per cent of the revenue is "frozen," distributors feel it can be satisfactorily applied for the production of quality pictures.

M-G-M to Continue In England—Asher

NEW YORK—Those reports being circulated that M-G-M planned to discontinue production in England are untrue, according to Irving Asher. Rather, it is the intention to increase the number of pictures to be made there, if possible, he states.

Leaving over the weekend with E. J. Mannix, studio executive, Asher explained he was going to England to make a special report on the situation for Louis B. Mayer. The duo planned to be away four or five weeks. Asher denied he would make any films in England for M-G-M. His wife remains in Hollywood while he is abroad.

Two reasons are given for the trip. One is that the studio has had no transatlantic telephone communications with Ben Goetz since the latter went over some time ago. Secondly, cable advices are meager and the only way a complete report can be made is for one to go over and see for himself.

Further emphasizing the falsity of the discontinuance reports, Asher declared "the only thing to stop us from producing in England is for the studio to be bombed."

Building in China Goes On, Despite the War

NEW YORK—Despite the severe handicap placed upon importation of commodities and the unsettled financial condition in the Orient, the Chinese are continuing activities in the new theatre field, according to D. D. Wight, former manager of Western Electric's activities in Shanghai and Manila. He is here on his first visit in four years.

There has been a considerable number of theatre openings in China, he states, and exhibitors there are striving to offer as much entertainment as possible. Some new building has been going on in Shanghai, Hongkong and Tientsin and the Japanese have reopened some houses in the occupied areas. Considerable building has taken place in the Philippines during the past year.

Wight has been transferred to the Erpi foreign department here and is succeeded by H. von Seppelin in Shanghai.

Australian Restrictions In Effect for One Year

NEW YORK—Distributors have been notified by the Australian government that the 50 per cent restriction on remittances from that country is in effect from March 1 of this year to Feb. 28, 1941.

Last minute efforts of the distributors to get the Australians to increase the allocation of revenue to 75 per cent proved fruitless. The distributors argued that as long as England is "freezing" 50 per cent, Australia should only retain 25 per cent.

Based on figures for year ending June 30, 1939, majors will be allowed to withdraw only 50 per cent of an approximate total of $9,100,000. As in the English plan, 75 per cent of the $4,520,000 may be withdrawn the first six months and the balance the last six.

Louisville, Hollywood, Then New York—

Trainshed scene as S. Barret McCormick, Ned E. Depinet and George J. McCormick returned Saturday. His fellow travelers are due Monday.

Suit Vs. Columbia Dismissed in Part

NEW YORK—Biggest court news of the week was the partial dismissal of a stockholders' action against Columbia, its officers and directors by Supreme Court Justice Philip McCook. The judge tossed out that portion of the action which sought an accounting on salaries received over six years ago and bonuses paid to Jack and Harry Cohn and Joe Brandt in 1929. The balance of the action charging waste and mismanagement remains.

Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell has denied a plea by Gustav Delemos, unsuccessful bidder for the Grand National property, to reopen the sale. The high bid was $17,500 by Mohawk Pictures Corp. who also agreed to pay the trustee 30 per cent of the gross to $100,000 and 50 per cent thereafter, with the trustee estimating the additional revenue at $50,000-$55,000. Delemos had bid $37,500 outright for the property, but the creditors' committee accepted the percentage bid.

Reserves GN Decision

Federal Judge Edward A. Conger has reserved decision on an application by Harry G. Fromberg, trustee of Grand National, to throw James A. Davidson, trustee of Educational Pictures, Inc., out of office, and appoint him in Davidson's place. Fromberg claims Davidson, a former GN employee, would not render impartial verdicts. Davidson claims he left GN long before the present officers were connected with the company.

Trial of Paramount's suit against the collector of internal revenue for $134,134 in allegedly excess taxes paid in 1930 was set for June on the jury calendar by Federal Judge John C. Knox.

Spanish Films Are Losing Out in Colombia Acers

NEW YORK—Spanish-made pictures are rapidly losing their appeal in first run situations in Colombia, according to Stanley J. Day, former manager for 20th Century-Fox in that territory, who is here awaiting a new Latin-American assignment.

Operators of first-run spots, Day says, are becoming increasingly reluctant to book the Spanish language films. The Spanish films still carry wide appeal in the neighborhood situations, he adds, while French films continue to be an important competitive factor in Colombia.

Largest circuit and franchise holder in Colombia is Cine Colombia. Day reveals that only M-G-M, Paramount, UA and his company operate their own offices. He contends if the others did likewise the market could be developed more advantageously for distributors. At present, he says, the others sell outright at a flat price to Cine Colombia which has a "monopoly" in distribution and exhibition.

Memphis—From page boy to manager of Loew's Palace in 12 years. That's the story of Robert Kilgore, who has just won his permanent managerial spurs from Joseph R. Vogel, in charge of the circuit's out-of-town theatres. Kilgore won a promotion to the New York circuit ten years ago, serving as assistant and relief manager in a number of units.

He takes over the new post at the Palace later this month after it has undergone extensive remodeling. Loew's is again taking over active management after M. A. Lightman operated the house for the past five years.

New RCA Televiser Only 'Forerunner'

NEW YORK—RCA's demonstration of what it terms large-screen television via a laboratory model that projects images four and one-half by six feet is admittedly not the machine that will be used for its planned invasion of theatres. It is, however, described as a forerunner.

As described by RCA spokesmen, the machine's power and transmitting mechanics are being stepped up so that it will be possible to project images on a 9 by 12 foot screen. This development is expected to be completed for initial tests in about two months, with full-line marketing requiring some 12 to 18 months after that. The present smaller model is claimed to be ideal for viewing in clubs, schools and similar spots where the viewing group numbers from 100 to 150.

Clarity and definition comparable with films is claimed for the larger screen apparatus. It differs in principle from the large screen equipment shown by Baird in that it is based on an optical system of extremely wide aperture. This, coupled with a kinescope capable of high voltage operation, is said to provide four times more light than has been possible before. The system effectively utilizes industry transmission standards as formulated—441 line definition and 30 frames per second.

RCA First Quarter Net $2,312,893, Jump of 60%

NEW YORK—RCA's first quarter net profit is $2,312,893, an increase of 60 per cent over the 1939 quarter earnings of $864,783, David Sarnoff, president, told those attending the 21st annual stockholders' meeting. The 1940 earnings are equivalent to 10.8 cents on outstanding common, compared to four and six tenths for the same period last year. Gross volume of business for the first quarter totaled $28,310,407, compared to $25,004,989 in the same period last year, an increase of 13 per cent.

Reviewing RCA's progress over the past ten years and looking into the future, Sarnoff held significant possibilities for television. Of the new medium he said: "In time, television is bound to revolutionize the broadcasting industry just as the addition of sound to sight revolutionized the motion picture industry." RCA is proceeding on three fronts in the development of television, he said—(1) research is continuing to develop new processes and equipment; (2) manufacturing and sales personnel are exploring new markets, and (3) NBC is proceeding with the development of programs.

On the financial side, he said RCA's bank loans were reduced in 1939 from $8,000,000 to $4,000,000 and the rate of interest from two and one half to one and three-quarter per cent. On March 1, 1940, these loans were further reduced by $2,000,000, leaving the present bank indebtedness at $2,000,000.

Loew's 28-Week Net Jumps by $420,981

NEW YORK—Reflecting profits on distribution of "Gone With the Wind," Loew's, Inc., net rose $420,981 to $6,789,828 for the 28 weeks ended March 24. This compares with $6,368,847 for the similar period last year.

Before depreciation, taxes and reserves, but including its share of profits of affiliated companies and after deduction of preferred dividends of subsidiaries, the earnings totaled $11,101,356, as compared with $10,516,538 for the same period in the preceding fiscal year. After the necessary allowances, the net emerged as $6,789,828, equivalent to earnings of $3.79 a share on the outstanding common as of March 14, after allowing for preferred dividends, as compared with $3.68 per share for the previous comparable period.

Here is the comparative earnings statement:

	28 Weeks Ended Mar. 14, '40	28 Weeks Ended Mar. 16, '39
Company's share of operating profit after subsidiaries' preferred dividends	$11,101,356	$10,516,538
Depreciation and taxes	3,411,528	3,247,691
	$ 7,689,828	$ 7,268,847
Reserve for contingencies	900,000	900,000
Company's share of net profit	$ 6,789,828	$ 6,368,847
Per share-preferred	$49.66	$46.58
Per share-average common	$3.79	$3.68

In keeping with a general industry trend, precipitated by the situation in foreign markets, Loew's has shifted its table of amortization charges. Applicable to all releases subsequent to Aug. 31, 1939, the domestic market now has charged against it 70 per cent when formerly it was 65 per cent. This, of course, reduces the allocation against the foreign to 30 per cent as compared with the former 35 per cent.

Additionally, the company has accelerated its amortization rates. "As a result of such revision and reallocation, approximately $865,000 more has been charged off to amortization expense during the 28 weeks ended Mar. 14, 1940, than would have been deducted had the company's amortization procedure not been revised," a company statement points out.

Leo Priming Lineup For N. Y. Regional

NEW YORK—M-G-M is withholding announcement of its 1940-41 title schedule until May 17, at which time the company will break down those films definitely set for production and those under consideration but where a degree of uncertainty exists, according to Howard Dietz, director of advertising and publicity. He is back "from a weekend on the coast where I saw seven pictures."

Although the company made known what it described as its program for the 1939 40 season at its convention in Chicago last year, Dietz said this "did not work out, because we did not make all we said we would." Next season's lineup will be revealed during the company's regional meeting at the Hotel Astor, May 17-18.

Seven Exchange Staffs To Metro Regional

NEW YORK—When M-G-M's third sales regional gets under way at the Astor Friday for its two-day session, representatives of seven eastern and New England exchanges will be on deck. This is the roster:

Albany—Ralph Pielow, manager; Arthur Horn, Eugene Vogel and William Williams.

Boston—Jack P. Byrne, manager; Benjamin Bebchick, Raymond J. Curran, Maurice Goldstein, J. Edward Renick, Harry Rosenblatt and Harry O. Worden.

Buffalo—Ralph W. Maw, manager; Abraham T. Harris, Alexander W. Weisman and Emanuel M. Woronov.

New Haven—Thomas J. Donaldson, manager; Morton L. Katz and Milton Hyams.

New York—Jack Bowen, manager; Howard M. Levy and Harry W. Miller.

New Jersey—Ben Abner, manager; Louis Allerhand and Herman L. Ripps.

Philadelphia—Robert Lynch, manager; Salem E. Applegate, Frank M. Jalenko, Nicholas P. Lloyd jr., Joseph F. Morrow and Clarence C. Pippin.

Campaign Is Gone, But Slogan Lingers

New York—It's been some time since Motion Pictures' "Greatest Year" folded, but its slogan carries on. Locally, Consolidated Amusements, operating about a dozen houses, continues to advertise "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment."

In Florida, Wometco uses the same line, but adds the name of the circuit in its newspaper lineage.

20th-Fox "Russell" Guns Blast on Three Fronts

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox has trained its ballyhoo guns on three widely separated fronts to garner a major share of national publicity for "Lillian Russell" when the film premieres simultaneously in Pittsburgh, Clinton, Ia., and Hollywood, May 15.

No less than 40 ranking critics from key city newspapers and syndicates will be among the guests, not to mention a flock of Hollywood names and civic lights. The Pittsburgh celebration begins May 14 and will be a two-day affair, while the Clinton party will run three days. Alice Faye and Edward Arnold will be present at Pittsburgh and Don Ameche, Binnie Barnes, Cesar Romero and Mary Healy will be among the Hollywooders at the Clinton opening where 100,000 visitors are expected.

Under the direction of Charles E. McCarthy, the Pittsburgh premiere will be handled by Rodney Bush and Christy Wilbert. Earle Wingart and Eddie Solomon will be in command in Clinton. The coast preview will be a de luxe affair for the press.

Metro Brings Edison To the 4 Oranges

NEW YORK—When Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey officially proclaimed: "The State of New Jersey was for many years the home of one of the greatest men of all time, Thomas Alva Edison . . . It is fitting and proper that New Jersey join in this tribute to our late fellow-citizen and with a feeling of great appreciation for the many benefits conferred by Thomas Alva Edison on mankind," it was as though a magic publicity wand had drifted into the M-G-M offices.

For "Edison, the Man" is just what the governor is talking about. And that has come to mean three days of what is now known as The Thomas A. Edison Pageant of Progress to be held May 14 to 16 in the five Edison New Jersey "home town" communities of Orange, East Orange, West Orange, South Orange and Maplewood.

The festivities begin on Tuesday as sort of a prelude to the quadruple world premiere of the film two nights later in the four Orange towns. The opening event will be the unveiling of the largest photograph ever put on public display. Measuring 22 by 28 feet, the photograph of Edison will be mounted in front of the West Orange Municipal Building, supplemented by an electrical display utilizing more than 30,000 watts.

On Wednesday there will be ceremonies at the dedication of the "Crypt of Cinema Progress" and the "Black Maria," in other words the birthplace of motion pictures. That evening, at 10 p. m., there will be a giant fireworks display at Eagle Rock in West Orange, which is 700 feet above sea level and should be visible for miles. The display will have an area of 400 square feet and is claimed to be of such proportions as to surpass any aerial pyrotechnic barrage ever presented before. Following the fireworks there will be a gala Edison Premiere Ball at the Orange armory, proceeds of which will be for local charitable organizations.

The final day of the pageant sounds like something that even press agents have not yet dreamed of. According to M-G-M's own description, it begins with "New Jersey's first concentration of a provisional battalion of mechanized military units that will form the colorful vanguard of the brilliant parade through the Oranges." Colorful sounds like the word for it, too. The procession will include 45 floats, a host of mounted bands and many cars containing visiting film stars. The National Guard unit will be in front, leading the state's largest show of motorized military equipment, with military planes as air escort. That evening, at 9 p. m. will come the four simultaneous showings of the film.

Seek Help in Cuba

WASHINGTON—Distributors are asking the state department to intervene with the Cuban government over the increase of the gross income tax from three to 20 per cent. The local Cuban sales tax has also been increased from one and a half to two per cent which affects theatres.

The Bedside Interview Appears

NEW YORK—Trade paper reporters accustomed to interviewing film personalities at trains, piers and airports took a new stamping ground well in stride when UA's president, Murray Silverstone, who was confined at home by illness, invited the press into his bedroom for an interview.

The boys behaved nicely. Cigarette butts were deposited gingerly in ash trays generously scattered around the room, instead of on the floor. Monroe Greenthal and a representative of Banker's Trust, Alex Ardrey, were the only ones who sat on the bed. That was because there were no more chairs left. When it was all over, L. Jack Schlaifer, who is vice-president in charge of sales for the western division, kindly poured the Coca Cola drinks and did miraculous tricks with ice.

Apparently there had been rumors and Silverstone wanted to put them to rest. He said he had never contemplated appointing a general sales manager and was more than satisfied with his two vice-presidents, Schlaifer and Harry Gold, who is in charge of eastern sales.

Then Silverstone discussed the field exploitation staff of 15 men who will operate under the guidance of Monroe Greenthal. The idea, as developed by Silverstone, is to insure increased returns domestically from the better pictures by extensive preselling campaigns aimed squarely at the exhibitor. Greenthal's office will probably be his hat, Silverstone observed, because he will be kept hopping from key center to key center during the exploitation drives.

More seriously, Silverstone said it was his belief the industry either will make or break itself on the American market. That, primarily, he said is the company's reason for gambling on bigger pictures. He stated one more year of the war will prove dangerous to the industry unless adjustments are made on native terrain.

Illustrating how serious the situation has become, Silverstone referred to a statement made by Ambassador Joseph E. Kennedy that without England the industry cannot survive. He suggested the future of the industry lies within its own borders.

His remarks concluded, Silverstone thanked all for coming and turned to matters material with the man from Banker's Trust. The reporters left the apartment and slipped back easily enough into their regular routine.

Before the Examination Started—

Nate J. Blumberg, witness of the day, awaits arrival of government lawyers. Seated is Edward C. Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll and Raftery. Adolph Schimel of the Universal's home office legal department is on the right.

Blocks Revival of Youngclaus Issue

NEW YORK—Attempts by John F. Clagett, assistant to the attorney general, to revive the famous Youngclaus case by repeated references to the Omaha clearance in the pre-trial examination of Nate J. Blumberg Thursday were quickly squelched by Edward C. Raftery, counsel retained by Universal for the all-industry suit.

The examiner was anxious to learn from the witness how clearances had been set up in various territories. Blumberg stated in all instances they had been established before he came into the RKO circuit setup.

Won't "Re-Try" Case

Blumberg denied he had met with the Omaha Film Board in 1934 to establish a schedule for the territory. When Clagett persisted in this line of questioning, Edward C. Raftery, representing Universal in the all-industry action, flushed and interjected:

"We are not going to re-try the Youngclaus case. Mr. Blumberg has said he knew nothing about the Omaha clearance."

After a brief pause, Raftery continued directing his remarks to Clagett:

"The board did not set up the clearance in Omaha. It was done by some of your clients and shoved down our throats."

Asks About Omaha

Clagett was stymied for the moment. He then asked Blumberg if he had not received complaints from the Omaha Chamber of Commerce on the local clearance situation.

The witness answered he personally never received as much as one clearance complaint from any part of the country during his tenure of office in the RKO circuit.

"Do you mean to tell me," the examiner added, "you don't remember any clearance complaints?"

"No!"

Clagett then wanted to know about some of the clearances the RKO circuit enjoyed. Raftery objected to the word "enjoyed," and the question was re-phrased to eliminate it.

With Raftery continuing his objections, Clagett apologetically addressed him, stating, "We are entitled to know from the witness if he has any knowledge of clearances." Raftery responded by answering, "If that is all, go ahead." Which Clagett did by asking if work sheets on product deals contained clearance provisions. The answer was, "No."

Blumberg outlined his history in the business from the time he started as a shipping clerk in 1911 for the General Film Exchange in Milwaukee. He remained there a year and then was transferred to the Chicago office where he became a combination poster clerk and salesman. He then joined Famous Players in Minneapolis in 1913 and was with the company about a year when he opened a theatre on his own in Milwaukee. He continued this operation until February, 1916. The same year he opened a theatre in Racine, Wis., and operated until 1926. It was the Palace. Subsequently, he opened the Rialto. In July, 1926, he sold both houses to Universal Chain Theatres and joined the company as general manager of operations with all of Wisconsin and two Indiana houses under his supervision.

Relates Background

He left Universal Chain June 1, 1928, and then joined KAO. On January 1, 1929, he was appointed general manager of the junior Orpheum theatres, operating out of Chicago. He had about 20 houses under his wing in Springfield and Rockford, Ill., South Bend, Davenport, Sioux City, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines, Ia., in addition to a theatre in Madison, the Riverside, Milwaukee, and two neighborhood Chicago houses.

In 1932, a receiver took over the Orpheum houses and in 1933 Blumberg came to New York in charge of all operations for the receiver. During the receivership, the Orpheum circuit which originally had 70 theatres was left with units in Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Paul, Des Moines, Champaign, Ill., Chicago and Kansas City.

The RKO circuit had about 175 houses

Blumberg Quizzed Before Big Trial

before receivership, but in the first six months under court jurisdiction the number dwindled to 90 or 95, according to Blumberg.

When Clagett asked what title he held at the time he represented RKO Film Booking Corp., for which he bought pictures. he said the various corporations approved the deals after he made them.

"After the receivership, what title did you have?"

"Sometimes I wondered what it was," Blumberg smiled. "The best way I can explain is that I was responsible to each unit for its operation."

When asked what the determining factors were in buying pictures, Blumberg said, "I would consider stars, directors, stories and general setup of pictures." The witness characterized the answer as "very speculative." He said he had been wrong many times and that the public was the best judge.

Clagett continued along these lines when Raftery again objected, this time admonishing the examiner not to go into the Neely bill.

Into Pooling Deals

First run product in RKO situations and pooling deals were then gone into by the examiner. Boston was the first town. Next was Brooklyn, Greater New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Memphis, New Orleans, Washington, D C., San Francisco, Providence, Sioux City, Des Moines, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Kansas City and Omaha.

Where pools were made it was because there were too many first runs and not enough product, Blumberg stated. In most cases the arrangements turned losses into a profit by "intelligent handling."

Cites RKO Chain Climb

A year before he went with RKO, the circuit lost about $2,500,000, Blumberg stated. A year later, in 1933, the loss dropped to approximately $500,000 and in 1934 it shifted into the black.

His pleas for reductions from various film companies resulted in "zero." Blumberg said he tried to get them, but the companies "wouldn't give us the right time."

Raftery would not permit the witness to give his opinion to the question of whether it was necessary for a distributor to own theatres. Blumberg was on the stand for a little more than two hours the latter portion of his deposition dealing with his activities at Universal, how the program is set up and policies established for the various groups of pictures. Designations are made after a dozen or so test engagements, he asserted, and, "although we hope all are 'A's,' the allocations are made after pictures are tested."

Charles C. Moskowitz, head of Metropolitan New York operations for Loew's, detailed his background with the circuit and the operation of the houses under his supervision on Friday.

281-Page Volume Highlights Suit

New York—Distributors' attorneys have gotten up a 281-page printed volume on the government's all-industry suit which is now in the hands of field counsel for checking on probable witnesses outlined by the department of justice.

The first 26 pages contain an alphabetical listing of all exhibitors named while the balance of 255 pages repeats the names of theatre owners, a brief history of the complaint, their theatres and competitive situations in each instance.

Pros, Cons Raging About N. Y. Allied

NEW YORK—The pro and con of "Whither goest Allied of New York?" has its supporters staunchly voicing the organization's purported solidarity and the rival camp predicting a blitzkrieg by national Allied.

Starting from somewhere near the beginning, those who foresee a swing to the national setup insist this is inevitable because the understanding when Max Cohen formed the New York unit was that it would be part and parcel of national Allied. One such a believer goes so far as to declare: "There were 99 to 1 who went in because we thought we were being backed by Abe Myers and his entire organization. When Cohen saw things differently and we were expelled, sentiment was still with national Allied, although to all appearances Cohen still held the reins."

Meanwhile, rumors persist that upstate factions are quietly organizing support for national Allied from within the ranks of the Cohen unit and that when the proper strength is mustered national Allied will come through with the necessary funds.

Yet, an Allied of New York spokesman insists everything is just as orderly as it ever was, despite the fact there has not been a regional meeting since January and none planned for the immediate future. Asked the reason for this inactivity, the source replied that "until the atmosphere in Washington and New York is cleared up we don't know where we stand; we may have to change our entire setup." His reference was to the Neely bill outcome and the trial in the government's key suit.

Meanwhile, Louis Goidel and his partner, Max Cohen, the latter not the Allied head, recently were ousted from the Paras-Court, Brooklyn, because of differences with the landlord over a dance hall above the theatre. They have taken the Lido, same borough, and will open it this week.

To quote Goidel and Cohen, who had been ardent Allied constituents until they resigned from the local organization:

"If we had a strong Allied organization, the exhibitor would be protected and not thrown out of a neighborhood after 20 years."

Both exhibitors believe a national affiliation is needed by a local organization. Shortly after Allied of New York was ousted from the national group, the Brooklyn exhibitors took their leave. Cohen was a regional vice-president and Goidel was a member of the executive committee.

Brennan Coast Visitor

See Exploitation Staff As Aid to Small Towns

NEW YORK—Paramount's consideration in setting up a permanent exploitation staff is described as stemming from the realization that "small towns have forgotten what an exploitation man looks like; we've got to remember that the key cities are not the only places that show pictures."

Such is the estimation of an informed source, who states the proposal will be one of the major topics at the company's coast convention May 24-26. If the delegates give the idea "whole-hearted approval" there will be established immediately one permanent exploiteer in each district. Supervision would be maintained from the home office, with local matters largely under the discretion of district managers.

As matters stand, the home office must directly assume the responsibility of contacting each account on new exploitation ideas. This work, plus many other angles, could be handled with greater facility and results, it is felt, through local men.

WB "Mystery Cruise"

NEW YORK—The Warner Club will hold its annual outing, June 19, with "a mystery cruise." Ralph Budd is chairman of the arrangements committee which has on it Nat Fellman, head of the club, Sam Schneider, Harry Mayer, Robert Solomon, Stuart Aarons, I. H. Birnbaum and Ann Martin.

Agnew Tips Off 11 On New Para't List

NEW YORK—In a general production story pointing out Paramount finishes work on its current schedule with completion of shooting on "North West Mounted Police" in ten days, Neil F. Agnew tips off attractions which will lead off the company's schedule for 1940-41.

Either completed or in production are these: "I Want a Divorce," starring Joan Blondell and Dick Powell; "Rhythm on the River," starring Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Basil Rathbone and Oscar Levant; "A Night at Earl Carroll's" with Ken Murray, Rose Hobart and Blanche Stewart; "Texas!" with John Howard, Ellen Drew, May Robson and Broderick Crawford; "Dancing on a Dime" with Robert Paige, Peter Hayes, Eddie Quillan and Grace MacDonald; "Rangers of Fortune" with Fred MacMurray, Albert Dekker, Patricia Morison and Gilbert Roland; "Mystery Sea Raider" with Henry Wilcoxon, Carole Landis and Onslow Stevens; "Three Men From Texas," tentatively titled, but with William Boyd, Russell Hayden and Andy Clyde; "Comin' Round the Mountain," featuring an all-star radio cast headed by Bob Burns, Uncle Ezra, Una Merkel, Don Wilson and Jerry Colonna; "A Date With Destiny," starring Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew and John Howard, and The Aldrich Family in "Life With Henry" with Jackie Cooper, Leila Ernst and Eddie Bracken.

Settling Vineland

PHILADELPHIA—The Landis (Vineland) Theatre suit trial has been delayed from Friday to Tuesday to permit the principals to work out a settlement. Joint operation of the Mori and Warner houses is understood to be the basis.

The Pioneers Frolic—

They called it a spring conference, a very fancy description for a beefsteak and fun at the Waldorf-Astoria. The pictorial saga on the right conveys an idea of what went on as the Picture Pioneers met. Beginning with the left panel and allowing the eye to travel down the page, the pictures just about tell their own story. Man and horse are properly linked together, while below shows one of the nags in full flight on a treadmill. Nobody seemed to explain how the horses got by the Waldorf's doorman for the Pioneers' own Derby, but everyone wondered. Anyway, the wide picture panel on the far side of the page reveals a batch of rookies being inducted, and cautioned, by Judge Ferdinand Pecora who, in truth, was more friendly than legal about it; Sam Rinzler, Myer Schine, Rube Jackter and Charles Hayman in horseplay; ditto, but this time involving Jack Bowen, Joe Seider, Bob Wolff and Joe Lee; Dr. A. H. Giannini in conversation with former Mayor James J. Walker with Jack Alicoate's profile and cigar adding production value and Schine and Hayman in the background. In the lower panel, apparently in the way of the horse's flying hooves are Sam Dembow; then Charles Moses and Max Cohn, illustrating camaradiere and good cheer.

Slot Machine Film Impresses Observer

NEW YORK—Another milestone in the evolution of sight-and-sound entertainment may well be in the making. It can best be described as a glorified public phonograph. It is called Phonovision and is the forerunner of what is expected to be a flooded market of nickel-in-the-slot machines that supply pictures synchronized with music.

As demonstrated by Sam Sax, one of its originators, the machine is not unlike those that have made their way into bars, hotels, clubs and other public meeting places which dispense popular band recordings at five cents each. In fact, Phonovision adds sight to these very band numbers. But that is where the resemblance would appear to stop. Because the new sight plus sound machine might just as easily displace the sound-only device as sound pictures did with silent.

Variety of Subjects

And it looks mighty interesting. The demonstration reels covered a variety of subjects, both in black and white and color. Newsreel clips, travelogues, cartoons and band numbers were shown. The color subjects showed up better than the black and white. The sound was good. It is RCA. Both screen and sound are adjustable as to focus and volume by the consumer. However, he has no choice of subjects, since all will be stripped on the same reel and will follow each other as nickels are dropped. The machine shown stands 72 inches high, is 28x32 inches at the base, tapering as it rises, and holds a screen above the midway mark 21x28 inches. Inside the cabinet is a 16mm rear projection machine built to hold 10 subjects each running three minutes. The reels are self winding.

As explained by Sax, three distinctly separate machines will be offered for different markets. One will be for straight entertainment. A second will be for commercially sponsored subjects, while a third will be a combination radio, phonograph and Phonovision attachment for home use. The first two will be rented on 99-year leases, the prices of which have not yet been fixed. The straight entertainment machines will show only band numbers, Sax states. His own organization will produce these as well as the merchandising promotion and sales subjects.

He denies that the Vitaphone studio in Brooklyn will be taken over for production of band numbers. While in the east he will attempt to locate another studio, he states. The servicing of the machines will be on a weekly basis. This will require the setting up of a national organization. This function, as well as volume production of the machines, is said to be taking shape, but Phonovision spokesmen would not predict how soon they will be placed on the market although the claim is made that many orders have already been received, especially from large advertising agencies.

When the question of competition to theatres came up a spokesman made the point that, in the main, name bands would supply the Phonovision material and these band leaders are not recognized as film theatre personalities. In fact, it was added, it may turn out that theatres would use Phonovision machines in their lobbies to show coming attractions. All pictures shown in the machines will be produced in accordance with the production code of ethics of the MPPDA, it is said. The flat statement is made that Phonovision "will not license use of its machines in direct competition with theatres."—L. W.

Dietz Names Art Schmidt Metro Publicity Chief

NEW YORK—Arthur Schmidt, for almost five years in charge of advertising for Loew's out-of-town theatres, has been appointed by Howard Dietz, M-G-M advertising and publicity director, as manager of the film company's publicity, effective immediately. The promotion brings a sizeable realignment in the circuit's publicity personnel. Schmidt's post, newly created, parallels that of Si Seadler in advertising and William R. Ferguson in exploitation. He was with Paramount for six years prior to his Loew's affiliation, handling advertising in Detroit and Toledo.

Gene Murphy, formerly daily newspaper contact for the state and the entire circuit, succeeds Schmidt. Tom Rogers, press agent at the Valencia, Jamaica, gets Murphy's post. Teddy Arnow, who handled four Westchester houses, succeeds Rogers. Jerry Sager, formerly in charge of the mid-town district, goes to Westchester. Al Lippe, of the State, Newark, switches to Sager's spot, while Arthur Egberts, in charge of Jersey City, adds Newark to his present territory.

Schmidt's duties will embrace correlation of the newspaper, fan magazine and trade paper fields. His appointment is said to have been largely predicated on his practical experience in theatre requirements.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y.—The Bay here, which has been closed since last December, will reopen May 15.

ITOA to Champion Greenfield's Case

NEW YORK—At the request of Leon Rosenblatt, Harry Brandt, president of the ITOA, will call a meeting of the organization's members during the week to protest the leasing of the Boro Hall, Brooklyn, by Rachmil & Katz, away from Dr. Leon Greenfield.

Dr. Greenfield has been confined to a sanitarium for the past few years and his son, Leo, has been operating the theatre as the only means of support for his mother and two other children, 9 and 13.

Although the theatre had been offered by a downtown bank to several other independent exhibitors, none would touch it because of the cimcumstances surrounding the Greenfield family. The current lease is up in November when Rachmil & Katz plan to take possession.

At the exhibitor meeting, efforts will be made to induce Rachmil & Katz to continue the Boro Hall under Greenfield's management.

Services in New York For Mort Green, 49

NEW YORK—Funeral services were held for Mort Green, 49, Bronx division manager for the Skouras circuit, during the week. Burial was at Mt. Hebron Cemetery, Flushing, L. I. Surviving are his widow, a daughter, Ruth, who is cashier at the Valentine, and a son.

About 60 managers and home office personnel attended the services held at the deceased's home. The entire staffs of the Valentine and Crotona, where Green had made his headquarters, also attended. Green joined Fox Metropolitan Playhouses in 1915 and continued with the circuit and the houses taken over by the Skouras circuit until the time of his death. He had been ill on and off for about a year. No successor has been named.

Agree on Check of Files

New York—The department of justice and major film company counsel have successfully worked out the problem of what documents the government is entitled to inspect relative to the suit. Starting Monday, the government will examine Loew's, Warner's, and Paramount's files in that order. This eliminates the necessity of going before Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard to secure an inspection order.

The motion had originally been brought on by a government plea that it could not proceed with the Philadelphia end of the suit until it had the files of the defendants at its disposal. Under the agreement it will have access to all records in all situations.

WB's "Torrid Zone" Is a "Scorcher"

Hollywood—Warner's "Torrid Zone" is hotter than the proverbial fire-cracker; so scorching, in fact, that it should burn out the bearings in the theatre's cash register. And if it doesn't, it's because the customers aren't in a mood to buy a prize package of action-laden, laugh-inciting entertainment.

The Cagney-Sheridan-O'Brien combination is perfect for this brand of hard-boiled comedy-drama and there are a half dozen or more minor portrayals comparably impressive. The dialogue is bright and the wisecracks many. William Keighley directed.—SPEAR.

United Artists' "Our Town"—

Hollywood—Paradoxical according to established Hollywood standards, here is a picture that attains the nth degree of artistry and still succeeds in fitting the average entertainment taste with the comfort of an old shoe.

Producer Sol Lesser's film version of Thornton Wilder's stage hit is an innovative treat. It pursues the same unusual treatment that made the original presentation outstanding and amplifies thereon by taking full advantage of the widened scope the screen affords in narration, motivation and technical details.

It is hard to conceive the selection of a cast more ideally suited to the conscientious interpretation of the story of provincial Americana in its most rudimentary and delightful concepts. Sam Wood's direction is masterful in its understanding and restraint.—SPEAR.

PHILADELPHIA

Blumberg Remembers Omaha 7 Years Ago

New York—RKO's experience with the Orpheum, Omaha, in early 1933 stands out in Nate J. Blumberg's memory because of an unusual incident.

The receiver was about to dispossess the circuit when Blumberg was called to Omaha and asked to put up $5,000 on the lease.

It was about noon when he appeared in court. Bill Robinson and 50 colored performers were scheduled to open at the house at about the same time. When Blumberg informed the court he could not get the money, he said he told the judge: "You have just inherited 50 colored gals and you will have to take care of them."

Raftery Expounds on B'klyn and First Runs

New York—If you take Edward C. Raftery's word for it, the only thing Brooklyn has first run is a baseball team.

He was referring to the Dodgers at the pre-trial examination of Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, when John F. Clagett, government examiner, asked the witness about the Albee as a first run across the bridge.

Blumberg said he never considered Brooklyn a first run, but always felt it was subsequent to Broadway. Clagett admitted the whole situation has never been clear in his own mind, following which Raftery remarked his remark which, according to those present, cleared up the entire situation nicely.

Radio Commentators See Publicists Negligent

NEW YORK—The National Radio Film Commentators Circle took over Ampa's regular luncheon-meeting at Jack Dempsey's and let all assembled know they have been slighted no little by the studios. The alleged lack of cooperation and the "second-hand" attitude taken by the film publicity departments when it comes to servicing radio film critics with pertinent material was the chief "beef."

See Steffes Out of Allied Picture for Some Time

MINNEAPOLIS—It is believed here W. A. Steffes will not resume his Northwest Allied activities, at least for some time, following a second heart attack which has him confined to Abbott Hospital for observation and treatment. Production Schedule RKO Meet Topic

A detailed discussion of RKO Radio's 1940-41 production schedule, in preparation for the company's annual national sales convention to be held in New York, May 27-29 inclusive, is the order of the day at the studio, where President George Schaefer, Ned Depinet, sales chief, S. Barret McCormick, publicity-advertising director, and Leda Bower, eastern story editor, have checked in for conferences with Harry Edington, Joseph Nolan, Lee Marcus and other studio officials. Also checking in at the plant from New York was N. Peter Rathvun, Floyd Odlum's representative on the RKO Radio board, with whom the other executives are discussing phases of the company's financial setup for the new year. Schaefer indicated that the studio will adopt an "elastic" schedule as to the number of films to be turned out, contingent upon foreign and domestic market conditions. Miss Bower is discussing available properties with Collier Young, studio story editor. Schaefer and Depinet came here directly following the "My Favorite Wife" premiere in Louisville, Ky.

Concluding two weeks of discussion on the new season's product lineup and budget allotments, Russel Holman, Paramount's homeoffice production liaison, has returned to New York. He will be followed shortly by Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, who has scheduled further conferences on the subject with Y. Frank Freeman, William LeBaron, Henry Ginsberg and other studio executives. Griffis, who will return east via San Francisco, is to check back in Hollywood around May 18 accompanied by President Barney Balaban and Neil Agnew, distribution chieftain, who will attend the company's national sales convention, scheduled to be held at the Ambassador Hotel, May 24-26.

Herbert J. Yates has arrived at Republic from the east to confer with M. J. Siegel, production head, on future picture-making plans. During his ten-day stay Yates will also set advertising budgets on a number of forthcoming productions.

Eastward bound was Howard Dietz, Metro's advertising-publicity director, who spent a week here huddling with studio officials on summer and fall campaigns. He accompanied W. F. Rodgers, sales head, west, with Rodgers staying on to attend the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners convention.

Cliff Work, Universal's production chieftain, planed out for Atlantic City to attend the company's regional sales meeting, which opened May 11. He is expected in early next week.

After spending five days here conferring with various United Artists producers as to their production plans for the new season, Murray Silverstone, UA's operations head, returned to New York, where the company will hold a regional sales meeting May 13-15. Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn have both planed out to attend the gathering, with Korda planning to continue on to London, returning here in June. Already in the east for the sales meeting are Hal Roach, David O. Selznick and Mary Pickford. Goldwyn will also discuss release plans for his Gary Cooper starrer, "The Westerner," with UA executives.

Six by Hal Roach for UA to Average $1,000,000 Apiece

Announcement of a $6,000,000 production schedule for 1940-41, costliest in the company's 25-year history, has been made for Hal Roach by Hugh Huber, vice-president in charge of production. The six-picture lineup, for United Artists release, will be financed through the Bankers Trust Co. of New York and the Security-First National Bank of Los Angeles, Huber said. Five hundred thousand dollars of the sum will be expended on national advertising, four-fifths of it in newspaper campaigns urging "exhibitor cooperation." Of the six pictures, three will be written and directed respectively by Grover Jones and Richard Wallace—"Broadway Limited," featuring Victor McLaglen and Victor Mature; "The Unholy Horde," starring Lon Chaney jr., and "Fiesta," a musical. Roach, currently in New York, will personally direct "Topper Returns," a sequel to "Topper" and "Topper Takes a Trip," with Roland Young and Billie Burke. Gordon Douglas is set to pilot the initialer on the 1940-41 slate, "Road Show," from a novel by Eric Hatch. Sixth vehicle will be "Niagara Falls," a romantic comedy.

New Independent Unit

Formation of an independent unit with a three-year distribution contract through RKO Radio has been announced with the incorporation of United Producers Corp. Heading the new company is William B. Hawks, who is relinquishing his agency to handle the new job. He will serve as president and executive producer. Ronald Colman has been signed to star in five of the ten pictures the company will produce. The first vehicle has not been chosen as yet. Hawks is the brother of Producer-Director Howard Hawks.

Producers Corp. of America has set June 15 as the starting date of "Kingdom Come," its initial vehicle, starring John Charles Thomas. Hope Manning, operatic soprano, and Charles Bickford have been set in support of the singing star. No release has been secured. This film will be followed by "Ivanhoe Keeler," from a story by Phil Stong, which Karl Brown is scripting under the supervision of David Boehm.

Replacing Paul Whiteman, who withdrew because of conflicting commitments, Boris Morros' National Pictures Corp. has signed Artie Shaw and his orchestra to star in "Second Chorus," which will be Morros' first picture under his new corporate setup. It goes into work June 15 with Henry C. Potter directing.

Sidetrack "The Bat"

Samuel Bronston Productions, which recently merged with James Roosevelt's Globe unit for United Artists, has sidetracked "The Bat," originally scheduled as its first vehicle, and which had been pegged for a June 15 start. One of three other properties now in script form will be substituted. The switch was occasioned through the unavailability of Alfred Hitchcock, signed to direct, until a later date. Hitchcock currently is megging Walter Wanger's "Foreign Correspondent."

Just prior to his departure for London, Alexander Korda announced his completed Hollywood production setup. It includes Emanuel Silverstone, business representative; Morris Helprin, production assistant; Basil Bleck, legal counsel; Jack Okey, production manager, and William Hornbeck, film editor. Director Zoltan Korda is now filming scenes necessary to complete "The Thief of Bagdad," a Technicolor production started in England and halted because of the war. United Artists will release.

Sig Neufeld Productions has rolled "Frontier Crusader" as the first in a series of six Tim McCoy westerns. William Lively, who scripted, is now working on "The Sagebrush Family Fights Rustlers," second in another series which stars Bob Steele. Producers Distributing Corp. will release.

Producers Increasingly Train Cameras on Best-Sellers

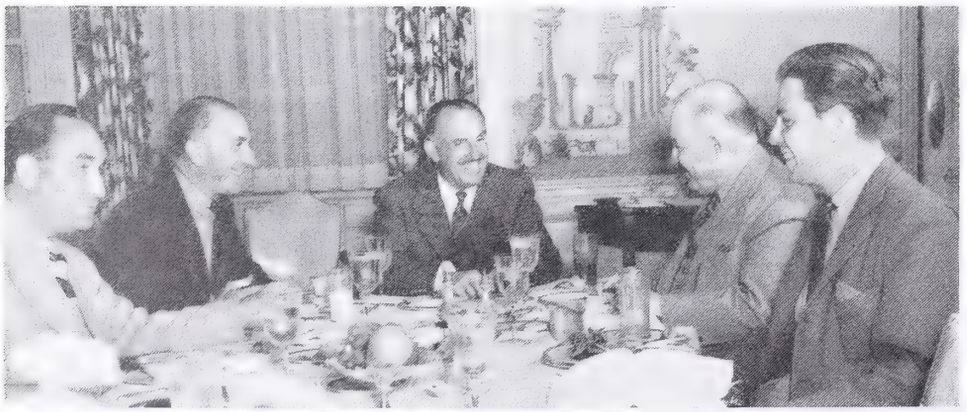
By IVAN SPEAR

Apparently acting on the theory that subjects which sell fast over bookstore counters will sell with equal speed and in similarly large quantities at the boxoffice, Hollywood's motion picture makers are taking out 1940-41 revenue insurance in the form of an imposing array of best-selling novels and non-fiction volumes. At the present time, a survey reveals, the new season's films will boast a larger percentage of stories which have established circulation records in the literary field than at any one time for several seasons past.

Although the policy of acquiring best-sellers for filmization is one which has always been practiced to a greater or lesser degree, it reached new heights in the 1939-40 season and seems destined to show further gains during the new production year. In the season just drawing to a close, for example, David O. Selznick turned out one of the top grossers of all time in "Gone With the Wind," written by Margaret Mitchell. It was released by Metro, which itself produced Kenneth Roberts' "North West Passage," Brock Williams' "The Earl of Chicago" and MacKinlay Kantor's "Arouse and Beware," which reached the screen as "The Man From Dakota." For United Artists, Edward Small manufactured "My Son, My Son" from Howard Spring's novel; Selznick, as well as "GWTW," turned out another money-maker in Daphne DuMaurier's "Rebecca," and Hal Roach filmed "Of Mice and Men," by John Steinbeck. Prominent in the 20th Century-Fox lineup were Steinbeck's enormous seller, "The Grapes of Wrath," and "Drums Along the Mohawk," a historical novel by Walter D. Edmonds. A. J. Cronin's "Vigil in the Night" was filmed by RKO Radio, which also turned out "Little Orvie" from a series of stories by Booth Tarkington. Columbia's entry was "Too Many Husbands," from a novel and play by W. Somerset Maugham. Paramount distributed the English-made "Jamaica Inn," written by Daphne DuMaurier.

Currently in work or already completed for early release are Columbia's "The Howards of Virginia," based on "The Tree of Liberty," by Elizabeth Page, and "Arizona," from a novel by Clarence Budington Kelland; Metro's "Escape" by Ethel Vance, and Phyllis Bottome's "The Mortal Storm;" Warner's "They Drive by Night," new title for "The Long Haul," by A. J. Bezzerides, and "All This and Heaven, Too," by Rachel Field. For United Artists, Sol Lesser has completed "Our Town," written by Thornton Wilder; other UA entries include Vincent Sheean's "Personal History," being filmed as "Foreign Correspondent" by Walter Wanger; "Turnabout," which Hal Roach produced from the Thorne Smith novel, and Wanger's contemplated "Dynasty of Death," by Taylor Caldwell.

On Columbia's 1940-41 lineup is "I Married Adventure," by Osa Johnson, a Book-of-the-Month selection. Metro will film "The Yearling," a novel by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings; Louis Bromfield's "Bombay Nights," and "Tortilla Flats," by John Steinbeck. Paramount's properties include Wessell Smitter's "F. O. B. Detroit," to be produced as "The City That Never Sleeps;" "Country Lawyer," by Bellamy Partridge; "Miss Susie Slagle's" by Augusta Tucker, and "Triumph Over Pain," by Rene Fuelop-Miller, to be filmed as "The Immortal Secret."



A leader on RKO Radio's schedule will be "Kitty Foyle," by Christopher Morley, one of the top-sellers among current fiction, and Clarence Budington Kelland's "Valley of the Sun." Republic recently purchased Irving Stone's "False Witness." Twentieth Century-Fox is preparing "How Green Was My Valley," from a novel by Richard Llewellyn, and "Yesterday's Heroes," written by William Brent. For United Artists, David L. Loew and Albert Lewin will film "Flotsam," a new novel by Erich Maria Remarque, and Alexander Korda has acquired rights to Sinclair Lewis' "Bethel Merriday."

The Warner schedule is heavily-laden with popular literary properties. They include "Captain Hornblower," by C. S. Forester; "Out of Gas," by James Hall and Charles Nordhoff; "Villa on the Hill," by W. Somerset Maugham; "Forgive Us Our Trespasses," by Lloyd C. Douglas; "Jupiter Laughs," by A. J. Cronin; Henry Bellarmine's "King's Row;" "Mr. Skeffington," by Elizabeth; "Quietly My Captain Waits," a historical novel by Evelyn Eaton; Phyllis Bottome's "Danger Signal;" and "War of the Copper Kings," by C. B. Glasscock, which will be produced under the title of "Montana."

HLDA Open Forum May 12 On the State of Europe

While details of a mass meeting for May 30—Decoration Day—are being worked out, the Hollywood League for Democratic Action meantime has scheduled another of its studio council open forums for May 12, at which latest developments in the European War will be the subject of discussion. Highlights of the event will be a transcription of the Arch Oboler radio sketch, "Johnny Get Your Gun," as played by James Cagney, and the presentation of 75 "war horrors" slides. Edward Biberman of the American Artists Congress will serve as commentator.

The Hollywood Peace Forum, heretofore an independent organization, has officially joined forces with the HLDA, according to Michael Elkins, League executive secretary, and henceforth will meet every Friday. Heading the group are Herbert Biberman, Scenarists Guy Endore and Sam Ornitz, and Dr. Herbert Alexander of City College.

The May 30 mass meeting will be held in behalf of the four students recently expelled from City College because of their political activities. The League currently is endeavoring to secure the co-sponsorship of the California Youth Legislature.

IT WAS just about a year ago now that RKO Radio's publicists—the entertainingest gang in town—invited the hungry press to a soiree at Orson Welles' then newly acquired estate in exclusive Bel-Air. Object: An opportunity for local news outlets to meet the Boy Wonder in person, to be impressed by his poise and geniality, and, above all, to broadcast the studio's ambitious and rosy plans for his future as a producer-director-writer-actor, under what was heralded as Hollywood's first four-way contract. Since that time, reams have been written—and printed—concerning the production activities of the Gower Street Jack-of-All-Trades, which have established a new high in on-again-off-again vacillation and a new low in film footage actually produced.

One year. And apparently Welles is no closer to delivering something specific to RKO and a breathless public in return for his munificent weekly salary than on the day he arrived.

Situations of this kind—and they are plentiful at most of the majors—make tongues fly into cheeks when Stanton Griffis says, " 'Don't shoot the pianist, he's doing the best he can'." Griffis' allusion to the sign in the old Arizona saloon was made in an address (See page 37 for details) before the Town Hall, a local luncheon club whose members comprise leading bankers, brokers, businessmen and professional folk.

Among the blurbists: The community being slightly short on free-lance press agents, George R. Bilson establishes an office—"And Associates." The announcement of his venture, a booklet yclept "The Opening Sequence," displays ingenuity, a somewhat rare quality in the fraternity, while the "And Associates" touch probably reflects the Russell Birdwell influence . . . Those statistically-minded people who go in for calculating what would happen when so-and-so is laid end to end, might find an interesting problem determining the ratio between independent publicists and maximum possible clients—probably a praiser for every account . . . Frank Seltzer scored again through the exceptional break given Roach's product announcement in the trade press, metropolitan dailies and on the air . . . Perry (Step-Right-Up-and-Call-Me-Speedy) Lieber managed to get an announcement concerning the signing of the Hawks-Colman deal through the mail and on the news desks only three days after Russell Birdwell had planted the same yarn.

Scorching, Soaring and Sagging

Possibly it was the influence of their Hollywood Park's impending opening that caused Warner Freres to cop both win and place money in the week's preview handicap. Only two entries, both from the Burbank celluloid stables, ran in the money, the other contenders having been grouped far down the stretch as programmers. Breezing home several lengths ahead of the field was "Torrid Zone," followed by "Flight Angel."

Generating considerably more heat than the title would indicate, the first-named is practically certain to set almost every theatre's cash register afire, being a great deal warmer in boxoffice potentialities than the proverbial fire-cracker. From every angle it stands as a picture-making triumph for Mark Hellinger, the associate producer, who invested it with a superabundance of action-packed, laugh-getting entertainment values. Not the least of its merits is the screenplay by Jerry Wald and Richard Macaulay, which is loaded to the hilt with bristling dialogue and wisecracks, while the cast approaches perfection in itself. William Keighley piloted with his customary steady hand.

Coincidentally, the writing team of Wald and Macaulay also was responsible for the second, but in "Flight Angel" it failed to attain the same high standards of originality, pace and prattle that distinguished its outstanding running mate; which shortcoming was further accentuated by the fact that the cast packed considerably less ability and wallop. Nevertheless, the picture added up as a very worthwhile effort, the credit for which must necessarily be placed at the doors of Producer Edmund Grainger and Director Lewis Seiler, both of whose work surmounted the comparative story and cast deficiencies. The yarn has to do with commercial aviation and the training, loves and lives of pilots and air hostesses.

If there was any advantage among the grouped platers, it belonged to Paramount's "Opened by Mistake"—a good example of compact, melodramatic comedy in the program brackets. The screenplay by Stuart Palmer, Garnett Weston and Louis S. Kaye, from a story by Hal Hudson and Kenneth Earl, is a bit ridiculous in spots but carries its share of chills and chuckles, while the cast, although not powerful marquee fodder, is vigorous and pleasing. George Archainbaud's direction was entirely competent and Producer Stuart Walker marshaled his entertainment elements well.

A bit too liberally interspersed with raucous slapstick for more discriminating tastes, Universal's "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby," will probably serve adequately as lightweight supporting fare. The script by Arthur T. Horman, adapted by Paul Gerard Smith from James Edward Grant's original, manages to be funny on occasion; and Director Albert S. Rogell timed his laughs well, although seemingly unable to keep the proceedings from becoming entirely too noisy in a number of sequences.

From the same studio came a timely and mildly engrossing drama in "Ski Patrol," which might have ranked higher on the list had the scripting and direction been stronger and the cast imbued with one or two important names. As it stands, the feature will probably meet an average reception. Paul Huston obviously based his original screenplay upon the recent headlines concerning the Russo-Finnish war. Lew Landers directed for Producer Warren Douglas, whose associate was Ben Pivar.

Patterned in familiar style is 20th Century-Fox's "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise," which should satisfy fans of the cinematic Oriental sleuth. The screenplay by Robertson White and Lester Ziffren contains plenty of the desired slaughter, and Eugene Forde paced his direction well. John Stone produced.

Premiere Spotlight On Fox and Metro

Large-scaled premieres of two important films—one, 20th Century-Fox's "Lillian Russell," to be booked in three cities; the other, Metro's "Edison, the Man," in five communities—comprise the bumper load of star-studded screenings upon which the theatre-going public's attention will be focused next week.

Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood has been selected as the scene for the local debut of "Lillian Russell," May 15. Simultaneously the Alice Faye starrer will be shown in Clinton, Ia., where the famous stage beauty was born, and in Pittsburgh, where she spent many years of her life. The studio will dispatch Don Ameche to Clinton, Miss Faye to Pittsburgh and expects a record turnout of industry notables for the local premiere. The film opens its regular day-date engagement at the Chinese and Loew's State the following week, May 22.

Tiein With Pageant

Metro's five-city premiere will be tied in with a "Pageant of Progress" set to be held May 14-16 in New Jersey, the picture itself to be screened in Orange, East Orange, South Orange and Maplewood—each community having been, at one time or another, one of Thomas A. Edison's home towns. Proceeds from the quintuple affair, including a gala "Edison Premiere Ball" in the Orange armory, will be turned over to local charitable organizations. A bevy of film players, as well as a number of Edison's old friends, will be guests of honor.

Looking further into the future, Columbia and Frank Lloyd are already working out plans for the premiere of "The Howards of Virginia," now shooting, in Richmond, Virginia, next September. Lloyd, who is producing and directing independently for Columbia release, filmed considerable of the picture—from the novel, "Tree of Liberty," by Elizabeth Page—on location in and around Richmond. Cary Grant, Martha Scott, other cast principals and Columbia executives, as well as Lloyd, will attend the affair.

"Days" in Galesburg, Ill.

Galesburg, Illinois, will be the scene of another two-day celebration highlighted by the world premiere of Paramount's "Those Were the Days," May 21. Tied into the affair will be the selection of the "All-American College Queen" at a "Movie Ball" in Galesburg, as well as a street fair and a bonfire on the Knox College campus. The picture itself was filmed largely on location at the university.

Samuel Goldwyn has arranged to hold the world premiere of "The Westerner," starring Gary Cooper, in Fort Worth, Texas, June 25. It will be a feature of Fort Worth's annual "Casa Manana" celebration. The stunt was worked out by Goldwyn with Amon Carter, Texas newspaper publisher; William Holden of the Fort Worth chamber of commerce, and Karl Hoblitzelle and Robert O'Donnell of the Interstate circuit, in one of which houses the film will be screened. Cooper and other film stars will attend.

Hollywood But Runner-Up As Site for Sales Meet

Hollywood, which a few years ago—in more prosperous times—was the mecca for the major companies' annual sales meetings, for the second successive year seems to be getting the go-by in large quantities, what with only one organization, Paramount, selecting the film capital as the site for its pep parley this year.

Aside from the Paramount conclave, the west coast will participate to a slight degree in the plans of a number of majors to hold regional meetings instead of one central gathering. Metro chose San Francisco as the meeting-place for its get-together of western district managers and sales personnel, which was held May 6-7 with William F. Rodgers, company sales head, as the chief speaker; Monogram also held a two-day regional meeting there May 3-4 with President W. Ray Johnston, Scott R. Dunlap, production chief, and Eddie Golden, general sales manager, attending. Also on hand were Howard Stubbins, west coast franchise holder, and his Pacific Coast sales personnel. Republic will hold a regional meeting, probably in San Francisco, in June. Two other companies, Warner and Columbia, have not yet announced their plans, but may take the west coast into consideration.

The Paramount conclave will be a three-day affair, attended by studio and home office executives, branch and district managers, members of the One Hundred Per Cent Club and others. Headquarters will be at the Ambassador Hotel, the proceedings to get under way May 24.

"New Orleans" Initialer By Stevens for Columbia

A long-term producer-director contract has been signed at Columbia by George Stevens, who recently obtained a release from his RKO producer-director agreement. Stevens' first assignment will be "New Orleans," from a story by Louis Bromfield, to star Jean Arthur.

Her refusal to accept an assignment in "Money and the Woman," in which she was to have played opposite George Brent, has placed Priscilla Lane on the suspended list at Warner. After a short delay in production, Brenda Marshal was named as her replacement in the part. Miss Lane rose to stardom as a Warner discovery, coming to the screen after appearing as vocalist with Fred Waring's orchestra.

Expected in shortly to begin work under a recently-signed writer-director contract at RKO Radio is Norman Corwin, who has been a producer for the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York.

Creating of a permanent, full-time music department, with Edward Ward as supervisor, has been announced by Edward Small, United Artists producer. Ward currently is scoring "South of Pago Pago" as well as an outside chore for RKO Radio. Offices at General Service studio have been acquired for Ward and his crew.

Charles Cashon has been appointed head of Republic's still photography department.

Hold Ann Southern

Metro has granted Ann Southern an extension on her acting deal.

Writers Negotiate For Closed Shop

In sharp contrast to previous stormy sessions during the past four years, all of which reached deadlocks because of a variety of stumbling blocks, what was expected to be a peaceful series of parleys have been launched by the Screen Writers Guild with producer representatives relative to the negotiation of a closed-shop contract. The huddles, which opened May 10, were preceded by an open meeting of the SWG at which the negotiating committee, headed by President Sheridan Gibney, presented a detailed report on the rough draft of the proposals filed with the producers. Among the demands are the placing of a ban on "flat sum" deals in lieu of weekly salaries, except in the case of high-wage bracket writers; ownership by the scrivener of all material written during layoff periods; and a minimum wage for all writers, regardless of experience. Aiding Gibney for the SWG are Mary McCall jr., Charles Brackett, Dore Schary and Boris Ingster. Representing producers are Mendel Silberberg, Alfred Wright, Homer Mitchell and George Cohen.

To continue its discussion of a plan for the establishment of greater harmony between the Class A and Class B groups, the Screen Actors Guild's senior directorate held its regular weekly meeting. The SAG has started a series of tests to reclassify a number of extra players, such as dancers, swimmers and the like, the completion of which, the Guild hopes, will result in increased earnings for those extras who have special qualifications. The Central Casting Corp. is cooperating with the SAG in the enterprise.

Hannan Heads Film Editors

First meeting of the new board of directors of the Society of Motion Picture Film Editors, voting on which has just been completed, has been scheduled for May 14, to be followed two days later by a general membership huddle. New officers include Edmund D. Hannan, also SMPFE president; James E. Newcom, Archie Marshek, T. McHenry Holley, Frederick Y. Smith, Louis Sackin, Richard Steenberg, Richard J. Cunningham, Frank B. Magee, E. K. Martin, William S. O'Hara, Albert C. Clark, Douglas Dennis, Edward Mann, William M. Morgan, Charles E. Gerlich, Carroll Lewis, Harold Palmer and Richard Heermance. Negotiations with producers for new hours and improved working conditions have already been launched by President Hannan.

The Screen Office Employes Guild, in a general membership meeting, okayed the procedure of a mail-in-vote to determine whether it shall affiliate with the Hollywood Guild Council. Its membership is now being divided into some 75 classifications pending resumption of its negotiations with producers for a closed-shop pact. Robert Tasker, of the SWG, spoke at the SOEG meeting.

Other labor developments:

The Society of Motion Picture Art Directors met to discuss the status of its negotiations with producers for a basic agreement. A similar meeting was held by the Moving Picture Painters Local 644, at which President Otto Geiser resigned as a member of the bargaining committee. Local 644 has submitted membership application blanks filed by studio scenic artists to the National Labor Relations Board preparatory to the election to be called by the NLRB to determine whether the painters or the Scenic Artists Association shall be designated bargaining agent for that craft.

Studio Plasterers Union will nominate new officers June 4 and will elect its pilots for the coming year at a special meeting June 18. Ben Martinez currently is the craft's business representative. The Screen Cartoonists Guild met with M-G-M representatives to continue discussion of the contract now being negotiated with that studio.

Paramount Adds One to Production Schedule

"The Little Broadcast," based on newspaper stories dealing with the tiny broadcasting station in a Dartmouth College dormitory, has been added to Paramount's production schedule. It will mark the screen debut of Norman Hayden, 23-year-old yachtsman. Susan Hayward, Robert Paige and Peter Hayes are also set for toplines.

Darmour Signs Buck Jones

Larry Darmour has signed Buck Jones to star in "The White Eagle," a western to be released by Columbia.

REVIEW FLASHES

CROOKED ROAD, THE (Rep)—An entertaining drama that will give its spectators nary a dull moment. Edmund Lowe, Irene Hervey, Henry Wilcoxon.

SONG OF THE ROAD, THE (Select)—In this, Harry Lauder appears at a disadvantage as an actor, yet advantageously as a variety performer who can put over Scottish songs and all the business in the style that has made him internationally famous. At best, it's a novelty.

SUICIDE LEGION (Film Alliance)—This early vintage Herbert Wilcox is pretty meagre stuff, poorly performed and seldom capable of holding interest. Tullio Carminati, Lilli Palmer, John Garrick.

WEST OF CARSON CITY (Univ)—A perfect blend of story and action that is recommended unreservedly as a first-rate western. Johnny Mack Brown, Bob Baker, Fuzzy Knight, Peggy Moran.

COMPLETE REVIEWS on the above pictures will appear in an early issue of BOXOFFICE.

Producers Association In Routine Meeting

Adhering strictly to routine because of the current quiescence of the Hollywood labor scene, members of the producers association held their regular monthly meeting May 6. Highlight of the session was the presentation of a report on the current status of negotiations with several crafts by Fred Pelton, labor contact. Members also agreed to comply with a request submitted by J. W. Buzzell, secretary of the Conference of Studio Unions, for an early meeting to resume discussion of the CSU's demands for improved working conditions for some 12,000 studio workers. Attending the session were President Y. Frank Freeman, Joseph M. Schenck, Cliff Work, J. R. McDonough, Walter Wanger, Pelton and Mendel Silberberg.

Meantime, however, the work of reorganizing Central Casting Corp., as authorized by the producers association, is proceeding at a fast rate. Howard Philbrick, the new general manager, issued an ultimatum prohibiting any employe from accepting gratuities; reiterated his earlier manifesto that all employes who have relatives in the extra ranks must turn in their resignations at once; indicated he may revise the call system entirely and is considering, as the first step in that direction, the abolition of "request calls," and appointed Ralph Acton as his special assistant to aid in cataloguing extras, filing reports and other chores.

Hollywood's extra players have been the targets of a pair of deadly rabbit punches during the first four months of 1940, according to figures released by Central Casting Corp., which reflect a cut of approximately one-third in both job placements and earnings for the period as compared to the corresponding period in 1939. During January, February, March and April of this year, 67,587 calls were passed out by Central, while 93,655 calls were issued in the first four months of last year. Earnings for the first third of 1940 amount to approximately $750,000, while they passed the million-dollar mark at the end of April, 1939. January, 1940, was the lowest month in point of calls of any month for the past four years, Central Casting executives admitted.

Harlan Thompson has been signed to an associate producer contract by Warner, joining the staff under supervision of Hal B. Wallis. Thompson recently terminated his association with Paramount, where his last assignment was "The Road to Singapore."

A Drift of 10 Percenters Into The Film Production Field

In steadily increasing quantities, Hollywood's talent agents are turning from their once-dominant pursuit—the placing of clients as actors, writers, directors, et al (with the attendant 10 per cent commission)—to what they apparently consider are greener fields, the actual production of motion pictures. Latest to make the change from talent representation of filmmaking is William B. Hawks, who has formed the United Producers Corp. to make ten pictures for RKO Radio release.

And the reasons for this drift of agents into production?

Protectional, in the opinion of some railbirds. In the spasms of precedental organization with which the Hollywood scene has been inflicted for the past several years—witness the growth of the actors', writers' and directors' guilds and the comparable unionization of nearly every other studio craft—the agents' place has been made considerably less secure, an important factor which was recognized with the organization of the Artists Managers Guild.

Capitalize on Talent

Further, some dopesters are inclined to believe, agents have entered production not only as insurance to keep their respective clients working, but also as an attempt to capitalize on the talent they represent to a greater degree than the established and customary 10 per cent commission.

Hawks, with his entry into film-making ranks, withdraws from the agency business which he established seven years ago. In this action he follows in the footsteps of such other ten percenters as:

Harry Edington, who relinquished his interest in the Edington-Vincent agency more than a year ago, incorporated Famous Productions, made one film for Universal release, and then was named executive producer at RKO Radio, which post he now holds.

William Stephens and Howard Lang, both formerly agents, who organized the Stephens-Lang production unit and are filming a series of "Dr. Christian" pictures, starring Jean Hersholt, for RKO Radio release.

Jack Votion, agent and major studio talent scout, who, with Songwriter Sam Coslow, formed Voco Productions to produce a series of Lum and Abner comedies which RKO Radio will distribute.

Sig Schlager, who, while maintaining his agency, also functions as president of Producers Corp. of America, which will turn out a series of films starring John Charles Thomas.

In "Slot" Film Field

Frank Orsatti. While not a motion picture producer in the strictest sense, Orsatti is actively engaged in one of the industry's newest by-products, the dime-in-the-slot automatic projector. In association with Sam Sax and Solly Freedman, Orsatti will soon market the Phonovision device for use in cocktail lounges, hotel lobbies, restaurants and other non-theatrical spots.

Although not himself actively engaged in film production, Myron Selznick has a substantial interest in Selznick International, of which his brother David is president. Further, he once was on the brink of a plunge into film-making with the incorporation of Ernst Lubitsch Productions with himself as the backer; which deal, however, never reached the culminating stage.

Then, too, there is a constant migration of agents into studios as contract employes and back again into the free-lance field. Paramount recently signed William Meiklejohn, formerly with the Music Corp. of America, as head of the merged talent and casting departments, and Julian Blaustein, who had been head of MCA's story department, as the studio's assistant story editor. Ivan Kahn, currently a 20th Century-Fox talent scout, has at various times in the past been a participant in the agency field, while Dave Diamond, now a ten-percenter, has several times taken a flyer into independent production. A short time ago RKO Radio added Danny Winkler to its staff as executive in charge of studio commitments. Winkler was formerly a radio and film agent. Lew Wertheimer, now in the agency field, was for a time a member of 20th Century-Fox's production staff.

George Bilson Launches Own Publicity Company

George Bilson has opened publicity offices to create special advertising-exploitation campaigns for independent producers. He was formerly connected with Warner and Columbia.

Assign Robert Lord

Warner has assigned Robert Lord to produce "Footsteps in the Dark," starring Edward G. Robinson. The mystery drama is slated for early summer production.

Harmony and Comprehension Mark PCCITO 3-Day Parley

LOS ANGELES—Sounding a note of harmony among the bulk of the west coast's independent showmen, and demonstrating a comprehensive grasp of the problems that confront them as well as the industry's two other principal branches—production and distribution—more than 250 theatre operators met here May 8-9-10 for the first annual convention of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners. Delegates attended from the ITO of So. Calif. and Ariz., the ITO of Northern Cal. and Nevada, the ITO of Washington, Northern Idaho and Alaska and the ITO of Oregon.

Prominent names in the production, distribution and exhibition fields studded the list of speakers under the general chairmanship of R. H. Poole, executive secretary of the PCCITO, with Hugh Bruen, Rotus Harvey, L. O. Lukan and Bob White as co-chairmen. The three-day meeting was divided into four sessions, plus a banquet at the Ambassador Hotel—convention headquarters—May 8 with the producers' association as host.

The two most significant speeches were presented by Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, and William F. Rodgers, distribution chieftain for M-G-M. Kuykendall's topic was "The MPTOA's Viewpoint," while Rodgers chose "Distribution" as his subject, stressing the need of cooperation between independent showmen and the major companies' sales forces.

Stresses "Partnership"

The opening address of welcome was delivered May 8 by Poole, who reiterated the PCCITO's program of conciliation and outlined the organization's aims and purposes —chiefly, to create a feeling of genuine goodwill among distributors, producers, independent theatremen and the circuits on the west coast.

Hailing exhibitors as partners of the production phase, Joe Pasternak, Universal producer, declared in his impromptu talk May 8 that the future existence of the motion picture industry depends upon the discovery of new talent, in which enterprise he asserted showmen are of supreme value to Hollywood. With the industry now depending almost entirely on the American market, Pasternak said, it is up to Hollywood to keep up a high production quality in order to satisfy the American public. Along this line, he declared, most of Universal's executives are former exhibitors and for that reason able to keep a close watch on changing public tastes.

Disclosing that the ITO of Washington advocates the abolition of dual bills, L. O. Lukan, a member of that organization, presented a resolution urging all independent exhibitors throughout the United States to go on record as being in favor of a return to single-billing. Lukan declared his group feels duals are too tiring; that mothers, influenced by Parent-Teacher Associations, charge they are harmful to children through eye-strain and long hours, and asserted he considers the booking of one good and one bad film on a single program is faulty merchandising.

Bob White Loses Mother While at Convention

Alperson, National Theatres booker and former Grand National executive, has checked out for Milwaukee after spending several days conferring here with Charles P. Skouras of Fox West Coast.

Topping the list of Class A houses in the National Theatres circuit at the close of the second week of the Spyros Skouras showmanship drive was the Four Star, managed by Bruce Fowler.

Builds in Klamath Falls

SEATTLE—George M. Mann, head of Redwood Theatre Corp., announces construction of a new theatre for Klamath Falls to begin immediately.

Urges Solid Bar to "Destructionists"

LOS ANGELES—"This business can never be secure until all its branches present a solid front to keep out those whose interference can only mean its destruction," William F. Rodgers, Metro general sales manager, told the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners in convention here.

The sales executive delivered a scathing indictment of the Neely block booking bill, charging it would do "unutterable harm" if passed, and urged a solid front of exhibitors and distributors against it. He said he was "delighted" to hear of PCCITO plans to send a delegation to Washington next week to fight against passage of the bill. He said that his company would be forced to cut production 25 per cent if the measure is enacted.

One of the industry's greatest handicaps, Rodgers said, is the government suit and other litigation, pointing out that 50 per cent of his and other executives' time, "which would better be devoted to the progress and refinement of production and distribution," is being spent in consultation with lawyers.

Rodgers pledged his company's cooperation in the PCCITO conciliation program, saying he heartily approved of the scheme.

"Jealousies" Blamed

The MPTOA head, Ed Kuykendall, highlighted his talk before the assembled exhibitors with an expression of belief that a fair trade practice program would be in effect now but for "petty jealousies" among distributors. Doubt that a consent decree acceptable to all interests could be worked out was expressed by him. A corollary to his belief that the government suits will continue, was the opinion that, if government regulation must be established, the department of commerce is the logical agency.

Kuykendall further charged that the Neely bill would restrain production and increase costs to the theatre owner and sees in divorcement little benefit, because opposition, whether independent or producer-distributor controlled, would still exist. He branded dime-in-the-slot movies and 16mm "non-theatrical" exhibition a "growing menace."

His closing plea for harmony expressed faith that there is "hardly any limit" to the good that can be accomplished by conciliation if the proper setup is organized.

J. M. Hone, secretary of MPTO of the Northwest, asserted that the cultivation of friendly cooperation with members of the legislature in Washington state had proved of great value to his members. He said that personal acquaintanceship has made his exhibitors feel they "need have no fear of adverse legislation as regards non-theatrical competition, taxes and licenses."

Major studio executives, talent and convention delegates numbering more than 600 attended an all-studio banquet at which the Motion Picture Producers Ass'n was host.

S' FRANCISCO

ANNA NEAGLE came to town, both on the screen and in person and scored a hit with both her cinematic and personal appearance. Miss Neagle did three shows in conjunction with the opening of "Irene" at the Golden Gate on Wednesday. In addition to the three-a-day, the star of "Irene" made four radio broadcasts, gave a luncheon backstage for the press, and appeared at the Palace Hotel. Accompanying Miss Neagle was her producer, Herbert Wilcox, and Eddie Rubin, RKO publicist.

Metro held the first of its regional meetings here May 6-7 at the St. Francis. Edward Saunders, Howard Dietz and William F. Rodgers were in charge of meetings and luncheons . . . "Rebecca" is in its eighth week at the United Artists.

The Row extended sympathies to William Fishback, Harvey associate in Angel's Camp, whose wife, Phyllis, died last week in childbirth . . . Traube to Direct HOLLYWOOD—"The Bride Wore Crutches" will be directed by Shepard Traube. Lucien Hubbard will produce for 20th-Fox.

Exhibition Drawn to Hollywood Blvd.

HOLLYWOOD—To the world in general Hollywood Boulevard may represent glamour in all of its ramifications, but this celebrated thoroughfare's present claim to fame is of a less illusory nature. It concerns the opening of two new theatres and the scheduled debut of a third for next week—May 16, to be exact.

First of the newcomers, which bowed in May 2, was the News-View, second newsreel house to be opened in this film-making community. A 650-seat showcase, it is operated by Greg Carter for the Tele-View Newsreel Theatre Corp., which almost two years ago constructed and began operating the Tele-View, also on Hollywood Boulevard, about five blocks away. Streamlined in every architectural detail, the News-View is being operated on a 25-cent admission policy for a one-hour show, with program changes every Wednesday and Saturday. It is serviced by Movietone, Universal, Paramount, Pathe and News of the Day, and sandwiches in variegated short subjects including Pete Smith's Specialties, James FitzPatrick's Travel-Talks and selected cartoons.

The first de luxe, Class A house to open in the Hollywood sector for many years is the Hawaii, independently owned and operated by Albert Galston and Jay Sutton, who also operate the Marcal and the Center. Seating 1,200, it is estimated to have cost more than $500,000. The formal opening May 6, which brought out a crowd of 10,000, including motion picture celebrities, civic officials and sightseers, was replete with all the trappings for which Hollywood is famous—spotlights, sleek limousines, autograph hounds and the like. Numbered among those making appearances in addition to Messrs. Galston and Sutton were Edith Fellows, Gene Lockhart, Tom Neal, Robert Baldwin, Henry O'Neill, Montagu Love, Jack Mulhall, Jackie Moran, Edgar Kennedy and Jack LaRue. The house itself features push-back chairs, special balconies for smokers, a children's nursery and several acres of free parking. Opening bill was RKO Radio's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "The Courageous Dr. Christian."

Number three on the list is A. E. Rice's Admiral Theatre, located near the celebrated Hollywood-and-Vine intersection. In keeping with its name, Architect S. Charles Lee imbued it with a modernized nautical atmosphere in both foyer and auditorium, with fluorescent Neon lighting. Construction on the 700-seat house was launched in January. Rice is planning a gala opening for May 16.

Empire to Goldman

LOS ANGELES—Jack Goldman has purchased the Empire from Irving Carlin and Max Sinker. Goldman also operates the Pico, while Carlin and Sinker run the Oriental in Hollywood.

Shaping Starrett Western

HOLLYWOOD — Columbia has assigned Charles Condon to script an untitled Charles Starrett western.

Please pardon if we have missed anyone. We will get you when you return.

Maury Saffle, Wally Rucker and Mac Rubenfeld off to attend the regional meet of Metro men in San Francisco . . . George F. Dembow, vice-president in charge of sales, and Art Aaronson, western district manager for National Screen Service, in by plane for a visit with Jack Flannery, local manager . . . George Smith, western district manager for Paramount, in from Los Angeles and holding a conference with Maury Segel, branch manager, and the sales force . . . Charley Beale down from Juneau, Alaska, for his annual vacation. Charley handles the theatres in that city for B. F. Shearer. He is also president of the chamber of commerce in Juneau.

Jack Burk with that don't-know-what-to-do-with-myself look. His wife, Marge, has gone to California for a month vacation . . . H. S. McLeod, head of Theatre Utilities Service Co., badly injured in a car wreck while on his way back to Portland from Seattle. Mac is in bad shape in a hospital in Centralia. Accident occurred on the highway near Tenino when Mac and another driver hit headon . . . Bob Clancy is pinch hitting for Bob Laing, staff artist with Hamrick-Evergreen, who is in the hospital with an infected hand.

Bill Shartin telling that the Warner convention will be held in Washington, June 10, 11, 12 at the Shoreham, within walking distance of the Capitol. Invitation to attend will be extended to congressmen and government officials . . . Lloyd Lamb has started his tour of eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana with the Hilton Sisters, the Siamese Twins . . . Jack Allender has opened Independent Film Exchange here and is handling independent and state right productions . . . Jack Anderson off for Chicago by plane. He will return driving a new car . . . Jules Levy of Premier Pictures driving to Los Angeles where he will stay for some time. Art Bishell will handle all the business for Levy.

C. A. LaHar, RCA sales engineer, here from San Francisco and having a lot of laughs with Selom Burns, the local service man . . . I. C. Dill, the former exploiteer, is back in this territory handling the product of "Say-It-in-Neon." Product consists of Neon clocks for theatres . . . Ralph Abbett of Jim Handy Films off to Salt Lake after spending a few days here . . . Homer Garvin, visiting the Row for the first time in months. Homer formerly had theatres in Beatrice, Neb., and is now in the auto business here . . . L. J. McGinley, Mrs. McGinley and daughter Patricia weekend guests of W. B. McDonald in Olympia . . . The George Blairs moving into their summer home on Vashon Island . . . Tommy Cleary, auditor for 20th Century-Fox, here for a stay at the local branch.

Jack Sampson, publicity demon for Sterling, has built a darkroom in his home to develop his candid camera shots . . . Al Wilson having his ups and downs at the Metropolitan. The advance sale on Woollcott's "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was terrific and so the refunds are heavy and the folks who had tickets for the show that was canceled want to exchange them for identical seats to "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," coming in the flesh . . . W. B. Ackles of the Roycroft feeling lots easier now that the burglar who has held him up three times has been caught . . . Charley Comfort, drama editor of the Star, getting ready to fly to Hollywood to attend a preview of "Lillian Russell." Film company paying all expenses . . . Ernie Rose in from Spokane . . . Rae Rowan to San Francisco for a month vacation.

Aronson Appointed West Coast Head for NSS

LOS ANGELES—Arthur Aronson has been appointed west coast district supervisor for National Screen Service, replacing Harry Taylor, who resigned to join the Constance Bennett Cosmetics sales organization. Aronson will supervise the Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Salt Lake City and Denver territories.

Appointment was made by George Dembow, vice-president in charge of NSS sales, just prior to his return east. While here Dembow also signed a deal with the Screen Publicists Guild whereby NSS publicists will receive a $100 weekly minimum.

St. Louis Better Films Group Support to Anti-Neely Drive

ST. LOUIS—The rank and file of the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis is swinging unanimously behind the drive launched in Columbia, Mo., last week against the Neely bill, now pending in Congress. It will be recalled this bill was condemned at the annual meeting of the Missouri State Federation of Women's Clubs held in Columbia. A move was then started to enlist the aid of other women's clubs throughout the country in a fight to defeat the Neely bill.

The motion to blast the bill out of the halls of Congress was introduced by Mrs. Martha A. Burt, one of the founders and currently honorary president of the Better Films Council of Greater St. Louis. She is chairman of the Motion Picture Committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, a national organization.

Sticking to Policy

In presenting the motion, Mrs. Burt informed the Columbia meeting that the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at its annual convention in Denver several years ago, had voted against federal control of the motion picture industry and it has not since withdrawn from that position.

Continuing, Mrs. Burt said: "A problem confronting the motion picture industry as a whole, which has become controversial in many groups, is the Neely bill, popularly designated to eliminate block booking and blind buying. Those of us who have been in close contact with the exhibitor, know that block booking is not a consumer problem, nor is it a moral issue.

"The bill primarily attempts to affect contractual relations between the producer and exhibitor. The quality of the pictures, or their entertainment value, if affected at all would be indirectly. Our interest in motion pictures has been to raise the standard of the product. At the present time 95 per cent of the films produced are recommended by the reviewing groups. Since the exhibitor is permitted to cancel ten per cent of his bookings under the block booking arrangement and thereby eliminate the undesirable and disapproved pictures from his purchases, it can readily be seen that legislation eliminating block booking will in no way aid the exhibitor in securing pictures of a higher standard.

Kuykendall Is Quoted

"Mr. Edward Kuykendall, president, Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, said: 'The Neely bill has no merit for the exhibitors. It gives us nothing that we do not have and it will take many things from us.'

"This department is vitally interested in the problem offered by double feature programs and has taken a position in favor of the discontinuance of that policy. Long programs are a physical and mental strain on children and young people. Many family night programs are marred by the presentation of an adult film with one rated for the family, and it is impossible to expect support for an outstanding film when it is shown with an inferior one. Every effort should be made to have this practice abolished by the exhibitor."

Work to Start on New Paramount Exchange

ST. LOUIS—The Exchange Building Corp., Detroit, will construct the new Paramount exchange building at 2949-53 Olive St., on the sub-contract basis. Work gets underway at once. The sub-contract for the excavating and concrete work was given to the George L. Cousins Contracting Co. of St. Louis.

The building is to be one story and basement, and will cost upwards of $50,000. Brick, reinforced concrete, hollow tile, gypsum blocks, and stone and glass blocks will be used in the construction work.

Fairbanks Fund to Heirs

PITTSBURGH—A $196,068 trust fund established here by the late Douglas Fairbanks was turned over to the executor of his will by the court. The fund is to be distributed proportionately among his heirs, Lady Sylvia Ashley, Douglas jr., and several nieces.

IATSE Will Discuss Backing Managers

CHICAGO—The matter of whether the IATSE will take jurisdiction over a managers' union is expected to come up at the organization's national convention June 3 in Louisville, it is understood. A group has been organized in Detroit and other groups are contemplating organization shortly, provided that they received official IATSE backing.

Local operator delegates to the Louisville convention will be John Smith, Pete Shayne and Nel Bishop, officers; and Robert Burns, operator at the Chicago; John Mulvaney, operator at the RKO-Palace, and Frank Galuzzo, operator at the Drake.

The ninth district representatives of the "B" locals, i. e., the film exchange groups, which are supervised by the IATSE, to the convention are Irene Sharp, inspectress for 20th Century-Fox, Kansas City; John Asterly, St. Louis ushers' union; and George Bush, shipper for RKO, Chicago.

"Jack-Rabbits" in Big Numbers Expected in Wisconsin Towns

MILWAUKEE—Certain sign of spring is the appearance of "jack-rabbit" operators in Wisconsin towns in numbers expected to exceed those of previous years.

The Herrick Amusement Service, Marshfield, Wis., has announced weekly showings in cooperation with local merchants in Auburndale, Lindsey, Pittsville, Fenwood, Edgar, Hewitt and Chili.

Other towns announcing the free weekly shows include Bancroft, Galloway, Stevens Point, Rosholt, Wisconsin Rapids, Milladore, Arnott, Amherst, Juda, Bonduel, Johnson Creek, Howards Grove, Johnsonville, Five Corners, Silver Creek, Beechwood, Glenbeulah and Almond.

Population of these towns range from several hundred to 15,000 persons and the majority of them are without theatres of their own, but they are located in territories from which theatres in surrounding towns draw on for their patronage.

AGVA Plans Campaign for Vaude in Suburban Areas

CHICAGO—The American Guild of Variety Artists, AFL affiliate, is planning a campaign to help exhibitors in suburban areas use vaudeville more frequently, especially over weekend periods, according to Leo Curley, Chicago executive secretary of the AGVA.

"We hope to show exhibitors that a vaude-film policy will draw in more patrons to the boxoffice," Curley said, "especially many more than the over-emphasized double and triple feature programs are doing now. And we plan to work in every possible way with theatre owners and will give them every break possible. More dates mean more work for our actor members and more ticket money returns for the exhibitors."

Already several of the neighborhood houses are using vaudeville occasionally. The B&K Congress used several acts last weekend, while the Alex, managed by Henry Saperstein, did likewise. The Warner Stratford has been a constant user of weekend vaude, while the circuit used a vaude program last week also at the Ogden. Many others are toying with the idea, and Curley said he expects to announce additional users of vaudeville shortly.

Chicago Softball League Is Headed by Sam Lamm

CHICAGO—Sam Lamm is president of the Filmrow Softball League which will be in action again this year. Secretary and treasurer is Russ Uswetsky. There will be six teams again with games every Monday night.

Sponsors thus far are 20th Century-Fox, Henri Elman, National Screen Service and Accessories, and Spector's Restaurant. The league is still looking for two additional sponsors. Volunteer umpires are also being sought.

"Laugh" Program to Build Up Midweek

Chicago—The newest wrinkle in exhibitors' attempts to get additional coin at the boxoffice during midweek is that of Rube Levine at the Rio, Chicago Heights. He booked in 12 reels of comedies, shorts and cartoons on Tuesday, calling it "Laugh Your Troubles Away Day." No features were offered.

Action on "Contempt" Stirs Other Suits

CHICAGO—Stepping up of the tempo in the federal contempt case here is causing other film suits to come to life.

Lewis Jacobson, attorney for Frank Ford in the latter's anti-trust suit against B&K, Sam Meyers and the majors, is planning to go into court at the first opportunity to seek dismissal of defendant objections to his suit.

It has not been learned yet whether Verne Young of Gary, Ind., plans to appeal his suit against B&K, Warner Theatres and the majors to the federal circuit court of appeals. His anti-trust suit was dismissed some weeks ago in federal court.

Name Holden Manager of B&K's Chicago in Loop

CHICAGO—Bill Holden, manager of the State-Lake, has been promoted to the managership of the ace B&K loop house, the Chicago, to succeed Roy Bruder, who has resigned to open a bowling alley in East St. Louis.

Holden's promotion and other managerial shifts necessitated by the change, were announced by John Balaban at the B&K breakfast meeting of managers Tuesday at the Sherman Hotel.

The other shifts: Charlie Cottle, from the Marbro to the State-Lake; Ed O'Donnell, from the Paradise to the Marbro; George Romyne, from the Senate to the Paradise; Jerry Winsberg, from the Lakeside to the Senate.

A Summer Change

CHICAGO—A decision to close the Palace on May 16 will move RKO and Universal product over to the Oriental. The Oriental vaude-film policy will start May 17 with Universal's "If I Had My Way" starring Bing Crosby, and with Milton Berle on the stage. A 65-cent top admission will prevail.

Paramount Story Buy

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount has purchased a story by William H. Wright and John Speaks entitled "Transatlantic Clipper."

Big "Wind" Campaigns In Small Situations

CHICAGO—Having substantially completed its initial key city runs, "Gone With the Wind" is now being spotted into the smaller situations of several thousand population for one, two and three-day runs backed by company exploitation campaigns.

Advance exploiteers are being sent out by Metro to confer with the small town exhibitor, or his manager, on plans for selling the picture in his community. Results reported have been exceedingly satisfactory.

Assisting exhibitors in the Chicago exchange area are Bill Bishop and Norman Pyle, who confer with the small town showmen on advertising budgets, the manner of presentation of the film, etc. A number of the exhibitors report advance sales of tickets for "Wind," something new for them since their entry into the business.

The smallest town in the Chicago area in which "Wind" has been shown thus far, is Tampico, Ill., population 645, where J. A. Dauntler operates the 245-seat Tampico. Then there is the Rem, 300-seat house operated by Harold Heyer in Remington, Ind., a town of 800. Heyer also showed the picture at his Moroko, Morocco, Ind. Another small town showing was the 400-seat Walnut, operated by Ed Hammerle in Walnut, Ill., population, 800.

Other small towns in which exhibitors are putting on high-powered campaigns for the film are: Homer, Homer, Ill., operated by Logan Hendrick; Capitol, Batavia, Joe Burke; Oak, Roanoke, C. M. Phillips; Lyric, Lacon, B. F. Shafer; Roxy, Toluca, Joe Tozzi; Fargo, Sycamore, Stanley Levine; El Tover, Crystal Lake, S. R. Sankstone; Brad, Bradford, Si Griever; Bement, Bement, Loren Fenstermaker; Antioch, Antioch, F. B. Swanson, and Royal, Sheffield, L. G. Keelen.

Three Chicago Regionals Are Scheduled for May

CHICAGO—The Windy City will see three regional conventions this month. Starting Monday with M-G-M, that company's midwestern representatives will meet at the Drake, May 13 and 14. United Artists' western contingent meets at the Congress May 17 to 19, while overlapping those days, May 18 to 20, will be the Universal western confab at the Drake.

Warner Theatres Collect $5,524 for Rogers Fund

CHICAGO—Warner Theatres, headed in this territory by Jimmy Coston, have finished collection of funds for the Will Rogers Memorial Drive for the Saranac Lake sanitarium. The circuit's 18 houses in the Chicago zone collected $5,524 this year, which is $400 more than last.

Expert Tub Thumping For Clinton Premiere

CLINTON, IA.—It's a pretty well established fact in these parts of Iowa that the world premiere of 20th Century-Fox's "Lillian Russell" will be held here next Wednesday night, May 15, at two Central States' houses, the Capitol and Rialto. For 20th Century-Fox's praise agents, sent on by Charles E. McCarthy from New York —Earl Wingart and Eddie Solomon—and Lionel Wasson, Central States' space grabber, have been letting the populace know all about.

The usual 100,000 forecast for the big event has been made, and Solomon, who has been here working with Wasson for the last two weeks, says that the town's own population of 25,000 will be somewhere in the crowd.

The Northwestern Railroad has been tied in to the event and will send its new crack streamlined train, "Treasure Island," on a special preview run from Chicago to Clinton, May 15, carrying 20th Century-Fox stars and midwest newspaper and trade-press writers to the event. This train is not scheduled to start regular runs until June. Don Ameche, Leo Carrillo, Lynn Bari, Brenda Joyce, Cesar Romero and Mary Healy are the Fox players now set to make the trip here. Alice Faye and Edward Arnold will head a troupe who will attend the simultaneous premiere the same night in Pittsburgh.

Clinton will celebrate the premiere for three days starting May 13, with ball games, dances, band serenades and selection of a "Miss Lillian Russell of 1940" among Iowa college coeds. The premiere day will open with a parade, followed by a city-wide luncheon for the guests. In the afternoon a plaque in memory of Lillian Russell will be dedicated. A dinner will precede the evening dual premiere, followed by a grand ball.

Local headquarters is the Lafayette Hotel.

A Good Publicizing Job Heralds "Abe Lincoln"

MILWAUKEE—Harry MacDonald, manager of the Warner, did a good job of publicizing "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." He arranged for the presentation of an album of the original records made by Ramond Massey in his portrayal of the film to Mayor Carl F. Zeidler. The presentation was portrayed in the daily press.

He also acted as host to scout troops at a showing of the picture and promoted a newspaper picture in this connection.

Censors Okay Herb Kline's "Lights Out in Europe"

CHICAGO—"Lights Out in Europe," which is to be distributed in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana by Abe Teitel, has been passed by the censor board with a general permit and without any cuts. It was produced by Herbert Kline.

CHICAGO

WILLIAM B. BRENNER, vice-president of National Screen Service, was through here conferring with Morton Van Praag, en route to New York, following a business trip that took him all the way to the west coast.

Millie Anderson, TWA publicist, who lets us know all about the film stars' arrivals, is back from a quick week's vacation to Hollywood . . . Emile Montemurro, Movietone News bureau head here, had an exclusive feature last week dealing with the selection of Mrs. Charles Mayo, widow of the famous Doctor Mayo of Rochester, Minn., as the "American Mother of 1940."

Al Dezel is now re-issuing "Assassin of Youth," which has just played the Rialto. "Fools of Desire," another of his releases, has just finished at the Rialto, and the Lubliner & Trinz Clark . . . Gladys Lax of Indiana-Illinois Theatres, about the time you read this, will be on board a Hawaii-bound steamer, for a three-week vacation on the tropical isle. Gladys planed-out to Los Angeles last Thursday and will return from there the same way. And from what we're told it's not one of those "$49.50 cruises" either.

Mannie Gottlieb, Universal branch manager, is back from his Los Angeles vacation . . . Bob Slayback is due back shortly from a Florida vacation. The manager of Bill Pearl's Alcyon in Highland Park, Bob sent all of the folks at Allied postcard greetings from the southland.

Regina Lane of National Screen Service is spending a month's vacation in Los Angeles with relatives.

George Topper of the Haymarket is still knocking on wood. You would, too, if you saw his car after it turned over twice near Grand Rapids, Mich., as George was returning from a fishing trip in northern Michigan.

Phil Fischer of Hollywood Amusement Co., who has just returned from a vacation and honeymoon trip to the west coast with Mrs. Fischer, is now comfortably ensconced in a north side penthouse.

Dave Kimmel, here as an RKO booker just long enough to get acquainted with the Windy City, has been shifted to Omaha by the company.

Jim Donohue of Paramount was in California this week, called there by the illness of his mother.

Bob Montgomery of Essaness' publicity crew and Mrs. Montgomery were planning their summer vacation trip this week. Said Mrs. Montgomery: "You know I can't make up my mind whether to stop in River's End and visit Dr. Christian, or go to Carvel for a few days visit with Judge Hardy and family."

Bill Hollander will head the Chicago contingent to the "Lillian Russell" premiere in Clinton, Ia., next Wednesday, which will include Windy City newspaper and tradepaper writers.

O. K. Fischer Is G. M. of Hollywood Amusement

CHICAGO—Phil Fischer, president of Hollywood Amusement Co., announces the appointment of his brother, O. K. Fischer, as general manager of the company. He will headquarter in the home offices here.

New Glencoe 1,100-Seater To Be Run by Valos

CHICAGO—Rumored for some time, announcement has been made of the second house to the built in Glencoe, fashionable suburb north of Chicago. It is to be an 1,100-seat house and will be operated by George T. Valos.

The house, scheduled to be opened by August 15, is announced as a $125,000 expenditure, with Irving M. Karlin as architect. It will be in the center of Glencoe's business district.

The first house announced for the section was that of Sam Meyers, operator of the Teatro del Lago in Wilmette. Meyers' house, reported to represent an investment of $175,000 in land and building, is just over the north Winnetka limits and derives its name, the Glenwin, from the first part of the two suburbs' names.

A Bishop Stresses Need For Realism in Films

CHICAGO—Realism, such as that depicted in "Grapes of Wrath," is needed more in this country so that people can better understand the trouble of others in order that remedial measures may be initiated. This is the opinion of Bishop William Scarlett of the Episcopal Church, St. Louis, who spoke here before the Sunday Evening Club in Orchestra Hall.

"What we need," said Bishop Scarlett, "is an imagination so sensitized as to bring us into a fellow feeling with all who suffer." He added that pictures such as "Grapes of Wrath" can best do that.

RACINE

SEVERAL buildings on Racine's Main Street are undergoing frontal changes, including Warner's Rialto and Venetian theatres, which are soon to have new canopies in the current streamline design.

Members of the Better Films League were guests of Stanley Lambert, Rialto manager, at a showing of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" . . . With the Marx Bros. in their performance at the Chicago in Chicago was Jules Grandon, former Racine boy. Grandon (Julius Sklute to his Racine friends) did outstanding work in music before going west for music and picture work in Hollywood.

Brownee Brown, daughter of Len S. Brown of the Mainstreet, took 35 of her dancing students to Chicago, to present a demonstration performance before members of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters.

Warner's Venetian is offering books on numerology to women patrons on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons . . . Under new management, the Granada, northside neighborhood theatre, is providing patrons with a free lighted parking space at the rear of the building.

Goldman Forms Chicago State Rights Company

CHICAGO—Saul Goldman has formed Variety Pictures to distribute independent and state-rights' product. In addition, Goldman, who has been general manager of the Sack Amusement Enterprises Chicago office for nearly two years, announced that he has taken over the exclusive distribution in this territory of the Sack company's Negro pictures, in addition to those of Million Dollar Productions, also producers of Negro product.

Goldman has been in the film industry in Chicago since 1923, and has been connected in the past with Educational, B N. Judell and Monogram Pictures.

Droll Theatre Supply Co. Opens Under Anders

CHICAGO—The Droll Theatre Supply Co. has been organized to serve the Chicago film territory, with Gus Anders as general manager in charge of the city sales. In the office as office manager will be Vic Maylon, who has been in the film equipment business for several years in Chicago. Charlie Williams has been assigned country sales.

A division of the J. W. Droll Co., the theatre supply company, is located on East Ohio St., where the company also maintains manufacturing facilities for its patented carbon-saver device.

Sheboygan Film Council Elects New Officers

SHEBOYGAN, WIS.—New officers of the Better Films Council here were elected May 2 as follows: Mrs. William Festerling, president; Harry J. Emigh, first vice-president; Mrs. Earl Trowbridge, second vice-president; Mrs. Theodore Grasse, recording secretary; Mrs. James Moers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. F. Sprengel, treasurer.

The council was the guests of Nic Johnson at his Van der Vaart and State theatres here, May 4 and 11, respectively. The latter house has been newly renovated.

HOLLYWOOD—Richard English is scripting "Hit Parade of 1940" for Producer Sol C. Siegel at Republic.

Fanchon & Marco Tie With Police Circus

ST. LOUIS—Some local theatre owners are "beefing" because Fanchon & Marco used the recent annual Police Circus at the Arena to put over a stunt to boost attendance at the Ambassador, Fox and Missouri theatres by holding out the opportunity for those attending the police circus to obtain price reductions at the F&M first run houses.

On the back of the program, listing the 31 displays at the Police Circus, which was produced by the Fanchon & Marco interests, was this catchy heading: "This page is worth $$$$ to you."

"Fanchon & Marco is proud to have served the St. Louis Police Relief Association for the second consecutive year in the production, direction and supervision of the 1940 Police Circus.

"It will be of great assistance to Fanchon & Marco if you will kindly answer the following questions to guide us in the future:

1. Which act did you most enjoy?

2. Which acts would you like to see again next year?

3. What suggestion have you for possible improvement for next year's circus?

4. Do you feel that you received worth-while entertainment?

"The 1940 Police Relief Circus perfectly typifies that entertainment which Fanchon & Marco strives to serve you in its theatres — enjoyable — wholesome, and worth your while.

"Present this program with your answers filled in, at the Ambassador, Fox or Missouri theatres prior to August 1, 1940, for a five cent allowance on a 15 cent ticket, 10 cents allowance on a 25 cent ticket, 15 cents allowance on a 35 cent ticket, 20 cents allowance on a 40 cent ticket, 25 cents allowance on a 50 cent ticket.

"Watch for the first annual Great American Spectacle! The wildest, wooliest Wild West Show ever presented in America. Cowboys! Indians! Stage Coach Attack! Bucking Bronco's! Sharpshooting! Brahma-Steer Riding! Cowboy basketball! To be produced and presented this fall by Fanchon & Marco at the Arena."

Photoplay Indorsers Honor Pettijohn on Anniversary

INDIANAPOLIS—The 25th anniversary of the founding of the Indianapolis Indorsers of Photoplays and the homecoming of Charles B. Pettijohn, MPPDA general counsel, were celebrated at the Claypool Hotel. Pettijohn was the principal speaker.

Pettijohn discussed the foreign situation, block booking, blind buying and community selection. He formerly lived in Indianapolis, and recalled speaking before the indorsers 20 years ago when he brought 19-year-old David O. Selznick along with him as a guest speaker. Selznick, who was asked to attend the meeting, expressed his regrets. Attending the meeting with Pettijohn was his wife, whom he met here and who was Belle Bruce of the films.

Mrs. Clarence J. Finch, general chairman, presided. Recognition was given founders of the organization. Three who attended the meeting besides Mrs. David Ross, president, were Mesdames Curtis Hodges, John Downing Johnson and Fred D. Stilz.

Sam Meyers Again Joins Illinois Allied Ranks

CHICAGO—Sam Meyers, brother-in-law to the Balaban Brothers, who was one of the original founders of the Illinois unit of Allied in 1929 and who pulled out shortly thereafter over factional disagreements, again has become a member of the Illinois unit. Meyers' Wilmette house, the Teatro Del Lago, was announced this week, by Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois, as a new member.

While Meyers has not actually been a member for some years, he is known to have been in accord with many of the Allied group's fundamental principles.

Another new Allied member is Ray Jarman, operator of the Don, Downers Grove, Ill.

INDIANAPOLIS

MAURICE RUBIN, operator of the Tivoli, Lido, Lake and Uptown theatres in Michigan City, is taking a few days vacation to do some trout fishing and to rest up after being under pressure the last few months with his new theatre.

Orville Crouch, former assistant manager to Ward Farrar at Loew's here, has been advanced to manager of Loew's in Canton, Ohio, where he has been relief manager since leaving Indianapolis.

Claude Allison of the Strand is bragging about his big catch of fish that he only had to travel 11 miles out of town for—sounds "fishy" to us . . . The Paramount office force held an outing last week with "Duff" Newman acting as Chef —some fun, they all report.

Wilbur Grant, salesman for Universal, is back on the job after an illness of several weeks . . . Cecilia Hughes, secretary to Gordon Craddock, manager at Universal, is vacationing in the east for several days . . . Joe Smith of Affiliated Theatres, Inc., has gone to his summer home in Michigan . . . J. H. Stevens, manager at Paramount, has returned to the job after a very short illness.

Chicago Headlines Make "Babies for Sale" Cinch

CHICAGO—Jack Thoma, Columbia exploiteer here, didn't wait long when the local "baby mart" case broke, to tie in Columbia's "Babies for Sale," which has a plot similar to the local case

Thoma had a print rushed here and screened it for Judge Harry Fisher, circuit court jurist, who is investigating the local case. Judge Fisher endorsed the film as the type of picture that will give the public an opportunity to beware of similar real-life cases, and his statement was used by International News Service in a wire story that mentioned the film and tie-in with the local case.

A New Measure

CHICAGO—With "Gone With the Wind" leaving the Oriental May 16 to be followed by another vaudefilm policy, and the film still set for an indefinite stay at the Woods, the praise agents of the two houses have been going to town with fancy figures on the run here.

Fritz Blocki, publicist for the Oriental, has figured out that at least 750,000 fans will have seen the picture at that house by May 16, and Norman Kassel and Bob Montgomery of Essaness say that about 125,000 have viewed it at the Woods.

The boys, additionally, have figured out that—

"Twelve miles of film a day is run through the machines at the Oriental.

"The fourth print is now in use at the Oriental, which totals 88,000 feet or 16⅓ miles of film.

"The 337 performances at the Oriental will constitute the longest run of the film under the continuous run (three-a-day) policy.

"The film outlasted carpets, that had to be renewed, seats that had to be recovered, etc."

'Fair and Warm' Weekends Taking Patrons Afield

CHICAGO—Business continued off as the public took to the outdoors on the second "fair and warm" weekend in a row.

The only competent draw in the loop continued to be UA's "Rebecca," which was in its fifth loop week, having moved over to the Apollo, after four weeks at the Chicago.

Some of the suburban houses enjoyed fair patronage in the evenings, but the afternoons found thousands flocking to the parks and countryside.

Heart Attack Fatal to William C. Tracy, 51

MADISON, IND.—The former owner of the Madison here, Louis E. Holwager, has presented the board of education a $7,500 pipe organ which has been unused and in the theatre since the advent of sound. It will be removed and placed in the new Madison High School gymnasium, now nearing completion.

Stunter Sues Universal

INDIANAPOLIS—Contending that filmed stunts he performed for the Studebaker Company in 1935 were used by Universal in a film dedicated to Lucky Teeter, a suit for $100,000 was filed here by Earl L. (Wild Bill) Simon, against the Studebaker Sales Corp., Universal, and Lucky Teeter.

Clinton Busy Making Plans for Premiere

CLINTON, IA.—With a fine disregard for the business interests of Harold Barnes at the Capitol and Jerry Greenbaum at the Rialto, Clinton business men last week were busily engaged in lining up competitive entertainment for the two days prior to the "Lillian Russell" one-third-of-a-premiere here.

The premiere is scheduled on the eveing of May 15 at both the Rialto and Capitol. Premieres are booked in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Hollywood at the same time.

Clinton merchants are stretching the fete here into a three-day celebration with special window decorations of Gay Nineties "antiques," an old fiddlers contest, a quad-county costume-beauty contest and a free street dance on the program.

May 15 will be the Central States "Theatres Day," however, after film stars Don Ameche, Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes and Mary Healy arrive at 11 a. m., on the special new Northwestern streamliner, Treasure Island, making its maiden trip from Chicago.

Christening of the streamliner will be part of that day's program along with a parade and dedication of a plaque marking the birthplace of Lillian Russell.

Efforts to get a Mississippi River passenger boat here for a movie ball on the river after the evening premiere fell through when river transport firms refused to alter schedules. A dance still is tentatively on the program, however, with Don Ameche expected to do a whirl or two with competitors in a "Belle of the Forties" beauty contest from the University of Iowa, Coe College, Cornell College and Grinnell.

Newsmen from 11 midwestern cities have been invited as guests of 20th Century-Fox. Most of them are expected to meet in Chicago and ride in on the streamliner with the stars.

Earl Wingate and William C. Gehring from Fox's New York offices directed preliminary arrangements here. Eddie Solomon of the Fox publicity department, and Lionel Wasson of Central States are supervising the developments now. Milt Howe is to make the trip from the coast with the Fox stars.

Preliminary work of erecting platforms outside the Capitol and Rialto theatres (they're side by side) already has started. Special spotlights will be installed Tuesday and WMT broadcasting facilities from the theatre will be shoved into place on Wednesday, the big day.—R. C.

A 16mm Film Exchange Is Opened in Kaycee

KANSAS CITY—The largest 16mm film exchange in the west has been opened here in the Midland Bldg. by Keystone State Amusement Circuits, "largest 16mm movie circuit operators in the world."

Larry G. Brady, formerly of the organization's Memphis office, is in charge.

Relapse Sends Steffes to Hospital in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS—Following another heart attack, President W. A. Steffes of Northwest Allied is in Abbott Hospital for observation and treatment. The attack occurred Monday.

Steffes suffered his first heart attack in Washington last January while attending the Allied States directors meeting. He was confined to the hospital there for several months and then went to Florida for further recuperation before returning to Minneapolis.

It is believed that Steffes will be unable to resume his Northwest Allied activities for some time. The aggressive leader of independents also will be compelled to take an extended vacation from his World Theatre here.

See Settlement Trend In St. Joseph Case

NEW YORK—Private legal opinion veers toward the belief an out-of-court settlement may be entertained in the $425,000 anti-trust action brought by Eugenia and Frank H. Cassil, operators of the Rialto, St. Joseph, Mo., against the eight majors and the Kansas City Operating Co., comprised of the four Dubinsky brothers.

The Cassils charge the majors conspired with the Dubinskys and Charles Geiger, another defendant, to refuse to furnish the Rialto with second run product in and since 1932, allegedly in violation of the Rialto's contracts with defendant distributors. The Rialto claims it is compelled to wait up to 132 days for product.

Tri-States Deal for K-8 Product Is Approved

NEW YORK—Approval by Herman Wobber, 20th-Fox general sales manager, of the deal for the 1940-41 (K-8) product, negotiated by Central Division Manager W. C. Gehring with Tri-States circuit of Des Moines, makes this the first such deal closed with a major sectional circuit.

The circuit embraces some 26 situations in the Des Moines and Omaha territories.

Gillman Reduces

MINNEAPOLIS—Irving Gillman's loop independent sure-seater, the Esquire, this week went to a 25 cent flat admission, the same as the Minnesota Amusement Company downtown Gopher. Initial offering under the new price policy was a reissue, "The Old Dark House."

Twin City Barkers Have $20,000 Goal

MINNEAPOLIS—The Twin City Variety Club must raise $20,000 for the Milk Fund this year, Chief Barker Ben Blotcky told members at a dinner meeting this week. He pleaded for closer cooperation and greater help and requested that members make suggestions as to how the needed money should be obtained.

The Milk Fund, with Twin City Variety club sponsorship, has distributed 24,000 quarts of the beverage to needy families so far this year—a considerably larger amount than ever before, Blotcky said. The recent ball was a big success financially and a substantial profit was realized for the Fund, he revealed.

"Variety is building over the entire state," said Blotcky. "We even have received letters from towns as small as 400 population inquiring about us and our work. We are doing something for the motion picture industry which never has been done before—making it a civic and philanthropic force and winning the public's respect and good-will."

Blotcky particularly commended Barkers Bill Elson, Frank McCormick and Theodore Hays for their hard work and effective efforts to make the recent ball a success. Elson, Don Buckley and others reported on the Dallas convention.

It was announced by Blotcky that there will be several other social events and a golf tournament during the course of the year. He called attention to the fact that one of the local barkers, Eddie Ruben, was given national recognition by being elected secretary-treasurer at the Dallas convention.

"Hy" Chapman, first assistant chief barker, urged a larger turnout for the Saturday night Bank and Bingo nights in the clubrooms. He declared that members "should take the club more seriously and go to work." Frank McCormick pointed out that the chief barker needs "a lot of help" and pledged to assist to the best of his ability. The Variety club's objective was called "most commendable" by Theodore Hays. Its accomplishment of being helpful to the underprivileged is one that every member can take pride in, he said.

Build at Linn, Mo.

LINN, MO.—A 300-seat house is being built here for the Lyle-Brown Co. of St. Louis.

Tabulate the Grievances

Minneapolis—Chief grievance among local independent exhibitors is compulsory block booking, it is indicated. Those summoned to testify in the government anti-trust suit against the distributors are ready to voice their complaints.

Many of the independents hereabouts also wish to have producer ownership or control of theatres done away with, although the feeling toward the Minnesota Amusement Company (Paramount), generally, is exceedingly friendly. Except in the matter of clearance, the latter is regarded by the independents as a fair competitor.

A number of the independents, however, feel that the Minnesota Amusement Company is demanding and receiving unfair protection in Minneapolis and St. Paul particularly. Others feel that the big thing to be accomplished is the elimination of percentage.

Wherein the Odeon Is Opened

By KEN AND RENE CLAYTON

MARSHALLTOWN, IA.—That dinner with Exploiteer Speed Lambert and Earl Kerr, one-third of the Odeon triumvirate, was only the beginning, folks . . . and you can imagine grinding an ax with two Gardenias? But anyway, Speed and Earl did it . . . Before the Gardenias had started to droop on her lapel, they'd caught BOXOFFICE & Co. off-guard to get a promise to show up in Marshalltown for the big Monday opening of the Odeon . . . They even roped BOXOFFICE into gaily urging & Co. to M. C. the show for them.

But everybody forgot to tell BOXOFFICE that & Co. had promised Speed via Bell System that she'd do a radio stint in the lobby . . . she was kept completely in the dark until she suddenly found herself in Marshalltown being kicked around by some 30,000 people who wanted to see Wally Beery . . . they saw Beery, who paraded past the new Odeon and on to his hotel.

We go to our hotel room . . . we feel fine . . . we're gonna have fun . . . and then at about seven o'clock, somebody says this is Charlie Lienhaas of KFJB . . . you'll work with him in the lobby at 7:45 while & Co. does the M. C. chores on the stage . . . Charlie was a good egg and knew his stuff or we'd have decided against the whole thing even in the face of & Co.'s promise.

But the Odeon was such a perfect example of how beautiful, fine, compact and yet spacious a small theatre can be that we couldn't help being enthusiastic . . . and when we saw all those DM Filmrowers pouring in the foyer, we felt right at home . . . Sam Horowitz (another third of the Odeon triumvirate) appeared from nowhere with Rheba and pinned a second rose on us . . . Mike Roskopf, the final third, wandered in and said, "I'd rather be in Africa hunting elephants."

No small item in the crowd was Stan Mayer, whom we snagged and presented to Charlie for a little chat on the air . . . next came Don West who plugged Stone's cafeteria and had the Marshalltown gals sure he was Nelson Eddy from Hollywood . . . Al Schuyler gave his expert opinion of new Odeon then showed us pix of Phillip, his latest acquisition, and bragged that he was one Filmrow papa who scooped BOXOFFICE with his own offspring.

Jack Kennedy skipped into the lounge and talked with Charlie while we noted that Lois was even prettier than we'd thought she was that night out at the Club 100 . . . We talked with Charlie Peterson of Hampton and for once found Chick Friedman short of words when we popped him in front of the microphone.

We spy Bill Toney in the crowd and discover that his red nose the day we saw him was because he didn't know about sunlamps either . . . Elmer Tilton spoke like a veteran and informed us on the side that he wears those pink shirts only in the winter . . . George Beaumeister repeated his ill-fated chicken dinner invitation and again we accepted.

Howard and Hazel Dunn decided the triumvirate had done all right by the Odeon . . . and Art Jacobs of the Neon Sign Co. in Omaha viewed with delight the way the stuff was slathered all over the Odeon front . . . Jack Kennedy bet it wouldn't cost him $1.25 to play Morris Smith a game of pitch under that mirrored ceiling . . . Jerry McGlynn was seen admiring his crowning glory beneath same ceiling.

Just to show the boys they weren't pea-green, a lot of exhibitors showed up at the Odeon, too . . . we saw Butch Lambert of the Monty in Monticello . . . Harold Hall of Elkader . . . Rudy Falls of the DM Theatre . . . Harry Herman of New Hampton . . . Bob Fulton of Waterloo . . . Tom Arthur of Mason City and Jenson, his right-hand man. George LeBlanc and Lois (he's with Altec Service Corp. in Waterloo and she bakes cakes) . . . Gilley Wells and Ruby were there and when we declared Gilley the cutest on the DM Row, he generously presented us with a watch (wrist).

We saw the Morris Smiths and had time to bedevil Moe Levy from Minneapolis in the lounge before Speed Lambert dragged us backstage to see what was going on there . . . and what was? Well, & Co. was out front wearing a scarlet carnation to match those wonderful velvet curtains, and trying to be flippant with some people he'd never seen before (and getting away with it, McKechneay!) . . . Charlie Lienhaas was tearing his nice blond locks because Beery was manhandling the sensitive 125-buck mike . . . Sam Horowitz and Mike Roskopf were showing us just how the Odeon looked before they started turning it into a dusty-pink, aquamarine Grecian classic . . . and Don Olson, Earl Kerr's assistant at the Casino and destined to be the head man at the new Odeon, was being very calm about it all.

Beery lunched with Governor Stark of Missouri Monday, then flew his own plane from St. Louis to Marshalltown in 90 minutes . . . An estimated 30,000 lined Marshalltown streets to greet him . . . the same streets where only an estimated 6,000 ogled Politician Thomas E. Dewey's parade Saturday . . . Twenty highway patrolmen, the entire Marshalltown police force and the junior patrol were unable to keep the crowd in check through the entire parade . . . Onlookers broke up the line of march twice when they swarmed around Beery's car and forced it to stop.

Gov. George Wilson of Iowa had to decline an invitation to the Odeon opening in order to sit at home by his telephone, just in case there should be some new development on the scheduled hanging of Walter H. (Dusty) Rhodes at the Fort Madison penitentiary Tuesday morning . . . The governor's gesture was in vain . . . Rhodes died at 7:29 a. m. Tuesday on the gallows.

The new Odeon Theatre is on the site of the old Odeon, originally opened in Marshalltown in 1888 . . . A. A. Moore and Mrs. Lou Abbott, both of whom attended the opening 52 years ago, were present at Monday night's midwestern premiere of "20 Mule Team."

Nebraska's Gov. Roy L. Cochran had planned to attend the Odeon opening on May 10 but was forced to send his regrets to M-G-M Exploiteer Speed Lambert . . . The Nebraska senatorial race kept him from showing up when the date was switched to May 6 . . . "I think that's sweet," Speed commented, after telling about the governor's note . . . but woebegone was & Co. who had counted on introducing the white-thatched Nebraska executive as the "white spot of the nation."

Ruby Cummings was claiming to have located the key to marital bliss when she related that her husband was attending a stag party back in Council Bluffs . . . but she had an argument on her hands from BOXOFFICE & Co. who think they've learned a thing or two in that direction . . . Ruby is Earl Kerr's secretarial gem . . . Earl's two-toned green ensemble couldn't have looked better on a Fisher body, but he switched to a dignified blue in the evening anyway.

Beery had the Odeon crowd with him on his story of how his little daughter, Carol Ann, spent $47.60 telling him via telephone to New York that she wanted a new ironing board so she could save $1.54 on laundry, but for our money the top remark of the evening was hours later from the lips of that rotund, bespectacled film salesman. Said he: "I wish they'd flavor this stuff with chocolate so's you could enjoy drinking it, too."

A Disconsolate Wallace Beery

Des Moines—"Boy, was I dumb?" queried disconsolate Wallace Beery of the world at large here Tuesday as he awaited a United Air Lines plane to take him to New York for the "20 Mule Team" opening there.

"I should have landed in Des Moines and driven over to Marshalltown. Six thousand hours in the air and I set the plane down on a soft field with heavy rain coming up. My plane's so far down in the mud I don't know when they'll get it out."

Beery had landed his plane at the Marshalltown, Ia., airport Monday in order to make a personal appearance at the opening of the new Odeon Theatre there. Rain muddied the field so Beery couldn't take off in his own ship Tuesday morning. He left his mechanic there to take the plane on to New York as soon as the Marshalltown field dries off.

NSS-AA Employes at Variety Luncheon

KANSAS CITY—Approximately 75, one of the largest crowds in its history, attended the Variety Club luncheon May 6. About 35 were employes and staff members of National Screen Service and Advertising Accessories, Inc.

Their attendance marked the inauguration of a new idea in Variety Monday luncheons, that of having, each Monday, all employes of an exchange or Filmrow firm as guests. The firm invited will provide entertainment. Charley Gregory of NSS and Homer Blackwell of AA were the joint hosts of the two groups Monday.

Through Jerry Zigmond of the Newman, the NSS-AA group presented Ming, only Chinese magician in this country who was so entertaining he was impressive. President Jay Means gave a brief story of the ideals and inspiration behind Variety Clubs of America.

Next Monday, May 13, 20th-Fox employes will be guests. It is interesting to note that George Baker stood when the NSS-AA group was introduced, claiming that "I'm working for them." It just goes to show you what a little feminine influence will do to a group of men.

Beverly Miller, who is in charge of ticket sales for the party May 18, spoke briefly. In addition to a buffet supper, dancing, music, and entertainment, a set of dishes will be given away in order to make exhibitors feel at home.

Guests on Monday included Bob Gorham and Walter A. Koger of the Liberty, Horton, Kas. (Herb Stulz), and L. J. Hensley of Hollywood Advertising (Nat Hechtman).

Saturday Night, May 18, to Be Gala Night for "Whingding"

KANSAS CITY—"Let's Sing and Swing at the Spring Whingding" is the theme of the Variety Club Saturday night jamboree May 18. Members and their friends are promised a gala evening of fun and merriment for the price of 50 cents a person. The event is mainly for couples.

Judge Applebee of WDAF's Barrel of Fun program will preside at a quiz, awarding prizes to the wise ones. There will be Bingo, special music and other entertainment, plus a de luxe buffet supper.

Jerry Zigmond is in charge of the entertainment, assisted by Barney Joffee, Leland Allen, Douglas Desch, Jim McConnell and Don Woods. Hal Perrin is in charge of publicity.

Plan to Add More Members And Increase Activities

KANSAS CITY—A plan for increasing its membership and the scope of its activities has been launched by Variety, according to Jay Means, chief barker.

HOMER BLACKWELL, branch manager for Advertising Accessories, really had a big weekend. Saturday he went fishing with his family on Roaring River—and caught five. On Monday he celebrated his birthday anniversary—which one he won't say . . . Liberty Inner Remodeling Under Way in Lincoln

LINCOLN—Contractors went into action on the old Liberty inner structure this week, and will yank the entire interior of the spot apart, preparatory to setting up a $70,000 fire-proof theatre within the walls of the 50-year-old office building.

Howard Federer, general manager of the Nebraska Theatres, Inc., of which it's a property, said it would probably be ready to open around mid-August, or early September, and will seat 1,100 as against its present capacity of 900. The stage space will be occupied by seats.

Meantime, the city council survey and appraisal committees, who are working at property evaluation before tearing down the Varsity, the other big NTI house, indicate it will be July or later before there are any definite moves.

The Keokuk Frisina Corp. Cleared in Damage Suit

KEOKUK, IA.—The Keokuk Frisina Theatre Corp. won a directed verdict in the $5,000 damage suit brought against the theatre company by George M. Bauswell of Keokuk. District Judge J. R. Leary decided the case.

Bauswell charged malicious prosecution, alleging his character had been damaged when he was indicted by the Lee county grand jury on charges of attempting to defraud the theatre firm in connection with a Bank Night drawing. The charge against Bauswell and several other defendants was dismissed after a verdict of not guilty in the trial of one defendant. Bauswell then sued the theatre company.

April Building Record in Des Moines Shows Rise

DES MOINES—One theatre operator, who prefers not to be quoted, said here recently he didn't know of an exhibitor who had shown a profit on business since Christmas. Business may be off, but April, nevertheless, set a new all-time record for the number of residence building permits issued, the volume of residence permits and the total permits for all classes of buildings.

Figures compiled by Fred Heyer, Des Moines building commissioner, show a total of 96 new home permits totaling $414,240. The previous monthly high mark was May, 1939, when 86 dwelling permits totaled $388,750.

AVOCA, IA.—Arthur Meredith of Sigourney has purchased the Harris-Avoca here. The house had been operated by Carl Ernst.

Flack! Flack!

By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

LEE BLUMBERG of the Warner publicity staff in NY gave us that vacant, hollow-looking death's head which adorns our living room wall. Bill Lansburg, Paramount bally man out of Hollywood, says the picture reminds him of the gals he knows . . . He can see right through them, too. D'ja mean no brains or no petticoats, Bill?

When Clarey Barbiaux of RKO doesn't have a spicy batch of leg art on the fire out in H'wood, he's stirring up a mean blob of spaghetti with his own little hands . . . And Clarey can tell you just when either is well done—down to the last dash of paprika.

Art Catlin of UA in Chi knows a guy in St. Louis who flies a plane and likes company en route to New Orleans . . . Al Sellers of M-G-M in Culver City knows a guy, already in New Orleans, who knows 'nother guy who can really unveil the town . . . They oughta pool their resources.

This is Rufus Blair's yarn, but we're gonna make it part of our knitting: The Blair claims to have been presented with a very fine bone for his purp, "Butch," while stopping overnight in Frisco. Days later the forgotten bone was discovered and "extra'ed" on the street as the latest clue to a fancy-carving murderer. Paramount's Rufus says he didn't say nuthin' (and this is the only part of the story we won't swallow). This tale has nothing to do with Rufus' using an alias . . . Watch Flack! Flack! for the squeal.

Hearing of Sam Clark's illness on the coast, Warner's Monroe Rubinger in Kaycee philosophizes: "There's an awful lot of Sam to get sick, but he won't complain if less of him got well."

Now we know what Charlie Levy meant by saying his new RKO feature service out of NY would serve a "two-fold function." He escorted both "My Favorite Wife" and Gallahadion to fame at Louisville. Sounds more like a three-fold function, with Chollie writing about his little quarter-year-old daughter: "She's kinda cute. Hope you are the same."

We thought it was pretty Foxy of Milt Howe in Beverly Hills to offer us Open Sesame of the Hollywood bastille (in 'n OUT) . . . But we warned him he'd have to be a good little boy at the "Lillian Russell" premiere at Clinton, Ia. They don't believe in Aladdin and the "Arabian Nights" in the middle west, Milt . . . (Check this with Steve Brooks).

Remember, you can always entertain Walter Wanger's John Leroy Johnston with a simple piece of string.

DES MOINES—Joseph Forrest, Hollywood impersonator and comedian, presented a characterization of "The Old Time Medicine Man" at the Kiwanis Club meeting here.

Agricultural Reports Make Cheerful News to Trade

MINNEAPOLIS—The film industry here is heartened by reports from county agents and agronomists in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana that early spring crop prospects are the best in years.

Until late April the outlook was not one of optimism. But then came slow, soaking rains that seeped into the ground with a minimum of run-off. The result was that seeding of grains was completed under highly favorable conditions.

From counties in all Minnesota sections have come reports better than average for this time of year. North Dakota's crop prospects were given a big boost by the rains. South Dakota reported a "bright agricultural outlook with subsoil moisture reserves vastly improved," and in Montana stockmen and farmers were jubilant after the wettest April in history.

Before the rains started there had been considerable concern as a result of the prolonged dry period, which in some sections had lasted 15 months. But now the reports almost invariably tell of moisture sufficient to give crops a good start.

Uses Films to Illustrate Series of School Talks

DES MOINES—Motion pictures illustrated a series of talks in local schools last week by Virginia Sedgwick, supervisor of humane education for the Anti-Cruelty Society of Chicago, Ill.

Miss Sedgwick said humane society education programs no longer attempt to teach children "to be kind to animals." "Instead," she contended, "the attempt is made to teach children to know animals."

Council Bluffs Is Ready to Welcome Gracie Allen

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—Plans for the reception of Gracie Allen, who will be in Council Bluffs May 16, have been completed by the Retail Merchants Ass'n and the chamber of commerce.

Funny Girl Gracie will appear at Bayliss Park at 2 p. m. after a parade in her honor. She will be in Omaha during the Golden Spike program there, May 15 to 18.

Minneapolis Social Group Features "Irene" Prop

MINNEAPOLIS—Bill Scholl, RKO exploiteer, has arranged to have the original "Alice Blue Gown" from the picture "Irene" brought to Minneapolis to tie in with "Town and Gown" night at the Hotel Nicollet Minnesota Terrace where it will be worn. "Town and Gown" is a local organization of younger society people.

Feinberg Recuperating

MINNEAPOLIS—Al A. Feinberg, head of a theatre air-condition manufacturing company and prominent in local film circles, is in St. Andrews Hospital, recuperating from a heart attack. He will remain a week for treatment.

Hartman and Potter Start New Quiz Game in K. C.

KANSAS CITY—A new movie quiz program of local origin made its appearance here last week. "Quiz-U-Night" was developed by Ed Hartman of Charley Potter's Saline Theatre Corp. and combines the quiz program with the old country store idea. An emcee asks the questions, portable mikes bring the answers from members of the audience. If the patron answers the question correctly he gets $1 or more; if he doesn't, he gets merchandise.

The idea is being used at the Murray, a Saline unit, and at J. F. Rigney's Westport, both suburban houses here.

Sproule Buys Out Tagaden In McPherson Operation

KANSAS CITY—Lee Sproule has bought E. E. Tagaden's half interest in the Mac at McPherson, Kas. Sproule held the other half.

Sproule has sold the Cozy at Ottawa, Kas., to A. M. Straffus. With the Mac, he now operates four theatres. The other three are the Isis, Marysville; Rex, Newton, and Ritz, Winfield, Kas.

N. W. Huston Is Building Airdrome in Columbus

COLUMBUS, KAS.—An airdrome show, one of the first to be built in this part of the country since silent pictures, is being constructed here by N. W. Huston, veteran exhibitor and operator of the Liberty here. The airdrome, unnamed as yet, is 25 by 100 feet, and will charge 10 cents admission.

Al Adler Rookie Salesman For Metro; Up Lambader

KANSAS CITY—Al Adler, head booker at Metro the past eight months, has been made divisional rookie salesman for the company. Adler has been with the exchange nine years.

Walt Lambader succeeds Adler as head booker. Leon Abrams moves up from head shipper to booker. Other bookers are W. W. Sherrill and W. W. Walker.

Appleton City House Is Added by Pressley

APPLETON CITY, MO.—M. B. Pressley, who has the Globe at Savannah, Mo., the Dixie at Belton, and the Binney at Pattonsburg, added to his string this week when he assumed operation of Crump Taylor's Plaza here. The Plaza will be handled by W. L. Pressley, son of M. B. Pressley.

DES MOINES

OPEN letter to Harry Holdsberg because you'll read the upcoming BOXOFFICE before we see you again: We hope you feel becomingly sorry about that record deal . . . you would have if you could have seen busy BOXOFFICE & Co. scrambling around at 9:29½, lobbing out the speeches in their "Two on the Aisle" script which led into those two tunes . . . by 9:29 and 59 seconds, they were all set with time to relax before swinging into their 9:30 broadcast. Moral: Next time you entertain heavyweight fighter, Lee Savold, let him park himself anywhere but on the tunes for our radio program. Afterthought: All is forgiven, Harry, DD telephoned right after the program and said the Tri-States gang liked the program . . . and we noticed even the station engineer registered amusment at the way Clayton wore that Lamour sarong.

Picture of the week: Chick Friedman standing in the middle of the lobby at Banker's Trust explaining with gestures that his to-and-from plane flights between Omaha and DM were entirely for business reasons and had nothing to do with those rumors of his upcoming marriage . . . background shot: Lou Elman counting carefully a fistful of dough and trying to listen to what was going on. Lou was praising Nate Sandler very highly (ahem!) as a bridge partner . . . he says Nate bids the 1-2-3-4 system; you know, has one, bids two, shoulda made three and goes down four.

Take a look: Thiele out front at DM Theatre smoking a big black cigar and watching the window washing activities . . . Florine Weiland eating a peanut-butter on rye at the counter in at Michael's . . . Joe Rogatnick in horn-ribbed glasses . . . we don't know what all at the bookers, shippers and salesmen stag over at the Moose Hall, May 3 . . . Kennie Weldon at Universal WITHOUT his blue sweater—must be Spring . . . RKO outfit generating enthusiasm for the NY convention May 27-28-29 at the Waldorf (Tell Charlie Levy, Rigrod the Red, and S. Barret Hi from us) Opie Judd winning all Walt (Dimples) Lohman's spare change at blackjack . . . Frank Gaskill playing the pinball machine at the Airway Saturday night.

How could the railroads go broke? H. O. Dewaal, RKO representative from N. Y. was taking off last week after an illness had lengthened his stay here . . . Incoming was W. B. Brenner, in charge of operations for Advertising Accessories, et al, (and don't ask us to define the "et al" because it's too much for us) . . . Pete Dana zipped into N. Y. Thursday and back to DM Monday all for biz . . . Frank Rubel, rumor has it, will leave for California May 20 to go into the seat business . . . in the meantime he's been building a home for Herman and the cat . . . Max Facter, Pioneer man from Minneapolis, was here, too, and we hear he was undoubtedly the most popular fella on the Chicago Row before he hooked up with Pioneer.

We can't vouch for it, but 'tis claimed that the reason the "Light's Out in Europe" booking was suddenly jerked here was that the Look-Ampix president, Barret King, became jammed up mentally and those who took over had to straighten out a tangled booking schedule. Thanks to Lou Levy, we now have a darned near perfect list of exhibitors and their theatres . . . Art Anderson is brushing up on his politics and trying to find out about seven-and-a-half in preparation for the Warners' convention in Washington, D C., June 10-11-12.

Cuthbert Smith's still talking about the possibility of presenting the film "Mikado" here, but he's gonna have to hurry . . . Kenny Baker's booked at the Shrine Auditorium in person next November 21 . . . Warner Bros. finally picked Pat O'Brien for the title role in "The Life of Knute Rockne," but the story being bruited about here is that Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa U's coach of the year, was suggested for the part . . . Wonder if Art Anderson started the rumor.. . . . But Eddie really did learn his football under Rockne . . . We haven't yet observed the blonde gal at Michael's that Columnist Ted Ashby says looked like Bette Davis . . . but we're lookin' . . . that was Bobby Stone's maw down at the R&T with the latest news on Bobby's activities in "Pago Pago" . . . and pictures of him with Olympe Bradna.

That sarong contest is supposed to be held simultaneously in DM, Cedar Rapids and Davenport, in the meantime Eddie Dunn of the Paramount here has Dotty Lamour's scarlet sarong on his hands, while Bob Fulton is pacing the floor impatiently in Waterloo because it's his turn with the abbreviated article next. DD and Mrs. Emil Franke were the only attendants from the Row whom we saw at the Paul Muni show Monday. Joe Rogatnick was off a couple of days last week with flu . . . The candy was swell, Jack Seigel, we just this minute et the last piece (jelly-filled, darn it!)

Egner Succeeds Wilk

MINNEAPOLIS—Russell Egner has been transferred by RKO from Omaha to become city salesman here. He succeeds Reno Wilk who resigned to handle independent state-right pictures.

....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

THOSE Gardenias delivered by a little red-uniformed colored boy to BOXOFFICE in the Fort Coffee Shop didn't lower Earl Kerr's stock any with BOXOFFICE & Co. . . . neither did his assertion that BOXOFFICE was tops in trade papers as far as he was concerned. Kerr and Mike Roskopf (see, we found out) are opening the Odeon at Marshalltown, but you'll hear more about that elsewhere.

Dayton Frederick has a projector shop in Ollie, but all we knew about him before was that he was one of the circuiteers . . . now we know that he could sell your grandmother a bicycle with that vaudeville patter of his and that he and his buddy, Francis Adams are just like this.

Ray Lumsden of the Pastime and Charlie Brown of the Strand, both operating in Iowa City, are sorta like that too . . . at least they're always together when they hit town and the town's hot spots, such as they are.

Leonard Kaplan has no idea of the furor he created on the Row the other day when he appeared escorting that dark, striking beauty decked out in red-white-and-blue . . . Leonard's houses are in Waterloo, Iowa City and Mason City.

Bob Ringler of the Lake at Storm Lake says he's the world's worst bookkeeper and that if the government gets after him about it, he can't even go home to Norway the way things are looking now . . . you can always go back to Peabody and the Sunflower, Bob . . . nobody'd ever look for anybody there.

Didn't we see a new canopy on R. F. Kehrberg's Iowa Theatre at Sheldon, Ia.? . . . We didn't see any lights at all on Lowell Riddle's Roxy at Alta, Ia., which leaves the town without a theatre.

After managing the theatre at Winthrop since September 1, Arthur L. Troseth is taking over the house . . . Central States list their remodeling project on their Empress at Fremont, Neb., at $30,000.

That George Lyman building a theatre at Gibbon, Minn., is the same fella who used to exhibit at Waverly, Ia., we betcha.

William McGraw has taken over the Manson at Manson, Ia., from W. H. Smith, we hear . . . And M. McCallum is reported operating the Dallas at Dallas Center, previously leased to Paul Anderson, but some of the boys along the Row didn't know it yet.

Carl Fox has taken a tip from the theatres at his Surf ballroom in Clear Lake, Ia. He's staging a Bank Night with afternoon attendance cards making patrons eligible for the jackpot. Recently he handed out 1,100 26-cent tickets before 6 p. m. by that method, while only 900 paid the 36-cent price after that time.

Marvin Fosse of the Pastime at La Porte City and the Wellman at Wellman, Ia., couldn't find a soul along the Row talking about Wellman's leading product last week. They raise turkeys down there—but they don't show 'em, says Fosse.

Bert Smith doesn't want us to confuse his town of Lynnville (not far from DM) with Lineville, down on the Mizzou border.

George Storm of Pomeroy, Zearing and Lovillia carried a smile when he strode into the Universal office on the Row last week. He carried a contract when he staggered out two hours later.

Bob Malek of Independence and Gladbrook was dodging traffic along the Des Moines Row . . . Harry Huddleston of Earlham huddled with bookers at a couple of spots . . . Nate Rosenthal, the veteran from the new Iowa at Waterloo, was looking over the possibilities.

W. G. Leefers and Harry Savereide have taken over Lester Anderson's Cozy, at Fayette, Ia., they say.

We're willing to take the word of seven people along the Row that W. P. Grossman of the Circle Theatre in Nevada, Ia., was in . . . but we're hard pressed to understand why none of them could tell us what he looks like. Mebbe they were dazzled by the presence of Mrs. J. G. Pierce of the Story in Story City—the lady of the lovely hair, the lovely disposition and the lovely flower on her hat. She has every office in town gasping.

Ernie Ellsworth of the Metropolitan in Iowa Falls is a bachelor, a former state representative, and Ellsworth College was named after his pappy . . . Ernie started up in business back in the days when you had trouble finding a pic to fill out your legit bill.

We've been hearing tales of Mable and "Plugger" Yates of Mystic, Ia. . . . especially about the chic clothes Mable wears, and the cowboy films that Plugger shows.

Oh, Leonard Kaplan, we forgot to ask you. Do those red-white-and-blue numbers come with Buick's new Torpedo two-toned blue jobs?

And we don't want to forget to tell Chuck Parrish's wife in at Stearns' that the dubonnet blouse worked out in fine style . . . and you see, we're not saying anything about Afton, are we?

Curves, Canals And Mae West

Des Moines—The Des Moines "Register" is stirring up war news and film stars editorially with the following result:

"The Suez Canal has 13 curves, all dangerous. Suppose we call it Mae East."

MINNEAPOLIS

THERE'S so much interest in Paramount's forthcoming "Dr. Cyclops" that special exhibitor and other screenings are in great demand, A. Selby Carr reports . . . Bess Popkin, secretary to "Hy" Chapman at Columbia, spending her early summer vacation right at home—catching up on her domestic duties . . . Max Facter, booker for the Pioneer circuit of Iowa theatres, making a tour of the chain . . . R. C. LiBeau, Paramount district manager, a visitor . . . Bob Murphy, Star-Journal critic, interviewed Morrie Abrams, M-G-M exploiteer, over radio station KSTP regarding forthcoming releases.

Gene Thorpe, Warner Brothers' assistant booker, marched to the altar. He's the second member of the staff within a month to forego single blessedness, the other having been Don Swartz . . . Congratulations to Joe Wolf, Paramount city salesman. He's leading the western division in the sales drive . . . Ben Ashe accompanied Bennie Berger on a tour of the latter's circuit. The lucky Berger won the Bank Night cash prize at the Twin City Variety club, and donated the $15 to the Milk Fund.

Rud Lohrenz, Warner district manager, in town briefly . . . Abe Kaplan, independent circuit owner, the only Twin City Variety club member—and, as far as is known, the lone person in the film industry here—to pick and bet on the winner of the Kentucky Derby. Now the bunch wants him to give them tips on all the meets . . . J. L. Stern, Majestic exchange owner, and the wife celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary last Sunday . . . The Savoy, Gateway grind house, closed for a month for remodeling.

Lowell Kaplan, Welworth circuit booker, was accompanied by Ben Spewak, theatre financier, to the Twin City Variety Club last Saturday night and now there are rumors that the pair are to acquire one of the larger chains . . . Columbia screened "21 Days Together" for circuit heads. It stars Vivien Leigh and Lawrence Olivier . . . Ben Blotcky, Paramount branch head, visited northern Minnesota accounts . . . Gertrude Guimont, secretary to Branch Manager C. K. Olson at Warner, on the job again, fully recovered from a spine injury caused by a fall.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Al Inman, Fairfax, Minn.; Kenney Johnson, Bricelyn, Minn.; Jack Wright, Red Wing, Minn.; R. Hiller, Marshall, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Charlie Connaught, Olivia, Minn.; George Schroeder, Elsworth, Minn.; Mrs. Jennie Barlow, Hinckley, Minn.; A. B. Eliason, Paynesville, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Abeln, Sauk Rapids, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. Sid Blackmer, Duluth, Minn.

Warner bookers getting set for a Vitaphone short subjects sales drive . . . Republic and Monogram now occupying their new quarters. Former has the offices on Currie Ave. formerly occupied by Monogram, and Monogram now is situated in the one-time National Screen quarters on Glenwood Ave.

William Brenner, National Screen vice-president in charge of operations, spent a day here . . . Eph Rosen has booked "Beast of Berlin" into the World here to follow "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Bennie Berger bought the picture for his St. Paul World and entire circuit. It goes into the Granada, Duluth, May 11 . . . Gilbert Nathanson, Republic branch manager, in New York for a sales conference . . . The civic-minded Ben Spewak is said to have bought 150 tickets for the opening Minneapolis baseball game and distributed them to newsboys.

Marjorie Klungness an addition to the M-G-M office staff to help handle increasing business . . . W. A. Steffes spending much of the time on his northern Minnesota estate . . . M-G-M bunch preparing to head for the sales convention at the Drake Hotel, Chicago . . . Arnold Carlson, RKO head shipper, celebrated a birthday . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, off to Des Moines to wind up a three-year product deal with the Tri-State circuit which has headquarters there . . . Le Roy Smith, Universal branch manager, spent the weekend in Kansas City, helping his family to move to Minneapolis.

Fire Destroys Johnson's Plaza at Friend, Neb.

FRIEND, NEB.—A fire of undetermined origin, starting in the early morning, reduced Wally Johnson's Plaza to a $20,000 loss and a bed of ashes last week. He was only partially covered by insurance.

Johnson, who also has a restaurant in Friend, and another theatre, the Fil-Mor, in Exeter, Neb., has made no statement as yet about re-building.

Dickerman Names Perlman Racine, Wis., Manager

MINNEAPOLIS—Harry Dickerman, president of the Dickerman circuit, announces the appointment of Harold Perlman as manager of his Granada, Racine, Wis. Perlman formerly was with Fox theatres. The Dickerman chain now includes six houses.

Minnesota Decision Near

MINNEAPOLIS—The fate of the 4,000-seat Minnesota Theatre, representing a $2,000,000 investment, probably will be decided by May 23. A statement from the theatre's stockholders indicated that the Benzes' option on the Minnesota will not be extended beyond that date.

Shumate Will Script

HOLLYWOOD — Universal has assigned Harold Shumate to script "When the Daltons Rode." George Marshall will produce and direct.

LINCOLN

SHOW MUST go on item: When Assistant Manager Bill Quinn, at the Capitol, took his regular night off the other evening, he was called back to work by Boss Bob Livingston, when stand-up business suddenly developed. Quinn came back, worked all night, and then, just before knocking off told Bob he had been yanked up from his wedding supper.

Tip to film peddlers, salesmen, etc.—If in Lincoln looking for Bob Huffman, don't try his office, but drive directly to the Lincoln country club, where he spends his time hunting for his own and the lost golf balls of others. If Howard Federer is sought, he'll either be indulging in choice words of the profane under a pile of two-by-fours at the Liberty, or out somewhere playing, and probably winning, at cribbage. If it's Bob Livingston wanted—try the Capitol Theatre, and if it's one of the dozen or so re-bookings of "San Francisco" he's playing, he'll be watching the picture.

Best alibi of the week for a cold: Ed Schoenthal, Holdrege, claims spring and a girl had nothing to do with it. He lays his to standing out in front of his theatre admiring his new marquee at the Sun.

Philosophical outlook: When Wally Johnson's Plaza burned in Friend, he said it might be worse. He owns, besides the theatre, a restaurant. If it had been the restaurant instead of the theatre, he opines, it would have been tougher. Anyway, he can still eat.

Building for business note: George O. Monroe is rushing the workers on his new Empress in Kearney, Neb., hoping to unshutter the house by July 4 . . . Bob Livingston has already sunk $2,500 in repairs at the back of the Capitol, lobby and foyer, with money still flowing and results showing . . . Bill Knight, who is still haunting the Liberty, will know every board in the floor when it re-opens a new spot.

Betting odds: Anybody on theatre Row will give 100 to 1 that Alvin Hendricks will not get married this year. That is, they'll give those odds to anyone except Alvin, because he might do it if the wager was big enough.

Card of thanks: Glenn Trump, who conducted this corner while BOXOFFICE jr. was in Hollywood, thanks everybody for not writing him any news, because it made the job so much simpler.

Amateur night: M. E. Lofgren, for the first time since the present dual feature policy went into effect at the Nebraska, saw the house enter the substantial profit column. But, it wasn't the picture bill so much as the amateur night he recently started.

Attention, Monroe Rubinger: Billy Rose has offered $100,000—a fancy figure—to Ann Sheridan, if she'll appear at the Frisco Aquacade four times daily in a bathing suit—thereby displaying a fancy figure.

Kotsis Starts Remodeling Program on Oswego Unit

OSWEGO, KAS.—Extensive remodeling and re-equipment of the Oswego here was begun this week by Nick Kotsis when the the theatre's new air conditioning system went in. Other modernization to follow immediately includes a new marquee, 400 new seats, new light fixtures, redecoration, etc.

Occasional Stage Shows At Princess in Minny

MINNEAPOLIS—The Princess here, W. L. Hamilton's independent neighborhood house, has inaugurated occasional stage shows to supplement his pictures. Admission is 25 cents.

Two Ad Staff Men Resign At Minnesota Amusement

MINNEAPOLIS—Eph Olsen and Ralph Stitt of the Minnesota Amusement Co. advertising staff have resigned. The vacancies will not be filled for the present.

Another for Manns

ST. PAUL—Ted Manns, owner of the Oxford, is branching out. He has acquired another local neighborhood house, the Gem, from Charles Schlerf.

Produces Robinson Starrer

HOLLYWOOD—Warner has assigned Robert Lord to produce "Footsteps in the Dark," starring Edward G. Robinson.

: Films Make It Clear :

DES MOINES—Motion pictures showed the Iowa State Medical Society at its convention here why a porpoise doesn't have sinus trouble.

Porpoises, like seals, alligators and other aquatic animals, close their noses and ears before they duck under the water, the doctors learned. But, while human beings' nostrils may be moved to change facial expression, and some persons can wiggle their ears, neither can be closed.

Therefore, according to the medical motion picture, sinus and ear infections often follow the irritation of water introduced through swimming. A swimming cap and breathing in the mouth and out the nose while swimming were recommended.

Another motion picture attracting attention at the medical meeting was the first one to show human vocal chords vibrating in slow motion. Bell Telephone Co. laboratory technicians used a camera that takes 4,000 frames a second—instead of the usual 16—to reduce the vibration of vocal chords to visible motion.

When a man sings in a low register, the motion picture shows his vocal chords are vibrated by the air being forced out of his lungs, and the chords completing 150 cycles of motion each second.

This speed is stepped up to around 350 cycles for a man singing in a high register.

OMAHA

FAYE HONEY, exhibitor at Tecumseh, Neb., was host at his annual mushroom feed for the Warner gang. Once the story got around that Faye raised the mushrooms himself in his basement, but actually he goes out in the woods and collects them. We hope Faye knew the difference between mushrooms and toadstools.

Omaha correspondent for BOXOFFICE and his wife are the proud parents of a daughter, weighing seven pounds, eight ounces. She has been named Gretchen . . . Next in line are Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Lieb of the Metro layout . . . J. F. O'Donnell, Monogram auditor, was in town on business at Sol Francis' place.

Shep Owens, operator at the Benson, Omaha, and one of the officers of Local 343, IATSE, will represent the Omaha operators at the Iowa Federation of Labor meeting in Waterloo next month . . . Howard Federer and Don Monroe, Lincoln exhibitors, were to leave this weekend for a fishing trip into Minnesota and Canada.

Variety Club may have a golf tourney within the next week or so, probably on a Monday. Meyer Stern of Capitol Pictures and Glenn Rogers of Film Transport are handling arrangements . . . Alice Neal, Bill Wink and Swain Madsen want the help of all you exhibitors during the Warner bookers summer drive on short subjects.

Frank Hannon, film peddler and alleged golf player, had his tonsils removed recently and crabbed because BOXOFFICE didn't print a column story about it! . . . Exhibitors are urged to take a look at Mike Roth's new office in the Film Bldg. Big desk, soft chairs and thick carpets, plenty nice, Mike.

E. D. Nash, exhibitor at Canton, S. D., was on Filmrow for the first time in six months . . . Carl Krumrei bought a ticket for the Variety Club car raffle a day after the drawing had been made, the dope . . . A. E. Thacker, exhibitor at South Sioux City, Neb., in town. Also Stuart Nesbit, husky exhibitor from Plainview, Neb.

A. D. St. Clair now operates both theatres at Wymore, Neb., the Cozy and Grand. R. W. Small formerly had the Cozy and F. E. Hollingsworth the Grand . . . Clyde Cooley, Fox screen room operator, will represent the Council Bluffs stagehands at the IATSE convention in Louisville. Howard Jackson, operator at the Omaha and business agent for Local 343, will represent the Omaha operators.

Walt Bradley, Moon, Neligh, Neb., says to check on his subscription to BOXOFFICE, which we will do at once . . . J. D. Jarmin, Sun., Shelby, Neb., on Davenport St. on a rainy Monday . . . Also J. Morgan Reynolds, exhibitor at Elwood and Bertrand, Neb. . . . Filmrow gals are passing up a good chance in Joe Smith, handsome RKO bachelor.

An Errol Two-Reeler

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Roberts is directing "He Knew What He Wanted," a two-reeler starring Leon Errol for RKO.

W. P. AMPTO Girds To Champion Neely

PITTSBURGH—AMPTO of W. Pa., Inc., went into the front line trenches this week in its battle for enactment of the Neely bill (S. 280) on which the third hearing will come before a senate committee in Washington, D. C., beginning Monday, May 13.

Fred J. Herrington, veteran local independent exhibitor leader, before departing for Washington to attend a national directors' meeting of Allied States Ass'n of Motion Picture Exhibitors and hearing on the anti-compulsory block booking measure, told theatre owners and managers that "the Neely bill will give you the right to buy the pictures you want. It does not compel you to buy only one picture at a time; you can take as many as you want. You may buy the entire product of a company if you wish, but the film companies cannot force you to take the entire product. In fact, they can't make you take or contract for anything you don't want.

"If you want the same rights and privileges that all of the large chain theatres enjoy, it is your duty to back this bill—and at once," Herrington stated.

Late this week Herrington was to be joined in Washington by M. A. Rosenberg, local Allied president, who was to come from Atlantic City where he had been a delegate to a religious conference. Herrington planned to visit with many congressmen from western Pennsylvania during the week.

The national Allied directors were scheduled to complete plans for their annual convention which will be held June 19-21 at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago.

AMPTO directors met last Friday afternoon in monthly session and reported a satisfactory business meeting. They discussed new season's product terms and received a plan by which the association may profit through theatre cooperation. All reported depressed theatre grosses and many deplored the re-inauguration of daylight saving time which takes a large slice off the evening receipts.

Sen. Neely's Candidacy Presages Bitter Fight

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—The Mountain State's bitterest primary campaign in years will come to a showdown Tuesday, May 14, when U. S. Senator M. M. Neely, whose term does not expire until 1942, comes before the voters of West Virginia as a Democratic gubernatorial candidate. Senator Neely's bill (S. 280) which would abolish compulsory block booking and blind selling of motion pictures and on which public hearings were to be started May 13 in Washington, has divided exhibitors of the state, the ITO of W. Va., favoring enactment of the measure, and the W. Va. Managers Ass'n being on record as against the bill. Senator Neely recently introduced another bill which seeks theatre divorcement (S. 3735).

The senior West Virginia senator serving his third term in the senate has been active in state politics since his election as mayor of Fairmont in 1908.

Andrew Edmiston, Democrat congressman from the third district, and House of Representatives sponsor of the Neely bill (S280), is unopposed for renomination.

Senator Neely's opponent in the Democratic gubernatorial battle is State Chairman R. Carl Andrews of Charleston, backed by Gov. Homer A. Holt, who will retire when his term expires this year.

Hiehle Is in Charge at Zanesville for Shea

ZANESVILLE, OHIO—E. J. Hiehle, who for the past several years has been manager of the Weller here, will have charge of the five local theatres controlled by the Shea Theatre Corp., according to E. C. Grainger, general manager of the corporation. Hiehle will make his office in the Liberty Theatre building.

John Woodward, who was associated with the late Caldwell H. Brown in Zanesville Theatres, Inc., has taken over as manager of the Weller.

Shea, which has operated the Weller here for many years, recently purchased controlling interest in Zanesville Theatres, Inc., which operated the Liberty, Quimby, Imperial and Grand.

No changes in personnel of the theatres is contemplated, according to Hiehle.

Five Ohio Houses to Paramount Affiliate

FREMONT, OHIO — The Fremont and Strand theatres here, the Clyde at nearby Clyde, and the Ohio and State theatres at Bellvue, have been sold by Shea Theatre Corp. to Northio Theatres Corp. of Cincinnati, a Paramount subsidiary, according to an announcement here. The purchase price was not revealed.

Ohio Film Carriers Meet To Elect New Officers

CLEVELAND—Louis Gross, president of the Ohio Association of Film Carriers, summoned members of the association to meet in Columbus on May 7 to elect officers for the coming year. Members of the association are "Pop" Wessel, Cincinnati; E. A. Albright, Toledo; J. Amsler, Columbus; P. L. Tanner, Cleveland; L. C. Gross, Cleveland; E. S. Johnson, Cleveland; Mrs. E. A. Albrecht, Cleveland; J. T. Larken, St. Marys; L. Merrill, Charleston, W. Va., and A. Pagli, Cleveland.

In Special Class

DETROIT—Theatres were given special recognition as an important type of city property when the board of assessors presented new assessment records to the city council, Wednesday. Over 180,000 pieces of real estate in Detroit will be classified on one of eight forms provided for by the new setup, and a special form, on brown cards, was provided for the some 200 theatres here.

Ward Scripting Western

HOLLYWOOD—Luci Ward is scripting an untitled original western for Columbia to star Bill Elliott.

A Settlement Fixes 35-Day Clearance

CLEVELAND—In a suit filed in common pleas court and concluded out of court in an amicable settlement, the established and customary availability to first-run subsequent theatres of not less than 35 days following the conclusion of the first run engagement, has been definitely established.

In what is claimed to have been a test case in which all theatres of Cleveland were vitally affected, Meyer Fine, in behalf of the Shaker Theatre, sought to enjoin Warner from releasing "Virginia City" to a group of local houses including Warner's Colony, on the 28th day after the conclusion of its first-run engagement.

Through mutual agreement, it was concluded that "Virginia City" would meet its obligation of being released on the 28th day but that in the future Warner will recognize and adhere to the established and prevailing custom of the 35-day availability date to first-run subsequent houses in the Greater Cleveland area.

"Virginia City" completed its first run on April 5, making it available to the subsequent runs on May 11. However, Warner shoved the availability up to May 4. Because advertising for this date had appeared, the plaintiff agreed to let this date stand provided the established 35-day availability is not violated in the future.

It was stated that if an out-of-court settlement had not been concluded, Warner had agreed to pull the picture from the May 4 date.

The settlement was effected by Jerome Friedlander of Benesch, Marsteller, Friedlander & Morris, Citizens Bldg., representing the plaintiff and George Lacey of Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, Union Commerce Bldg., representing Vitagraph, Inc.

While there have been instances in Cleveland of advancing an availability date for specific reasons, it has only been accomplished with the consent of all theatres affected by such a procedure. In the main, the protection code, as set up five years ago, is strictly adhered to.

E. J. Golden Will Resume Pittsburgh Exhibition

PITTSBURGH—E. J. "Mannie" Golden is returning to exhibition at the New McClure, McClure Avenue, north side, which has been dark for a long period. Formerly under lease to the Mervis Bros. circuit, the house is being renovated and will be reopened within a week or two.

Golden, a veteran exhibitor, will continue as a sales representative for the Dormont Oldsmobile Co. His son Milton is an assistant manager for the Warner circuit, at present stationed at the Regent, East Liberty.

Reports Monogram Policy

CLEVELAND—Monogram Pictures will concentrate its publicity and advertising this season on authors and titles instead of on stars as in previous seasons, Nate Schultz, local Monogram franchise owner, reports.

LOUISVILLE

NOW we know why "stupendous" and "colossal" are Hollywood's favorite words . . . They are necessary to describe such events as the world premiere of "My Favorite Wife" at the Rialto last weekend . . . with Irene Dunne, Walter Connolly and Randolph Scott giving Gallahadion, Bimelech, Dit and the rest of the Derby horses a run for their money.

Stupendous, colossal and terrifying were the crowds that surged in front of the theatre in hopes of a glimpse of the celebrities . . . Thousands were turned away after all available seats and standing room inside were gone . . . And it was the same thing the next day . . . Packed houses for each of two other p. a.'s by Miss Dunne.

Truly, Louisville "went Hollywood" head over heels . . . and for the first time . . . Usually staid Kentuckians jammed institutional Fourth Street, fighting with neighbors and visitors for a peek . . . even just one peek . . . at the luminaries.

Which also included President George J. Schaefer, Vice-President Ned E. Depinet and Promotional Director S. Barret McCormick, from RKO's home office . . . and from the west coast . . . Leo McCarey, the producer . . . Garson Kanin, the director . . . Miss Dunne's distinguished-looking, "he-s h o u l d-have-been-a-halfback" husband, Dr. Francis Griffin . . . Sam and Bella Spewack, scenarists . . . Gene Fowler, author . . . and Hal Roach, David Butler, Margaret Ettinger and Perry Lieber . . . added to those already here for the heavy work . . . Charles Levy, Terry Turner.

More than 10,000 persons jammed into the natural amphiteatre at Bardstown, Ky., the next day for the Stephen Collins Foster Celebration . . . where again Miss Dunne and RKO stole the show from Postmaster James A. Farley, who was there to dedicate a postage stamp to the Kentucky composer . . . with the help of Bing Crosby and Leopold Stokowski, broadcasting from Hollywood in conjunction with the fete.

Then came the banquet of the Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels . . . where mint juleps were more plentiful than water . . . and where Gov. Keen Johnson aded Miss Dunne, Walter Connolly and 11 others to his staff as "Colonels" . . . with Miss Dunne thanking him sweetly . . . amid hiccups . . . and Farley making the shortest speech of the evening . . . "I propose a toast to the President of the United States" . . . Alongside the huge ice-covered bowls of mint sat the Order's original Commanding General Charles C. Pettijohn . . . who had barged down for the big events from Indianapolis.

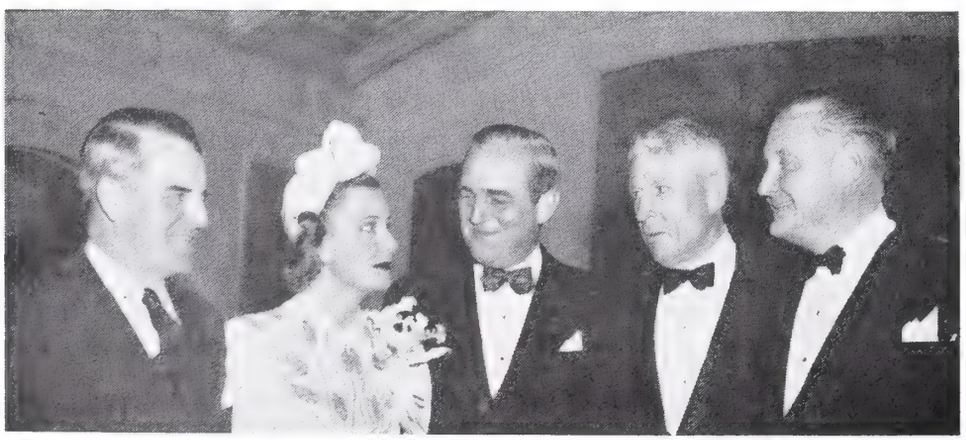
But in the meantime, at the Armory, some 5,000 paid upwards of $18,000 to see Jack Dempsey award Sammy Angott a 15-round decision over Chicago's Davey Day as lightweight champion of the world . . . and where Dempsey was temporarily caught off guard when the bout was over and he was informed it was to be a one-man decision . . . his!

Theyre still talking about Mrs. Catherine Conner's Derby breakfast . . . The Kentucky National Democratic Committeewoman had a select 60, including Hollywood celebrities and U. S. Senator A. B. "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky, Louisville's Mayor Joseph D. Scholtz, William Quigley of Del Mar Turf Club . . . Scintillating Doris Duke Cromwell's Minister to Canada hubby, James H. R. . . . Lawrence "Chip" Robert, Democratic National Committee secretary . . . who was very chic in a yellow tie studded with horses partially covered by a checked jacket . . . Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, Judge Advocate of the United States Army . . . Col. Philip Fleming, Wage and Hour Administrator . . . Mr. Farley and a few scattered Republicans.

And yet, instead of the conventional "Glad to see you. What's your horse?" it was "Glad to see you. Now, now, no politics" . . . accompanied by a mischievous wave of the finger . . . Mrs. Conner wore an "alert" expression . . . like the hostess entertaining an estranged husband and wife and some in-laws who "don't speak."

Then came the Big Race . . . a dissappointment to 75,000 of the 95,000 at historic Churchill Downs who had planked cold cash on Col. Edward Riley Bradley's Bimelech . . . who fell by the wayside when Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion came up fast along the rail in the stretch.

Only bright light in the dull afternoon was Miss Dunne again, leading "My Old Kentucky Home" as the 95,000 voices swelled in the warm afternoon air . . . causing goose-flesh to crawl on the necks of all true Kentuckians . . . and you could hear the $2-to-win-on-Bimelech tickets falling like snow on the ground, so quiet was it when the race was over.



Yes, Louisville may live . . . but definitely, it will never be the same.

DERBY DAY GLIMPSES:

Walter Connolly setting up the house at the Kentucky Hotel bar . . . Don Ameche planing in for the Big Race, smiling sweetly but firmly at autograph hunters who mobbed him at the airport . . . Arline Judge ("I'm an old maid now. No more marriage for me") on the arm of James McKinley Bryant, New York hotel exec, who took their tie-me-to-your-apron-strings-again vows sometime between 6 p. m. Saturday and 3 a. m. Sunday "somewhere in Kentucky."

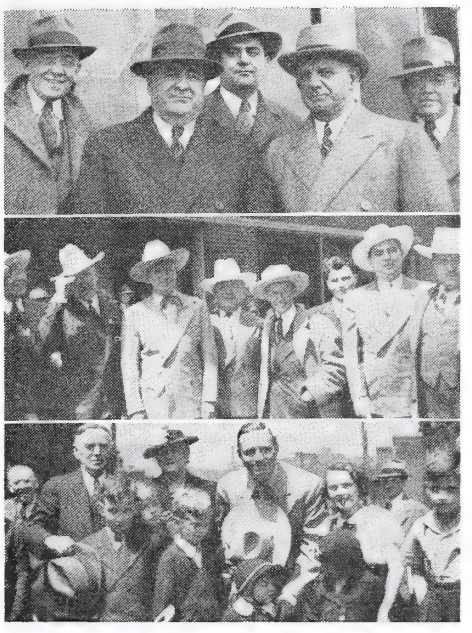
Placid Jim Farley trying to avoid third term talk . . . ZaSu Pitts remarking, "I wept when I got my cue, (at the track) but I never did hear them play 'My Old Kentucky Home'."

Big Week for Film Actress in Louisville



LOUISVILLE—Arline Judge, film actress, who was granted a divorce May 3 on grounds of cruelty from Dan Topping, millionaire sportsman and owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers professional football team, was married here "some time between 6 p. m. Saturday, May 4, and 3 a. m. Sunday," to James McKinley Bryant, New York socialite and hotel executive, she said here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryant left for the Hotel Pierre on Fifth Avenue.

"She's the best pick I made at the Derby," Bryant said in the cab en route to the train.

Scripting "Montana"

HOLLYWOOD—Ulrich Steindorff is scripting "Montana," based on C. B. Glasscock's "The War of the Copper Kings," for Warner's.

Welcome Cowboy No. 1—

When Gene Autry, Republic's singing western hero, came to Pittsburgh as the guest of the AMPTO of Western Pennsylvania, some of the Filmrow cowhands donned sombreros in welcome. Witness the middle scene. In the top scene are visitors James R. Grainger, Republic president, and Herbert J. Yates, chairman of the board, who spent a spell with local franchisers George W. Collins, Sam Fineberg and James H. Alexander. The lower picture reveals Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Herrington (he is the AMPTO executive secretary) and seven of their grandchildren in a huddle with Autry.

Elaborate Plans for "Russell" Premiere

PITTSBURGH—World premiere of Darryl F. Zanuck's "Lillian Russell" here May 15 promises to be the most elaborate opening in the history of the cinema of this city which cradled the "movies." Alice Faye, Edward Arnold and other celebrities will arrive at the local airport next Tuesday morning in company with John H. Harris, theatre executive, who was in Hollywood this week conferring with 20th-Fox producers, publicity directors and stars regarding the premiere in the home town of the former stage beauty. Newspaper reporters of every large city in the east will arrive the same day and will visit many of the city's industrial and cultural centers.

Members of the trade have been invited to a cocktail party at the 20th-Fox exchange Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. D. S. T., where they will meet several Hollywood stars.

That evening there will be a $100-a-plate "Diamond Jim Brady" charity banquet in the Urban Room of the William Penn Hotel. Mons. Jacques Bustanoby, who served "Diamond Jim" dinners in New York years ago, will be in charge of the banquet at which the William Penn's gold service will be utilized. Proceeds of the affair will be donated to the Norwegian Relief Fund. There will be a fire-works display on the Allegheny River, between 6th and 7th street bridges, from 9 to 10 o'clock.

On Wednesday, at 11:30 a. m., there will be a parade through the Triangle. Line forms at Fifth Avenue and Miltenberger Street, and among those participating will be several Hollywood stars, including Alice Faye and Edward Arnold, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, Lion's Club, Kiwanis, Rotary and Civic Clubs, bands of the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne University, various high schools, police and firemen, junior veterans, etc., and with city, county and state executives participating. Edward Doran, president of the Society of War Veterans, is chief marshal of the parade and his assistant is Harvey Scott, Pittsburgh superintendent of police. The city's famous Black Watch, mounted police, which is first in national rating, will lead the procession.

Among 20th-Fox executives who will attend the premiere at the Harris Alvin that evening will be Herman Wobber, general manager of distribution; William Sussman, eastern division manager; Edgar Moss, district manager; Charles E. McCarthy, New York publicity director; Harry Brand, Hollywood publicity director: Roger Ferri, editor of the "Dynamo," and other branch managers and representatives of the company in addition to members of the local staff under Ira H. Cohn, branch manager, and C. C. Kellenberg, sales manager.

Special radio broadcasts have been arranged and numerous tieups are evidenced throughout the area.

Mayor Cornelius D. Scully has proclaimed May 15 as "Lillian Russell Day."

Judd Is Opening Poster Service in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—Jack Judd Theatre Poster Service will open here May 13, according to the former local manager for National Screen Service.

Paper accessories will be served on a rental basis, Judd states. Screen processed materials will be featured, and the new company will act as sales representative for Martin Terner's American Theatrical Valance Co.

Leo Wayne, veteran in service on Filmrow, has joined the Judd staff. The sales and service rooms are on the second floor of the Universal exchange building.

Sues Loew House

AKRON, OHIO—Mrs. Evelyn Barntorff, spiritualist of nearby Barberton, is plaintiff in a $25,000 damage suit filed in common pleas court here against Loew's Theatre. Mrs. Barntorff asserts she injured her left arm last January 14 when she slipped on a rug at the theatre.

Fred Schader, veteran exploiteer, has a pair of Scotties . . . Jack Haley, Jam Handyman, is back from extended business trip.

Don Widlund of Jam Handy, in New Orleans, returns via Kansas City, Chicago (his present headquarters) and Milwaukee in a month. Carl Krueger is handling the office here with Jack and Don away.

George E. Cusick, whose death was briefly mentioned last week, was with the old Casino, Detroit's first de luxer, from 1907 on. Later, he managed the Broadway-Strand and was salesman for Universal, retiring about five years ago.

Hoyt E. Morris had your scribe over to lunch at the Optimists Club. He's new prexy. And Censor Charlie Snyder, who's new sergeant-at-arms, fined Hoyt 'cause he forgot our guest badge. Harold C. Robinson, Film Truck Service, is another Optimist.

Fred C. Dickely of Altec keeps close tab on his copies of BOXOFFICE . . . Dave Newman of the Pasadena thinks we're getting busy . . . Bill Flemion, Variety welfare chairman, had a free show at the Marine Hospital. He's arranging his bookings a month ahead now.

Earl Hudson, UDT chief, invited Marx fans down to the depot Friday to meet the three famed brothers when they arrived in town. Auto parade downtown followed . . . Herb Wallhausen, formerly with National Screen Service, is reported with the HOLC office.

Wife of Sam Merson, bowling league secretary, underwent an operation . . . Phil Brestoff has the new orchestra opening at the Michigan (remember Eduard Werner, now a lawyer?) . . . Merle Clark was an old friend back at the Michigan organ.

Azel says he's getting tired of serving those Saturday night suppers . . . Arnold D. Dickerson, screen man, and George W. Carr, seat man, strolling down Cass Avenue in the near-rain.

Having lunch as guest of Bill Flemion, we learned of his systematic plan for booking Variety shows for shutins and met his operator for these shows, Clayton Wilkinson . . . Charlie Garner, in charge of the Film Bldg. lobby, has a new sign for hitchhikers.

Arthur Robitschek, vice-prexy of National Film Audits, in town to go over Excellent records . . . E. V. Smith, RCA Photophone man, says he's tired of too much night life.

Max Blumenthal, chief projectionist, was almost run down in the Filmrow lobby . . . Dorothy Wagner, elevator operator, carries that wrist watch on chains . . . Mrs. Clara Kelly has quickly learned most of Filmrow's denizens.

Dorothy Rudine, cashier at UDT's Broadway-Capitol, was robbed of $50 by an armed bandit . . . Mannie Gottlieb, formerly Universal manager here, was a visitor from Chicago over the weekend.

Hal Burriss, premium distributor, is off to Grayling to catch fish. His daughter was a Variety visitor Saturday, and his band, Variety Syncopators, has been enlarged to nine pieces now.

Hyman Bloom, managing UDT's Varsity, had a special all-religious matinee, double-billing "Cloistered" and "Vatican of Pius XII."

Phil Smith's new west side drive-in reported doing plenty of business . . . Michael J. Chargot has been reseating the Grand Victory.

Acts seen at Variety: Mac Krim refereeing those prize fights he produced and on the receiving end himself . . . Wanette Stout displaying stage presence as a magician's aide-de-camp.

S. T. Congress of the Lyric is going into show business around Canton, Ohio, where partner, H. J. Cokimos plans to join him soon.

Warren A. Slee, M-G-M exploiteer, has added the hobby of archery . . . Al Champaign, 20th-Fox booker, is building himself a new house out in Royal Oak.

At the Variety Club Luncheon

First luncheon of 1940 was attended by 68 . . . The two "Charlies" were there—Perry, manager of the Adams, and Agree, theatrical architect.

Joe Sullivan, who is busy as new secretary at operators' headquarters every second day, was a latecomer . . . Jack Saxe of Monogram was disgusted, 'cause he had to sell tickets.

The two Krims and Dave Flayer of the Amo were unable to hold this scribe's place when Cully Buermele of Co-op grabbed it . . . Harlan Starr of Monogram was passing around pictures, and helped Magician Dornfield with his show.

Bill Flemion, Excellent manager, and Ray Moon, Mutual Theatres, were at one table . . . Lots of guests present, too, some we never met before . . . Art Robinson was at the big table only because there was no other place in which to fit him.

Lew Wisper, flanked by Earl Wright, supervisor, and others of the W&W managers, had one table . . . Saul Korman of the Grant was a quiet spectator . . . Lew Mitchell, Beverly manager, looked fully recovered from his recent illness.

Barney Kilbride, circuiteer, just missed, when the waiter spilled all those plates . . . Dave Newman of the Pasadena and Bill London of Associated arrived before it was all over . . . Ed Kirchner and Charlie Perry were up at the speaker's table.

Jack Howard, Paramount manager, was in the spotlight with his big golf cup . . . Harold C. Robinson, chief barker, presided . . . Tom McGuire of Co-op put on the show . . . Joe La Rose, Roosevelt manager, brought along the show from W&W's Harper, and Freddie Bernard was master of ceremonies from there on.

Sol Berns booked the entertainment, which was rapid-fire stuff . . . Bob Mork and Frank Lorenzen were at our table . . . Jack Haley and Carl Krueger of Jam Handy came in together.

Russ Legge, Detroit Free Press, and L. C. Becker, American Seating, were teamed up at another table . . . Mike Chargot managed to find a good location near the speakers . . . Bernard Brooks of the President had his big black cigar.

At the Film Bowling League Banquet

Sam Merson, retiring secretary, didn't have his minutes but rated a vote for prompt posting of averages all season . . . Ralph Ruben, Clifford H. White and Wade

Eastern Visitor—

Charles Perry, Adams Theatre, Detroit, pays a visit to the RKO New York World's Fair lounge for a chat with H. M. Richey, another Detroiter who now is RKO's director of exhibitor relations, and Helen Vinson, who appears in "Beyond Tomorrow."

Allen, sitting together in the back, were the Three Trouble-Dours, per Irving Belinsky.

The boys waxed hot over changing bowling time from 9 to 6 p. m. next fall . . . Syd Bowman says his wife wouldn't want him home any more anyhow . . . Art Knapp's word of wisdom—"There are lots of things to do after 9 p. m." . . . Irving Belinsky didn't want to rush out to his country home, and then back . . . Wade Allen says he and Cliff White, the two exhibitor members, don't get up that early . . . Barney Adair, National Screen Service, works late Friday.

Salesman Ray Cloud says a trial balance is a cashier's worst worry, but couldn't get Lou Metzger to comment . . . Jack Sturm was in favor of Sunday bowling.

Jack Saxe thought up the idea of combining the offices of secretary and treasurer. Frank Howard was the man who got them separated in the first place . . . Special tribute of silence to the late Jerry Schneider.

Winners of trophies were: Lou Metzger, Art Knapp (and he's plenty proud), Eddie Regina, Barney Adair, Al Rupert, Ben Zimner, Bert Holmes, Herb Wallhausen, Al Boyer, Gene Alexander, Cliff White, Ralph Ruben, Clark S. Baker, Emil H. Beck and Sam Merson. Donors of the trophies were Harold C. Robinson, Frank Lorenzen, Sol and Mac Krim, J. Ollie Brooks, Fred DeLodder, National Theatre Supply and Saul Korman.

Sam Seplowin, for his bowling pose, received special trophy as "artists' model" . . . Other specials to: Al Rupert and Syd Bowman, 100 per cent attendance; Fred Sturgess, league's worst bowler; Irving Belinsky, sponsor spirit (he bowled against his own team); George Santer, persistency and faith despite low average.

Clark S. Baker, Columbia's assistant manager, presented the Jack Cohn trophy to Republic, captained by Sam Seplowin . . . Should have seen the team lineup . . . Two good father and son teams at our table—Harold and Bill Robinson, and Phil and Dave Kaplan.

Ollie Brooks reminiscing over his days in Schenectady, Albany and points east . . . Max Blumenthal was getting pointers for his B'nai B'rith bowling banquet four days later.

Jake Sullivan was cheer leader in a song to Eddie Regina, "the champ," composed by Al Rupert.

Wade Allen showed his 16mm films of the bowlers and last two Variety conventions, uncensored; later had them at Variety Club . . . Art Koskie, Butterfield booker, is president of the Upper Peninsula Club, and spends his weekends at Hamburg.

Dave Flayer, revealing he picked Alvin as name of his new house, 'cause it begins with A . . . Bob Misch, Butterfield, absent; taking a week's vacation at Seymour, Ind. . . . Walter Goryl was about the first to leave, we hear.

"Biggest" 16mm Firm Opens Two Offices

PITTSBURGH—Keystone State Amusement Circuits (United-Educator Films Co.), managed by Russell C. Roshon, "the largest 16mm movie circuit operators in the world," has opened Kansas City and Chicago branches and has acquired a number of new feature pictures for general distribution.

Roshon's publicity bulletin, issued last week, declared:

"There have been a great many 'doubting Thomases' who felt that there couldn't be anything to the 16mm sound film industry or that it would automatically die out through lack of proper support. But, for those who went at it in earnest have made it remarkably successful. Such men are prospering and permanently building a fine business that has still greater possibilities in the future. The 16mm business is only five or six years old, and there has been tremendous strides made, there is a far greater future ahead despite any and all opposition."

"We Service the Nation," distributors of 16mm films, opened its Chicago office a month ago. The Kansas City branch was opened two weeks ago.

Roshon's monthly circular for May was issued to "11,000 prospective exhibitors" of 16mm films and announced more than a dozen new features.

Emergency Seal Recall Increases Expenses

PITTSBURGH—All film distributing companies were notified this week that "X" seals have been barred by the Pennsylvania censor board.

Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, chairman of the state censor board, advised local exchange managers that on advice of the attorney general of the commonwealth the censor department will no longer issue "X" seals for emergency, borrowed or agreement prints. The ruling is effective at once.

Some months ago a similar ruling was made and a general protest followed from distributors and exhibitors. After several weeks the issue was retracted or at least no effort was made for enforcement of the ban.

For many years "X" seals, or additional or emergency seals have been issued at a cost of 25 cents. Under this standard practice many prints were brought in from various company exchanges out-of-state to accommodate exhibitor accounts.

Exhibitors and distributors alike will continue protesting the recall on "X" censor seals. With regular requirement of censor seals on all serviceable prints, the additional expense will greatly increase costs of distribution. Exhibitors may face a new problem on clearance and booking because of the action as outlined by the censors.

Title to Republic Bowlers

IATSE Bowling League members celebrated at a banquet Tuesday night . . . Last Saturday the "Merrie Melodies" and the "Looney Tunes," two girl bowling teams of the local Vitagraph exchange, banqueted in Hotel Henry. Grace O'Neil was the highest scorer of the season.

Alexander P. Moore's newspaper in "Lillian Russell" is the Pittsburgh Telegraph instead of the Leader. Your correspondent, a copy boy years ago for the Leader, should know. Henry Fonda is seen as Alex Moore in the 20th-Fox production which premieres here May 15 with Alice Faye, who enacts the title role, Edward Arnold, former star of "Diamond Jim Brady," who re-enacts this character, and other stars coming here for the event.

Alex S. Moore is busy with the modernization of the Hilltop. Under way for some weeks, the Warrington Avenue job will not be completed for about two months . . . Emmaline Fineberg, former film board secretary, has joined the Advertising Accessories staff at the old Independent Display quarters . . . Herb Browar was around selling tickets for Carnegie Tech's Scotch and Soda Club play. Son of the Mark Browars is a Tech drama student . . . Rudy Covi, Herminie exhibitor, withdrew as a legislative candidate prior to the primaries . . . A number of members of the industry were in attendance at the Press Photographers Ass'n outing in South Park.

Burt Bishop jr., M-G-M manager, as usual, took in the Kentucky Derby. As usual, too, he greeted Claude Robinson, Clarksburg, W. Va., showman, and other friends and theatrical associates . . . We disagree with the ITO of E. Pa., Inc., which this week issued a service bulletin which stated: "It is freely predicted that a theatre tax measure (for Pennsylvania) will be considered" at the special session of the legislature which convened Monday. No such measure will be considered in the general assembly at this time . . . Colonial, Wheeling and the Latonia, Oil City, are "for sale."

Republic Franchise in Pittsburgh Renewed

PITTSBURGH—A renewal of the local area distributing franchise for Republic Pictures has been obtained by Republic Pictures Corp. of Pittsburgh, James H. Alexander, manager, announced this week.

The new arrangement continues the business relationship for a five year period to follow the present franchise which does not terminate for some time to come.

Extension of the pact between Alexander, Sam Fineberg and George W. Collins of the local company and Republic Pictures Corp. was made in the presence of Herbert J. Yates and James R. Grainger, ranking executives of Republic Pictures, who visited at the local exchange.

This company's "Dark Command," starring John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon and Roy Rogers, is now showing at the Harris Alvin and leading theatres throughout the country.

Local shipping and accessory department of Republic, located at 1024 Forbes St. for many years, has been removed to the former Grand National exchange quarters at 1709 Blvd. of the Allies, second floor. Executive and sales office remains at the corner of the Boulevard and Van Braam St.

Candy Machines Get Big Theatre Play

PITTSBURGH—Practically every theatre in the local area has a candy vending machine, a checkup reveals. Three candy machine distributors here service upwards of 550 theatre units. Several de luxe houses have three and there are a number of theatres with two machines. Additionally, there are a number of candy counters at theatres, two-thirds of which are owned by "outsiders" who lease space from the theatre management. These average a weekly gross of $125, and it is figured 15 per cent of this amount is expended as "payroll." On the whole, the candy counter grosses three times the average "take" of a vending machine.

Ten-cent candies are handled by most theatre candy counters but these sweets are slow sellers; it is the larger variety of 5-cent candies that sell.

Vending machines are all new type, designed for theatres, silent in operation and designed for variety of choice and capacity. Service efficiency is maintained by the vending machine distributors. All merchandise is purchased from the candy factories and none is packaged by the vending companies. Average split on the gross is 30 per cent for the theatre.

Greatest profit concession is the popcorn machine. There are about 75 modern popcorn machines in local area theatres, most of which are purchased and owned by the theatre managements. The 5-cent boxes are the big sellers, although dime boxes are packaged at many theatres. Popcorn machine profits actually pay the theatre rent for several exhibitors.

Cold-drink vendors are now being introduced at theatres. Many theatres have sanitary napkins vendors. A few of the smaller houses have 1-cent peanut, chewing gum and drinking cups machines.

COLUMBUS

MAYOR FLOYD GREEN vetoed the new council-approved city ordinance covering booths in motion picture theatres, the move coming at the insistence of P. J. Wood, ITO secretary . . . Our congratulations to Lou Harris, manager of the Fairbanks in Springfield, who was married last week to Mary Martell, member of the Blackstone magic troupe. She leaves the show in two weeks.

New sound has been installed at the Victor by Manager John Porter . . . J. Real Neth underwent a mastoid operation at Mt. Carmel Hospital . . . Charlie Powers of Paramount and RKO's Nat Holt were local visitors . . . Roger Garrett is back at the Ohio after an enforced vacation due to an infected finger.

Leo Yassenoff is on the road again . . . Bill Cunningham, in The Citizen, quotes local theatre managers as anticipating a return of slapstick, citing terrific business on "Chump at Oxford" as example . . . Leo Kessel of the Lancaster Palace is in charge of a series of Variety parties . . . Rumored about town that Virgil Jackson plans to enter the night club field with Tom Jones . . . Must be spring, Bernie Gardiner is spending all his spare time on the golf course.

City council has the long awaited curfew for consideration. Ordinance would make it illegal for children under 10 to remain in a theatre after 9:30, those under 16 after 10:30, unless accompanied by parents. Separate clause covers time from opening until 1:00 p. m. on school days. Maximum fine would be $500 and 90 days in jail. There will be no opposition from theatres, consequently the measure, recommended by police department, should pass without difficulty.

Warm Weather Hits Michigan Grosses

DETROIT—Show business took a sharp dive over the weekend when warm weather broke for the first good weekend of the year—for outdoor attractions. Theatres in general reported business down to the point where neighborhood houses were counting customers on their fingers.

Downtown houses did a mediocre business, with the best trade going to the Michigan, which featured the Marx Bros. Upstate business reports were also gloomy.

From all appearances, the annual summer slump has arrived.

May and June Are Drive Months for Kimelman

PITTSBURGH—The months of May and June have been designated as a period of appreciation for David Kimelman, Paramount branch manager. All members of the exchange staff have their shoulders to the wheel in seeking additional bookings for these two months and exhibitor cooperation has been very satisfactory.

Lou Harris Takes Bride

URBANA, OHIO—Lou Harris, assistant manager of the Fairbanks, Springfield, and Miss Mary Martell, assistant to Blackstone the Magician, were married here, April 29. Mr. and Mrs. Harris met two years ago in Springfield. She will continue with the show for another month and then will make her home in Springfield.

Goes Nautical

LORAIN, OHIO—John Tender of the Tivoli has bought a new sail boat.

Cleveland Daylight Saving Vetoed

Cleveland—Daylight saving was killed Wednesday by unanimous vote of the legislative committee in the city council after Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Assn., and union representatives opposed it as destructive to business and a safety hazard. Proponents were golf and garden club representatives.

Cleveland Barkers in Enlarged Quarters

CLEVELAND—Nat L. Lefton, Variety club chief barker, and Frank D. Drew, chairman of the house committee, opened the doors of the enlarged and newly decorated club rooms in the Allerton Hotel on May 11 to members and friends of the club.

After working on plans for the new setup for many weeks, the result justified the claim that Cleveland has one of the finest Variety Club rooms in the middle west.

Utilizing practically the entire east wing of the third floor of the hotel, the club now has double its former space. The bar has been more than doubled in size and converted into a cocktail lounge. Two private card rooms have been provided with space for some 30 tables in each room.

One of the innovations of the remodeled club is the installation of showers for the members. Also new is the fluorescent lighting in the cocktail lounge. Decorations were done by Sterling & Welsh.

Nearly Ready in Falmouth

FALMOUTH, KY.—Nearing completion here is a new 700-seat theatre being erected by Max Goldberg.

CLEVELAND

SAUL BRAGIN, Warner theatre booker, normally a calm individual, went up in the air the other day—we mean literally, for it was his first flight and when last seen had not yet recovered his complexion . . . Charles Raymond, Loew division manager; Frank Drew, M-G-M branch manager and Charles C. Deardourff, Metro exploiteer, journeyed to Toledo last week to see the Marx Bros. show—which was in the nature of a trial balloon for their forthcoming picture.

Milt Harris, Loew publicity director, spent the weekend in New York visiting with his mother . . . M-G-M's 20 Mule Team slushed its way around town through a steady downpour last Wednesday . . . Sidney Garfinkle of Quality Premiums and Miss Evalyn Goldstein will say the words before a minister on May 26 . . . J. J. Maloney, M-G-M district manager, spent the long weekend in the Cleveland office.

Sam Bolasny, owner of the Temple Theatre, has reopened the house which was closed for several weeks. Cooperative Theatres of Ohio is doing the booking . . . The general meeting of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, originally called for Thursday, May 2, was postponed to Tuesday, May 7. Buffet luncheon for members preceded the session . . . Urban Anderson, manager of the Capitol, has painted and rigged his boat in anticipation of summer's eventual arrival.

Jack Lykes, manager of Loew's Stillman, made the city "Cyclops" conscious by placing in a store window adjacent to the theatre, a cabinet equipped with a reducing lense so that the sidewalk public gazed at a pretty girl reduced to the size of the little people in the picture.

Fire Act Violation Charge Costs $150 at Clarion

CLARION, PA.—Management of the Garby drew a $150 fine after a hearing before Justice of the Peace M. S. Horner, at which the owners were charged with several violations of the fire and panic act relating to buildings used for public gatherings.

The charges refer to the presentation of a stage show on April 22, without compliance with the regulations of the department of labor and industry. These requirements relate to certain types of proscenium curtains, emergency lighting equipment, standpipes, sprinkler system and fire extinguishers. Peter Samios, manager of the Garby, and Thomas W. Meighan, state safety inspector, engaged in a spirited dispute which resulted in the action of the court. The theatre manager has appealed the decision and will take the case to the next term of court here.

Berlo Vending Wins Suit Against Vendola Corp.

CLEVELAND—The two-year-old suit to determine whether Berlo Vending Co. has interfered with the business pursuits of the Vendola Corp. has finally been concluded with a verdict in favor of Berlo.

In 1938, Vendola entered suit against Berlo charging conspiracy in restraint of trade. Common Pleas Judge McMahon rendered a directed verdict in favor of Berlo. Vendola appealed the decision on the basis that the question involved was not a question of law and should be heard by a jury. The court of appeals reversed Judge McMahon's verdict. Berlo then appealed to the supreme court of Ohio, which upheld the court of appeals, so the case finally was presented for hearing in a court trial. After hearing the case for 13 days, the jury brought in a verdict in favor of Berlo.

Five Chairmen Amusement Division Welfare Drive

CLEVELAND—W. N. Skirball, Nat Wolf, Meyer Fine, Henry Greenberger and Jack Shulman have been named co-chairmen of the amusement division of the annual Jewish Welfare Drive.

Vice-chairmen are Nat Barach, Boris Goldovsky, M. B. Horwitz, Abe Kramer, Nat L. Lefton, I. J. Schmertz and Martin Sperber.

ITO Unit in Cincinnati Bides Action on Neely

CINCINNATI—The local ITO unit at their monthly meeting went on record as refusing to take action on the Neely bill. General opinion was that unless distributors gave more concrete assurance of what the locals termed "fairer play," the ITO here would definitely support the bill. Grievances discussed included forcing of shorts and preferred playing time.

THE LOUISVILLE derby classic drew many filmites, including a representative delegation from RKO for the premiere of Irene Dunne's "My Favorite Wife," Irene having been raised in Louisville, and born in adjacent Madison, Ind. Among those present from RKO were George J. Schaefer, president of the company, Randolph Scott, Leo McCarey, producer; Garson Kanin, director; Stanley Jacques, BM of the local office and Sam and Bella Spewack, authors.

Bud Ackerman, whose new theatre promises to be the latest word, is also a distinguished sportsman. Ackerman, recently, at the Sharon Woods course drove a hole in one on a down hill par 3, No. 8 hole. A brassie shot from Bud's unbeatable drive went 155 yards, crawled over the green and slipped into the cup. And within the same 24 hours, he bowled a 280 average at Mergard's alleys.

Universal's Frank Schrieber passed the cigars with a lavish hand May 3, when an 8½-pound baby boy arrived at Spear's Hospital, Bellevue, Ky. . . . Pitt Bowling League Is Headed by George Ball

PITTSBURGH—George Ball of the 20th-Fox booking department was elected president of the Filmrow Bowling League for the 1940-41 season at the ninth annual banquet of the league in the East Room of the Roosevelt Hotel last Saturday evening.

Joseph Pemberton of Universal and Peter Quiter of the same company were re-elected secretary and treasurr, respctively.

Approximately half-a-hundred bowlers and guests were in attendance at the banquet which was presided over by Art Levy, Columbia Pictures manager, retiring president.

The Columbia Pictures trophy was awarded to Republic Pictures, league leaders this season, and was accepted by Lou Hanna, Republic captain.

Prize money was distributed as follows: Republic, $22.50; Universal, $11.25; Columbia, $5.62; 20th-Fox (booby prize), $1.87. High average awards—Joseph Gins, $7.50; Lou Hanna, $3.75; Joe Pemberton, $1.87. High score for one game—William Hollenbaugh, $3.75; Art Levy, $1.87. High score for three games—Saul Perilman, $3.75; Earl Friedman, $1.87. High team score for one game—Universal, $5.67; Republic, $3.75.

Peter Quiter announced approximately $150 remains in the relief fund.

Kosco to Build House In Brockway Himself

PITTSBURGH—J. B. Kosco, Brockway exhibitor, states he will contract and erect his new Brockway himself, and that plans have been submitted to Harrisburg for approval.

For three years Kosco has engaged in the "lumber manufacture" business in his home town. He operates the largest portable lumber mill in the state.

Alarm Panics Children

FARRELL, PA.—Scores of children were injured in the Capitol here one night last week when a false cry of "fire" started a panic. Louis Lampros, manager, stated that about 500 children and 125 adults were in attendance. In the mad dash for the doors a number of children were trampled on the stairway. Dozens were treated at the offices of nearby physicians and ten were taken to the Buhl Hospital, Sharon.

Wish Pitkin Well at New Haven Affair

NEW HAVEN—Over 100 well-wishers from Boston, New York and all parts of Connecticut joined in celebrating Barney Pitkin's 20th anniversary in the film business here at the Racebrook Country Club testimonial dinner party last Tuesday. The RKO branch manager was the recipient of a handsome china set as a token of esteem, which was presented by "Dean" Morris Joseph, Universal manager who was Pitkin's employer at one stage of the latter's career from poster clerk to manager.

Among the speakers who addressed the gathering at Racebrook Country Club and were introduced by Toastmaster Harry F. Shaw, were Herbert MacIntyre, Larry Gardiner, and Ross Cropper of Boston; William McShea, Michael Power, August Schubert of New York; Thomas G. Donaldson, chairman of the dinner, manager of the New Haven Metro branch.

Pitkin's continuous record of service in the film industry on Meadow Street is exceeded among the branch managers by only Morris Joseph and Ben Simon. He has seen great strides forward and many changes in the Connecticut film scene during the past 20 years, as he pointed out in his talk. Thomas J. Donaldson, Metro manager, was chairman of the event, assisted by Morris Joseph, secretary, and Hugh Maguire, treasurer.

Among the guests present were William McShea, Irwin Wheeler, Harold Eskin, Harry Zeitels, Frank Drumm, Sidney Kramer, William Brown, Edward Peskay and Harry Reiners of New York; Herbert MacIntyre, Ross Cropper, Larry Gardiner, I. H. Rogovin, Phil Seletsky, Dan Seletsky, Nat Furst, Hy Fine, Al Bevan, Al Kane and William Erbb of Boston; E. Cashman, Washington; Morris Jacobson, J. Levine, A. M. Warn in Norwich Against Overcrowding Aisles

NORWICH, CONN.—Managers of local theatres have received letters from city health officer, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, warning them against the overcrowding of the aisles of the showhouses. Necessary action will be taken, the health officer said, if the practice is allowed to continue in Norwich theatres.

Complaint Is Voiced In Hartford, Conn.

HARTFORD—The lashing out against overcrowded theatres by Norwich health officials marks the second time within two weeks that complaints have been sounded by officials against theatres overcrowding their aisles. Some days ago, Hillmer D. Robinson, assistant manager of the local E. M. Loew's, was fined for allowing such a situation.

Bank Night Agreement Immunizes in Drive

BOSTON — Bank Night remained unscathed in Middlesex county as District Attorney Robert Bradford outlawed all card games and cash nights at theatres under his jurisdiction. The taboo was aimed at Waltham, Cambridge, Malden, Somerville, Stoneham, Ayer, Marlboro, Arlington, and other communities.

Bradford's hands-off policy regarding Bank Night was because of an agreement reached some time ago with Roy E. Heffner, New England Bank Night assignee, and the setting of a test case built around operation of Bank Night at the Tower in Lowell.

Alexander Franchise to Kennedy and Schmuck

BOSTON—James Kennedy and Joseph Schmuck have been awarded the New England franchise of the Alexander Preview Co. Adolph Haas, representing J. Don Alexander, closed the deal several days ago. Kennedy and Schmuck, both local film veterans, have set up offices at Imperial Pictures on Melrose Street. They had closed a number of contracts at the time of going to press.

HOLLYWOOD—Fred Myton is scripting "Into the Crimson West," Charles Starrett western for Columbia.

House-Buying Recommendation Admittedly George Schaefer's

NEW YORK—The first large-scale operation of New England theatres by a distributor was recommended by George J. Schaefer, RKO president, when he was New England district manager for Famous Players-Lasky in 1924, he declared during his pre-trial examination in the government key suit before Assistant Attorney General Robert L. Wright.

Asked why he made such a recommendation, the witness said the merger of Samuel Goldwyn with Loew's, who were then FPL's principal first run in Boston "jeopardized our outlet there and it was necessary to assure ourselves of a permanent outlet." In due course, FPL acquired the Fenway, which was operated day-and-date with the Modern, and the Metropolitan in the Hub City.

Subsequently, FPL took over the theatres of Nathan Gordon associates "in preference to letting our competitors get them," the witness asserted. These houses were in the suburban districts of Boston, Brockton, Cambridge, Salem, Lynn, Gloucester, Haverhill and New Haven. Schaefer said the sale of the units was proposed to him by Gordon, who was ill and faced an operation.

Denial by Schaefer

Wright inferred that it was not until FPL took over the Gordon chain that the former's product was contracted for. Schaefer denied this, saying he had "healed the breach" between Gordon and Paramount and had succeeded in selling FPL product to "most" of the houses, but not including the Scollay Square and Washington Street Olympia, Gordon first-runs in Boston which were tied up with First National franchises.

As late as 1930, when Schaefer was Paramount's eastern division sales manager, he recommended that his company take over the Goldstein circuit operating in Springfield, Holyoke, Northampton, Pittsfield and Westfield because he thought Warner or Fox might beat Paramount to the deal. The chain was on the market, the witness said, and FPL's distribution was being hampered because Fox had just then taken over the Poli circuit.

Schaefer also advised the acquisition of the Strand, Providence, for a permanent FPL outlet to offset the new theatre Loew's had built in the city and the activity of Fox and Warner, who were described as seeking theatres there. The Strand had been a FPL customer for years, the witness said, and was offered to the company when the management decided to give it up.

He related the reason for FPL buying up the second 50 per cent interest in the Black circuit was the company's "dissatisfaction" with Alfred Black's management of the houses after FPL had taken an initial 50 per cent interest in the chain, for which it received a Paramount franchise. Schaefer said FPL's inability to sell away from Black and the manner in which he treated Paramount during the period he held the franchise were other factors which led to the company taking up the remaining stock interest.

Labels Standard Contract an "Instrument for Conspiring"

By BRAD ANGIER

BOSTON—"A very convenient instrument for conspiring" was the description given the standard contract by George S. Ryan, plaintiffs' attorney, who continued this week to sum up evidence in the Morse & Rothenberg anti-trust suits which have already passed the 200-day mark.

"There has been mentioned the tremendous importance of that standard contract, even though it is merely in the form of a sheet of paper," Ryan told Master Philip Hendrick as hearings in Courtroom No. 5 of the Federal Building neared conclusion.

"It is something in which the practices of the industry may be crystallized . . . a very convenient instrument for conspiring . . . because Your Honor can see that if you were to take an industry with diverse practices (Columbia doing this, Universal doing something else, Paramount another thing) they all have separate contracts providing for the rights of the parties in connection with those practices which were done in the manner in which they separately and individually did them.

A Case Supposition

"If there were such a situation, then a very clever man like the ex-Postmaster General might be able to see that if he wanted to put into effect any uniform practices in that industry, it would not do for him to tell Columbia to stop doing this. It wouldn't do for him to tell Universal to stop doing that. Or it wouldn't do for him to tell Paramount to stop doing the other thing.

"He would conclude that if he got those men together and said the proper way to do this is to have everything uniform so that exhibitors will not be confused by the various forms of contract which would be needed for the various and diverse practices, and he would say, 'Let's put this standard contract into effect. By the standard contract we will tell the exhibitors what protection is. We will tell them what their rights are. We will tell them how long they have to wait for the contract to be approved. We will define first, second and subsequent-run for them in the contract, and in the guise of making a contract with the exhibitor, we will define and establish every trade practice in the industry and will make them conform to it. We will even fix a minimum admission price.'

"If Your Honor were to take that contract, paragraph by paragraph, you would say that it is not merely a contract with an exhibitor, because if those practices were known and understood in the trade they would not need definition in the contract. But they define them in the contract by means of that uniform definition, the uniform obligation which the contract imposes, and, as Mr. Hays states so frequently, they have a trade practice structure set up in exactly the way they want it.

"They go through the form of negotiating with the exhibitor, and the contract results. If you look through the standard exhibition contract, you will see that it is not the ordinary contract that a man would draw up for the sale of some merchandise, but it is a set of rules and regulations for the government of the industry."

Protection

Ryan called protection "perhaps the most important thing in the industry."

"There will be cited and quoted to Your Honor," Ryan continued, "various definitions of this term and various statements of the witnesses representing defendants in regard to the purpose and effect of protection.

"Generally, it may be stated that its purpose is to protect the prior-run from competition. Substantially, all of the witnesses agree on that, either in express words or by implication from the language which I will quote to you.

"Protecting someone from competition is not a practice favored by the anti-trust laws, which are designed to promote and foster competition. In these cases here, the subject becomes of such tremendous importance because protection, in the sense of delaying the exhibition of a picture by a subsequent-run, is by the joint practices of these distributors, developing into a practice of protecting the first-run from showing the picture at all.

"When these distributors say that the refusal to sell was to protect the first-run revenue, they are saying in substance the same thing as that the practice of protection is designed to protect the first-run revenue, according to the statements of many of the witnesses employed by the distributor defendants.

"We propose to show that the whole practice all the way through was illegal and the result of conspiracy, that the conspiracy started long ago, that it has been a joint practice, that it has been fostered and nurtured by the Hays organization, and that it is now well understood by the distributors, not only in Nashua, Portsmouth, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, Providence and Elizabeth, but everywhere, how they can protect or attempt to protect their first-run revenue."

"The Lion's Share"

At another point, Ryan said, "Out of 13,000 or 14,000 theatres in the United States, 500 theatres pay 65 per cent of the revenue to the distributors, and four-fifths of those are producer-controlled theatres.

"Is the value of this system of protection shown from those facts? Does it indicate why the defendants are willing to establish an organization like the Hays organization and pay large salaries in order not only to keep their system in effect but to extend it?

"When we come to these cases, we find that the producers not only are not satisfied with four-fifths of the revenue, or nine-tenths of the revenue. They are not satisfied with the lion's share of it; they have got to get it all. They have to gorge themselves and fill their maws with all the possible profits that may be derived from the industry, by protecting their producer-controlled theatres and also the theatres of their partners or semi-partners."

Likening the motion picture industry to a horse race, Ryan recollected that, "The leader of the Independent Exhibitors once said, 'In a race that is on the level, eight horses can't run a dead heat.'

"The exhibits to which we are calling attention at some length, dry though the recital may be, indicate not only that these distributors here are running a dead heat, but that through every step of the race they are moving along, shoulder to shoulder, matching stride for stride.

"In everything pertaining to the motion picture business, they are moving along together, acting jointly, each doing and intending to do what the other may do.

Mexican Production Falters, Is Report

HARTFORD—"Mexico's motion picture industry is on the rocks as a result of financial difficulties," declares a dispatch to the Hartford Courant. "Lack of capital has brought production of films practically to a standstill," the correspondent brings out.

Continuing, the news item says that, "Studio workers failed in their efforts to stimulate productions, although they offered to accept half their wages during the production period, and the rest later.

"Three films completed recently in Mexico City studios have been shelved. No new Mexican pictures are being released in the Federal District, and some theatres have disregarded the recent official order to show new Mexican pictures at certain specified intervals."

Defendants' Motion in Segal Suit Set Up

BOSTON—A defendants' motion to abate action in the pending breach of contract suit brought in Suffolk superior court by Harry Segal, formerly general sales manager for Standard Pictures Distributing Corp., has been set ahead to May 13. The defendants, which include George Legannes, are basing their move on the fact that action is pending in two other jurisdictions, Maine and New York.

A new breach of contract suit, in which Segal is the plaintiff, has been brought in New York superior court where, several weeks ago, a $32,400 litigation against Standard Pictures Distributing Corp. and George Legannes, based on an alleged three-year contract, was dismissed without prejudice because, according to Justice S. H. Hoffsteader, the bill of complaint did not state a cause of action.

The result is that neither the independent exhibitor nor, more important, the public, at any time gets a run for its money."

Ryan brought up the question of what is a reasonable period of protection in any given situation.

"If the purpose of protection is to minimize the injury done to a prior-run by delaying the showing of a picture," the anti-trust lawyer said, "how is one to arrive at a period of time that will be reasonable in the particular circumstances? Is it necessary that the period of time be eternal, or would one year suffice, or six months, or 30 days, or two weeks?

Fair Practices

"Throughout this record there are scattered references to reasonable periods of protection in various situations, which may be some guide to Your Honor in determining what would be fair practice in these situations.

"Publix has never been known to be exceedingly liberal to the exhibitors that ran after it. At some length attention has been called to the fact that many distributors felt that Publix's demands were unreasonable and excessive. In the evidence, there are many schedules of protection by Publix over a period of years.

"Roughly, it may be said that Publix considered a period of protection that would take care of all its interests and minimize or eliminate any injury to it by a subsequent-run, to be six months, if the Publix house were charging 40 cents or perhaps higher and if the last run were charging 10 and 15 cents. That is pointed out to Your Honor at the beginning as being the maximum that anyone has testified to or that any exhibitor here shows as being protection, either reasonable or protection that might be requested.

"In Nashua and Portsmouth, there appear some contracts which provide for six months protection against the plaintiffs' theatres. The record as to the playing of pictures shows that except for these foreign pictures that had been rejected, or other slough pictures that the plaintiffs played first-run in Nashua and Portsmouth, the features which they were allowed to play were one or two or more years old. If we were to take the Publix schedule as a basis the protection was very excessive.

"It is worthy of remark, however, that no witness has testified that anything like a period of six months would be proper in any of these situations."

An Industry Axiom

Comparing an old picture to yesterday's newspaper, Ryan said, "The subject of selling subsequent-runs and protecting prior-run revenue, whether by means of protection schedules which delay the showing of a film or by an outright refusal to sell, is of extreme importance in this group of cases.

"It is the only possible theory that has been advanced by the defendants as an excuse for their actions. For that reason, I expect to spend a little time discussing the testimony of the various witnesses and pointing to the exhibits.

"It is an axiom in this industry that a subsequent-run house detracts to some extent from the first-run revenue. Obviously a man in town of 20,000, who is operating one theatre, is going to do better by himself if he can stay there without competition, than if another theatre were to open up.

"In a competitive way, the nature of the theatre opened up is of some importance. In a situation of that population, if an exhibitor has a fine, first class theatre and is using major product, obviously the greatest competition that can come to him is to have another fine, first class theatre opened up, which will display major pictures at the same time that he does.

"The element of novelty or timeliness in the showing of the pictures is of tremendous importance in connection with the revenue. There is a great deal of testimony of witnesses representing the defendants to that effect. From our own experience, without the testimony of the witnesses, we know that the public, and perhaps ourselves, are interested in the pictures that people are talking about at the time.

Old Versus New

"The pictures that are being shown first-run in Boston are the pictures that are being talked about. Over the radio we hear comments from broadcasting stations in Hollywood in regard to the pictures that are coming out, and the movie magazines are full of articles in regard to forthcoming pictures and current pictures. An old picture is like yesterday's newspaper. Your Honor might think back to pictures that were being talked about a year or two ago, the great productions. Who cares about them now? The pictures people are interested in are the pictures that are current. The events of the war in 1914 to 1918 are of great interest to a historian, but what people are thinking about is current war in Europe. So it is with the motion picture. That is why the system of protection has been established.

"Coming back to the locality of 20,000 about which I was speaking, if the second theatre is opened up, with equal accommodations and facilities for the public, and with substantially equal pictures, in the matter of time limits and drawing power, that is going to be tremendous competition to that other first-run house.

"Then if another theatre were opened up, comparable in structure and style with the first two houses, and were playing the same pictures a week or two afterwards, or immediately after they finished their run at the first two houses, that would be some competition but to a lesser extent. When we get to a house that runs very late (say, three months to six) if it is a house that is not comparable in style and structure with the first-run houses, if it runs at lower price, it attracts a different class of patronage."

Cantor in New Haven—

Harvard Smoker Garners Rochester More Space

BOSTON—Eddie (Rochester) Anderson hit additional Boston headlines during his personal appearance here at the Metropolitan last week at the opening of "Buck Benny Rides Again" as the result of a hoax kidnapping arranged by Harry Browning, advertising director of M&P Theatres Corp.

Rochester and Browning, scheduled to appear at a Harvard smoker, were sidetracked at the DKE House of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Publicity matters took care of themselves from then on, with a good natured riot developing that resulted in the arrest and subsequent court appearances of a number of students.

The Ann Sheridan incident, in which Harvard undergraduates nominated the star as "being the most unlikely to succeed," was revived at Harvard smoker when a mystery woman who had been built up as an unnamed beauty was finally introduced. She turned out to be a monkey.

Colonel Stoopnagle, otherwise F. Chase Taylor, Ray Perkins and Cab Calloway also appeared at the smoker.

A Quotation by Cantor Raises a Question

NEW HAVEN—The Yale boys in their daily News quote Eddie Cantor as saying, "My Yale experience is unprintable, except in 'Crimson.'" Rochester's kidnaping by M.I.T. boys right under the nose of the Harvard reception committee was unprintable, except in all the Boston papers. Are these colleges corrupting our personal appearance stars?

NEW HAVEN

THE 600-seat Tower, Waterbury, opened after a few postponements on Wednesday, May 8, with "Three Cheers for the Irish." Hand-tooled murals on plush are a rich decorative note, as well as serving as acoustical material in this house . . . Final date for receiving estimates on the new 800-seat Bristol is now past, and contract should be let within the week. Former Bristol house was 950 seats . . . Irving C. Jacocks jr. and Mrs. Jacocks are back in Branford after a six-week motor tour of many states, with stops in Arizona, Texas and Florida . . . Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut met for luncheon at the Hofbrau Haus Restaurant Tuesday with A. M. Schuman presiding. Further discussion was held on the Ascap suit against the Pequot, which is expected to come to trial this month.

Local theatregoers were awed by the "million dollar row" of celebrities attending the pre-Broadway opening of "Louisiana Purchase," new musical with lyrics by Irving Berlin, at the Shubert . . . Most of the celebs made a big fuss over Harry Shaw and Mrs. Shaw, who entertained Milton Berle, wife, and mother. Among those present were Ward Morehouse of the New York Sun, Winthrop Rockefeller, Mrs. William Gaxton, Rube Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Ray Goetz, Bert Wheeler, Ralph Rainger, Larry Hart, Herbert Fields, Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone, Al Lewis, Herbert Bayard Swope, George Jessel and bride, Gene Tunney, Al Jolson, Jules Glaenzer, and Lee Shubert.

Norman Randall, assistant at the Paramount, is daddy of a new six-pound, six-ounce girl, Patricia Ann, born at Grace Hospital . . . Sam Badamo, College manager, is enjoying a week's vacation, including some visiting in Boston and baseball in New York . . . New manager Bill Reisinger of the Bijou is Norman Randall's double . . . Mrs. John Sullivan, who won the radio bar displayed by Philco in the lobby of the Paramount, came within two of guessing the number of beans in the jar . . . Bert Mackenzie in from Boston to confer with the Poli divisioners on the "20 Mule Team" ballyhoo. This is the first trip to be made with the mule team and wagons since 1917, and the ballyhoo will probably be parked in a lot on display here May 13, being too cumbersome and long to move through the center streets. On May 14, the governor will greet the ballyhoo in Hartford.

Hartford Times awarded "Rochester" a shield, embossed with a picture of the Connecticut River Bridge, as the outstanding supporting player of the year . . . Nick Cavaliere, also a New Haven boy who made good, is leaving for the Alaskan wilds with Father Hubbard to "shoot" Vennimenoff volcano, cliff-dwellers, etc. . . . Evelyn Case, who has made several musical shorts for Warner and was leading lady of "The Boys From Syracuse," will sing in the Yale presentation of "The Apothecary," opera buffa, at the Yale Theatre, May 17 . . . Milford summer theatre company of the last several seasons will not be active this year . . . Branford will have a strawhat for the first time this summer.

Peter Perakos is giving his 36-foot cabin cruiser, Dauntless, its spring overhauling at the Essex boatyard . . . Earl Wright made an admiring inspection of T. A. D. Jones' boat at Mort Tiley's boatyard in Essex . . . Charlotte McGuigan drove her buddy, Helen Elder, for many years on the Poli division secretarial staff, to Harrisburg, where she joins her husband, Bill Elder, new manager of Loew's . . . Louis Astor of the Columbia home office was a Meadow Street visitor . . . Phil and Mrs. Fox (Columbia Buffalo manager) visited with the Ben Louries in New Haven, then proceeded to Boston where Phil attended the Abe Spitz dinner . . . Many Meadow St. felicitation messages went to Spitz . . . Sam Weiss just returned from a rare 10-day vacation in Atlantic City . . . Tom Donaldson was the latest grippe victim along Filmrow.

Zelig Fishman walking without the aid of a cane for the first time in many weeks . . . Morris Weinstein of Fox got a ticket on his car before he had driven it, when his garage man failed to pick it up for adjustment and the cop found it first . . . Nat Rubin of the Poli arranged a "Y" theatre party to see the new March of Time, "America's Youth," for which some shots were taken at the local "Y" building . . . Max Nevetsky, assistant at the Elm St., Worcester, tied up the town's largest candy shop for "Johnny Apollo"; also arranged a carrier boy theatre party . . . J. Prusin, usherette at the Globe, Bridgeport, promoted a Carroll tieup on imprinting of bags on "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me." Everybody's working—Usher Ernest Groschel of the same house promoted 250 roses to be given to first 250 ladies on opening day; and Assistant Tony Masela contacted all dance halls, taverns, etc., to plug song hits from the picture and have announcements made . . . Bob Carney, assistant at the Majestic, Bridgeport, asked sister teams in the dance schools to be guests at "Two Girls on Broadway" and thereby broke the local papers.

: He Turned "Primrose" :

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Film circles here are still laughing over the fix Manager Michael Carroll of the American found himself faced with the other day.

Carroll, it seems, had arranged a benefit performance with the Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's church and they had agreed to sponsor whatever booking happened along on the date they selected. Two weeks later the booking came through and the picture was—"The Primrose Path."

It didn't take Manager Carroll long to grab the telephone and politely suggest to the president of the Ladies' Aid that perhaps another date would be much more in keeping with a church organization.

CONFUCIUS SAY

Exhibitor who play Encyclopedias, also take " Medicals" so Box-Office stay well!

Not wishing longer to muff it,
By what Confucius say;
Exhibitors more, now profit—
The ENCYCLOPEDIA way.

No more's their box-office rusty;
Absentees; the ill, deaf and lame,
Now fill the seats that were dusty;
They heard; they saw, and they came!

Now if still you doubt the veracity
Of these poetical claims,
How else will you play to capacity?
For proof, we'll furnish their names.

They liked our ENCYCLOPEDIAS:
They'll want the 'MEDICALS' more.
Such value and continuity
Have never been offered before.

Start now with ENCYCLOPEDIAS:
Then follow thru with the new . . .
And enjoy a year of prosperity—
Step out of the red—and the blue!

Blanco, has been married six months now, and is plenty happy . . . A joint publicity meeting of the staffs of the Loew-Poli and Palace was held to plan arrangements for the coming of the 20-mule team to Hartford, May 14.

"The Biscuit Eater" is slated at the Allyn in a few weeks . . . Student Assistant Lewis J. Blanco at Palace arranged window and counter displays for "I Was an Adventuress". . . Hollis Sweeney, Palace usher, gave a recital last Monday night before a well-pleased audience at a local singing studio.

It's no secret that Rudy Frank, the State's praise agent, once was employed in a similar capacity by Horace Heidt who did a p. a. at that theatre last week. Because of that fact, Frank was particularly anxious to make a good showing, so he worked pretty hard on a campaign a week in advance. Many of Rudy's friends wanted to help out, so they went out of their way to go to the vaude house some time during Heidt's stay in town . . . and not on passes, either. Imagine Rudy's embarrassment when the crowds became so big the very people he raved to the most couldn't even get in to see Frank's former employer-bandster . . . The Maurice Schwartz production, "Salvation," was presented at Bushnell's Memorial . . . "Primrose Path" went into a second week at the Palace . . . Ditto "'Till We Meet Again" at WB's Regal . . . Hartford Little Theatre brought in a performance of "What a Life."

PORTLAND

SUMMER theatres, bane of motion picture managers all over the state from June till September, are making plans for opening their stage shows within a few weeks. First to announce its opening was the Lakewood at Skowhegan, the date May 25. Stars booked to appear include Madge Evans, Henry Hull, Harry Carey, Louise Campbell and Frank Wilcox.

Not to open, however, is the Theatre-in-the-Woods at Boothbay Harbor. Unoccupied the past three years, it was destroyed by fire, May 1. Portland film men are accustomed to summer theatre competition ahead of the rest of the state, they having been vying with the Palmerton Players for public approval nearly two months.

William E. Reeves, former manager of the Strand here and for more than 30 years in the amusement business in Portland, died May 2 at his Cape Elizabeth home. Among the many innovations for which he was responsible during his years at the Strand, was the installation of a 20-piece orchestra, some years ahead of the national popularity of stage bands. He left the Strand in 1931 to enter the novelty entertainment business.

Although Paul Junior of Lewiston lost to Welterweight Champ Henry Armstrong in Boston recently, the Maine Theatre didn't lose in showing the fight pictures, the only such program in town . . . The Empire did all right with "Pinocchio," while the State tied up its forthcoming "Buck Benny Rides Again" with a contest in connection with the Junior Chamber of Commerce city clean-up campaign.

West Hartford Considers A Community Theatre

WEST HARTFORD, CONN.—The possibility of a community theatre in Elmwood, a southern suburb of West Hartford, is being considered by residents and merchants of the New Britain Ave., section.

John Sokale of 33 Mayflower St., one of the leaders of the movement, said the possibility of financing the project by private subscription "is being investigated." About $300,000 would have to be subscribed before the project could be undertaken, he declared.

If the necessary funds were raised, the theatre would, in all probability, be built on a site just west of a business block on the northwest corner of New Britain and New Park Aves.

Plaza Party Defendant In Action by Lampert

NEW HAVEN—Judge Cornell in superior court granted an order permitting the Plaza Theatre Co., operator of the Plaza, Windsor, to intervene as party defendant in the case of Lampert Theatre of Windsor, Inc. vs. Vitagraph, Inc. Suit was brought in September, 1939, by the Lampert corporation, operator of the Windsor, Windsor, seeking to restrain the distributor from performance of its second run contract with the Plaza, as well as $25,000 damages.

Boston Friars Club Elects Steve Broidy President

Levy Leaves Connecticut Following His Release

WATERBURY, CONN.—Edward G. Levy, ex-secretary of the Connecticut MPTO, who pleaded guilty in the Waterbury conspiracy trial and was sentenced to serve one year in New Haven county jail, was released last fortnight on account of ill health. He left from there for Cleveland.

TRYING TO PROTECT ITS CASE, U. S. SEEKS SHOWDOWN ON DEMANDS FOR PARTICULARS

Collonade Pictures Soon Set in Miami

MIAMI — Collonade Pictures Corp., first studios of their kind to come into the Miami territory, will be ready for first actual production work by June 1, Arthur H. Sawyer, of this newly organized concern, announces.

Some $70,000 has been spent in remodeling the $250,000 structure, the original home of the Merrick company, developers of Coral Gables. Collonade Pictures recently purchased the entire building.

Heading the backers of this new production company are Miss Anna O'Toole, president, and her father, Col. Edward O'Toole, formerly in charge of the coal interests of the United States Steel Corp. throughout the south.

Sawyer, who will be the managing director, began his career as an exhibitor and theatre owner, continuing as a distributor. With Herbert Lubin he built and operated the Roxy.

Besides producing their own features, which will include Spanish musicals as well as English pictures, Collonade Pictures are constructing extra sound stages and studios to be available for rental use. In the past it has been possible only to make exterior shots in the vicinity of Miami, Sawyer points out, reporting that the Chamber of Commerce officials have turned over to him a number of inquiries from both New York and Hollywood about the local studio facilities available for rental.

Discussing his decision to include the making of Spanish musicals in the program of the new Collonade Studios, Sawyer told of his observations of the expansion of the market for Spanish speaking pictures.

Installed as studio and production manager of Collonade Pictures is H. L. (Duke) Tareyton, who has been an assistant director with Rex Ingram, Tourneur and Gardner Sullivan. Tareyton has also been associated with several majors.

The Collonade Studios also are installing facilities to process eight and 16-millimeter films in both black and white and color, it was learned.

Charlotte Leads Monogram Offices in Current Drive

CHARLOTTE—Heading all others in percentage of quota filled in the Monogram "Spirit of Independence" drive is the local office, categoried in the American league. Atlanta and New Orleans, of the National league, are in second and third positions.

Charlotte's Lawmakers Are Adamant to Poll

CHARLOTTE—Although opposed by the city council, the people of Charlotte desire Sunday shows and sports, according to "a scientific sample poll" conducted by the afternoon Charlotte News, which sought the answer to two questions: "Do you favor Sunday sports?" and "Do you favor Sunday movies?"

The News questioned 1,235 citizens of voting age, approximately 10 per cent of the city's average election vote and the result showed 772, or 63 per cent of those participating, in favor of Sunday sports and 733, or 59 per cent of those questioned, in favor of Sunday shows.

The News explained the poll included representatives of every section of the city and all social and economic classes of residents, both white and Negro.

In a later poll of the city councilmen, municipal governing board of 11 members, the News found they were apparently unimpressed by the results and that a majority still opposed Sunday shows and sports, a controversial issue here for several years.

Preliminary figures on the 1940 census give the city a population of more than 95,000.

C. H. Weaver Paramount's Dallas Sales Manager

DALLAS—C. H. (Buck) Weaver, well known all over the southwest, and who has sold Paramount pictures for 16 years, has been elevated by L. W. McClintock, branch manager, to the newly created post of sales manager in the Dallas exchange. For the past several seasons Weaver has represented Paramount in the east Texas territory.

In his new position his activities will reach out all over the state in personal contacts with exhibitors. He will do some road work, however, but most of his time will be taken up in the Dallas exchange.

Weaver's place in the east Texas block has been filled by Harold Pickett, who also has served Paramount in sales for a number of years.

Three Order Photophone

DALLAS—New RCA Photophone sound is being installed by T. G. Teeter, operator of the Joy, Houston; W. T. Friddell, who in June will open a new theatre at St. Stephens, S. C., and by D. J. Young jr., whose Mexico Theatre, Brownsville, Tex., was damaged by fire, April 19.

Four Southwest Theatre Chains Involved in Test by Gov't

WASHINGTON—Recent mysterious moves by the department of justice in connection with the suit against four southwestern exhibition chains and the major distributors pending in the federal district court at Oklahoma City were explained this week by officials in Washington as setting the groundwork for a judicial determination of the extent to which the government can be forced to disclose its case by means of motions for bills of particulars.

A motion to dismiss the suit was filed with the court May 3, two days after the expiration of the period within which the department was to have furnished a bill of particulars asked by the defendants. To pave the way for the filing of that motion, the department earlier had asked that the period allotted for the furnishing of particulars be advanced from June 1 to May 1, and then let the latter date go by without compliance.

Way Open for Appeal

It was explained in Washington that failure to furnish the bill of particulars ordered by the court left the suit at a standstill from which it could be moved only by new motions or by dismissal. By securing the dismissal of the case, it was said, the way was left open for an appeal on the question of whether the bill of particulars demanded was too broad in scope and a court determination on that point which would be of value, not only in the Oklahoma case but in other suits which the government has brought against the film and other industries.

If the motion to dismiss is granted, the immediate issue of the bill of particulars will be pressed at once and, following a decision on that point, the case can be reinstituted, it was said.

Department of justice officials have long been resentful of the delays which they have encountered in the prosecution of anti-trust cases under the new rules of procedure which, ironically, were adopted with a view to speeding up cases.

"Forced to Tell All"

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold revealed that resentment last month, when he appeared before Senator Neely at a preliminary hearing on the latter's divorce bill and discussed the progress of the all-industry suit, filed July 20, 1938, and only now nearing trial.

Discussing the new rules, Arnold told the Senator the department was practically forced to try the New York case in advance and furnish the companies, through a bill of particulars, "with a complete statement of everything that has been happening in the motion picture business,

The Little Theatre will bring the showboat, "Dixie Queen," up the channel to Port Houston to produce their plays . . . Each Houston theatre sent a sizeable amount to the Will Rogers Memorial Fund.

Monogram Salesmen's Authority Extended

DALLAS—Monogram salesmen or representatives are no longer designated as such, according to an announcement by John Franconi, one of the heads of the Dallas exchange.

Jack Gruben, Connie Dreher and Ed Blumenthal jr. now have the title of zone managers. This gives Monogram representatives in Texas more authority with less supervision than heretofore, Franconi said. The Dallas Monogram office feels, he said, that its zone managers or sales representatives are men of background and experience and that they have more thorough knowledge of each situation in their respective zones than is possible for any one in the office to have.

In addition, all contracts written by these representatives, or zone managers, will be forwarded direct by them to the Monogram home office in New York, with such recommendations as they see fit to recommend, Franconi said.

Plan Gala Fort Worth "Westerner" Premiere

FORT WORTH—A three-day celebration sponsored by city and state authorities will signal the premiere here June 25 of Samuel Goldwyn's United Artists release, "The Westerner," at the Hollywood and Fort Worth theatres.

Visiting here from Hollywood will be Goldwyn and the cast of the picture, headed by Gary Cooper, Walter Brennan and Doris Davenport. Many day-and-date bookings in Texas will trail the premiere, opening on June 26.

Principal features of the dual celebration will be a charity ball and a community parade.

Four Chains Involved In Test by Gov't given to the people who should be more familiar with the business than we are."

The filing of the suit in the federal court for the western district of Oklahoma was announced by Arnold on April 28, 1939.

Named as defendants were the Griffith Amusement Co., Consolidated Theatres, Inc.; R. E. Griffith Theatres, Inc., and Westex Theatres, Inc., operating chains in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, and all of the major producing companies. The complaint was based on alleged unreasonable combination in restraint of trade.

The suit sought to break the monopoly combinations which the government charged existed in the areas of operation of the theatre chains, by dissolution of the chains and rearrangement of their properties "under several separate and independent corporations in such a manner as to create competitive conditions and prevent further violations of the Sherman act; asked that the defendant chains be enjoined from jointly and collectively negotiating contracts with the distributors and the distributors be prohibited from seeking to license pictures except on a local, competitive basis; and pleaded for an injunction against the acquisition of additional theatres or financial interest therein by the exhibitor defendants."

Complements Big Suit

It was explained by Arnold that the Oklahoma case was "an essential complement to the pending equity suit in New York." The objectives of the all-industry suit, he explained, "cannot be attained so long as there exists chains of theatres exercising monopoly power in various sections of the country, even if the affiliation between such chains and the major companies is broken.

"If the major producers are deprived of control over local theatres, they must have for themselves a competitive market of truly independent theatres in which to distribute their product," he said. "They must not be at the mercy of local monopolies which control the market in particular areas.

"To leave the chain theatres in control of the market after divestiture by the major companies would be simply to substitute a number of local monopolies for the national monopoly which is now charged to exist. Such control would be equally disastrous to independent theatre owners. Local monopoly control may be quite as effective in stifling competition as national monopoly control and at the same time be more disorderly. It would also put the producers, who had divested themselves of their theatres, at the mercy of the local monopoly."

Thank Atlanta Barkers for Entertaining Shut-ins

ATLANTA—The Variety Club, Tent No. 21, held its regular monthly meeting, Monday, May 6, in the clubrooms at the Henry Grady Hotel. Report of the Dallas convention was made by R. B. Wilby and Charles Kessnich, official delegates.

Guests of the club were James Setz jr., representing the Scottish-Rite Hospital, and Dr. Pruitt, of the Home for Old Women, who praised the Variety Club for the sound truck showing of pictures to shut-ins at the institutions.

Film Transit Permitted Expansion of Service

MEMPHIS—Elsie M. Wagner, secretary-treasurer of Film Transit, Inc., advised her firm has secured a permit from the interstate commerce commission in Washington to haul film and advertising in all five states served by the Memphis exchanges, which includes all Mississippi, southeastern Missouri; west Tennessee; southwest Kentucky, and the entire state of Arkansas. This permit becomes effective June 20.

Miss Wagner advised this additional territory necessitated the immediate moving into larger quarters.

College Station Theatre Makes Impressive Bow

COLLEGE STATION, TEX.—The new Campus Theatre opened here last Thursday night in nothing short of a blaze of glory. Hollywood lighting, brilliant color of the front, and a background of immaculately uniformed cadets provided a setting seldom seen at theatre inaugurations.

All of its 628 seats were filled for the first showing. An elaborate lounge is provided for customers. The equipment, color and all conveniences are in the typical Lee Threet manner, Threet being a partner in the enterprise with Sam Hyman, of Lufkin, and V. A. (Buddy) Walker, of Norman, Okla., the latter being manager.

The Campus will operate seven days a week matinee and night. In the meantime, 6,000 A&M students continue in their demands that there be no clearance on the part of three theatres in Bryan, about five miles away, over the College theatres. Cadets have so far refused to go to Bryan until their demands in this regard are met.

C E. HILGERS, former Dallas exchange manager, who now owns and operates the new Clair at Albany, Ga., which friends say is an unusually successful house, has been in Dallas on a visit with many old friends. He was registered at the Baker.

George A. Hirliman, now producing independently on the coast, has been in town closing a deal with Pat Garyn of Texas Film Co. . . . W. E. Crist, manager of the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service in charge of army camp theatres, has moved his offices and staff from the Gas building over across the street in the Jefferson Amusement quarters located just above the R&R circuit.

H. C. Houston, of the Trinity, Oak Cliff, Dallas, has made an affiliation with Interstate circuit for the booking of that house. Trinity bookings were formerly handled by Forrest White, of Index.

Col. H. A. Cole left Wednesday morning for Washington on an unheralded mission, but presumably in connection with the two Neely bills, the government key suit, or all three topics. Cole's Allied quarters are now neatly tucked away in the new streamlined offices at 2011½ Jackson. Most sumptuous in the layout is the extra large office to be occupied by the colonel. An adjoining office is for Bob Euler, who books for the R. N. Smith and B. R. McLendon circuits. Then there's Henry Sorenson in his quarters, with Modern Theatre Equipment Company. J. M. (Soda) Reynolds, Allied contact, has free run of the entire place as usual.

Walter Knoche, of the Palace at Fredericksburg, spent two days here this week booking. Incidentally, he remembered bookers and others, with a fine token from his hill country, the vintage being of the olden variety . . . Dr. W. H. Frye, who recently bought and is now operating the Star at Forney, seems to be doing well with the new venture.

G. A. Cole, well known Texas showman, has been headquartering in Dallas for some days and likely will announce a new situation which he plans to enter within a few days. He sold his Cole theatre building in Ft. Stockton to the O. K. Theatres.

Willard Young, roadshowman, has been getting in some nice dates on "Sins of Passion," the film he is currently handling. Last week the gross in Buck Morgan's new theatre at Grand Prairie was a figure to make other exhibitors envious.

Louis Charninsky, of Elm Street fame, was chairman of the Dallas C. of C. trade trip into east Texas a few days ago. A hundred delegates went to Marshall to attend the East Texas C. of C. meet there at the same time. Louis sold 100 tickets for this trip which was more ducats than one man ever sold for any Chamber event . . . In Dallas this week, C. H. Cox of Gilmer said his eldest daughter, Miss Jo, was to be married this week.

Lee Smith called in the other day reporting a fire in his Texas at Knox City.

He planned to bring in damaged equipment for repairs in order to get the house opened as quickly as possible.

The fishing season has been on in full swing and one of the biggest catches was that by the R&R men, C. V. Jones, Lloyd Pullen, of Dallas, and Harry Hardgrave, of Sherman, who slipped down to Palestine, each catching their limit in City Manager H. F. Jones' private lake, stocked for three years, with May 1 being the first time a baited hook was dropped into those waters.

Earl Schultz, manager in Crockett for the R&R circuit, was up first of the week conferring with Don Douglas and others on plans for the new theatre the circuit soon will build at Crockett to replace the burned down Auditorium.

Back on fishing, we mustn't overlook Clark Robertson, of Clark's Filmrow Cafe. He has caught his limit at Eagle Mountain and Mountain Creek Lakes on a dozen occasions since the season opened. He didn't serve these fish on noon lunches, however.

L. D. Brown, owner of the Queen and Gem at Brownwood, and a film man of silent days, was in town in new spring togs working on details for remodeling plans for those two houses in which he is a partner with Texas Consolidated . . . Homer Mulkey of Clarendon dropped in Monday and Tuesday for brief sessions with bookers for west Texas dates in his Pastime and Cozy theatres.

Temple Summers, owner of the Palace at Glen Rose, sends in a special issue of the Glen Rose Reporter which promotes opening of the summer season of that popular resort. Summers takes a large dish in all possible civic affairs of that community.

Sparks Buys Cooper Site For 700-Seat Theatre

COOPER, TEX.—Henry Sparks, veteran Texas independent exhibitor, announces he will build a 700-seat theatre here, starting around June 1. Sparks this week closed a deal with A. B. Perkins at Dallas for a 54x110 foot building on the northeast corner of the square here, the property having for many years been occupied by the Perkins Dry Goods Co.

Sparks said the Grand will remain in its present location, as he holds a long time lease on that property. When the new theatre is completed the Delta will be closed.

Accident Fatal to Daniel

ATLANTA—John H. Daniel, 52, projectionist at the Rialto here, was killed instantly and his wife was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Palmetto.

HOLLYWOOD — Columbia has assigned Paul Franklin to script "Blazing the Oklahoma Trail."

Scripting U's "Riviera"

HOLLYWOOD—Universal's "Riviera" is being whipped into screen form by Leonard Spigelgass and Charles Grayson.

Roy Lee Lighting "Russell" Premiere in Pittsburgh

DALLAS—Roy C. Lee, theatre lighting expert for premieres and displays, has crashed the big time with a deal that takes his entire equipment outlay and staff to Pittsburgh, Pa., to put on lights for the world premiere of "Lillian Russell" in John Harris' theatre there, scheduled for May 15.

Lee has put on the lighting for many an event in the southwest. He threw out the big lights for the national Variety convention. Lee's equipment, effects and crew attracted attention of John Harris, national chief Variety barker, who incidentally heads the Harris Amusement Enterprises in Pennsylvania. When Harris got the world premiere on "Lillian Russell," he called in Roy Lee to handle the lights.

Besides lights, Lee now offers an air balloon service which moves around an advertising area, with searchlights and 25-foot banners underneath.

TENNESSEE

FOUR new theatres opened in Tennessee during the week of April 25 to May 2. The new Capitol, with Mr. and Mrs. Hal Laurance as managers, opened in Paris, April 25. C. R. McCowan, publicity manager, represented the owners, Crescent Amusement Co., Nashville, at the opening. On the same day, Drive-In Movies opened in Memphis. A screen 50-feet high carries the picture, with room for 500 cars. Sound is distributed through 250 speakers, one for each two cars. The Belle Meade, Crescent Amusement's suburban at Nashville, opened May 1. The theatre and ten store rooms in building cost $250,000. E. J. Jordon is manager. The building is surmounted by an unusual tower with variegated lighting. The fourth theatre to open during the week was the Sunset, Western Heights Section, Knoxville. W. E. Drumbar, veteran film distributor and exhibitor, is the owner. Capacity is 600.

Ronald W. Randolph, with the Plaza at Asheville, N. C., for the past four years, has succeeded Chester R. Glenn as manager of the Paramount at Bristol. Glenn, who has announced no future plans, owned a theatre at Hendersonville, N. C., before coming to Bristol in 1938.

The city council of Oneida has passed an ordinance permitting film shows between 1 p. m. and 5 p. m. on Sundays . . . Apparently hiding in the theatre after closing time, thieves ransacked the offices of the Tennessee, Knoxville. Combination on the safe was jimmied, but the door was not opened. After rummaging through the correspondence files, the thieves departed, without taking anything of value, by way of an emergency exit.

Traveling Through Texas

By A. JULES BENEDIC

SAN ANTONIO—We sally into San Antonio. The further south from Dallas we dawdle, the food gets fancier; the senoritas saucier. Not only films, but fiestas and fandangoes form the fare; Mexicanos mingle in colorful contrast to austere Americanos. Caballeros consume chili con carne, with enchiladas as an entree; the while packed plazas contribute customers to the cines. Si, si, Senor, todo es bueno hereabouts!

Thoughts while strolling along Calle Houston . . . Overlord Eph Charninsky, who once scrapped for product at the Palace, now sedately Interstating in air-conditioned comfort at the Majestic building suite. Lads and lassies of the circuit agree he's a swell boss . . . Not many changes, at that, after a half-decade, except that this w. k. business has been centralized . . . We run into Publicist Moss while tramping Majestic's marble halls . . . W. J. Lytle, now managing the Texas Theatre building, swears he's out of the game and devoting his full time to ranching.

Austin—An Ancient Auburn

Alamo City projectionists planning big turn-out at Louisville next month. Only one delegate, but there'll be extra customers on hand when the IATSE gong sounds up in Kentucky in early June . . . G. A. Lucchese has revamped his Teatro Nacional since our last visit. Assured plenty of Spanish talking product, this cine veteran now has a real entertainment spot for his Latin-American customers . . . Street cars a thing of the past. Streamlined busses slither over city streets, with no smoking signs conspicuous by their absence.

We ankle into Austin, and mean just that, for the ancient Auburn, bought two weeks ago in Dallas, has developed engine fever. This one-horse automotive shay sprung a gasket at Round Rock, and was driven into the capital at the dizzing speed of 15 m.p.h. For any make except this foreign one, a new gasket is easy. Not so this difficult brand, and the garage man, exhausting frantic phone calls about town, at last finds a bloke whose cousin recalls a car of similar make that was junked a few months ago at Kennebunkport, Me. We employ Greyhound gas-eaters while awaiting result of telegrams to the New England town . . . Skinny Pryor, who was here before the Indians, now holds sway out on East Sixth. He's carried his Grand Central trade from historic Congress avenue out to the newer Cactus, and retains that same popularity with a legion of film folk . . . Lou Novy, one-time Hancock Opera House nabob, now an Interstate emir, mighty pleasant to chat with on old times . . . G. A. Lucchese's brother, Frank, now partnerships the Harlem, well-patronized colored house . . . Elmo Hegman not present at the Ritz when we called.

Raucous Resonance Ruins Rucker

We rumble into Round Rock—good word for this Auburn autoing. W. W. Rucker of the Rock comes running. He thinks the front of his swanky new theatre has fallen in, but it's only the gasketless jalopy. Frightened citizens think Sam Bass again is in town, but the staccato musketry proves up as backfire, and Ruck's shattered nerves, as well as a jumpy engine, are quieted. Left only is the fear that the state highway department will start complaining on the spilled nuts and bolts.

We wing into Waco, which recalls pleasant visits with Projectionist Charlie Keeler and his cohorts . . . All these projectionist personalities, incidently, are tops, indeed, and that goes also for the fine crew at Temple . . . Abe Levy interviewed in front of Interstate's ace house in the Central Texas metropolis . . . Mrs. J. A. Lempke and family carrying on nobly with their several houses . . . Apropos of nothing in particular, headlines hail a new oil find in Webb County. Wonder how the boom will affect our old compadre, Gus A. Becker of the Becker Warehouse, Trucking and Amusement Co., in Mirando City, only 32 miles from that halcyon Laredo.

Beeville Bumps Batter Benedic

We bump into Beeville, headquarters of the Hall hierarchy. Henry's in nearby Santone, but Fats Nance is holding down the fort. He imparts the info that LeRoy Bickel of Leo the Lion fame is Beeville-bound. Which recalls to Fats' mind the time when this reviewer sold him second run on "Trader Horn," the exchange to take 100 per cent of the receipts.

Adios, amigos, we hie to Houston!

AUSTIN

AGRICULTURAL practices in six European nations, now involved or touched by war, were flashed upon the screen in a free show sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce agricultural committee . . . A series of films in surgery and medicine were presented on the University of Texas campus by the Dallas chapter of Phi Beta Pi, honorary medical fraternity . . . A couple of "a. k." pictures staggered back into town last week: "The Prisoner of Zenda" at the Texas, and "King Kong" at the Ritz. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," on 16mm stock, was shown before a U. of T. audience in the Texas Union Building.

"The Lost Colony," an original story shot in color by members of the University Presbyterian Century Class, was screened at the annual banquet of the group . . . A motion picture travelogue party was held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Driskill Hotel by a local travel agency.

Bill Lewis, Warner booster, in town briefly in the interest of "It All Came True," "Saturday's Children," and "'Til We Meet Again" . . . Louis Novy, local Interstate manager, still in the Variety Club convention mood, no doubt, as he's wearing his cowboy boots down to the office . . . Mose Macow, skipper of the State is building a little nest (ranch style) in Pemberton Heights.

Caporal Assures Building On Two Will Start Soon

OKLAHOMA CITY—Two new suburban theatres loom on the Oklahoma City scene as certainties with a definite announcement from Sam Caporal that construction will be started soon.

Caporal said construction of the houses, to include eight business store spaces in each instance, would involve an investment of between $150,000 and $200,000.

He indicated construction of a new theatre at Northeast 23rd Street and Kate Avenue would begin "in a week or so."

Construction of the second theatre, on a half-block area between 42nd and 43rd streets on North Western Avenue will begin just as soon "as I get things straightened out on the other job," said Caporal. Houses of 750 seats are planned in each instance.

To Introduce Bill to Lift Juvenile Ban

MONTREAL—Confirmation of the expectations of distributors and exhibitors that some modification of the ban on juvenile admission to theatres in Quebec province is to be looked for this year, was given by Premier Adelard Godbout in an announcement made at Quebec City.

Godbout revealed the provincial government will introduce, during the present session of Quebec legislature, a bill to abrogate the measure which for the past 13 years or so has prevented children from witnessing films other than those permitted to be shown in schools, or an occasional exception like "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Gulliver's Travels" and "Pinocchio," which are supposed to be especially suited to the juvenile mentality.

The ban on juvenile admissions, which has been strictly enforced by the imposition of heavy fines for infractions, followed the disastrous fire in the Laurier Palace Theatre, Montreal, Jan. 8, 1927, in which 77 children lost their lives, most dying from suffocation when panic caused hundreds to get jammed in a corridor leading to the exits.

Made a Moral Issue

Since then, successive governments, ignoring the fact the ban was imposed because of physical danger to the children and that theatres are now fireproof, have assumed it was the intention to guard the morals of the children by preventing them from seeing motion pictures. In this viewpoint the governments had the support of the Roman Catholic clergy, who went further and imposed their views on adults by bringing about the exclusion of such films as "Life of Emile Zola."

Apparently, Premier Godbout, while prepared to modify the law to the extent of permitting children to see some films in theatres, still clings to the view that the moral aspect comes first. In his announcement, forecasting admission of children to theatres, he said the government would create a special censor bureau which would probably have at its head the present chairman of the Province of Quebec Board of Motion Picture Censors, who would be aided by representatives of the Roman Catholic and Protestant clergy.

The Premier's announcement, with its implication that the moral welfare of the children alone was to be considered in admitting them to theatres, brought the following protest from a resident of Shawinigan Falls, Que.

"For some reason or other, it is proposed that a board of censors determine what pictures children may be allowed to see. This would lead those with defective memories to believe that the reason children were prevented from attending picture houses was the pictures themselves. This is entirely wrong. Children were prevented from attending motion picture theatres after the dreadful Laurier Palace fire. No board of censors can prevent this happening again, and if, as we hope, children are again to be allowed to attend picture houses, the only logical and sensible thing to do is to permit them to attend only if accompanied by an adult who shall remain with them during the whole of the performance.

"Common sense would tell us that no parents will allow their children to see pictures that are not good for them, and we may trust the judgment of parents much more than a board of censors who may be childless.

"What we must aim at is fire prevention, not censorship of films. To save the soul, we should make some effort to save their little lives. Let us not, therefore, overlook the main issue."

Since the Laurier Palace fire, Montreal theatres have been safeguarded by stringent fire regulations. So far as can be ascertained all theatres are now fireproof. If, in the opinion of the authorities, any theatre is not fireproof, it would be possible to prohibit the admission of children to that theatre until the fire regulations had been complied with.

Picture of Ontario Censorship During War by Silverthorne

TORONTO—The report of Chairman O. J. Silverthorne of the Ontario board of censors for the fiscal 12 months ending March 31 gives many interesting details regarding the censorship situation in this province during the war.

The statement shows that, of the 2,278 standard-width films submitted for review, 1,915 were from the United States, 54 from Great Britain, five from Canadian sources and 304 of foreign origin. Analysis of the foreign pictures shows 276 were from France, five from Italy, four from China and two each from Czechoslovakia, Russia and Poland, with 13 Jewish pictures included.

Before the outbreak of hostilities, films from Continental Europe, with the exception of French, were officially discouraged and, as a wartime measure, the board has banned foreign language pictures with the exception of those from France and various Jewish films, as a precaution against subtle propaganda, a policy that has been outlined previously.

Reference to "Beau Geste"

With reference to the withdrawal of the permit for "Beau Geste" last September as being detrimental to a friendly nation, Chairman Silverthorne declared: "It is of interest to observe that the film 'Beau Geste' has had a checkered existence since its production. The board understands that markets of the Balkan States were closed to it upon representations of the Soviet Government; that it has been severely mutilated in one other country while, in Canada, it is being shown in all provinces except Ontario and Quebec." This follows a declaration that "during the past few months, the producer of the North American Continent has suffered serious losses through the decisions of boards of censors who have closed markets to his pictures on the ground of wartime necessity"

Referring to so-called social pictures, the chairman reported: "While your board must make every contribution to the war and its successful prosecution, it feels also that it should cooperate with those forces of the motion picture industry endeavoring to attract attention through the screen to pressing social problems. During the year under review, the board has passed upon subjects dealing with the plight of the transient, the migratory worker, the mentally afflicted, slums, venereal disease and immorality. Whenever subjects with social implications have been presented to it, constructively and in good taste, the board has unhesitatingly approved of them."

A breakdown of "alterations" in the various classifications, with no picture having been condemned permanently on examination, is as follows: Features—129 altered out of a total of 654; trailers—17 altered in 576; comedies—one altered in 199; newsreels—10 altered in 284; miscellaneous—27 changes ordered in 538.

During the past year, the total number of deletions, with a number occurring in the same picture, was listed as follows: Features, 1,291; comedies, 27; trailers, 70; newsreels, 128, and miscellaneous, 86, a total of 1,657 different changes.

Newsreels Grow in Importance

With regard to newsreels, which have increased importance in war time, Chairman Silverthorne gives the following credit: "The board pays tribute to the distributors of newsreels who, while working under the restraints of censorship, have kept Canadian audiences exceedingly well informed on the developments in the war-torn countries of Europe. At the same time, the producer has not overlooked domestic requirements and has given the theatregoer views of many interesting events."

The report states that one foreign language picture, a Ukrainian silent film, was seized by the Ontario department at the request of the federal government.

The work of censorship, it is pointed out, has been greatly increased since the outbreak of war and has been conducted by the board with a sincere wish to prevent the showing of any film likely to give offense to the public. Judging from the very few complaints that reach the board, the work appears to have met with considerable success, it is stated. Films submitted to the censors sometimes raise important questions of public policy and the board has asked for expert information when the need arises and criticisms from the public are welcomed.

Canadian Pioneers Relive the Past at Meeting in Toronto

By MILTON GALBRAITH

TORONTO—Real oldtimers of the film world turned back the clock for many years to live again as enthusiastic youths for a passing moment in a fling of exuberant and care-free happiness at the inaugural meeting and banquet of the Canadian Picture Pioneers at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, May 1, when upwards of 100 survivors of nickelodeon and illustrated song days gathered to revel in reminiscence and to bring skeletons out of closets for joyful survey. These old-boys-made-new for the nonce belied their weathery appearance in re-living the times of the past and telling tall yarns of pioneering accomplishments that would put a blush on the cheek of many a 1940 press agent.

There was very little in the way of serious program to the business session in the afternoon, apart from the outlining of the objects of the organization under Dominion government charter and the distribution of engraved copper membership plates under the direction of Clair Hague, chairman of the club who had previously worked long hours to put the Canadian Picture Pioneers into practical form. The legal aspects of the society were described by D. J. Ongley in behalf of Hon. Earl Lawson, former member of the House of Commons and an early exhibitor of Toronto who attended the banquet. A feature of the "matinee" was a story-telling competition which provided an almost unnecessary cue for the subsequent revelry. The winner proved to be Walter Kennedy, a veritable Baron Munchhausen in his most generous moments, while the second prize went to Charlie Stephenson of Kitchener, Ont., and the third was earned by Harry Law, who, as a story teller, is a good sales chief for Warner Bros.

Cocktails and Stories

Then came the cocktails, and the Pioneers wandered from group to group to hear more fancy yarns, the largest audiences collecting for Jim O'Loghlin, general manager of 20th Century-Fox, and Haskell Masters, general manager for United Artists, both of whom lived up to advance notices as being past masters as raconteurs. Two lady Pioneers were present, Mrs. Bessie Moore, proprietor of Moore's Theatre, Grimsby, and Ray Lewis, who operates the Avenue and Pylon, Toronto. During some of the stories they turned a discreetly deaf ear. Or did they?

Representatives from the Pioneers' Club in the U. S. were Arthur A. Lee and M. A. Schlesinger of New York and Max Levy of Chicago, President Jack Cohn of New York finding it impossible to make the trip because of his meeting there the following night. The Maritime Provinces were represented by A. J. Mason of Springhill, chairman of the Nova Scotia Conciliation Board, and Jack Butler of Moncton, N. B. Representing Ottawa and Hull, Que., was Bill O'Regan while many points in Ontario figured in the attendance roll. The honor of being the oldest young man present went to James Whitham, pioneer theatre owner of Cornwall, Ont., who boasts 84 years. Accompanying him was his son, Ben Whitham, of the Famous Players head office, and Clarence Markell, son-in-law, who manages the theatres in Cornwall.

Ernie Moule, in from Brantford, proclaimed the Telephone City had produced more film pioneers than any other in Canada, including the Allens, Ben Cronk, Clair Hague and Frank Meyers, all of whom were present. Simon Meretsky arrived from Windsor, looking smart in his tuxedo. Representing Col. John A. Cooper's office was E. H. Wells, secretary of the Canadian Film Boards of Trade, while the Ontario government was represented by R. C. Buckley, director of the amusements revenue branch, treasury department, who started as a projectionist back in the days when every projection booth was reputed to have a stock of fiction magazines and a box of cigars with which to while away the time—but Buckley indignantly denied that he ever smoked in the booth. Moreover Buckley did not order any censoring of the stage show that followed the Pioneers' banquet. Jack Arthur represented the district managers of Famous Players, and Herb Allen was on the scene for Premier Theatres, with E. V. Armstrong speaking for the Associated chain and telling of the days when he projected at the old Colonial in Toronto.

A "Giveaway" by Mavety

The function was not without its "giveaway" which Charlie Mavety, the film delivery man, distributed in the form of book matches as subtle advertising for his Circle M Ranch, Ontario's pioneer dude ranch at Kleinberg. Syd Taube, the candy machine man, had no samples, declaring that business was good enough. There were many others, including the Three Sams from B&F Theatres, Sam Bloom, Sam Fine and Sam Sternberg; Jules Bernstein of Loew's, Bill Brady, Joe Garbarino, Sales Manager Louis Rosenfeld of Columbia, Harry Ginsler, Sam Glazer, Harold Pfaff, Harrison Patte, Harry Price, Bill Redpath, W. J. Risewick, Bill Stewart, W. A. Summerville, Toronto exhibitor who is a member of the Ontario legislature, Doug Cooper, Jules Laine and, of course, Archie Laurie who, as chairman of the entertainment and program committee and stage manager, was extremely busy. Laurie deserved the big hand.

Posters on the false theatre front in the dining room brought back many memories. Some of them were: "The Runaway Train," "Nick Winter Foils 'Em," "Sinned Against" and "Coming—Another Biograph." All in all, it was a great and historic event.

The entertainment highlight of the inaugural banquet was the old-time program presented in a theatre which had actually been erected in the Royal York Hotel for the celebration. The whole end of the dining room was closed off with a false front over which the name "Nickelodeon" flickered during the meal. There were various display frames announcing the showing of early classics of the screen and a one-sheet advertising illustrated songs as the added attraction, the featured vocal number being "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." These signs flanked a boxoffice where an attendant sold 5-cent tickets from a roll that looked as if it had been resurrected from an ancient storage.

Inside the impromptu theatre was a stage in front of which was a three-piece orchestra, billed as "The pioneer augmented symphony orchestra." The stage drops were characteristic of the days of the early century, both front and back curtains car-

WINNIPEG

TWO one-time members of the French Foreign Legion were entertained at dinner by Syl Gunn, manager of the Metropolitan, who included the press in his invitation, profiting thereby in his generosity to the extent of stories in connection with his current showing of "Beau Geste." Formerly banned in Canada through the protests of the French consul at Ottawa, the film has now been released for Canadian showings.

With Harold Bishop's quizz show, "Dr. Query" still going strong at the Capitol, a new stage feature has been added to roster with the inauguration last week of "Public Opinion" at the Metropolitan. It is a new type of show cooked up by Don Gauld and Syl Gunn . . . The Fox is now running a stage show in the form of an old-fashioned spelling bee with contestants composed of teams from city schools. The stunt seems a natural to bring kids and doting parents into the house.

At the Lyceum, Eddie Newman's new display has been catching the eye of patrons and eliciting their approval. Carrying out the idea of the springtime spirit, Newman designed a lattice work frame to carry his coming features. Bathing the whole in cool pastels thrown by a spot, the display does a lot to brighten up both the appearance of his lobby and the spirits of patrons.

Gordon Sparling, Montreal producer, arrived here to film some sequences for a picture of the peoples of Canada, which his company is making for the national film board . . . "Atlantic Patrol," national film board picture, is now playing the Capitol. A second film from this organization is scheduled for an early showing.

Warmer weather has brought showmen out on the golf links, practicing putts and getting the kinks out of their joints . . . The Men's Theatrical Bowling League carried out a successful windup to the season's activities. New officers elected include: Len Norrie, president; Bernie Beach, vice-president; Ed Turner, secretary; Ken Beach, treasurer.

rying appropriate signs for barber emporiums, ice cream parlors, wooden Indian cigar shops, cafes and the corner drug store. One of the drops was an actual relic, having been used years ago in Moore's Theatre at Grimsby. The stage was complete with wings, borders, foot, flood and spotlights.

Acts Billed Circus Style

The printed program was reminiscent of the olden days, the numerous acts being billed in circus style on a long sheet under the heading "Canadian Premiere." A touch of pathos was found in the foreword which read as follows:

"As a start may we remind you of those dear dead days when Cinematographs and Vitascopes (Motion Picture Theatres to the new generation) were few and far between, when a nickel gave you the fastest 30 minutes of flickers you ever hoped to see, when a single reel was a 'Special.' Super-Colossal Productions came in three reels, finishing with the familiar cry—'This way out. All those who have not seen the entire show may remain for the next.' These dramas were really pathetic, the comedies more so, and we old-timers even remember when stores were theatres. Little did we dream that, in the rapid advance of our Industry we would live to see theatres as stores once again and now we take you back to THE WORLD-IN-MOTION THEATRE."

The opening number on the program was the "Overture" (Selected) by the augmented orchestra of three pieces which actually consisted of members of the Pioneers' Club who had played in nickelodeons long since. These were Harry Paynter, now an executive of Empire-Universal, who scraped the violin with old-time abandon; Sam Marks, formerly of the Palace, London, who tripped the piano keys, and Fred Pursell, veteran proprietor of a theatre in Simcoe, Ont.

Walter Kennedy, billed as "The Canadian Chauncey Olcott," appeared in an illustrated song, "The Curse of an Aching Heart," in which he regained a resemblance of his original capability. A take-off on modern features was the presentation of what was billed as the first and original talking picture, "More Sinned Against Than Usual," a soul-wracking, heart-tearing, sob-provoking drama in three parts with Ray Lewis (The Girl of a Thousand Voices), the operators being Clair Hague, dean of Canadian film exchange officials, and Bill Redpath of General Films, a projectionist in the early days. Oscar Hanson was billed as the "Golden Voiced Baritone" in a "Descriptive Song with Illustration"—"When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold."

Dining Room Very Warm

Archie Mason, veteran exhibitor of Springhill, N. S., and a leader among the organized independents of the Maritime Provinces, offered "Mother Machree" as the Blue-Nose Tenor, while Bill Stewart and Charlie Stephenson, two colorful old-timers, were billed under the heading, "Youth—Beauty—Versatility, direct from Kenney's Third Avenue, Miner's Bowery, Joliet, Ossining, Leavenworth, Alcatraz and Shea's (Brewery) Montreal—The only team in the world turning a complete somersault through a baloney sausage without breaking the skin—Keep your eye on these two boys, they're comers."

Professional performers were interspersed between the presentations of the Pioneers, including a beauteous maiden who was announced as "Sensational Piece de Resistance—The Personality Girl Forever Blowing Bubbles," to which was appended: "Old Timers with young ideas please leave the theatre—No small boys admitted." There were also the Dainty Dazzling Demoiselles of the Dance in "The Can Can" as presented at Le Mort Chat, Paris; also the Gin Mill Four; Those Glorious Girls of Glam, Our Octette; McCombe and Brush, the Barber Shop Duo, and the program closed with "Wait for—Watch for—The Grand Finale—The Girls of Today" which was described as a display of daintiness hitherto unattempted or unexcelled in any part of this terrestial hemisphere.

The dining room was very warm.

MONTREAL

FILMROW now has a downtown branch. Empire-Universal and Regal Films have removed their offices from Monkland Ave. to the Tramways Bldg. on Craig St. . . . Confederation Amusements, Ltd., has removed its head office from 1449 St. Alexander St. to the United Amusement Corp. Bldg., 5887 Monkland Ave.

Mark Plottel, eastern Canada manager for RKO, has returned from a trip to Saint John, New Brunswick, where he installed his brother, Leslie Plottel, formerly of Toronto, as branch manager, in succession to E. A. Whelpley, who resigned.

T. J. Gould, Toronto branch manager of Regal Films, paid a visit to Filmrow and was surprised to find that H. Cass, manager of Regal in Montreal and his staff had already removed to their new offices downtown. Gould took the opportunity of looking in on a number of old friends and colleagues in other Filmrow offices.

"Rebecca" is being held a seventh week at the Orpheum, the most successful run there of any picture since "Hurricane" opened Christmas Day, 1937, and stayed nine weeks. Australia's film censor finds that British films are more risque than American but are characterized by "novel technique." Sixteen British films were cut and one banned in Australia in 1939. British films were unusually successful in Montreal during the past year.

W. J. Singleton, sales manager of Associated Screen News, has returned from a business trip to Quebec—Maurice Metzger, ASN's technical supervisor, attended the annual convention of the American Society of Motion Picture Engineers at Atlantic City—James Campbell, news editor of ASN, visited New York and discussed conditions in the industry along the "newsreel front."

William Elman, manager of Columbia Pictures, and Al Jeffries, manager of United Artists, lent their presence to the inauguration of the local baseball season . . . Phil Sherman, manager of Warner-Vitagraph, is having alterations and redecoration done in the office.

Dionne Quintuplets commence their fourth and last film for 20th-Fox this month. They will make no more pictures until they have thoroughly learned English, their business manager, Keith Munroe, announced. At present they speak only French. The publicist for Cecil B. DeMille's "North West Mounted Police" says that the producer has followed Canadian history closely, except in one instance—he changed the name of Little Bear to Big Bear, because Little Bear was not imposing enough for a DeMille production.

Richard Ford, of Odeon Theatres, London, England, was a visitor to Associated Screen News studios . . . Filmrow visitors included J. O'Connor, of the O'Connor, Huntington; Mort Prevost, of the Mason-Prevost circuit with theatres in Bedford and neighboring towns, who is just back from his honeymoon, and A. Lapierre, of the Ideal, Beauharnois.

Sapper William King, a Great War veteran, who has joined the First Canadian Pioneer battalion, claims to have been the man who taught Maurice Chevalier to speak English . . . Gracie Fields will fly from London to the Near East to entertain Allied troops in Egypt and Palestine.

John Cameron Macdiarmid, for a number of years a member of the Province of Quebec board of motion picture censors, died recently, aged 83 . . . Robert Hambleton, who owns theatres in Delhi and Tillsonburg, Ont., was driving to Simcoe late at night with the receipts from his theatres when he was slugged by a robber who had slipped into the rear seat of his car before he left Delhi. Fortunately a following car came up before robbery was attempted and the assailant leaped out and disappeared.

"Le Retour du Bison," an Associated Screen News cameo, which has completed a three-week run at the Cinema de Paris, met with such an enthusiastic reception that requests were made to ASN to produce French versions of several more cameos. This has been agreed to and French theatres throughout Quebec are assured of a regular supply of these fascinating shorts in their own language. "Le Retour du Bison," which realistically reproduces buffalo hunts on the prairies, has been booked for extended runs throughout the province.

M. Mass Renovating

HARTNEY, MAN.—M. Mass, who recently purchased the theatre property here from the town council, has remodeled the exterior. Interior plans include new screen and seats.

Butler on "Captain Cook"

HOLLYWOOD—Hugo Butler is scripting "The Life of Captain Cook," James FitzPatrick's first full length feature.

TORONTO

CHARLES E. KURTZMAN, formerly manager of Loew's Penn, Pittsburgh, until his recent promotion to district manager with headquarters at Boston, made a quick trip for an initial call on Manager Jules Bernstein of Toronto Loew's and Manager Fred Jackson of Loew's, London, Ont., and announced that he would return shortly for a special conference. Kurtzman succeeded H. M. Addison, who resigned.

Saturday closing went into effect May 4 at the head office of Famous Players Canadian Corp. for the summer season and some of the boys immediately went to their secret places for trout fishing while others hied themselves to the golf links . . . J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players, has returned from a restful vacation at Hot Springs, Ark., while Ben Geldsaeler, supervisor of circuit booking, is back from Florida. Fitzgibbons returned in time for the inaugural banquet of the Canadian Picture Pioneers.

Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, has intimated that the new circuit house at Guelph, Ont., will open early in the fall, some final arrangements not having been completed . . . Harry Dahn, film executive who is a noted angler, did not go after finny specimens when the trout season opened, declaring that he was waiting for the "bigger ones."

Visitors at the local exchange headquarters of late included Simon Meretsky, looking refreshed after his Southern holiday, in from Windsor; Fred Pursel from Simcoe; Ernie Moule of the Capitol, Brantford; C. G. Markell of the Capitol, Cornwall; Bill O'Regan, from the Laurier, Hull, and the Francais and Victoria, Ottawa; Jack Butler, Imperial, Moncton, and A. J. Mason, Capitol, Springhill, N. S.

Manager Dave Gordon of the Oriole, who was inadvertently mentioned in this column as David Goodman in connection with an announcement regarding his approaching marriage, reports excellent results with a "Revival-Program-a-Month" policy in which he plays a pair of feature successes of former years. These revival programs have brought patrons from every part of the city . . . Raoul Auerbach of Exhibitors Booking Ass'n, Toronto, and Mrs. Auerbach have been enjoying a lengthy stay in New York City.

Dave Ziff, formerly of Fort Erie, has been appointed manager of the Elmwood, a suburban house of London, Ont., recently acquired by Harris Ziff of the Bellard, Fort Erie. The Elmwood has introduced dinnerware with a service charge . . . A recent visitor in Ontario cities was Richard Ford of the Odeon circuit in Great Britain. He was entertained by J. L. Hunter, Ontario branch manager of Paramount Film Service.

Gordon Lightstone, general sales manager of Regal, Canadian M-G-M distributor, has returned to Toronto headquarters after a trip to the Maritime Provinces. Harry Phillips of Winnipeg is the new Regal branch manager at Calgary, succeeding Joseph Myers . . . George Spoiala of Timmins was in Toronto for the making of preparations for the erection of the proposed Broadway in the Northern Ontario mining town.

Harry Ginsler, veteran exhibitor, is back from a trip to New York City. He is the owner of the Iola, Danforth Ave. . . . Manager Tom Daley has laid extensive plans for the playing of "Primrose Path" at the big Imperial, scheduled to open May 17.

Jack Thompson, assistant booker of Associated Theatres, has been appointed booker of Sovereign Film Distributors, Ltd., Ontario branch. William Mitchell, formerly with Theatre Operating Service, Ltd., has succeeded Thompson on the Associated circuit staff . . . George Aiken, assistant manager of the Granada, Hamilton, Ont., has been handing out the cigars. It was an eight-pound baby girl.

Sam Firestone of Toronto had a scare when he received the report that robbers had entered the Esquire, Brantford, but the safe resisted their efforts . . . Jay Lewis, manager of the Avenue, and Bob Eves, manager of the Eglinton, opposition houses on Eglinton Ave. in North Toronto, both held over their programs for a second week, the former featuring "Break the News" and the latter, "French Without Tears." The opening of a large air force training school nearby is helping this district materially.

On the occasion of her arrival in Toronto, her birthplace, in company with her husband, Buddy Rogers who came for a band engagement, Mary Pickford quickly made a visit to the military camp at the Exhibition Grounds when she appeared before a large gathering of the troops.

WINDSOR

RALPH BARTLETT, who was assistant at the Tivoli, has taken over Art Duscharme's job at the Palace. Duscharme is set to manage the new Park. Succeeding Bartlett at the Tivoli is Lloyd Allen, chief usher at the Capitol.

Mr. Goldin accompanied Glen Daugharty on a tour of the theatres in Blenheim, Leamington, and several other centers.

An effective display for "Grapes of Wrath" was arranged by the Empire Theatre in the window of a local lunchroom. The display consisted of a moving disc bearing wood carvings of Ma, Grandpa and Rose of Sharon Joad. Stills and copy surrounded this attraction.

Thrift tickets are experiencing a swift popularity at the Palace.

Installs New Seating

CHATHAM, N. B.—The Capitol here has new seats and carpet, according to Mr. Babineau, manager.

Extensive Alterations Mapped for F-P Units

TORONTO—Ben Whitham, supervisor of construction and maintenance at Famous Players' head office, and Victor Armand, Western superintendent, are busy with extensive alterations to several circuit houses. The Capitol, Ottawa, with a capacity of 2,500, has been re-seated with rubber-cushioned chairs of larger design, new carpets are being laid, new rugs and furnishings are being placed in the large foyer and lobby and the front is being modernized, the cost being $25,000 for these changes The house has continued to operate without a break.

The Palace, Calgary, was closed for two weeks for new seats, new carpets, redecorating and other improvements and new sound and ventilating equipment was installed. Extensive work has been done at the Calgary Capitol while substantial improvements have been made at the Capitol and Empress in Edmonton and the Capitol at Lethbridge.

Lord's Day Alliance Group Intrudes on Amusements

TORONTO—The Lord's Day Alliance is zealously guarding the Sundays against encroachment in war time. A stunt in Toronto which involved the awarding of prizes on Sunday was called off by the police at the demand of the Alliance, even though there was no admission charge or entry fee. The Canadian Bowling Tournament attempted to finish off its games on local alleys on Sunday but the Alliance stopped the bowling—and some of the teams had only one frame to go.

Recently the L.D.A. threatened prosecution of exhibitors who advertised Sunday midnight shows and the theatres now are announcing performances "After Sunday Midnight."

London Studio Advertises Its Patron Winners

TORONTO—The discovery has been made that some people do have their photographs taken for a theatre Foto-Nite stunt.

Up in London, Ont., the Darragh Studios advertised that the winners of the $200 and $35 cash prizes at the Patricia both had had their portraits done at this place of business.

Incidentally, the Foto-Nite feature has been legalized by a court decision in Toronto which resulted in the dismissing of a test case which had been initiated by the police authorities.

United Amusement Ups Revenue First Quarter

MONTREAL—United Amusement Corp. experienced a slight increase in revenue in the first quarter of 1940, compared with the corresponding period in 1939, Ernest A. Cousins, president, announced at the annual meeting here. The increase came from paid attendance at the company's chain of theatres. Shareholders at the meeting adopted the various reports and re-elected the directors.

Morgan-Powell Scoffs at Talk of Dropping Shorts

MONTREAL—To S. Morgan-Powell, editor-in-chief and film critic of the Montreal Daily Star, the discussions presently going on in motion picture circles regarding the advisability of abandoning production of short subjects, seem "little short of insane."

"For my own part," writes Morgan-Powell, "I find it difficult to understand those who would abolish the short films. They are often, I think, the most interesting feature of a picture program. Short cartoons are usually most satisfying diversions. Short scenics are unfailingly interesting, and short educational pictures of all kinds possess potentialities which have not yet been more than scratched."

In Morgan-Powell's opinion "the ideal picture program should consist of one full-length feature, one comedy, one scenic and one educational film."

Observes Postal Centenary With Stamp Club Night

TORONTO—Manager Al Sedgwick of the Belsize conducted an effective tieup with the Centennial observance of the issue of the world's first postage stamp, the British Penny Black, in the sponsoring of a stamp club theatre night on May 7 through which he secured publicity in four newspapers and had announcements made at all stamp clubs in the Toronto district. Additions to the program were the Paramount short, "Public Hobby No. 1," dealing with stamp collecting, and a stamp quiz contest on the stage sponsored by the North Toronto Stamp Club, for prizes which were donated. There was also an exhibition of stamps in the Belsize lobby for the Centenary.

Court Upholds Cornwall License Curbing Plan

TORONTO—In a judgment delivered at Osgoode Hall, Mr. Justice Kelly upheld the ordinance of the Town of Cornwall providing for the cancellation of a license of any place of business, including theatres, if slot machines, pin games, punchboards or other similar devices are found on the premises.

The judge found that the council had not acted beyond its jurisdiction under the Ontario municipal act in passing the by-law and the latter has now gone into effect. The ruling will apply to similar enactments in other Ontario places.

Support for Educational Pictures in England

LONDON—Four regional experts will travel the territories collaborating with local educational directors in the new campaign of the government to encourage the use of educational films in reception and neutral areas. With the British Film Institute as its principal agent, the government's Board of Education will advise and assist.

Dual Bug Bites Hard In London, Ont.

London, Ont.—Every theatre in London has been bitten by the double-bill bug. With the smaller houses, it has become almost an invariable policy, while some big productions have been teamed up with other films at the larger houses. The Capitol is showing fewer double bills than any of the others.

Welfare Council Finds Product Is Worthy

TORONTO—The Canadian Welfare Council has issued a list of recommendations and critical reviews on current film releases for the guidance of women's and educational organizations throughout the Dominion, as follows:

"Little Orvie"—Refreshing entertainment for children following closely the Booth Tarkington story. John Sheffield is excellent as the young boy who wants a dog more than anything in the world. For juveniles.

"The Ghost Comes Home"—A pleasant program comedy which should provoke hearty laughter. The satisfying part of the picture is that which shows timid Frank Morgan finally asserting himself. The family.

"Three Cheers for the Irish"—A sentimental human interest comedy-drama. Although most of the characters are Irish, the picture should not be restricted in appeal to Irish folk alone. The family.

"It's a Date"—Very good. A lavish picture starring Deanna Durbin and offering comedy and human interest as well as romance and music. The supporting cast is excellent. The family.

"Virginia City"—This is a more or less glorified western, although the incidents depicted are authentic. The family.

"Rebecca"—A powerful psychological drama for adults, ably adapted from the novel by Daphne du Maurier. Joan Fontaine portrays the heroine with deep feeling and understanding. For adolescents and adults.

"Northwest Passage"—Very good. A robust outdoor adventure drama in Technicolor which should thrill everyone, especially men. The plot has been adapted from the best seller by Kenneth Roberts but covers only the first half of the book. The family.

"The Road to Singapore"—This film should go over well. Although the plot is weak, there is comedy, romance and music. One lavish scene shows a native feast with native songs and dances, and will provoke hearty laughter. The family.

"My Son, My Son"—Based on Howard Spring's best seller, this is an excellent production. The acting is excellent and the photography artistic. The interest is kept alive all through and one is in sympathy with the hero, Brian Aherne, because he is a fine character. Adolescents and adults.

"The Chinese Bungalow"—A melodrama on the theme "East Is East and West Is West," set in the Orient. Adolescents and adults.

"The Stars Look Down"—A drama set in a coal mining village, based on the novel by A. J. Cronin, although as those who are familiar with the book will understand, a great deal of the story has of necessity been omitted. Mature.

"House of Seven Gables"—This story is based on the famous novel by Nathaniel Hawthorne. Although the story is not a happy one, as it deals with avarice and blighted love, it does not sadden the spectator because the villain [illegible] his misdeeds. The old house of [illegible] New England design has been faithfully copied from the original which is still standing. Adolescents and adults but all right for children who are not too sensitive.

"Florian, the Emperor's Stallion"—A very fine picture based on the novel by Felix Salton, an author who has a marvelous insight into animal life and intelligence. An exceptional picture which should be seen by all horse lovers and everyone else.

"Flashing Blades"—Figure skating becomes one of the dramatic arts. The highly trained ballet of the Toronto Skating Club provides many spectacular numbers. Music by Agostini.

"Busy Little Bears"—Three cunning bears in the Rocky Mountains with nothing to do and all day to do it in.

"Teddy the Rough Rider"—A stirring, swift and colorful view of Theodore Roosevelt, highly principled, courageous, a lover of the people and of his country and its constitution.

Robt. Hambleton Slugged By Would-Be Robber

TORONTO—Robert Hambleton has been in the limelight. Owner of theatres at Simcoe, Delhi and Tillsonburg, he was driving along a highway in western Ontario late at night carrying the receipts for the day when he was suddenly smacked over the head by a man who had hidden in the rear seat of the automobile. Hambleton wobbled but brought the car to a stop. Fortunately another automobile came along at that moment and also stopped to find out what was wrong.

It looked like a young war between the allies and the thief but the latter bolted into the bush and disappeared. The man had apparently entered the automobile while Hambleton was checking the Capitol at Delhi.

Three Time Standards Rule in Huttonville

TORONTO—Residents of Huttonville, Ont., are in for a time of it until next September because of the use of three different time standards. The town proper decided to remain on standard time but the local industries adopted daylight saving on their own hook. Then the school board discussed the situation and decided to go half way in the matter by advancing the school clocks by half an hour. It all adds up to confusion.

VANCOUVER

AN AIR of calm hangs over Filmrow. Exhibitors have cleaned up their season's bookings and merely come in to exchange films with seemingly little time for social visits. Business is not very brisk, according to reports, some attributing it to the warm spring weather and all blaming some of it on the gasoline controversy which culminated in a motor fuel famine of a few days' duration.

The National Film Society, which is growing in popularity and membership, held a regular meeting at the Stanley, April 28, when it presented a French play, "Betrayal," and two short features, "Finland Speaks" and "The Londoners."

Details of the new theatre to go up on Granville St., are still being held in reserve . . . Ben Plottel and his staff are eagerly awaiting the final results of the Bill Scully Drive which closed last week with the Empire-Universal office here in the lead when last reports were made.

Connie Krebs of the RKO publicity department spent a few days here working in conjunction with Maynard Joiner on the promotion of "Irene," which was shown at the Capitol . . . J. T. Droy booked "Black Limelight" for the Plaza and "North Sea Patrol" for the Colonial.

[illegible] back from a trip in the east and some say there may be an addition to his two theatres, the Bay and York . . . The weekly quiz on the Capitol stage continues to draw well.

'Tom Brown's School Days' World Bow at Ottawa

MONTREAL—World premiere of the film, "Tom Brown's School Days," recently completed in Hollywood, will be held in Ottawa, Major Hugh A. Green, of Montreal, announced.

Major Green, member of the Dominion wartime fishery advisory board, returned from Hollywood where his 19-year-old son, Hugh, took part in the film, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, English actor, and the youthful star, Freddie Bartholomew.

He said he had obtained permission from the producers to hold the premiere in Ottawa in aid of the Canadian Legion. Sir Cedric and Freddie Bartholomew will make personal appearance at the premiere.

Build in Waterford

WATERFORD, ONT.—Construction is under way here on a theatre scheduled to open in June. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. A. d'Honde, who have the Imperial in Delhi. The manager of the new house will be their son, Aime d'Honde.

Vajda and Wolfson Teamed

HOLLYWOOD—Columbia is teaming Ernest Vajda and P. J. Wolfson to script "He Stayed for Breakfast." B. P. Schulberg is the producer.

Script "Why Was I Born"

HOLLYWOOD — Marion Orth is scripting "Why Was I Born" for Columbia.

Cites "Mass Impact" on Public Mind by Films

EDMONTON—The motion picture industry has had the greatest mass impact upon the public mind of any agency since the founding of the popular press in the belief of Robert Pearson, film censor, who was recently heard in an address on the film industry.

While film companies do not believe in "propaganda," their pictures do much to shape public opinion, said Pearson. "The characters are so tremendously real that the screen becomes an avenue of enchanted delight to most people," he said.

He added that it might be more precisely stated "that the film industry mirrors rather than originates social trends."

The prevalence of crime and gangsters had been widely publicized in the United States before Hollywood began making its crime pictures, he pointed out, therefore motion pictures could only be censured, if at all, for reflecting social conditions.

"Sidewalks of London" a Natural in London, Ont.

LONDON, ONT.—Capitalizing on the coincidence of the names of this city and the picture, Manager William Trudell got some unusual publicity for "Sidewalks of London." Headed by Mayor Allan Johnston, M.P.-elect, members of the city council attended in a body, a few days before the picture opened, the showing of a newsreel of the film's opening made in New York.

In the newsreel were shots of Ald. S. Copp, who attended the premiere with representatives of other Londons on this continent. Leaving the theatre, the council posed for a picture which was printed in a local daily. That was followed by a one-page tieup in the same newspaper, and a two-page tieup in the University of Western Ontario Gazette.

Plans Cooling System

WINDSOR—The Palace is scheduled to have a new cooling system soon.

Costly Criticism

MONTREAL—Throwing frozen potatoes and stench bombs at a master of ceremonies in a theatre is costly, two young Montrealers discovered when they were each fined $10 and costs for disturbing the peace. The incident which brought the youths before Recorder-in-Chief Thouin occurred at the Mayfair. Several young patrons took exception to the master of ceremonies and three of them expressed their displeasure with the frozen spuds and stench bombs. The third, on probation from juvenile court, was returned there to be dealt with by Judge Robillard.

In addition to the fines and costs, which the accused paid rather than go to jail for 15 days, the pair were ordered to post a $100 bond each to keep the peace for six months.

MARITIMES

GORDON LIGHTSTONE, general sales manager of Regal Films, spent some time at the Saint John branch . . . R. G. March, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, has returned from the company convention in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Spencer of the Spencer circuit have returned to their home in Saint John after spending several months at Daytona Beach Fla. . . . Lloyd Mason of the Capitol, Springhill, N. S., has so improved after his recent illness that he is back on the job again.

The Strand, Saint John, brought back "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" for a second Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday engagement, and packed the house every night.

Joe LeBlanc of the Capitol, Shediac, N. B., was on Filmrow for a day or two en route to the States on a vacation . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. V. McLaughlin of the Opera House, Newcastle, N. B., and their daughter called on some of the exchanges on their way to Boston where they will visit for a couple of weeks.

Recent visitors to Filmrow: A. J. Mason and Lloyd Mason of the Capitol, Springhill, N. S.; H. E. Gaudet of the Capitol, Summerside, P. E. I.; Colin Danson of the Strand, Sussex, N. B., and George Khattar of the Casino, Whitney Pier, N. S.

Lloyd Dunbar, formerly head usher at the Empire, Saint John, is now the ad sales manager and shipper at United Artists, taking the place of William Steen . . . The Capitol, Campbellton, N. B., was the scene of an amateur production of a play sponsored by a women's organization to raise funds for their war work.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Sobey of the Jubilee, Stellarton, N. S., have left by motor on a vacation trip to the west coast . . . Jack Kiely of Montreal, with theatre interests in St. John's, Newfoundland, was a recent visitor to Filmrow.

Leslie Plottel has arrived in Saint John from Montreal to take over as branch manager of the RKO office . . . F. Gordon Spencer of the Spencer circuit was the speaker at a recent meeting of the Kinsmen's Club of Saint John. His subject was "Motion Pictures" and, having visited the major studios in Hollywood just a couple of years ago, he gave a full account of his subject.

A 9 P. M. Curfew Law Invoked in Pembroke

OTTAWA—Because of the proximity of a military camp to Pembroke, the town council of that Ottawa Valley center of 9,000 has ordered the ringing of a curfew bell at 9 p. m. for the purpose of clearing all streets and public places of juveniles under 16 years of age. This will also apply to the O'Brien Theatre, which means that children will not be able to attend late evening shows.

She Sensed a "Hit"

TORONTO—The Toronto Telegram pulled a good one when it published the following story:

"We know a woman who was scanning the amusement pages the other evening and remarked to her drowsing son that she thought they really ought to step out to a film some night soon . . . this picture 'Encyclopaedia' was playing at so many places . . . it surely must be a tremendous hit, she added."

The reference, of course, was to the numerous book nights at local theatres, with the newspaper advertisements playing up the offer of a volume of an encyclopaedia for so much extra. The heading over the newspaper comment, of facetious quality, was: "Hollywood's Most Unusual Movie."

Swaying Rocker Attracts For "Invisible Man"

TORONTO—Manager Stanley Andrews of the Capitol, Guelph, earned approving nods for a stunt which he created for the engagement of "The Invisible Man" in which he made use of the window of a vacant store. The feature of the display was a rocking chair which was rocked by a thread through a back-drape which concealed the human agency. In addition to a large announcement poster, a card bearing the words, "He is sitting in this chair —Can you see him?" was placed beside the moving chair. Hundreds of passersby congregated to watch the phenomenon.

Empire-Universal Bowling Crown Won by 'Bearcats'

TORONTO—The winning team in the bowling league of Empire-Universal and affiliated companies proved to be the "Bearcats," the five members of which took down $15 in prize money.

Those who divided the spoils comprised Jim Kudurka, W. Mitchell, W. Devitt, Gladys Tuttle and D. Evans. Two of these enthusiasts also cashed in with individual honors, with Devitt grabbing the $6 prize for season's high average and Miss Tuttle earning $5 for the best two-game score. Miss Mary Hale won the high average for ladies, with Jerry Shumer gaining distinction with a high single award. The high single for men was taken by C. Faith, the reward in this instance being $4. G. Wilson rolled the best double of the series for which he received $5.

In the special windup tournament, the high single was made by Frank Fisher, Ontario branch manager of Empire-Universal. P. Wright took the high double while the winner of the draw was I. Hague. Other winners were M. Holloway, E. Smerdon and P. Hagan, while the team to grab the tourney was the Rovers, comprising P. Wright, Stansfield, M. Holloway, G. Shumer and I. Stern, the prize for this concluding event being $5.

Additional individual cash prizes were awarded to other leading players under the rule that one person could receive only one reward. These included E. Charles, J. Simpson, E. Young, I. Stern, M. Main and M. Mitchell.

A Year's Clearance

TORONTO—A young housewife has shown that it is profitable—perhaps doubly so—to take theatre giveaways, even with the service charge.

A year ago she started to collect the chinaware pieces at the nearby theatre, for which she paid the extra fee of 10 cents each. Eventually she had the complete set of 50 dishes which represented an outlay of $5, according to ordinary mathematical calculation.

She made use of various dishes in the household during the year but, a few days ago, she sold the complete set to another housewife for the neat sum of $10, making a profit of $5.

Extending the mathematical process, the young lady enjoyed a picture show each of the 50 weeks at a cost of 15 cents per performance. (Name of the lady on request).

Naval Service Officials See "Sons of the Sea"

OTTAWA—"Sons of the Sea," a new British feature in color, was privately screened in Ottawa for a number of officials of the naval service, department of national defense, including Sir Percy Nelles, commander of the Royal Canadian Navy. The picture is to be released in the Dominion by Empire-Universal.

Studios Hold Record Production Pace

HOLLYWOOD—Holding determinedly to its record-shattering pace, Hollywood's production mill has launched another 15 films, including a serial, to maintain the 53-picture total established last week.

Six are in work at Columbia, where "Durango Kid" and "Girls of the Road" received the starting nod. Metro topped its past efforts of the season by hitting an eight-picture mark with the start of "Escape." "Phantom Raiders," at the same studio, went into the cutting room. Monogram, winding up "Amateur Detective," lapsed into temporary idleness.

Paramount also is at a new seasonal high, by reason of the launching of "Mystery Raider," "Ghost Music" and "Victory," which places its total at eight. On the completed side of the ledger is "I Want a Divorce," now being edited. RKO Radio held a seven-picture total by rolling "The Stage to Chino" and completing "$1,000 Marriage." Republic is filming two, having completed "Wagons Westward" and a serial, "The Adventures of Red Ryder."

Twentieth Century-Fox also balanced its accounts, starting "I Married a Nazi" and completing "Pier 13" for a six-picture total. For United Artists, Edward Small completed "South of Pago Pago" and immediately went into production on "Kit Carson." The UA total stands at four. Most ambitious barrage was unleashed by Universal, which gunned "A Modern Monte Cristo," "Slightly Tempted," "I'm Nobody's Sweetheart Now" and a serial, "Junior G-Men." With the completion of "One of the Boston Bullertons," it has five features and a serial in production. Warner boosted its pace to seven with the start of "The Man From Fleet Street" and "The Embezzler."

No Letdown Is Seen; Big Ones Near Work

HOLLYWOOD—There seems to be no letdown in the immediate offing as regards Hollywood's present boom-time production pace—as evidenced by the pretentiously-scaled schedules chalked up by most of the majors for the balance of this month and June

At least one a week until June 15, for example, is the course charted at the Warner plant in Burbank. With "River's End" getting the go-signal May 13, both "City for Conquest" and "The Letter" will roll May 20; "The House on the Hill" and "Santa Fe Trail" June 6; and "Tugboat Annie Sails Again" June 15. May 15 will herald the launching of three at RKO Radio—"Men Against the Sky," "Photo Finish" and "The Other Man." Republic will start "The Girl From God's Country" and "Carolina Moon" May 13, and will follow two days later with "Sundown Marshal." A shuffling in schedules has the studio's "Lady From New Orleans" set back to July 1, with "Hit Parade of 1940" replacing it as an early June start.

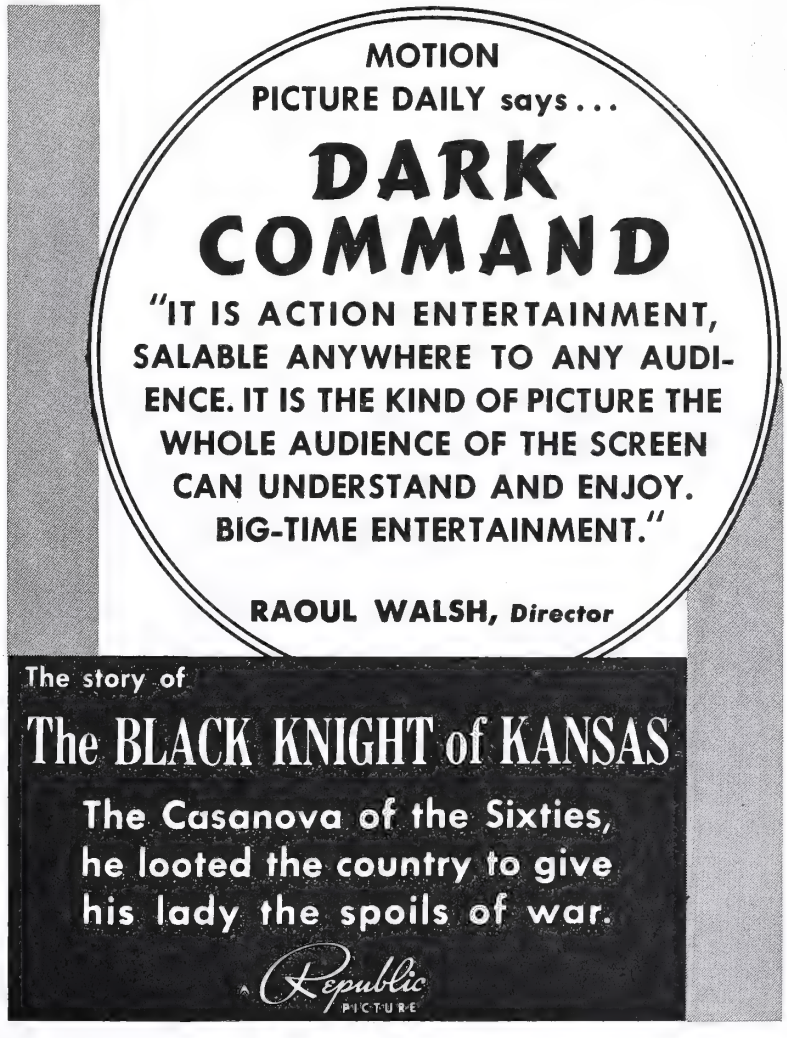
Also scheduled for camera work are 20th Century-Fox's "The Great Profile," Paramount's "Doomed Caravan" and Universal's "Spring Parade" and "When the Daltons Rode." The Westwood plant lists, to follow the "Great Profile," such vehicles as "The Practice of Michael Shane" and "Corncob Kelly's Benefit," which Sol Wurtzel will produce; "Libel" and "Flight Surgeon," under Producer Lucien Hubbard's wing; and "The Man With the Shovel" and "Charlie Chan in the Wax Museum," to be co-produced by Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich. Universal will gun "Argentine Nights" late this month and will follow June 15 with "Hired Wife." Paramount currently has 43 pictures in writing, filming and editing stages.

Monogram will launch "The Last Alarm" May 15, at which time M-G-M has scheduled a production start on "The Yearling." The latter plant has chartered "Wyoming" for a June 10 getaway and has added "The Adventures of Pierre" to Edgar Selwyn's production schedule, to follow his "Dulcy" and "The Golden Fleecing."

Harry Taylor Sales Head Of Bennett Theatre Plan

HOLLYWOOD—Harry Taylor, whose resignation as western district manager for National Screen Service becomes effective May 18, has joined Constance Bennett, Inc., as sales manager of the theatre division of this cosmetics firm. He will headquarter in Hollywood.

Taylor's new work places him in charge of a cooperative theatre plan that is tied in with Constance Bennett beauty preparations. The plan was originated in the San Francisco territory, where Taylor reports it is being used by 50 Fox West Coast houses. It also is in use in the de luxe Fox theatres in Phoenix and Tucson. Taylor says that plans are now under way for opening of the proposition in various FWC theatres throughout southern California.



73 Outdoor Theatres Are Built by WPA

WASHINGTON—Of specific interest to the trade is the knowledge that the country is richer by 215 auditoriums and 73 outdoor theatres since the inception of the WPA in 1935. This data is revealed in a report on the progress of the WPA program from the time of its inception, to June 30, 1939, the date of the report.

During the last year that the report covers, 70 new auditoriums were constructed. No outdoor theatres were listed, possibly as an outgrowth of the fact that new provisions in the Emergency Appropriations Act approved in 1939, the funds allotted the WPA were specifically prescribed as not available for theatre operation.

Max Margolies Dead

CINCINNATI — Max Margolies, Republic district manager, died here Monday.

Selling Seats

PRACTICAL IDEAS BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Book Store and Window Tieups for "My Son"

ROCHESTER—Tieups and window displays with five book stores featured the campaign of Manager Lester Pollock of Loew's on "My Son, My Son." Pollock also had the local station play the song record named after the picture. A number of jewelry stores used stills showing a jeweler selling rings to Brian Aherne and Josephine Hutchinson. Over 200 taxis carried front and back bumper strips. Pollock also used a teaser trailer two weeks in advance.

Waltz Contest in Kaycee By Lehman for "Irene"

KANSAS CITY—The "Irene" waltz as conceived by the Dance Educators of America was effectively introduced here by Manager Lawrence Lehman of the Orpheum in conjunction with the film. A tieup was made with a local ballroom to hold an "Irene" waltz contest the day the attraction opened. The ballroom advertised the competition in the newspapers and the theatre awarded guest tickets to the ten best teams.

Criterion's Tall Doorman Gets Job Done as "Earl"

NEW YORK—An effective stunt used for "The Earl of Chicago" at Loew's Criterion had Hugh Douglas, six foot seven inch doorman, dressed in a top hat, cutaway coat, striped pants, pearl grey vest and all the trimmings, strolling up and down the Broadway sector on a Saturday, leaving his calling card at numerous places which read: "His Lordship, The Earl of Chicago (Robert Montgomery) Loew's Criterion." Credit for the stunt goes to Manager Seligman and his assistants, Bruner and Linder, and Publicist Phil Laufer.

NUGGETS

RUTH TUCKER of the Pulaski, Little Rock, Ark., gave the fans a novelty guessing contest as a phase of the theatre's campaign on "Pinocchio." About a hundred goldfish were placed in an aquarium and small cash prizes were given to the most accurate guessers to their number in addition to tickets. Estimates were deposited at the store where the tieup was made.

Publishers of "All This, and Heaven Too" are putting out a popular-priced edition of the book with 16 illustrations from the picture which features Bette Davis and Charles Boyer. Picture credits will appear on the special jacket made up for the edition.

With the approval of the superintendent of schools, the head of the Rhode Island Scholastic Press Ass'n and their faculty advisors, two members of each school paper prepared the Albee, Providence, campaign for "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Manager Bill Morton and RKO exploiteer Harry W. Reiners arrange the stunt.

Bob Portle of the Plaza, Worcester, used a mechanical man street ballyhoo for "The Human Monster."

George Freeman of the Poli, Springfield, interviewed Irina Baronova, who appears in "Florian," during her visit to the city for a concert with the Ballet Russe. Bob Carney, assistant at the Majestic, Bridgeport, also made hay with Kay Kyser while he played a local dance engagement, interviewing him on the radio and receiving plugs for "Two Girls on Broadway."

Build "Seventeen" With A Sweetheart Contest

PHILADELPHIA — Silvert Setron, Logan, and Warner's district manager, Larry Graver, ran a contest to find a sweetheart for Jackie Cooper, to build up "Seventeen."

Twenty neighborhood merchants joined in the search, handing out ballots to customers. The community newspaper arranged two pages of cooperative ads with merchants, who also pitched in $100 for the winner. A loving cup, inscribed with Jackie's signature, was also part of the award.

Kid Matinee Problem Solved by Jacobson

DETROIT—The problem of how to keep youngsters under control between the time the doors open and the show starts at his Saturday matinees, has been solved by Edward Jacobson, manager of the Harmony.

Jacobson found that a golf course in the neighborhood was putting out weekly comic cartoon books using strips similar to those in the daily papers. He promptly arranged a tieup so that they are furnished without charge for distribution to the youngsters who sit down quietly and read the "funnies" instead of running around the house making noise and causing confusion.

"Rebecca" Essay Contest Newsworthy in Meriden

MERIDEN, CONN.—An essay contest in which cash prizes were awarded for the best 100-word letter describing the most effective scene in "Rebecca" earned for Manager J. G. Samartano of the Loew's Palace considerable newspaper space during the run. The layout featured different art each day. Samartano reports an enthusiastic response to the contest.

His Newest Customers

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Jack Foxe of the Poli, Springfield, claims the distinction of being the first theatre assistant to penetrate a maternity ward with film ballyhoo. Jack was able to persuade two hospitals that he should place two 22x28 cards in the wards reading "Learn How to Take Care of a Baby and see Eddie Cantor in 'Forty Little Mothers.'" The new mothers couldn't wait to get out and see the show.

Rewards Drivers

KANSAS CITY, KAS.—Providing ten tickets to the Electric Theatre to be awarded by motorcycle police to careful drivers, tied in with the current safety campaign and permitted Manager Jack Truitt to effectively publicize "Three Cheers for the Irish."

A Search Is Ended—

Warner's Philadelphia chain and the Philadelphia Record set out to find the "perfect husband" on the eve of the debut at the Boyd of "Too Many Husbands," aided and abetted by letters written by wives. Result: The "perfect husband," Charles Yocum (second from right above), and his proud spouse who receives his prize from Everett Callow, Warner's local advertising head. Harry Weiner, Columbia manager, whose company's picture started the contest in the first place, watches the proceedings with interest.

Go Cooperative—

How 12 Cleveland neighborhoods combined to announce the first-run showings of Republic's Gene Autry film, "Rancho Grande." The theatres contributed alike to a general advertising fund for the picture, one angle of which was this four-column ad. Al Gregg, exchange publicity man, handled the promotional details.

Edison's Early Inventions Used to Sell "Young Tom"

DETROIT—Two lobby display cases, one of which was loaned out by Henry Ford from his Greenfield Village, attracted considerable patron interest during the run of "Young Tom Edison" at the Michigan here.

The Ford display case contained some of Edison's early inventions, while the other, devoted to lamps, traced their development from the time of the caveman down to the present.

Three National Ties Are Made for "Torrid Zone"

NEW YORK—A national pre-selling campaign has been launched by Warner Bros. for "Torrid Zone," starring James Cagney, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien, with three important national tieups, the House of Westmore, Auto-Lite Spark Plugs and the Goldman Co., manufacturers of play clothes.

Theatre Rackets Are Detailed by Lamm

CLEVELAND—Theatre rackets are a common practice of petty crooks In order to acquaint managers who may be duped, Julius Lamm, Warner theatre manager, calls attention to these:

Racket No. 1: "Screen Advertising Salesman": He will find out the manager's name and approach your merchant using your approval, and sell him space on your screen without your knowledge, then blow town with all the money he collected. Merchants must be instructed and warned never to contract for anything in connection with your theatre without first consulting you personally.

Racket No. 2: Two people usually work this stunt. The first one will buy a ticket and will give you a $10 bill, on the bill there will be a name and address written, but in most instances the cashier will not see this at the time of the purchase. About five minutes later, another man will buy a ticket and give the cashier a $1 bill. When he reaches the doorman he will say that he was short-changed. Of course, the cashier says he was mistaken. The man asks for the manager and when he arrives, will say: "I remember now. I had my name and address written on my $10 bill." The manager will look over the $10 bills and sure enough he finds the bill the patron's partner left there. The manager will then tell the cashier she must have made a mistake as the patron identified the bill. The manager will give the patron $9 and when he checks up at night he will be $9 out.

Racket No. 3: This one is usually worked by a man and a woman. A woman faints in the theatre, and a man sitting near her will call the usher. When the usher arrives, he will inform the usher that he will help carry the woman out and will ask to have the woman taken into the manager's office for treatment. A few minutes later, if the opportunity presents itself, you will find out that this was a stickup to get into your office and make you open the safe. Under no circumstance permit anyone in your office unless you know him.

Strictly Press Stuff For Roach Fantasy

Philadelphia—Warner staff men took "One Million B. C." down to the Philadelphia Zoo and screened it for an audience made up of two chimpanzees, several dozen snakes, two skunks, five macaws and half a dozen newspaper reporters.

The spectators immediately reverted to type, the monkeys climbing up the poles, the macaws screeching, the snakes hissing, the skunks . . . well, use your imagination . . . and the reporters writing bang-up stories for their papers.
